Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices picked up in active mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Only western oils and pipelines were off.
In industrials, Dylex Diversified gained 2 to 33¼, Great West Life 1¼ to 21, Moore Corp. ¾ to 30, Rothmans ¾ to 26 and St. Maurice Gas 12 cents to 6.40 cents.
Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line fell 1 to 13¾, BA Oil ¼ to 41 and Trans-Canada Pipe Lines ¼ to 34.
Among the heaviest traders, Bow Valley jumped 1¾ to 17¼, West Canadian Seed 15 cents to $3.40 and Capital Building ¼ to 23.85. Consolidated Building slipped 10 cents to $2.75.
Imperial Oil advanced 1¼ to a record at 72⅞. Buying followed a report on a record U.S. gasoline price strike on the Arctic slope of Alaska. Imperial has drilling permits about 400 miles east of the discovery.
In golds, Dome rose 1 to 61, Campbell Chibougamau ½ to 45.50 and Upper Canada 5 cents to 22.25.
Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas' median Superior lost 1 each to 42 and 43¼ and Pacific Pete ¼ to 15¾ while Dynamic was steady to 52.98.
On index, industrials added .17 to 171.37, golds 2.84 to 197.98 and base metals .03 to 106.27. Western oils fell 1.71 to 211.64.
Volume by 11 a.m. was 900,000 shares compared with 785,000 at the same time Thursday.
"On Thursday's trade, golds suffered some losses but made sharp gains after an announcement that the South African government would release more newly-mined bullion on the free market for some time.
"Golds closed up 2 to 3 after changing hands as low as 37 before the news. Campbell Red and Lake Shore led Yellowknife gained ¼ each to 20 and 11, and Dome ½ to 61 in active trade.
The gold index swung through 9.39 points between 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. when the announcement reached the market. Golds fell previously on the expectation of increased sales of gold and it is thought South Africa would reveal a program for selling part of its output.
Other sections of the market also were strong. Only western oils were off.
Ford of Canada gained 4 to 251, Imperial Oil 3⅛ to 71, Hudson Bay benefited 3 to 31¼, Great West Life 2¼ to 59¼, Dylex Diversified 2 to 16 and West Canadian Seed 45 cents to $3.45.
Bank of Montreal and Royal Bank picked up ⅛ each to 13¾ and 18⅛. Both raised their dividend rates last week. Montreal rose 10 cents to $2.50.
Standard Broadcasting was up ¼ to 9.75. The company has bought Radio Station CKLC in Kingston. Shoo and Save gained ¼ to 12⅛. Quarterly and half-year profits were up.
Union Oil of Canadian Superior eli fell 2 to 52 and 44¼ and Hudson's Bay Oil ¼ to 43. Trans-Canada Pipe Lines lost 6 cents to 11.70 on 222,500 shares.
On index, industrials rose .31 to 171.51, golds .06 to 198.14 and base metals .31 to 106.84. Western oils dropped 3.41 to 213.41.

VC Holders Bitter at Way RCAF Separated Them From Wives

LONDON (CP) — Canadian holders of the Victoria Cross and the George Cross, the highest awards of gallantry, had "a wonderful time" at Buckingham Palace Thursday but they spoke with some bitterness of their travel arrangements from Canada.

The men had been transported from Canada earlier in the week aboard an RCAF Yukon. Their wives and other dependents had to make the trip aboard a Comet, courtesy of the RAF.

"Our plane was half empty," said Maj. John Foote of Cobourg, Ont., a VC hero. "It could have taken the wives but it was against RCAF policy."

Air Commodore A. D. Ross of Kingston, Ont., a GC winner, said he was disappointed. He had travelled aboard the Canadian Yukon. His wife had to come to London via New York and the RAF Comet.

"I think our air force could have done better," he said, "but the defence department said it was too busy to fly wives and other dependents."

Eight Canadian heroes—six VCs and two GCs—had come to London for a three-day biennial reunion with others in the Commonwealth who had gained these high honors.

After meeting with the Queen and Prince Philip at Buckingham Palace, they gathered at a small reception at the home of Canadian High Commissioner Charles Ritchie.

Including dependents, there were more than 500 persons at the palace tea party, and the royal couple spoke to them all.

Air Commodore Ross said,

Maj. Foote said one of the Canadians—he would not say which one—told the Queen that when she tired of the British scene, she could always come to Canada. Foote declined to disclose the Queen's response.

British Machine Can Feed 60,000 On Green Leaves

HARPENDEN, England (AP) — A British do-it-yourself machine to extract protein from green leaves has been offered as an aide in feeding the world's hungry.

Norman W. Pirie, head of the biochemistry department at Rothamsted experimental station here, claimed Thursday his machine could extract 40 pounds of pure protein from one ton of ordinary leaves such as clover, wheat or mustard. It could, he said, fill the needs of 60,000 people a year.

Such matchines, it was suggested, could be set up in areas of protein famine, using locally grown leaf crops, and avoiding the need for transport and distributing network.

Pirie's prototype is a clanking iron monster housed in an open-ended shed in the lush Hertfordshire countryside. It is an affair of conveyor belts, revolving drums and churning paddle-wheels.

Nearby, in a room that is half laboratory and half kitchen, Monica Commassieng is turning out "Monica's fishcakes" and other dishes according to the recipes of Margarette Patten, a home economist who advises on the application of leaf protein concentrate to existing diets.

Turner to Argue Case For Breaking Up Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Turner will take his arguments for breaking up the big Criminal Code revision bill to the cabinet and the Liberal caucus.

One of the men he will have to convince is Prime Minister Trudeau, his predecessor in the justice department, who still favors putting the bill through Parliament as a single item.

Mr. Turner said in an interview Thursday he and Mr. Trudeau "share our convictions" about the proposals to change laws relating to such diverse subjects as abortion, homosexual conduct and control of firearms.

The forms of presentation would be up to the cabinet and the caucus to decide, Mr. Turner said.

Mr. Trudeau told a reporter Wednesday he still regards the bill as a single item. He added that if Mr. Turner "has grave reasons for changing it, I suppose we'd consider them."

Nuclear Equality Now Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top defence department officials have told the Senate the Soviet Union is nearing nuclear arms equality with the United States in an awesome standoff that could make all-out war suicide for both sides.

The Pentagon leaders said U.S. strategy is aimed at wiping out "essentially the entire urban population" of the Soviet Union in a nuclear war. At the same time, one Pentagon estimate of possible American casualties ranged from 40,000,000 to 120,000,000.

In fact, the senators were told, the spectre of global disaster in an atomic give-and-take is so great that U.S. nuclear might no longer can be counted upon to discourage conventional flareups—because the other side just isn't likely to believe it will be used.

Air Force Secretary Harold Brown and other military leaders appeared at closed hearings of the Senate preparedness subcommittee in late April and early May. A heavily-censured transcript of the testimony was made public by the subcommittee Thursday.

Gen. John P. McConnell, air force chief of staff, told the senators the Soviet Union probably will draw even with the United States in the number of intercontinental ballistic missiles by the end of this year.

McConnell disputed a House of Representatives armed services committee report predicting the Soviet Union will have an over-all superiority in nuclear weapons in three years. He said the House study didn't have access to all the intelligence information.

McConnell said: "I think that in 1971 the Soviets will be very nearly on a parity-but not quite." He was speaking about over-all nuclear weaponry, not just ICBMs.

Brown said present U.S. strategy calls for planes to penetrate below the Soviet Union's radar, and conceded the U.S. has no effective way of stopping completely such a tree-top attack by Soviet planes.

Soviet bombers have approached the North American mainland this year in "an unprecedented show of force," McConnell said.

One of the bombers came within 42 miles of Newfoundland where the U.S. has air force and navy bases.

U.S. military planes have made flights near Soviet borders for years.

Post Office Looks Away as Private Agencies Carry Mail

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ingenuity entered the postal strike Friday as thousands of Canadians tried to find a way to get their mail through.

For some, it was a simple matter of a short drive to the United States to send mail on its way to international points. But for others there were plans ranging from a university delivery service to brainstorms offering national and foreign delivery.

Streets were jammed Friday outside of post offices in Plattsburgh, N.Y., as Montreal businessmen jogged in bundles of foreign mail for delivery.

And postal authorities in Buffalo, N.Y., say 34 Toronto firms have taken mailboxes at local post offices to ensure they will get important business correspondence during the strike of 19,000 workers.

Joan Hewitt, 21, a second-year student at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, announced she has set up her own delivery service. She's rented a postal box in Lewiston, N.Y., and plans to drive there twice a week. Her charge is $1 a letter.

Office Overload of Toronto, which specializes in temporary secretarial help, says many companies are calling for messengers to deliver their mail and pick up cheques in 28 branch offices across Canada.

Bob Thorsen, a 20-year-old student at the University of Calgary, has organized a student mail delivery service. But it ran into trouble Friday when Mr. Thorsen received several threatening calls.

"We are just clowning to provide an emergency service to deliver the essential mail of Calgary businessmen," he said, adding that delivery will continue while police investigate the calls.

Meanwhile, Bankers' Dispatch Corp., serving the Toronto-Dominion Bank and the Bank of Nova Scotia, is picking up mail from both banks and taking it to Marine Midland Trust Co. in Buffalo.

Customs brokers in Toronto and Montreal are also making daily trips to the United States to pick up invoices and other material they generally receive through the mail.

Technically, the use of private conveyances to carry first-class mail is illegal, but J. G. Fultz, director of postal services for Toronto, said the post office will "look the other way."

Under normal circumstances there is a penalty of $100 or two months in jail for anyone who breaks the postal monopoly on business or personal letters.

But the amount of mail carried by private means is only a tiny proportion of the normal daily Canadian delivery. The only way to beat the strike in Canada is by telegram and business is booming.

Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Telecommunications reported a 50-per-cent increase in business Friday. Many businessmen are wiring money because they cannot send cheques.

Telephone service has also jumped and in Cape Breton and Prince Edward Island, supervisors estimate the number of long-distance calls has increased 25 and 15 per cent respectively.

The University of Toronto is using the telephone to tell students whether they have been accepted for entrance this fall.

Another university cancelled plans to operate a courier service.

Marilyn Pilkington, president of the students union at the University of Alberta, said the necessary personnel to operate the service are not available.

Meanwhile Friday, Hugh Laing of Ottawa, the lone worker in the main post office, was joined by Albert Rochon who had been off sick. Pickets shouted "scab" as they went into the building.

Carleton Place, Ont., workers, who at first refused to join the strike, finally gave up Friday and left their jobs.

Pickets sent from Ottawa set up a line in mid-morning and the six-man staff refused to cross it after lunch.

No talks in the three-day dispute are scheduled until Sunday afternoon in Ottawa.

He put an advertisement in a Toronto newspaper saying:

"Celebrate National Postal Appreciation week. As soon as the mail strike ends, mail a concrete block to everyone you know. There will never be another mail strike."

Tom Peacock said he placed the ad because he was "just fed up and had to do something."

Teacher's TB Brings Tests Of 200 Pupils

More than 200 elementary school pupils in the Belleville and area public schools will undergo tuberculin tests next week following discovery of an active case of tuberculosis in the school system.

The tuberculin testing clinics will be held Wednesday, July 24 at the Queen Elizabeth school and at the Harry J. Clarke School, both in East Belleville.

Announcement of discovery of the case of tuberculosis in the school system was made yesterday by Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott, who said the contact in the case, a young married woman supply teacher, was now a patient in a sanatorium.

"School records have been studied to determine those persons who had been in contact with the case and these people have been notified by phone to report to be tuberculin testing clinic," Mayor Scott said.

The clinics, under the direction of Dr. William Waddell, director of the provincial chest clinic in Belleville, will be held next Wednesday at Queen Elizabeth school between 1.00 p.m. and 2.30 p.m. and at the Hurry J. Clarke School between 3.00 and 4.00 the same afternoon

Thurlow township school officials are also checking records to determine those who may have come in contact with the case in that municipality.

In announcing the TB case Dr. Scott said he could assure the public that Dr. Waddell and his staff had the situation well

Civil Servants' Union Is Watching Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — A large wage settlement for postal workers who are now in the third day of a national strike may signal stiffer demands from thousands of other civil servants now bargaining with the government.

"If there is a very favorable decision, we'll have to take a second look at some of our own demands," Trevor Gough, president of the 110,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada said in an interview Friday night.

The 24,000 postal workers who went on strike early Thursday are asking a 75-cent hourly increase for a 14-month contract.

The government offer of a 15-cent increase in two stages was rejected flatly.

The increase sought by the postal unions ranges from 26.1 to 39.1 per cent while the government is offering six per cent.

Mr. Gough said only six contracts covering about 7,500 members of the alliance have been signed and about 40 to 50 more covering more than 80,000 workers are under negotiation.

The alliance is asking for prices of between 14 and 16 per cent for a two-year period ending Sept. 30, 1968. Its members also received a seven-per-cent cost of living raise last year.

The whole round of negotiation begins again in the fall not only for the alliance but for the postal workers, when all the contracts currently being negotiated expire.

The Public Service Act of last year came in late, accounting

Czech-Russian Talks Planned

PRAGUE (CP) — Prague radio reported today for the first time the Soviet Union's call to Czechoslovakia's liberal leadership for a showdown meeting next week and informants said this was a clear sign the Prague reformers would attend.

Newspapers in the Czechoslovak capital made no mention of the invitation and the government had not acknowledged it officially until the radio broadcast.

Informed sources said Kiev in the Soviet Union was the most likely spot for the talks. The Soviet invitation to the 11-member Czechoslovak Communist party presidium—a body that may reflect some resistance to the liberal course—suggested Kiev or Lvov as a meeting site Monday or Tuesday.

It was unclear if talks with other European Communist parties, announced Friday by Czechs, the official Czechoslovak news agency, were going on today.

Waldeck Rochet, the French Communist party leader, flew home to Paris after a conference with Alexander Dubcek, the Czechoslovak party leader. Rochet had been advocating the idea of a European conference

Trudeau to Make Tour of Arctic

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is to make a week-long flying tour of the Canadian north, his office announced Friday.

Mr. Trudeau is to leave Ottawa Sunday, July 21, and return the evening of Sunday, July 28.

He will cover about 7,500 miles during the trip, starting with a flight to Whitehorse in the Yukon Territory, heading eastward across the Northwest Territories and popping into far-northern Quebec and Labrador before returning to Ottawa.

Grain Handlers Talks Break Down

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Any hope of a quick settlement in the strike of 5,000 grain handlers appeared dim today with no further negotiating meetings scheduled after talks abruptly collapsed Friday.

Negotiations between the grain handlers representatives and the team representing terminal elevator companies started Thursday almost on the heels of a walkout by 1,300 employees. The second meeting Friday ended 45 minutes after it opened when the companies' team walked out.

The management walkout was preceded by an "intemperate response" from the union negotiators to the companies' stand that wages should not have absolute priority in the talks, a companies spokesman said.

Biafra and Nigeria Will Resume Talks

MIAMEY, Niger (AP) — Secessionist Biafra and Nigeria have agreed to resume negotiations toward ending the bloody year-old civil war that has plunged the breakaway tribal state into the throes of mass starvation.

A communique by the Organization of African Unity Friday night said both sides had agreed to resume peace talks under the organization's auspices in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia's capital.

Though no date for the start of the talks was announced, preliminary arrangements were to begin immediately, the OAU said.

In Aba, Biafra, Ojukwu told foreign correspondents his government has proposed two overland corridors for transporting food and medicine to starving Biafrans. But he reiterated his preference for a massive airlift of food into the secessionist Ibo territory, calling it the "quickest and most realistic" means of relief.

Missionary agencies report that as many as 1,200 persons a day, including many children, are dying of starvation in Biafra, which is surrounded by federal government forces.

Secret night-time airlifts now are the only means of getting relief supplies into Biafra and the Lagos government has threatened to shoot down any unidentified planes flying into the territory. The federal government claims the airplanes are hauling in arms, along with food.

Ojukwu said a road corridor proposed by Lagos for transporting relief supplies to Biafra's population would give the federal government a clear path to what remains of the breakaway state. He also claimed the food might be poisoned if it passed through federal territory.

He alleged that they were aiding secessionist Biafra, criticized the British Oxfam and the Roman Catholic relief service Caritas.

As an alternative, Ojukwu proposed that supplies be sent up the Niger River to Oguta where they could be discharged directly into Biafran hands, or that the federal-held Port Harcourt and Calabar channels stretching north into Biafra be neutralized for the duration of the war.

The OAU committee meeting here adopted a resolution calling on Biafra to accept the federal government's land corridor offer.

The committee is made up of representatives of Ethiopia, Ghana, Liberia, Cameroon, Niger and The Congo.

Last November the OAU tried unsuccessfully to mediate the Nigeria-Biafran civil war.

Brief Exchanges

Belleville Postmen Appeal to Trenton Holdout

TRENTON — In spite of appeals from 15 striking postal workers from Belleville, James Reid, Trenton's lone hold-out, crossed the picket line here this morning to go to work in the post office.

The Belleville delegation was headed by James Campbell, president of the Belleville local of the Letter Carriers' Union.

"They didn't say much and I didn't say much," he said.

As he earlier stated, "I have to work."

Reid is a supervisory letter carrier, and has been employed by the post office for over 20 years.

Making the pleas to Reid together with the Belleville delegation, were seven letter carriers and six clerks from Trenton.

Campbell said six supervisory letter carriers in Belleville, who are in the same category as Reid. are on strike with their fellow postal workers.

Gerald Jackman, president of the Trenton local, said morale is high on the picket line "but the one man who is crossing doesn't make the rest of us feel very happy."

There was no effort made by his fellow letter carriers to physically restrain Reid this morning.

No pickets will be out Sunday but on Monday the tactic of meeting with Reid on his way to work will be repeated by Belleville and Trenton strikers.

Jackman said he hoped the strike would be over as soon as possible, and that the treasury board comes up with a substantial offer.

Speaking for the Trenton local, Jackman said: "We're willing to come down in our pay demands. However, we have to abide by whatever the national executive decides."

Since there is no mail moving in the post office, his fellow letter carriers picketing on the outside are wondering what Reid is doing on the inside.

Reid is a union member and will have a vote in the balloting to ratify any proposals made by the national executive.

Paul Turrall (left) and Gary Mathewson have found a new way to travel in the automotive age—by horse. Both riders from Maple Ont., are on a 500-mile trek to Vermont and will pass through Quinte district this weekend.

Horsemen Hit Quinte Area

Getting there is more than half the fun — on horseback.

Providing you like horses, and Paul Turrall says more Canadians than ever are admirers of horseflesh — even in the rocket age.

There's just nothing like 'em, he believes, and to prove his point the 32-year-old sign erector from Maple, Ont., is on a 500 - mile trek to Vermont.

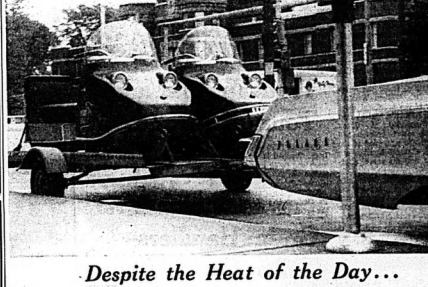
Late this morning both men were resting up at the Double-R ranch of Ray Robinson at Bayside, before continuing on through Belleville on the next leg of their mounted pilgrimage.

Ostensibly they're headed for South Woodstock and the conclusion of the Vermont Green Mountain endurance ride — an event that tests riders over a 100-mile stretch.

After that, they'll canter on to Kentucky in search of work in North America's prize paddocks.



However, the real object of the jaunt across Southern Ontario and Quebec is to emphasize the use of secondary routes for outdoor travel.

Actually, the public may be unaware of the popularity of horseback riding, he adds.

So far, the trek has been without major incident, although Paul does have complaints against what he calls "smart-aleck" drivers.

Despite the Heat of the Day...

Someone got his signals crossed when it came to the weather forecast this morning. It appeared so to passerbys on Bridge Street when they came upon this pair of skidoos parked along the side of the street.

Smoke Pall Rises From City Dump

Rubbish Goes Up in Smoke

Tons of rubbish went up in smoke today as fire swept the city dump at the mouth of the Moira River.

The blaze — cause of which was a mystery — was discovered by city workers at 7 a.m. as it suddenly flared along the east rim of the dump.

The area — east of Highway 14 — is a long-term land project planned to complement the adjacent Zwick's Island park and recreation area.

City firemen pumped water from the river to keep fire from spreading as it smouldered through thick layers of tightly packed refuse.

Bulldozers were called in to level out the garbage, giving firefighters a better chance of tackling the blaze circling a dirty grey pall over the Bay of Quinte.

Balmy Weekend Coming

As summer vacation activity hits full stride, a balmy weekend appears in the offing for a Quinte area still recovering from a blistering heat wave.

Last night was the first night in a week when district dwellers slept comfortably as temperatures declined and humidity disappeared.

In the Belleville-Trenton area the Friday night low was a deliciously cool 58.

Today, forecasts call for sunny skies and a possible high of 80, with more of much the same for Sunday.

The weekend will likely see a bigger-than-ever exodus from Belleville, as vacationers head for the 6 are International Harware. Union Carbide, Bell Shirt, Stewart-Warner, Stephens-Adamson and Deacon Bros.

Correction

In Friday's edition, it was reported that R. M. Gunsolus had been appointed to the Board of Governors of the Grand Lodge of Canada, AF and AM in Ontario.

This report should have stated that Mr. Gunsolus was elected to the Board of General Purposes, the governing body of the Grand Lodge.

Mr. Gunsolus was elected as one of seven members from a total of 17 candidates at the 113th convocation of the Grand Lodge, held in Toronto.

BIRTHS

BURTON — Eric and Faye (nee Wager) are happy to announce the arrival of their daughter Eleanor Jane, weight 8 lbs. 13½ ozs. on Thursday, July 18, 1968 at the Belleville General Hospital.

IN MEMORIAM

BUNNETT — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather William James Bunnett who passed away July 21, 1966.

Two years has passed since that sad day.
When one we loved was called away,
God took him home — it was His will,
Within our hearts he liveth still.

BUNNETT — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather W. J. Bunnett who passed away July 21, 1966.

Two years has passed since that sad day.
Your love remains with us yet,
You were the kind of a father,
Your loved ones would never forget.
—Sadly missed by Leona, Don and family.

BUNNETT — In loving memory of a dear husband William James Bunnett who passed away two years ago today July 21, 1966.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true,
There's not a day, dear father,
We do not think of you.
—Lovingly remembered by son Ron, daughter-in-law Dan and grandson David.

KIRKPATRICK — In memory of our dear husband and father Charles Kirkpatrick, who passed away July 20th, 1950.

It is sad to walk the road alone,
Instead of side by side,
But to all there comes a moment,
When they must step aside.
You gave me a world of happiness,
Then came sorrow and tears,
But you left me beautiful memories,
I will treasure through the years.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by Jeannette and family.

MOWERS — In loving memory of a dear mother and wife, Jean Mowers, who passed away so suddenly July 20, 1953.

Happy memories fond and true,
Kind memories of a mother dear to you.
—Lovingly remembered by your husband Earl and family.

READ — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Fred Read who passed away July 21st, 1947.

His memory we shall always keep.
—Ever remembered by his wife Nina, son Terrance and family.

Aaah! At Last! Drink

Heatwave gives even the youngest a craving for drink. Home-made lemonade was a hit at Parkdale playground carnival this week as temperatures soared close to the 90s. And the hotter it got, the greater the demand.

Luck is where you find it . . . and sometimes the search doesn't live up to expectations, as this youngster discovered at Parkdale playground penny carnival this week. He lost his pennies plying for prizes at marble game. Carnival was organized and run by youngsters.

Courier Service Moves Bank Mail

Chartered banks in Belleville have found a way to beat the postal strike.

Most of them have simply extended the operation of their regular courier services, in use for several years.

"Head office and interbranch mail will move as fast as usual," a spokesman for the Bank of Montreal said.

His bank has a contract with a courier company to move mail to and from head office and the branches.

The Bank of Nova Scotia is using its regular dispatch service to move interbranch mail. Correspondence for the branches is sent to head office and distributed from there, resulting in a slight delay in service.

Bank of Nova Scotia branches in Picton and Wellington bring in their mail to the Belleville branch each day for pick - up by the courier service.

No arrangements have been made for city delivery of bank mail. The banks are holding correspondence until the strike ends, and using the telephone for urgent messages.

Cyclist Injured In Accident

TRENTON — A young Trenton motorcyclist, admitted to hospital here yesterday following an accident on the north limits of town, was reported in satisfactory condition this morning.

William Cronkwright, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Cronkwright of 32 Leopold St., suffered painful hip and back injuries when his machine rolled over and threw him heavily to the pavement.

of Communist parties to deal with the conflict of Red soft and hardliners over the situation here.

The French party along with the Communist parties of Romania, Yugoslavia, Italy, Belgium, Britain, Japan and Austria have joined with the Czechoslovak central committee in endorsing refusal to bend to the Russians.

The central committee met Friday and endorsed a call for "courage and determination" in continuing the liberalization drive begun in January by Dubcek.

On the other side are hard-liners who fear the liberalization in Czechoslovakia might intensify liberal ferment in their nations.

The Soviet Union, East Germany, Poland, Hungary and Bulgaria met at Warsaw last weekend and sent the Czechoslovak leaders a letter demanding reversal of the liberal course.

Dubcek told the central committee: "We cannot rule out that conservative, sectarian forces might try to use the letter to cause a split in the party and impede the adopted aims toward liberalization."

Prime Minister Trudeau, who is to leave Ottawa Sunday for a week-long tour of the North, told a news conference it is unlikely Parliament will be summoned to end the strike although this was possible.

He said he hopes the dispute will be "settled quickly through negotiations." He also described the wage demand as "pretty high."

Mediation under Judge Rene Lippe of Montreal is to resume Sunday. At the last meeting Wednesday, the union rejected the government offer as too little and too late.

Grave Desecration? No, Just A Mistake

Grave desecration? . . . Shocking!

That's very likely the reaction of motorists using the city's Bayshore Drive south of the Water Pollution Control Plant as they see an abandoned tombstone unceremoniously dumped among roadside piles of rock fill.

But it is quite possible there is no disrespect involved in connection with the abandoned gravestone.

An official of a local memorial stone firm who disclaimed any knowledge of the abandoned stone expects it is the result of a big mistake.

A mistake, that is, on the part of some stone carver who got the wrong spelling when doing the stone inscription.

As result he expects the stone was refused by the bereaved family and eventually was discarded by the monument firm.

And that is very likely what has happened.

A check of the city directory and also the telephone directory reveals no family with the name of Mork in the Belleville area.

Study in Contrasts

The 40 young people attending the Children's International Summer Village camp in Waterloo are luckier than most. They live in an air-conditioned residence and eat their meals in a modern cafeteria.

The children, all of them 11 — the qualifying age for the camp — are from the United States, France, Austria, Sweden, Japan, Costa Rica, Guatemala and Nicaragua. CISV camps are held periodically in member countries including Canada, as a means of promoting international friendship and understanding.

If the air-conditioning and other facilities seem out of character with the true spirit of camping, they must be doubly welcome these warm days. They are said to be a big improvement on one held near Fergus in 1964 when the campers lived in wooden huts with primitive bathroom facilities and had to help make their meals and wash the dishes. Camps such as these essentially are for children of affluent parents who can afford to send them abroad. They seem to expect some degree of pampering. Roughing it is not their forte.

Compare their situation with the rather different one in Toronto's Cabbagetown and Regent Park South, a slum area where an estimated 3,000 or more children under 18 live within a radius of a few blocks. These are the underprivileged children of our day — but it is good to see they are not entirely neglected or excluded from the outside world. An organization of young people known as the Neighborhood Youth Corps sees to that.

The NYC is a group of 40 students who volunteer three nights a week during the summer to play with the children and expand their horizons. Even a drive into the country can be an experience. On one such occasion a little girl asked her group's university student guide to stop the car so she could have a good look at a horse. She had never seen one before. Another group was viewing Toronto from the top of the city hall at dusk when one youngster asked: "Is this the whole world."

Here are children accustomed to roughing it and not infrequently fighting among themselves. As one 10-year-old blonde remarked, "I hide behind the trainers when the boys try to fight with me . . . but I can take on every girl around here."

Thus, if this is a generally affluent society there are still many pockets of poverty. And there is satisfaction for the university students in the work they do among youngsters eager to break the bonds of a narrow existence.

National Debt

A further indication of inflationary trends in Canada comes in a report from the Ontario government that the public debt in the poorer provinces is mounting.

Noting that provinces with rising debt levels invariably are those with per capita incomes lower than the national average, the report says that such total liabilities increased from $22.9 billion in 1962 to $30.4 billion in 1967.

The federal debt per person in 1967 stood at $781 compared with $712 in 1962.

Some years ago the then Governor of the Bank of Canada, James Coyne, observed that Canadians "are living grandly beyond their means." Yet deficit financing is a major factor in our economic life. A per capita debt of only $781 is not one that should cause any great concern.

Hijacked Jets

In the ninth and latest hijacking this year a National Airlines jet landed in Havana at the bidding of an armed man who had boarded the plane in Los Angeles. Police were unable to interfere even when the plane landed at New Orleans to refuel.

An airline spokesman was quoted as saying: "I don't know what you can do."

One obvious precaution comes to mind. Passengers on aircraft flying to points in the United States within easy reach of Cuba should be searched before being allowed to board. The airlines could employ security people for the task.

Ottawa Offbeat

No Dilly-Dallying Under Trudeau's Iron Hand

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It had been so long — air unsettled and unsettling years — since there was a majority government that it is still not always easy to realize what a difference this last election has made.

The diff-erence is in decision-making.

It is more than the at-long-last achieving of a strong, workable majority government.

Fur shaken up and shaken out as the cabinet certainly has been, 16 of the old hands remain.

But they have changed. All for the better.

The outstanding men among those holdovers, Finance Minister Benson and Transport Minister Hellyer, have become even more the tandems in their quality of decisiveness.

The good men, Defence Minister Cadieux, Works Minister Laing and Trade Minister Pepin among them, are better, more sure of themselves.

And then the not-so-good men, the lazeurs, hesitant, self-doubting pussy-footers such, for instance, as Treasury Board President Charles Mills "Bud" Drury, suddenly have been able to firm up.

The use of the "Bud" in the name always seemed to say something about him.

It was almost as if he was trying to convince people that essentially, at heart, he was a really good guy, even a buddy buddy type.

Now when he says something — and as treasury board president, keeper of the treasury keys, he will have to be saying plenty — he sounds like he might even mean it.

Finally, the "disaster areas" of the cabinet, such discredited members as Mitchell Sharp who failed so sensationally as finance minister, are being camouflaged.

Mitchell Sharp's merciful concealment is his masquerade in external affairs.

What has made all the difference, if not the government's new and heady majority politics or the massive makeover of the cabinet?

There were factors, of course, and important ones, too.

He is the "reason why."

Suddenly there is a Boss, and spell that with a capital "B."

Remember how it used to be, only a few yesterdays ago?

No cabinet co-ordination.

The government lolling and jarring from one crisis to the next with the prime minister delegating so much cabinet authority and exercising so little ministerial discipline he often seemed like a man only partially engaged in the nation's biggest job, the running of it.

There was such an uncertainty of touch at the top, with the captain so tolerantly permissive of stumbles and fumbles, the cabinet never, at any time, looked like a team but more like a rabble.

Sometimes its members were not even speaking, like when State Secretary Judy LaMarsh got so mad at Northern Affairs Minister Laing for not giving her constituency of Niagara Falls a national park that she refused to share the Commons desk assigned them by Mr. Speaker Lamoureux.

To keep the peace in the cabinet family, Mr. Speaker moved LaJudy into another desk in another row.

It was all so unorganized and undisciplined that the players on captain Pearson's team often managed to trip each other up in Parliament.

There was no signal drill, no practice plays.

They all just ran out on the green carpet of the Commons field or charged out of cabinet conferences to play it straight off the top of their heads.

There is no more of that, Buster — the Boss says shape up or get out.

July 20, 1968 . . .

The British colony of British Columbia joined Confederation 97 years ago today — in 1871 — and became a self-governing province. There had been exploration and settlement in the area for less than 100 years and only in 1849 did the British government take an interest in the colony, to resist United States claims on Hudson's Bay Co. territories. Gold rushes in 1858 and 1950 brought thousands of settlers but the colony was always on the verge of bankruptcy. One of the conditions for joining was the construction of the CPR.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—German forces crossed over the Marne River with a loss of 20,000 prisoners and 400 guns in the battle to date; American troops shared in an advance on the Western Front; the White Star liner Justicia was torpedoed and sunk in Irish waters after a long struggle with German submarines.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—a great Russian offensive opened along a 450-mile front, extending from the Orel sector to the Mius River; American forces captured Troina, a Sicilian road centre, just ahead of Canadians who, in their first real action against German troops, gave the Panzer Grenadiers a thrashing and drove them back; Lt.-Col. Bruce Sutcliffe of Trenton, Ont., commander of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, was killed by shellfire.

Copies of the "Old Masters"

Hamilton Spectator

By a secret process a New York company is now able to reproduce perfect copies of oil paintings, ancient or modern. It does not matter how thickly the paint has been laid on the original, or what the colors, the copies are said to be so good that experts have difficulty in distinguishing them from the originals.

Something like this was inevitable as a result of scientific development, but in a world that is increasingly art - conscious and in which, more than ever before, oil paintings are being bought, it raises a host of moral questions.

People whose knowledge of art is rudimentary, and who know nothing about its chemistry, could be duped. They might be offered for a few hundred dollars a reproduction of a picture the original of which costs cost thousands. In their eagerness to possess a "masterpiece" bought at a bargain price they commonsense might be overcome by cupidity.

The company that invented the process is aware of these dangers. As a precaution, it is making its reproductions smaller than the originals and it is stamping them on the back as products of its special process.

Making copies of works of art is perhaps as old as man himself. The ancient Greeks were masterly copyists and forgers. A ready market soon produces a supply. The Romans, the most avid art collectors the world has known, were supplied with a steady stream of "works of art" by Greek "old masters" from ateliers in Athens.

French H-Bomb Tests Pose Radiation Threat to Pacific Island Paradise

(Toronto Star Syndicate)

The greatest military force since World War II is spreading out across French Polynesia in the Pacific Ocean. September 1968 will see a French hydrogen fireball sear the skies between Tahiti and Mururoa atoll in the Gambier group of islands.

The Tahitians are hoping the deadly experiments will be successful as the French Army, Navy and civilian technicians will go away and leave them to try to reconstruct their lives. They remember that 1907's experiments caused radioactive contamination to rise five times above permissible safety levels

Tahitians are reaping other doubtful benefits. Coconut plantations, fishing settlements, and market gardens have been destroyed to build army bases, villas for the civilian technicians and secret installations for the Centre d'Experimentation du Pacifique (CEP). Thousands of natives have abandoned their ages - old occupations for better pay on construction jobs. They are selling their homes for unheard of sums of money which are quickly spent for life's necessities already inflated over 100 per cent.

Tahitians have always been the most unpolitical of people. Now their Territorial Assembly, with only local government powers, has grown hostile to the French administration and anti-French sentiment is growing. Charles De Gaulle was assured this might happen when he visited Polynesia in 1965 to witness an earlier atomic test.

John Tearriki, Tahitian leader and deputy for Polynesia in the French Parliament told De Gaulle: "My people are growing restless. Even the many attacks on our common liberty, so many threats to our future, so many turns of the screw tightening the vise of military colonialism." He claimed Tahitian land had become largely dominated by CEP policies. He asked how France could justify the deaths and deformities of his people who would suffer from leukemia and cancer and the birth of mutants and deformed children.

There is no record of President Charles De Gaulle's reply.

Ottawa Valley Farm Scene

Ottawa Journal

Farming is changing in the Ottawa Valley, and the change is changing with it. Both have had to.

The traditional self-sustaining farm that produces a little of everything on fifty or sixty acres is gradually disappearing — just wasn't self-sustaining any more. Usually it is absorbed into a conventional farm unit of more than 250 acres with emphasis on one major product.

The honored traditional farmer who farmed by the seat of his pants, as it were, is losing ground to the young, progressive, better-educated farmer eager and able to take advantage of the benefits of research, better machinery and government incentives to enlarge his acreage.

In eastern County the number of small farms decreased by 200 to 1,413 between 1961 and 1966, while the number of commercial farms increased to 1,024. In Russell County, where farms of fifty to eighty acres were once common, the average farm unit now comprises 200 acres.

Eastern Ontario produce is steadily becoming more diversified and is increasing. A ten-minute hailstorm in Prince County Friday destroyed $45,000 worth of young tobacco.

Private industry estimates the area could produce $6,000,000 worth of soybeans annually where virtually none is produced now, and the annual corn-growing potential is estimated by industry at six million bushels, worth $1.21 a bushel in Ottawa at harvest time last year, or $7,260,000. The entire valley has been doubling yearly for the last three years, and now tops 10,000 acres in Russell County alone where four years ago there were only 1,000 acres. Officials believe the corn boom is just beginning.

Then there are the market gardens around Blackburn Hamlet that produce for Ottawa's By Ward Market, a fledgling seed potato industry in Renfrew County, a robust cucumber production effort in Russell County to supply two major pickling firms, and increased bushlot pulpwood cutting to feed the new mill at Portage du Fort. Meadow crop and pasture alone in the area is worth approximately $5,225,000 annually.

Eastern Ontario agricultural production, based on value of products sold as reported to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, is approaching $90,000,000 a year. In 1961 the comparative figure was almost $70,000,000.

Quebec . . . Unity . . . Strikes

Mobilizing Public Opinion—Pierre Trudeau Style

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—At least twice now, Prime Minister Trudeau has laid his case before the people on precise political questions that regular machinery was having trouble solving.

In the first case, he injected national unity issue in the June 25 election campaign. More than any other leader he became identified with the preservation of a single united Canada.

His method of keeping Quebec in Confederation won him a lot of votes. In effect, he mobilized public opinion in his favor.

Last week, he delivered a little public lecture on the economic facts of the wage demands of unions representing government employees.

At the time, both the seaway and postal workers were threatening strikes.

His message in this case was that increases come out of the consumers' pocket via taxes. He was critical of the approach of unions representing public employees "grasping the lemon as much as we can."

In the national unity case, the debate on Quebec's role had largely been one of exchange between the federal government and the National Union government of Quebec.

It was not of course a public debate which had held the attention of the country for years. Nonetheless, Mr. Trudeau went to the people with his solution rather than leave it a matter of negotiation between governments.

In the second case, the technique was the same, even though the issue and the problem—settlement of the labor dispute—was not of the same fundamental nature.

Still it was a political question. Whether intentional or not, it appeared that Mr. Trudeau was seeking public support for the government's position in the wage disputes. The government wanted small, non-inflationary increases and got them in the case of the seaway workers.

There's no indication that Mr. Trudeau's comments played a role in the seaway settlement, although they probably had a peripheral effect. Certainly it reinforced the hardline position of the government negotiators.

The political technique of mobilizing public opinion is hardly new. The record merely shows that Mr. Trudeau is using the method in a precise way to achieve political objectives.

Mr. Trudeau is largely a creature of the media, which, for many reasons, helped ease him into the prime minister's chair. It is not surprising therefore that he is making skillful use of this communications channel to the people.

Italy Faces Political Crisis Over Church Payment of Taxes

ROME (Reuters)—A massive church-state crisis over whether the Vatican owes taxes to Italy faces the interim Christian Democrat government of Premier Giovanni Leone.

Leone helped set up the Vatican tax crisis on July 5 during presentation of the minority government's program to Parliament when he said the Vatican must pay taxes on its investments in Italy.

He also said it must pay taxes owing for the last four years while politicians argued its claims for exemption.

The tax and divorce issues are among the most potentially explosive between the Italian state and the powerful Roman Catholic Church—and the Vatican has already indicated it will not submit without a fight.

The Vatican newspaper l'Osservatore Romano condemned the move as unilateral and contrary to basic principles of international law but did not explain why.

The Vatican has only 109 acres of sovereign territory which is protected by agreements with Italy. But it owns vast areas of land and property in Italy itself and if it wished to put its shares on the market it could create economic chaos.

The church has persistently refused to disclose the amount of its share holdings, but the previous government estimated them at about $163,000,000.

Politicians believe Vatican holdings are much higher.

Former finance minister Luigi Preti said recently the Vatican owed about $6,000,000 in taxes.

The row dates back to 1953 when by coincidence another interim government under Leone exchanged formal notes with the Vatican agreeing to exempt it from taxes on its shares.

The government issued instructions to industries that no tax was to be deducted from Vatican dividends while the exchange was under consideration in Parliament.

But ratification of the exchange never came. Arguments raged for four years between the church-backed Christian Democrats, who supported it, and the rest of Parliament, who were against it.

In February, the Socialist coalition joined the opposition to vote down the bill in the committee stage. When Parliament adjourned in June, the unpassed bill expired.

The Vatican's lawyers are expected to produce many legal arguments to back its claim that it is entitled to exemption by law.

But they face the increasing pressure in Italian political life to break the spiritual, political and economic grip of the church.

Bible of 'New Missionary' Comes Out Only on Demand

VANCOUVER (CP) — David Eadie paints this picture of a "new missionary": a specialist in some field who carries his Bible in his pocket and doesn't haul it out unless he's asked.

He developed this style in 14 years as a missionary in India. He went there after selling his Toronto business, which made parts for diesel engines, and took his wife and daughter with him.

It soon saw that Indians were tired of having Western aid, education and religion rammed down their throats. They wanted to learn how to do things for themselves."

He showed them how by starting a small furniture factory. It was extended to manufacture animated wood beams. Then he helped create a management training program.

"The problem in India isn't food or family planning," he said. "The problem is what to do with the 10,000,000 students who come to the job market each year."

Latest program of the Malwa Economic Development Society is a medicine shop directed by Paul Peterson, former footballer with Hamilton Tiger Cats of the Eastern Football Conference.

"We make a small profit," said Mr. Eadie, "but after taxes and salaries the balance of the funds is transferred to a social welfare trust for further training programs and scholarships."

He recruited three volunteers on a trip to Canada this year, a poultry specialist, a machinist and a driller.

"Our salaries are only about one-third of those paid by the Canadian government for similar jobs but a man has the satisfaction of knowing he is contributing his skills there they are desperately needed.

"Missionaries trained the people to read the Bible but they almost completely ignored the economic needs of the country. Consequently India today has the largest untrained labor force in the world."

Mr. Eadie, a member of the United Church, volunteered for missionary work in 1954. "I was created to serve," he says, "but I knew I wasn't cut out to be a Bible pusher."

Dervishes Whirl Way To Trance

By DMITRI NESTEROFF

KONYA (Reuters)—A sect of mystics trying to commune with God are whirling around faster than spin-dryers in this ancient Turkish city.

They are the Whirling Dervishes, who gather each year to continue 13th century Moslem religious rites.

The spinning, which gathers momentum until the robed figures gyrate at 45 revolutions a minute, culminates in a trance or ecstasy, which the Dervishes believe opens the way for spiritual contact with Allah.

But despite their dancing, which conjures up pictures of strange and frenzied ascetics, the Whirling Dervishes are a quiet, meditative religious order, far removed from the more extravagant efforts of the cult—the Howling Dervishes.

The Howling Dervishes, formed in 1182, nearly a century earlier, work themselves into a frenzy during which they slash their bodies with knives, swallow glass and live coals, handle red hot iron and claim to possess special healing powers.

DANCE HELD YEARLY

Konya, lying at the southern end of the almost uninhabited central Anatolian plateau, was a flourishing capital in the third decade of the 12th century when the great Moslem sufi mystic, Jalaluddin Rumi, arrived as a young man. By the time he was 24, he founded the order which became known as the Whirling Dervishes.

He assumed the title Mevlana —lord and master. Today his followers still gather yearly to mark the anniversary of his death with the Dervish dance.

The dancing itself is symbolic of the continuous rhythm of the cosmos. When they whirl, the Dervishes spin like the earth moving around the sun and orbit in a strict pattern between points representing the sun and moon.

MR. AND MRS. WAYNE D. TRICE

Trice – Wannamaker

Rev. J. William Lamb officiated at the wedding ceremony in Holloway Street United Church on Saturday, July 13, a 2 p.m., when Donna May Wannamaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl K. Wannamaker was united in marriage to Wayne Douglas Trice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Trice of Belleville. Church organist Angus Macleod played the wedding music and accompanied the soloist Mrs. Christine Macleod.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of imported nylon organza over taffeta highlighted with a chapel train edged with Venetian lace fallaz gracefully from the waistline, and scoop neckline. A masking of the same lace trimmed the Empire waist skirt and elbow-length sleeves. A four-tier veil of scalloped silk illusion was attached to a coronet of rhinestones and pearl drops. She carried a nosegay of white mums and red Sweetheart roses.

The maid of honor Miss Pat Baverstock of Montreal was attired in a floor-length gown of turquoise spray accented by a sleeveless bodice of contrasting white and enhanced with imported Venetian lace. Her headdress was a matching cluster of petals accented by a short illusion veil. She carried a nosegay of yellow baby 'mums. Miss Pam Dinard, Belleville, R.R. 7, and Miss Shirley May of Cobourg, both cousins of the bride were attired in gowns identical to the maid of honor but with the same shade bodices, and carried similar bouquets.

Larry Woodcock of Belleville was groomsman, while the ushers were Ted Brennan of Kingston, cousin of the bride and Ken Trice, Belleville, brother of the bridegroom.

At the reception held in the church parlor, the bride's mother wore a pink sheath dress of flowered lace with a matching short jacket, pink organza hat, white accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who wore a yellow linen suit with matching lace blouse, white hat, white accessories and a corsage of yellow and white carnations.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to Montreal, the bride donned a sleeveless white and gray organza dress, white hat, white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

On return the couple will reside at 132 Catherine Street, Apt. 2, Belleville.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Previous to the marriage of Mrs. Wayne (nee Donna Wannamaker) the bride was honored at a kitchen shower held at the home of Mrs. Leo Tapp with Mrs. Dennis Sinclair as co-hostess. A miscellaneous shower was given at the home of Mrs. John Wannamaker with Mrs. Barb Holway assisting. Fellow teachers at King George School, Belleville presented her with a gift as did the pupils of her class. The bridegroom was honored by a presentation given by his co-workers at the Canadian Tire, and following the rehearsal the bridal party was entertained at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Girl Works On Deck

DESTREHAN, La. (AP) — Sheila Edmundson, 19, an English girl with a pin-up type figure, wants to be the captain of a merchant vessel.

The brunette is serving as a deck apprentice aboard the American cargo ship Jersey Bridge, which docked here Wednesday with a load of grain for Rotterdam.

"Even though she is a girl, I have given her the same assignments as those given male apprentice seamen and she has come through with flying colors," said Capt. John M. Vicar.

If Sheila successfully completes her 10-year apprenticeship and other requirements to become a ship's captain, she says she would be the first woman in Britain to do it.

"Russia has entire ships manned by women," she told an interviewer. "Poland and Italy have some women masters and Scandinavian countries have women radio operators aboard ship."

AUSTRALIA — FIRST HAND

"The ocean is gorgeous. To be able to waks up with a morning swim is fantastic." — Judi Linton.

* * *

"The school I'm at is large — comparable to Belleville's Quinte Secondary School," says Judi Linton, writing from Surfers' Paradise, in Queensland, Australia, where she is teaching this year. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Linton, live at 395 Bleecker Avenue.

Judi continues:

"It is outdoorish in so far as there are windows on both sides of the room which are louvred and let the breeze in. The school is arranged in eight blocks, each containing a series of classrooms with covered walkways between each block.

The view from the verandah outside my staff room is of the sea and surf and a field of banana trees. Can you believe it?

The pupils are the same type as I had in Toronto, last year. The school is coed which helps greatly and the students wear uniforms — which look smart.

This week I have been filling in for a Commercial teacher who has the measles. I'm now an expert in teaching typing! The staff is young and sociable; in fact there is supposed to be a barbecue tonight. I have a fellow Canadian from Regina here. He and his wife just came out a month ago; and an American fellow and several English girls."

In February, Judi, expected her first monsoon. "The sun came out this morning, for the first time in nine days. It drizzles, then all of a sudden the skies open and it pours, just as though someone had turned on a tap full way. But it hasn't been cold — around 72, just pleasant.

"The wind is something else again. If you open our front door, chances are you won't get it closed without help. The other day, books, pictures, a lamp and pillow were blown clear across the room, when someone tried to get in. All the flowers have been ruined, only the hardiest or sheltered have lasted."

On May 19, Judi again speaks of the weather which suddenly changed from rain to being very cool." The rooms of the school are more or less outdoors. Even with the windows and doors closed, the wind blows through. Snow fell 100 miles from here. . . But on June 3, she notes "It is a beautiful day — not too hot. It reminds me of beautiful mid-September weather—and this is mid-winter."

A friend of Judi's is making a rug of wool, which Judi notes "has to be imported from England. They don't have sheep here with as coarse wool as she needs. . ." while Judi is learning to body surf. "Apparently you can ride a wave for 200 yards if you catch it properly. I just get back from the surf. The waves are so large that I wouldn't go over my ankles for fear of being dumped — which I was a couple of times."

And again, in June, "we were sea coast hunting for small animals to stick in a salt water aquarium at school. It was a beautiful 78 degrees that day, the sun was super bright as we waded around in the water, and we caught all sorts of creatures. . ." and she declares, "The climate is ideal, the people are open and friendly, the way of life is relaxed and easy going and urges her family to "take time and come over this way."

With best wishes and thanks for such interesting glimpses of Australia it is hoped that more will be heard as the year progresses from Judi.

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS L. CARMICHAEL —

Carmichael – Hopkins

College Hill United Church was the scene of the July 13 double ring ceremony when Rev. Roy Vessey united in marriage Mary Patricia Ann Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin G. Hopkins of Bellevile, to Dennis Leonard Carmichael, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard I. Carmichael also of Belleville.

Mrs. Blakely rendered the traditional wedding music, and the soloist was Robert Burke.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an empire style floor length A-line gown of sylon taffeta and an overlay of silk organza and hand - stitched Guipiqued French lace on the lower front of the skirt. The sleeves were long, bell - shaped, and the cathedral train of the gown fell from the yoke of the waist which was enhanced with sculptured French lace. She carried a cascade of red roses with trailing ivy.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Kathleen Green, of London, Ont., wore an empire style A-line floor length gown with royal blue satin brocade top and matching train and powder blue skirt. She carried a colonial bouquet of white and tinted blue 'mums.

Attending the bridegroom was Sherman Switzer and ushers were Douglas Dewey, cousin of the bridegroom and Paul Hopkins, cousin of the bride, both from Belleville.

The reception following the wedding was held at the Elks' Lodge, Belleville. The mother of the bride received the guests wearing a dress of imported printed organza, with a jacket of imported troica in aquamarine, with complementing white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

The mother of the bridegroom was attired in a two - piece turquoise dress of nylon sheer over figured crepe. She also wore pink and white accessories with a corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride chose a two - piece suit of white cotton Venise lace, enhanced with a band of pleated ruffles in chiffon around the collar extending to the edge of the jacket. She wore a corsage of yellow carnations and white sweet peas, with blue and white accessories.

Upon their return, the couple will reside in Consecon.

Turkey Is Bargain Meat

Turkey is the bargain meat with the expensive flavor for summer meals. No longer fit a treat for only a select few. Plentiful and in a range of sizes and forms to suit any family, turkey appears on the menu more and more frequently each summer.

Dorothy Batchelier, Home Economist with the Poultry Products Institute of Canada, (of Belleville) says that she finds many homemakers timid about trying turkey in any manner but roasted. One homemaker even remarked that she would be afraid it would not taste good cooked any other way. However, Miss Batchelier assures us a simmered turkey cooked until tender in water (seasoned with salt, pepper, carrot, onion, bay leaf and celery leaves) is moist and delicious. The turkey broth makes wonderful soup or liquid to add to the sauce for creamed turkey or turkey pot pie.

Simmered turkey meat is especially good for slicing cold for a meat plate, using in salads, sandwiches or made-up dishes such as a la king, pot pie. To simmer turkey follow these directions:

Use cut-up turkey parts or roll for small quantity of meat (2½ to 3 lbs.) or disjoint whole turkey by separating wings and legs from body and cutting carcass in half if necessary to fit into kettle. Half cover turkey with water .add small carrot, some celery leaves or celery stalks, piece of bay leaf, two or three peppercorns and salt. Bring to boil, skim froth from liquid. cover kettle .reduce heat and continue simmering until fork tender. A 20-pound turkey will cook in approximately 3 to 3½ hours. Cool rapidly and remove meat from bones. Store broth and meat in covered containers in refrigerator or wrap in freezer material, freeze and store until required.

ADVANTAGES OF GOING TO A PRIVATE BUSINESS COLLEGE
EVERY PERSON needs to have at least a basic commercial course before going on to any other profession. yet if this is taken in the Secondary School the educational background has to be diluted to make time for it. in one year or less, you can have the advantages available to you at Ontario Business College which are;
1. Encouragement to work at your own speed. You do not wait for the slow learner, or speed up for the one who learns faster than you.
2. You may choose a partial course
3. You get individual attention.
4. You can begin now, at the first of any month.

Successful Living

An Article Gleaned from Mother Goose Newsletter

By DORIS CLARE

Dear Readers: Must share this new light on a certain small boy, gleaned from a recent newsletter of the Regina Welfare Council:

"Case No. 972: NIMBLE Jack B. Preadolescent boy Also known as Jack B. Quick. Parents seek help in coping with subject's compulsion to jump over candlesticks. Subject shows no interest in play activities of peer group. Remains indoors piecing candlesticks in middle of parlor and jumping over them. Family on home relief but receives no allowance for replacement of candles burned up by subject. Recommend subject be placed in summer camp for motivation toward outdoor activities."

I'm told by perpetrators of above paragraph that this comes from a "Mother Goose Report," address unknown.

* * *

Dear Doris: When my authentic mother entered the Home her mind was perfectly normal but she soon began having delusions. She is 80 years old and the cause of the trouble is, according to her doctor, hardening of the arteries with a loss of blood supply to the brain.

She has developed a deep distrust of the owners of the Home. She believes they are going to do away with her bird; they are going to send her to an institution for Atheist; they are going to put her in a tub of water and drown her.

I simply don't know what to say to her. I thought of telling her that her mind is deranged and that she should learn to trust the staff and believe in them rather than her own delusions. But I am no psychiatrist and this might be quite the wrong thing to do. — Simply Stumped

Dear Stumped: It wouldn't work. Even if it didn't enrage her, she would forget what you said the minute it was out.

I know of one forgetful old lady who discovered a piano in her nursing home. She sat down at it and, drawing on the skill learned 80 years ago, began playing hymns.

The others gathered round and sang. — A happy diversion for all of them, and the first of a number of musical interludes to while away long days of illness and illness.

Perhaps your mother has a skill she could be using, with sewing, art work? If there is an occupational therapy service in your area, explore this idea.

Dear Doris: I'm 14 years old (boy); have good marks in school and will start high school this year. The trouble is that I used to sit home all night watching TV and my parents yelled at me to go outside and do something. So finally I did.

I haven't watched TV for months. Mother comes home from school, do my homework, eat supper and then go out and play baseball or some other game and come home before nine o'clock.

Now my parents are yelling at me because I don't stay home. They've made me stay home for about a week already. (By the way — I didn't go out every night.) Please tell me what to do! — Confused.

Dear Confused: What gives? I can't believe you've told all. Did you stay out after curfew? What was the other game you've been playing?

Better ask them what to do to please them. One thing I do know: You are better off playing baseball every single night than getting all lung-up on those blood-and-thunder serials that haunt the TV screen.

If the Old Folks seem unreasonable in conversation, write them a letter.

Please make letters as brief as possible. — not more than two pages. And remember that stamped envelope.

District WI Holds Picnic

Tuesday, July 16 Hastings West District Women's Institutes held an enjoyable get-together in the form of a picnic at Zwick's Island. Branches represented were Pinegrove, Chatterton, River Valley, Bay of Quinte, Uxbridge, and Sidney South, with Chatterton winning the prize for having the most members in attendance. Mrs. Leonard Prest a valued and life-member of that branch now residing at Hastings Manor was one of the members. Mrs. Rex Rollins, Frankford Board member, of Federated Women's Institutes of Ont. and Mrs. Warren Hill, district president of North Hastings were also present.

At noon some 60 persons sat down to a bountiful potluck dinner. In the afternoon the beauty of Zwick's Island and the many recreational facilities provided for the children were thoroughly enjoyed and all present were privileged to hear Gerald Irvine, district president and his executive for having arranged this first district picnic.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I thought everybody would pitch in and help with the housework this summer, but nobody seems to have time to lift a finger."

It may be easier and more pleasant for father to enlist the teen-agers' co-operation than it is for mother to get their help by demanding it.

Father: "Mother needs a vacation, too, so we each will take over some of the tasks. Here's a list of things that have to be done. Which ones will you volunteer for?"

Brownies Which Are Moist, Chewy

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: After six years of trying I still cannot turn out a decent brownie . . . Mrs. C. C.

ANSWER: The question is what do you consider a decent brownie? I have sent you several brownie recipes by mail but went off on another tangent last night and made the following. See if these please you. My guests was pobbled up by four Scrabble players by midnight.

BROWNIES
(moist and chewy — these freeze)

1-3 cup (8 per cent cream (cereal) or evaporated milk
1-3 cup sugar
2 tbsps. water
½ square (½ oz.) cooking chocolate
½ cup shortening (room temperature)
½ c up granulated sugar second amount
½ cup brown sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1½ squares (1½ oz.) cooking chocolate barely melted
½ cup unsifted all - purpose flour
½ tsp. salt
½ cup chopped walnuts or pecans

An additional ½ cup chopped walnuts is optional

Ann Landers

Some Refreshments Should Be Provided

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from the woman who complained about a sitter who helped herself to a third of pie and ate large holes in the company ham. I agree a sitter has no right to do this but there are two sides to every story. May I speak for the thousands of baby sitters who get so hungry they almost pass out?

I have sat in homes where a cockroach could starve to death. I realize the people I sit for don't owe me a banquet, Ann, but a growing girl who runs after kids for five or six hours needs something to keep her strength up.

A bag of potato chips and a soft drink is not going to bankrupt anybody. If Mrs. Housewife would set something aside for the sitter she wouldn't have to worry about being eaten out of house and home. — MISS REASONABLE.

* * *

DEAR MISS: Thank you for your suggestion on how Mrs. Housewife can best protect her company ham and guest pie against the famished sitter. I agree a sitter is entitled to a little refreshment, and a thoughtful lady will provide it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was impressed with the answer you gave "Ceiling Zero." I only hope the dumb bunny listens to you. If the kept women in this country knew what their married sweethearts really thought of them there would be a lot less back street action.

Three years ago I suspected my husband had a friend on the side. He denied it for two years and then I caught him checking into a motel one Saturday afternoon. She was outside in the car. I had dropped in to get some ice cream. When they saw me they'd have liked to die. My husband handed her money to take a taxi then followed me home in his car. We had a frank talk and I told him he could have a divorce if he wanted it.

Did he accept my offer? He did not. He said she was nothing but a plaything and he would never marry her — that she wasn't fit to shine my shoes and was less fill them. We both had a good cry and he begged me to forgive him and let him prove what a good husband he could be.I agreed to try it.

The following morning the woman called and asked me to forgive her. She said my husband told her I was an invalid and she was shocked to see me walk into that place.

So you see, Ann, liars play it both ways. Please publish this. It could be a post-graduate course in life for your readers. — HOLDER OF THE DIPLOMA.

DEAR HOLDER: Are you listening, students?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please help me, Ann. My folks are too old and too square to know anything about love. Besides, all they do is fight. I am 15 but could pass for 19. I can buy beer in any tavern without showing an ID card. My problem is I have fallen in love with a very handsome guy who is an actor. Neil is 22 and I'm sure he'll be a big star some day. He wants me to marry him but we have no money and he isn't working at present. I could go to work and my folks are over until Neil gets a good start. Don't tell me I'm a foolish kid because love is for the young and this is the real thing. Give me some encouragement. — JONQUIL.

DEAR JONQUIL: How lucky can a girl get? You're only 15 and you can buy beer any place and now you've found an out-of-work actor who wants to marry you! Two months of heartbreaking beans will shake the rocks out of your head. Kiddo, tell the guy "Good-bye and good luck."

YOUR ANTIQUES

Pine Furniture Seems To Be Much in Demand

Pine furniture is much in demand. Dealers usually sell it stripped of paint, much as it might have appeared when first manufactured. It was not acceptable to its original owners this way. Paint would have been applied as soon as possible. The type of paint was some indication of the financial status of the owner.

Pieces painted with milk - paint, similar to water - based casein paints), were owned by those at bottom of the financial ladder. Many purveyors of useful knowledge explained to the housewife how to make this paint but warned it should only be applied when proper paints were not available. A color frequently found and the most difficult to get off is "barnred".

Milk paints on drying form a thin layer of calcium, almost limestone, on the surface of the wood. The paint has ideal working qualities, can be washed and is practically impossible to remove. Color was imparted by various means, ox-blood was one coloring agent, and clay another. Pieces may be found in blues, greens, yellows, reds, almost black, wood-grained or stipple, in this type of paint.

The more affluent used linseed based paints and artists' pigments, frequently graining the finish to look like a more expensive wood, (usually mahogany). They sometimes painted the same color as the wood trim in the room where it was to sit; sometimes decorating in accordance with local styles. The more decorative pieces and those in milk-paints are likely to be earlier than those painted a solid colored. Succeeding generations may have "improved" the finish by enamelling. Seven or eight layers of paint were not uncommon. The original is the only layer that counts and you will find, (perhaps to your sorrow), that quillaskit will remove off this paint remover.

The most valuable pine pieces are those with their original finish intact or almost so. Pieces of artistic merit or historic interest, (Pennsylvania dower chests for instance) are particularly valuable. Many of the chest pieces came from another country and were used by the settlers to transport their effects. Eighteenth century chests are not uncommon and were re-used when families moved on to open up the west. Old chests that ought to be dovetailed and have fittings of iron forged by the local blacksmith. More valuable Georgian period chests may have brass fittings and be the work of a cabinetmaker, though usually not in pine.

The cabinet shown combines a number of features of pine pieces. It is a "remembering" style, built by a carpenter without a model, remembering pieces he has seen in the Georgian period, 1750 or later. The flat projections at the top in the original might have been urns and perhaps did so.

The wood is pine to which maple columns have been added in the style of the 1820's-1840's. Stylistic inspiration apparently came from the United States. It is Canadian-Provincial of Chippendale-Hepplewhite and brought to have come from near the Quebec-Ontario border. Similar, similarly monumental pieces were being produced, but derived from an earlier tradition, French rather than English.

In value the cabinet is worth as much as, or possibly more than, the cabinetmakers example that inspired it. If being be prepared to pay up to $1,000 for such a cabinet in top condition.

U.C.W. ENTERTAINS MESSENGER GROUP

On Wednesday evening, approximately 60 women and children convened in the church hall for the annual July meeting when the United Church women entertained the Messenger Group.

Mrs. Burton Sharpe welcomed the group. Reports were given by Mrs. Harry Mc-Adam, Mrs. Ralph Jeffs and Mrs. Stanley Williams. Joan Jeffs, president of the Messengers was in charge of the program with Jill McAdam and Janet Bowsems assisting.

Gary Couch provided several accordion selections. Readings were given by Debbie David, Kathy Sharpe, Brian Hubel and David Hubel. Linda Hoard and David Jeffs gave recitations and Margaret Hoard contributed piano music.

Vocal duets were rendered by Lynn Joslin and Gail Merrick, and also by Linda Hoard and Isabel Hoard. The leaders, Mrs. Raymond McConnell, Mrs. Garth Joslin and Mrs Stanley Williams conducted games and fish pond.

The meeting closed with the July U.C.W. committee serving refreshments.

Bannon Kept Half of Mortgage Money as Loan

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Here are some statistics that might interest you; too . . . her husband is six feet three, 245 pounds, 48-inch chest . . ."

TORONTO (CP) — Former magistrate Fred Bannon revealed Friday he kept half of the $10,000 mortgage he arranged for Vincent Alexander as a temporary loan, but denied he ever took a bribe while on the bench.

Mr. Bannon told the judicial inquiry under Mr. Justice Campbell Grant he kept the $5,000 as a three-week loan. He said the money will be available to Alexander when the inquiry ends.

Alexander testified earlier Mr. Bannon got nothing for the mortgage on the house a few days after it was placed as security for his $10,000 bail on a charge of breaking and entering.

The 34-year-old former magistrate resigned from the bench at the conclusion of the inquiry called by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart to investigate the relationship between Mr. Bannon, Magistrate George Gardhouse, 60, and Alexander.

They were relieved of court duties June 18 pending the outcome of the inquiry. Mr. Justice Grant will hear arguments Monday from Arthur Maloney, Mr. Bannon's lawyer, and Arthur Martin, counsel for Magistrate Gardhouse. His findings will be delivered to Mr. Wishart later in a written report.

Mr. Bannon said Friday he revealed the $5,000 loan because he wanted ". . . to give this inquiry its fullest scope."

Asked by Mr. Maloney if he had ever taken a bribe or acted corruptly in any way, Mr. Bannon replied:

"I can answer honestly, never in my life.

"I don't know if you are to consider a person's personality, but I have found it very difficult to say no to anyone in my life. People impose on me.

"When I read over the transcript of (police wiretap telephone) conversations, it is difficult for me to realize how I became involved in these problems."

Much of the evidence linking Magistrate Bannon and Alexander was contained in taped telephone conversations obtained by a police wiretap of Alexander's telephone.

Magistrate Gardhouse testified Friday he had never interceded on Alexander's behalf or done anything for him.

He said he first met Alexander about eight years ago when he was still in private law practice and added he had represented Alexander's father.

. . . acted for his father . . . I never in my life acted for Vincent Alexander himself," Magistrate Gardhouse said.

He said Alexander had never offered him anything.

"I wish he had, because I wouldn't be here today," he said.

"I would have told him I wanted no more to do with him."

He said he was amazed to hear Magistrate Peter Wilch testify Wednesday that Magistrate Gardhouse approached him May 16 to ask if he would put bail to Alexander on a breaking-and-entering charge.

"I knew nothing about the case . . . I was never in the old City Hall in the month of May," Magistrate Gardhouse said.

Five witnesses testified earlier that they saw Magistrate Gardhouse in suburban Scarborough courthouse May 15.

Alexander said Wednesday he felt he had Magistrate Bannon "under control" and added that he referred to him as "my man" to influence his associates.

He said he also used Magistrate Gardhouse's name, but did not talk to him or "see him very often."

Point Anne

POINT ANNE — Miss Lorraine Wade and Miss Lynne Wade of Peterborough were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Akey and family. They also visited Miss Pamela Akey who is in hospital.

Miss Heidi Forbes of Demorestville has been spending a holiday as the guest of Mrs. Margaret Spencer and Irene.

Mr. and Mrs. William Smith and family have returned home after a holiday in New Brunswick where they attended the wedding of Mrs. Smith's sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Payne have moved to their new home in Belleville.

Shulman Claims Justice Denied Injured Workers

TORONTO (CP) — Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) told the legislature Friday he had appealed and won a majority of Workmen's Compensation Board cases which the board chairman had dismissed as "without merit."

"But how many more were turned down and got no justice either because the workers did not appeal or because they appealed without proper representation and were turned down?" he asked.

Dr. Shulman, who spoke as the house debated the compensation Board, said most of those hurt in "unjust" compensation decisions are workers in labor jobs who do not speak English well and who do not know all the procedures available to them.

He said he has found that the board itself tries to resolve doubtful cases in favor of the workman, but the same is not true at lower levels. And when "justice is finally done," it does not repay the suffering caused in the interval.

He cited the case of Rolf Junger, fired from Walbar Machine Products Ltd. of Cooksville because his doctor reported to the compensation board an accident the company tried to keep secret.

Mr. Junger, burned when he used an eye-wash bottle from a plant first-aid kit which contained dettol, an antiseptic, was paid $100 by the company in place of compensation and was fired after an eye specialist sent details to the compensation board, he said.

In another case, International Nickel Co. successfully fought the claim by a worker who developed emphysema in 19 years in its Sudbury operations when there was "no doubt" the man developed the lung ailment from working in polluted air.

"Inco will fight every case because if it loses one it will face dozens," he said.

He said the act should be amended to provide an injured worker with a reasonable percentage of his pay while he is unable to work.

Brokers' Act Denies Ontario Needed Funds

TORONTO (CP) — Hundreds of millions of dollars in investment funds, much of it available for real estate, have been denied to Ontario because of a "foolish" brokers' act, Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) told the legislature Friday.

Ontario gets only a small portion of large investment funds available in the Middle East and Europe because business brokers and banks responsible for making the investments cannot be paid a commission for sales completed in Ontario, Dr. Shulman said.

Leslie Rowntree, minister of financial and commercial affairs, said sections of the Real Estate and Business Brokers' Act concerned with commissions paid to foreigners will "probably" be among amendments to legislation presented to the house at an expected fall session.

Dr. Shulman, reading from the letter of a business broker who admitted he "is breaking the law to continue bringing money in," said the act prevents paying of commissions to foreign brokers who complete investment transactions in Ontario.

Mr. Rowntree complained that it was "totally unfair" to read the letter in the house without identification.

Dr. Shulman said that since the broker was breaking a "foolish" law the reasons for not making an identification were obvious.

A clause in the Real Estate and Brokers' Act which permits the registrar to set conditions on real estate dealers' licences will be changed, Mr. Rowntree told the legislature.

The clause which permits a broker "to be penalized for the changes of the times" needs to be brought up to date he said.

Dr. Shulman told the house a real estate broker in a small community was given a licence while frustrated his business to communities with a population of less than 5,000. He was out of business when his small community amalgamated with another.

Dr. Shulman suggested the clause which permits the registrar to add conditions to a licence "by office rule" is an injustice. Mr. Rowntree agreed.

Session Nears End

TORONTO (CP) — The legislature concluded debate Friday on spending estimates of the financial and commercial affairs department and then whipped through the budgets of three government offices in less than an hour.

Approval of $1,121,000 in projected spending by the offices of Premier Robarts, LL-Gov. Ilois Macdonald and provincial auditor George Spence completed a debate on government estimates begun March 26.

Conclusion of the estimates debate leaves only the wind-up of the budget debate and discussion of a resolution by Premier Robarts on the right of members to use French in debate as outstanding business on the house order paper.

The current session is expected to end Monday or Tuesday.

Indian Heads Churches

UPPSALA (AP) — The World Council of Churches today elected an Indian layman, M. M. Thomas of the Mar Thoma Syrian Church of Malabar, to succeed the late American Dr. Franklin Clark Fry as its chairman for the next year.

A British Methodist lay woman, Pauline Webb, was elected first vice-chairman of the executive committee, the 16-member executive arm of the 120-member central committee elected during the WCC assembly that closed Friday in this Swedish city.

The third officer elected today was the Turkish Orthodox Metropolitan Meliton of the ecumenical patriarchate of Constantinople, dean of the holy synod, as second vice-chairman of the executive.

Rt. Rev. E. S. Reed, Anglican bishop of Ottawa, was elected to the executive.

Thomas, 52, is director of the Christian Institute for the Study of Religion and Society in Bangalore, India. He is a member of the continuation committee of the East Asian Christian Conference, having served for many years as its secretary for church and society.

SPORTS — The Intelligencer — SPORTS
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, JULY 20, 1968

by Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

Here's a funny bit of reasoning for you:

The owner of the National Football League's Baltimore Colts says U.S. television networks were at fault for the threatened strike by NFL players.

His train of thought goes thusly: the CBS television network signed a $22,000,000 contract for the rights to broadcast upcoming 1968 NFL season games.

"With this kind of dough around," the Colts boss reasoned, "the demands of the players got out of line, unrealistic."

"Before television, clubs made more money than they do now. Everything's so much worse. When the players see something good, everybody wants to get all he can."

Of course, he and the other owners would just rather not have any part of that $22,000,000, now would they?

British track officials are finding their country's women athletes in good form these days — too good, in fact, for comfort.

An official of the British Women's Amateur Athletic Association says brief shorts worn by competitors are drawing complaints from flustered male starters.

In response to a request for "not-too-brief" shorts, one female sprinter snorted: "Any starter who doesn't like what he sees shouldn't be looking!"

Bernie Faloney will be slinging comments and questions instead of touchdown passes for Canadian Football League fans this season.

The CBC has announced the 12-year CFL veteran will act as "color" commentator and analyst for all televised league games in the east.

Nobody's worried about Faloney's credentials.

Now 36, the popular quarterback made a name for himself dropping into a Hamilton Ti-Cat pocket while leading the Tabbies to seven Eastern Conference titles. He was also on the rosters of Vancouver, Montreal, and Edmonton CFL entries.

Just when Canadian football followers think Bernie has traded grid turf for the retirement pasture, he pulls a Statue of Liberty . . . with a microphone in his hand.

Olympic Uniforms

These are the men's and women's parade uniforms, to be worn by the British team at the Olympic Games in Mexico City this summer. Designed by London couturier Hardy Amies, a Guardsman-red turtleneck sweater worn beneath a double-breasted blazer replaces shirt and tie for the men. A simple shift street dress with short sleeves in bright blue terylene shantung replaces the traditional women's blazer. The bodice is set off by six Olympic buttons in double-breasted style.

Mets Down No. 1 Cards; Matchick Magic In Detroit

National League

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Mets defeated Larry Jaster and St. Louis Cardinals Friday night with two quick swings.

Bud Harrelson tagged Jaster's first pitch for a double and Cleon Jones followed with a second-pitch homer, launching the Mets to a 4-3 victory over the National league-leading Cardinals.

Despite their second setback in as many nights, the Cards remained nine games up on second-place Atlanta Braves, who bowed 2-0 to Pittsburgh Pirates. Houston Astros topped San Francisco Giants 3-1, Chicago Cubs downed Los Angeles Dodgers 6-2 and Cincinnati Reds whipped Philadelphia Phillies 9-2 in other NL games.

They scored again in the fourth on singles by Phil Linz and Ed Kranepool and a sacrifice fly by winning pitcher Al Jackson, then added an insurance run in the eighth. Tommie Agee racing home from second base on Jerry Grote's infield hit.

Lou Brock tripled in St. Louis' first run in the sixth but was cut down at the plate trying to score on Julian Javier's ground-er. Jackson, 3-4, needed relief help in the eighth, when the Cards closed the gap on singles by Dick Davis and Dal Maxvill, an infield out and Brock's sacrifice fly.

Reliefer Bob Moose flipped a four-hitter as the Pirates throttled the Braves, who had won nine of their previous 11 starts. Willie Stargell gave Moose, 4-6, the only run he needed by slamming a fourth-inning homer, his 16th of the season.

Don Wilson and rookie Steve Shea stopped the Giants on four hits, with Shea pitching out of a bases-loaded jam in the ninth. Lee Thomas knocked in Houston's first run with a second-inning double and the Astros scored twice in the seventh on doubles by Bob Aspromonte and Denis Menke, a ground out and Wilson's infield single.

The Cubs capitalized on three Los Angeles errors for three unearned runs and checked the Dodgers on the four-hit pitching of Ferguson Jenkins. The Chatham, Ont., native struck out 12 and checked baseloaded threats in the seventh and eighth.

The Cubs' Glenn Beckert extended his hitting streak to 24 games with a bunt single in the fifth, matching the season-high streak established earlier by Pittsburgh's Maury Wills.

Vada Pinson's a run-scoring homer and a two-run wallop by Tony Perez paced the Reds' assault against Philadelphia. Pinson connected following Rich Allen's second error of the game to key a four-run eighth-inning burst.

American League

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With one swing of the bat, rookie shortstop Tom Matchick has redeemed himself with Detroit fans.

More than 53,000 of them with pennant fever were on hand Friday night when Matchick hit a two-run homer in the last of the ninth that lifted the American League-leading Tigers to a 5-4 victory over Baltimore Orioles.

Cleveland was rained out of its game at New York against the Yankees while Washington Senators doused Boston Red Sox 7-3. Oakland Athletics silenced Minnesota Twins 4-2 and California Angels blanked Chicago White Sox 2-0.

Matchick hit .484 for the Tigers in 1967 spring training, but was sent to Toledo before that season began and went on to a .289 average and a spot on the International League All-Star team.

He did get into eight games for Detroit at the end of the season, but his only .187, and his .225 average in 44 games this year was nothing to justify the genuine fans had seen in him.

But with the Tigers losing 4-3 and Bill Freehan on first base after a run-scoring forecout, the 24-year-old infielder connected against reliever Moe Drabowsky, 1-2, for his second homer of the season.

It was Matchick's second big hit against Baltimore. Earlier this season he belted a two-run double in the ninth for a 2-1 Detroit victory.

"But this (the homer) was the biggest hit of my career," he said.

Detroit had been held to only two hits before the first eight innings and trailed 4-2 as Frank Robinson hit his sixth homer with a man on and Paul Blair hit a sacrifice fly and Don Buford a run-scoring single for Baltimore.

But Jim Northrup opened the ninth with a single, Al Kaline walked and two force outs produced a run and set the stage for Matchick.

Cap Peterson slammed a homer and a two-run double and Frank Howard and Mike Epstein sparked a three-run fourth inning with doubles as Washington won only for the second time in 12 games.

Dennis Higgins saved Bruce Howard's first victory, entering with two on and none out in the seventh with the score 5-3 and blanking the Red Sox the rest of the way. Juan Pizarro, 2-1, took the loss.

Reggie Jackson was Oakland's big bat, cracking a three-run homer, his 16th, in the first inning off loser Jim Merritt, 5-11. John "Blue Moon" Odom went eight innings to raise his record to 8-6.

Cowan Wins Amateur Title-Willingdon Next

TORONTO (CP) — Jim Neale of Burlington drove a ball into the bush at the 15th hole of the Scarborough Golf and Country Club Friday and banded the Ontario amateur golf championship to Gary Cowan of Kitchener.

Cowan shot a 72 for an even-par three-round total of 215 over the par-71, 6,772-yard course.

Neale was even with Cowan throughout the match until the 15th hole when he drove into the bush and carded a three-over-par seven on the par-four hole. He finished at 216.

While Cowan emerged victorious, Neale had problems. He recovered after the 15th and sank a 12-foot birdie putt on the 18th to force a playoff for the fourth position on the Ontario Willingdon Cup team which plays for the national title in Edmonton Aug. 5-6.

He lost that too. On the first hole, Ben Kern of Cooksville had an eagle and Neale quit. Both Kern ad Neale had been tied after 90 holes.

Cowan, also winner of the Ontario Open, said he played bad golf. He had a 69 in the first round and a 72 in the second. He was the only player to equal par over 54 holes.

Scores Friday were poor. No one broke par and 22 of the 65 finalists shot 80 or more.

Stu Hamilton of Brampton, paired with Cowan in the last two rounds, shot a 76 for a third-place finish of 216. In fourth place at 219 was Don Hewson of the host club.

However, Weslock, six-time winner of the amateur, finished at 222. He also missed the Ontario Willingdon Cup team for the first time since 1956.

TORONTO (CP) — It took 91 holes to decide Ontario's fourman Willingdon Cup team for the 1968 national amateur golf championship at Edmonton, Aug. 5-6.

Three members of the team, selected by the four lowest combined scores in the first two rounds of the Ontario Open, and the first two rounds of the Ontario amateur championship, were decided Thursday after two rounds of the amateur.

Stu Hamilton of Brampton had 288 for second spot and John Ellison of Toronto, 289 for third.

Ben Kern of Cooksville finally won the fourth position after a 70-foot chip shot for an eagle on the first hole or a sudden-death playoff with Jim Neale of Burlington.

Both players had four-round scores of 290 and Friday they played off during the third round of the amateur, which had 744.

Cowan, 29, besides winning the Open and the amateur, has won the United States amateur and a number of other tournaments.

Hamilton, 22, is a real estate salesman who started playing golf when he was 17. He played on the Ontario team in 1965.

PGA Leaders Threatened By Sanders' Top Round

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Doug Sanders who spent the past year in golf's limbo, believes he's back in form.

"I've been saving up for the big ones, and maybe this is it," Sanders said before he started today's third round of the PGA championship today only a stroke back of the leaders, Frank Beard and Marty Fleckman.

Sanders' old nemesis in the major titles—famed Arnold Palmer—was also in contention. Jack Nicklaus soared to a 79 Friday for 150 and Tom Weiskopf slipped to an 82 for 160, both missing the cut at 149 that trimmed the field to 74.

Beard shot a 70 and Fleckman a 72 in the second round for 138 totals. Sanders had a 67, best round of the day, to claim third with 139. Palmer, uncorking a 69, was tied for fourth at 140 along with sentimental favorite Lee Trevino, George Archer, Miller Barber and Johnny Pott.

Sanders was elated about his game, which has been spasmodic during a 10-month victory drought.

"Man, I needed a good round," said Sanders, who has won $500,000 on the tour but he is still looking for his first triumph in a major tournament.

Sanders, no match off the tees for his hard-hitting rivals, played short, hit deadly iron shots and sank birdie putts of 12, 14, two, eight and six feet.

Beard bogeyed the 18th hole and had consecutive bogeys on the fourth and fifth. Fleckman, who had a two-stroke lead in the first round, had a double-bogey six on the 18th, the creekcrossed hole that has drawn the fire of most of the pros.

Nancy Greene and CGM —What A Retirement Plan!

By STERLING TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The electric motor whispered a soft "goodbye" and the white vinyl top of the sports convertible came out of its boot and closed forever the amateur career of the world's top woman skier.

Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C., twice World Cup champion and double gold medalist at the 1968 Winter Olympics, had just announced the signing of her first commercial contract. The shiny red convertible was a gesture of good will from her employers—General Motors of Canada.

"All the details haven't been worked out, but my home base will be Toronto and I'll be making personal appearances on television and such," she said at a press conference in Toronto.

She wore a chic yellow business suit, the girl-you-take-home- to-mother look and made certain the assembled news media got the correct impression.

"No I can't have a beer. I drink it, but I wouldn't want to give the press the wrong impression. I'll have straight orange juice—it goes with my suit.

"I have an agreement with my employers that guarantees I never have to say something good about something I don't believe in."

Douglas Maxwell of Toronto, her agent, says that Nancy will never tie her name to liquor, beer or cigarette advertising. Her skiing clothing, ski equipment firms and such are the types of endeavors that he hopes she'll sign.

"I told her she is capable of earning $250,000 this year," he said.

The figure is also staggering when one considers the time and energy Miss Greene intends to spend promoting skiing—especially the Canadian national team.

She will first tackle a total immersion course in French. It's not for her benefit. The school promised to provide the course free to her mentor, Maxwell said "She in exchange for the use of her name in its advertising.

She is also working on an autobiography and another book—a pictorial of her career in all the skiing centres of the world. The autobiography is scheduled to hit the book stands about November.

"I'd like to try sports car racing, but I realize it takes years of practice and I'll probably never get the time."

Someone asked if she will ever ski competitively again.

"Never!"

"I achieved everything I set out to do and there was nothing left. You have to want in win. I'd like to run down the slopes and try all the competitive courses just for fun."

Fanatical Canadianalistic, Nancy turned down a multitude of offers from business agents in the United States before seeking out Maxwell.

"She told me she wasn't concerned with all the money the U.S. agents promised her," Maxwell said. "I wanted to promote Canada and its products."

The career of Nancy Greene Ltd. was momentarily halted as the news conference wound up when the convertible refused to start.

"Guess someone forget to install the motor," she laughed.

KNUDSON'S WORLD OF GOLF

By GEORGE KNUDSON

You can be certain of one thing as you await the winner of this year's PGA Championship — it's hot down there in San Antonio.

portant to the playing pro. He needs lasting power to get through 72 holes of top-flight competition. Endurance is in competition and extreme heat doesn't help.

Heat can bother you in Canada, too. There are some rather obvious ways to combat it, and I learned about them early in my career, when I played a lot in South America.

I take salt tablets in the heat, to replace the salt I lose while perspiring and to keep from becoming too thirsty. If I do drink, it is iced tea, glucose and lemon.

Your appetite is usually affected. You dream of a tall, cold glass of water with beads of frost on the glass, but leave it alone. I carry a damp towel and sponge my forehead.

The clothing you wear is also important. Stick to colors that reflect the sun rather than absorb it — whites are best. I'll even wear white shoes when it's very hot. If the surface is baked hard, you feel every spike on the bottom of your feet.

And shade is helpful. There are, however, ways of being in the shade other than playing in the woods. Use your umbrella — it isn't only for the rain.

And, if you happen to burn the way I do, make certain you apply a protective salve to your forehead.

Team Troubles

Canucks of WCHL Smart Under Age Dispute

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Moose Jaw Canucks are at war with the Western Canada Hockey League, club general manager and owner Bud Kerslake said Friday night.

Kerslake, who acquired controlling interest in the Saskatchewan club June 29, made his comment in an interview after Ron Bullin of Calgary, Canadian Hockey Association president, announced Friday in Calgary suspension of the club for its failure to fulfill financial obligations of the WCHL.

The CHA is in opposition to the Canadian Amateur hockey Association.

Kerslake said he has notified each club in the WCHL that his team will withdraw from the WCHL to play in Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League, sanctioned by the CAHA.

"They (the CHA) are using money as a lever to say they suspended or fired us," Kerslake said. "The WCHL has $1,-100 in trust that according to minutes of the last league meeting would cover the league entry for Canucks."

Kerslake said he favors the CHA age limits but "we couldn't be in a league that would jeopardize the future of any of our boys over the age limit dispute. The career of a junior hockey player overrides the age factor."

Bullin became president of the Canadian Hockey Association and the WCHL after the CAHA reduced junior hockey age limits by seven months to 19 years as of Dec. 31 in the playing season.

The Canadian Hockey Association increased its age limit by five months to 20 years.

Kerslake said pulling his club from the WCHL would result in more teams splitting from the league and joining the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League.

"The CAHA guaranteed complete co-operation and financial assistance if necessary," he said.

... While Racial Discrimination Changed in NFL

CLEVELAND (AP) — The objectives were the same—but the routes entirely different—as Cleveland Browns and St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League took steps to check racial incidents on their teams.

Cleveland owner Art Modell fired playing two starting veterans on waivers in an effort to block threatening dissension among the Browns.

Guard John Wooten and defensive back Ross Fichtner were put up for grabs in the wake of charges and countercharges from both concerning a July 1 golf tournament at Ashland, Ohio.

Fichtner handled arrangements for the event and Wooten, a Negro, acused him of prejudice because no Negroes were invited to play, as had been the custom in the past.

Fichtner said the size of the tournament had been cut down, and no racial slurs were intended. But he did say those connected with the tournament were unhappy because Negroes invited in the past had not socialized with white players.

The argument drew widespread publicity in the Cleveland newspapers and Modell said the positions of both players finally "became untenable." He said he wasn't trying to "hang either one of them. It's just the circumstances."

The 31-year-old Wooten is a nine-year veteran and Fichtner, 29, had been with the Browns for eight seasons.

Meanwhile, at Lake Forest, Ill., the St. Louis Cardinals took a different approach to solving racial problems blamed in part for their stuttering finish last season.

They formed a players committee to nip any threat of dissension in the bud.

Coach Charley Winner said the committee wasn't formed entirely because of racial friction, but added: "We are not here for political, social or religious battles and the only way to winning football is through group work.

"Color, religion and politics have no bearing and, if they do appear, all they do is cause hard feelings and hurt us in our objectives."

Rain Delays Matches-Ebbit Rescheduled

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rain interrupted quarter-final competition in the Canadian junior closed tennis championships Friday afternoon, forcing all matches to be rescheduled for today.

Other rescheduled matches included girls under 16 quarter-final play between twin sisters Pam and Pat Gildersleeve of Vancouver, and between Janet Hall of Vancouver and Kathy Johnston of Montreal and girls under 14 semi-final between Kathy Paton of Toronto and Kim Tindle of Vancouver and Jill Tindle and Janet Hall, both of Vancouver.

In boys under 16 quarter final matches Friday morning, Bill Shakespeare of Halifax strengthened his top-seeded position by defeating unranked Allan Lawry of Vancouver, 6-2, 6-3. Unseeded Blake Dunlop of Ottawa upset third-ranked Murray Whittaker of Montreal 6-2, 6-4 in the same event and third seed Pat Gaspar of Toronto beat Quebec City's Richard Legendre 6-3, 7-5. Fifth seed Dave Johnston of Vancouver upset fourth-ranked John Davis of Montreal 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

In the boys under 14 quarter finals, Craig Dunlop, rated tops, took a 2-6, 6-3, 6-1 victory from Vancouver's Roddy Wark, third-seeded Frank Scott of Vancouver was upset by Edmonton's sixth-ranked Stuart Howard and fourth-ranked Kostie Killas of Vancouver was upset 6-3, 6-3 by fifth-seeded Frank Cole of Ottawa.

Vancouver's Scott Cathcart defeated team-mate Robbie Keenart, both unseeded in the boys under-14 event, 6-2, 6-3.

Dunlop plays Killas and Scott is matched against Cathcart in the semi-finals.

No girls or boys under 12 matches were held Friday. In the semi-finals today, unseeded top seed Don Gilchrist of Ottawa plays sixth-ranked Robert Bettauer of Vancouver and Scott Cathcart of Vancouver plays Toronto's Ralph Dinkla.

As 1967 winner of the girls under 18 division, Vancouver's Janice Tindle goes into the semi-finals as the top seed against fourth-ranked Karen Willis of Clarkson, Ont. Third seed Michelle Carey of Vancouver plays Jane O'Hara of Grand Bend, Ont., ranked second in the under 18 competition.

There were no upsets in the girls' under 16 finals Friday as top-ranked Karen Wills of Clarkson, Ont., defeated seventh-ranked Donna McCallum of Pointe Claire, Que., 6-1, 9-7.

In the girls' under 14 quarter-finals, top-seeded Kathy Merton of Toronto defeated unranked Marilyn Miles of Vancouver, 6-3, 6-1 and second seed Janet Hall beat Linda Daley, both of Vancouver, 6-2, 6-4. Kim Tindle of Vancouver, third-seeded in the under 12 event, easily beat team-mate Andrea Molnar, 6-1, 6-1 while her sister Jill Tindle beat Jacqueline Owen of Vancouver 6-2, 6-3.

With The Trotters

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Grandpa Jim, a 26-to-1 long shot from the United States, beat Bonnequejne, the odds-on favorite from France, in the $25,000 Challenge Cup Trot at Roosevelt Raceway Friday night.

Grandpa Jim, driven by Archie Sinclair for the Tanner Acres of Knox, Ind., held off the stretch charge of the French mare to win by a neck. Earl Laird of the United States was third, 1½ lengths back.

Grandpa Jim trotted the 1½ miles in 3:11 2-5 over a slow track and paid $54.20, $10 and $4.60. Bonquejne, who won the $100,000 Roosevelt International last Saturday, returned $2.80 and $2.60. Earl Laird paid $2.80 to show.

HAMBURG, N.Y. (CP) — Murray Mir, owned by the Miron Farms of St. Augustine, Que., and driven by Claude, the long-striding trotter scored an easy 1¼ length victory over Keystone Pride in 2:05. The victory boostd Murray Mir's earnings for the year to $24,000.

TORONTO (CP) — Camper took the early lead and held it all the way Friday night in a fine performance that brought a 1¼-length victory in the feature race at Greenwood Raceway.

The red-coated trotting star, warming up for the $25,000 added Maple Leaf classic here July 27, paid $4.20 to win over Spindrift Joe, also entered in the Maple Leaf.

Canadians Finish 3rd At Bisley

BISLEY, England (CP) — Canada's armed forces placed third in the main inter-service team rifle match for the United Service Challenge Trophy Friday at the Bisley Commonwealth shoot.

Crack shots from Britain's regular army and the Royal Navy beat out the Canadians in a series of four events involving fire with movement, rapid fire, snapshooting and deliberate shooting. Canada was ahead of four other contestants.

Out of a possible 1,600, the eight-man Canadian team scored 1,267 against 1,329 for the British army and 1,301 for the navy.

Sgt. Jacques Dugas of Neufchatel, Que., a member of the 3rd Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, based in Valcartier, Que., led the Canadians with 174.

All are members of the 1st battalion, Canadian Guards, based at Picton, Ont., except L'Heureux, who is with the Van Doos, and Fleming, who is with the ordnance corps.

Making its official debut on the fifth day of the two-day shoot, Canada's military cadet team failed in its bid to get the Bisley Challenge Cup Bell Challenge Trophy fought for annually between cadet groups of Canada and Britain.

The British youngsters scored 746 out of a possible 800 against Canada's 731 in two shoots at 200 and 500 yards on these ranges in Surrey, 20 miles southwest of London. The Canadians last won the trophy in 1966.

Leading scorer of the eight Canadian shooters with 95 out of 100 was Cadet Lieut. Emerich Papp, 17, just graduated from Montreal's Cardinal Newman high school.

Benvenuti No Go Toronto

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of Toronto fight promoters filed a suit Friday against world middleweight champion Nino Benvenuti and his manager, Bruno Amaduzzi, alleging breach of contract and demanding return of $30,000 certified cheque.

The group, which comprises All-Canada Sports Promotions Ltd., Davidson's Press Ltd., and Paul Iannuzzi, lodged the suit with the local master of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Its members claim the cheque was given Benvenuti in advance for a non-title fight the Italian was to have July 29 at Toronto with Art Hernandez of Omaha, Neb.

The promoters say they were advised July 13 that Benvenuti would not fight but that the cheque has not been returned as agreed.

Benvenuti was in Ottwa Wednesday and met Prime Minister Trudeau.

The prime minister asked about the boxer's band, in a case because of an injury. Benvenuti said it would take a week or so to heal.

- But Heavies May Meet

VANCOUVER (CP) — A group of promoters has applied for a licence to stage a fight between former world heavyweight champion Sonny Liston and Canadian champion George Chuvalo of Toronto, it was learned Friday.

The unidentified promoters hope to stage the match in September in the 15,000-seat Pacific Coliseum.

Neither fighter has formally agreed to the match. The Vancouver Athletic Commission is expected to rule on the licence application within a week.

Senior Champion

TO's Farley Shoots One-Over Par 71

SASKATOON (CP) — Phil Farley, 58, of Toronto cooled off a tough Riverside Country Club golf course with a one-over-par 71 Friday to capture the Canadian seniors golf championship.

Farley entered Friday's final 18 holes of the 54-hole event three strokes behind Dr. George Bigelow, 59, of Victoria, the leader after the first two days of the tournament.

Bigelow, the defending champion, slipped to a 78 for a three-day total of 225, four strokes behind Farley.

Four men were tied for third with 226. They were Sandy Somerville of London, Ont., Alex Folk of Saskatoon, James Gibson of Toronto, and Jack Nash of London.

Ontario led all the way to capture the inter-provincial team event. The four top scorers from each province are used add the Ontario team of Farley, Somerville, Gibson and Nash won with a 54-hole aggregate total of 899. British Columbia was second with 924. Saskatchewan was third at 949 and Alberta was fourth at 959.

Alhambra Wins 33-13 in Tykes

In a Thursday night Minor League Baseball Tyke division contest, Alhambra downed Reid's 33-13 behind pitchers Randy Hutchinson and R. Collkis.

The loss went to P. Hall and M. McClelland.

The winners allowed 13 runs on 11 hits and six walks while fanning five. The losers allowed 33 runs on 25 hits and 14 walks while fanning nine.

Top hitters for Alhambra were B. Porter with a homer, a triple, two doubles and two singles; G. Bongard with two triples and a single, and R. Bruno and R. Culkin with doubles.

C. O'Hara led the losers with a homer and M. McClelland had a triple, a double, and two singles.

Navy Shells Racer

LAHAINA, Maui, Hawaii (AP) — The skipper of a yacht in the Victoria to Maui, Hawaii, yacht race radioed that shells fired by "two ships of the destroyer class" landed near his craft Thursday some 850 miles from Maui Island.

A U.S. Navy spokesman at Pearl Harbor confirmed Friday there were two destroyers in the general area and that an investigation was started to determine whether they were participating in firing operations.

John Lyra, a race official, said a radio report from L. Witherby, skipper-owner of the yacht Cona Mara, said one of the ships fired two five to six-inch hard nose, nonexploding shells. The first one, according to the report, landed 1,000 yards away and the second landed 500 yards away.

Fox said Wibberley was unable to give the nationality of the ships. The navy confirmed that its two destroyers had acknowledged they saw an unidentified yacht in the vicinity of their location.

Meanwhile, other activity in the yacht race continued with the third vessel to cross the finish line—the Moonglow III of Tacoma, Wash.—expected to reach port at 8 p.m. Friday. The Charlotte III of Vancouver was due to arrive about four hours later.

There are 14 yachts entered in the race but only two have reached port.

First to finish Wednesday was the Perpoise III. The second to cross the finish line was the Valaris, which reached Maui Thursday. Both are from the Royal Yacht Club in Vancouver.

Ruth Gordon, 73, Is Hit in Picture--At Last

Miss Gordon resembles a starlet in her passion for her work, her youthful gestures and her mini-skirts. But she is an unabashed 73—and still going at top speed.

She lately has been accorded more than the usual attention she gets as one of the country's most distinguished actresses and writers—she has written such plays as her Oscar and Years Ago and with her husband Garson Kanin produced the scripts of A Double Life, Adam's Rib and other films.

The reason for the fuss over Ruth Gordon is her performance in Rosemary's Baby, in which she plays Mia Farrow's nosy neighbor. Her work drew applause from preview audiences and predictions of an Academy Award nomination from critics.

"All the other pictures I've made were unsuccessful," she remarked. "Abe Lincoln in Illinois, Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet, Two-Faced Woman, Action in the North Atlantic—well, that one was a hit, but I only played a one-day bit in it as Raymond Massey's wife because he asked me to.

"Then there was Edge of Darkness, inside Daisy Clover (which got her an Academy nomination) and Lord Love a Duck. None of them did for me what Rosemary's Baby has done; already I've had dozens of offers for roles. I turned them down because they weren't different enough.

"But the best part of the whole thing is the way the people treat me after the role. They come up and compliment me as a series and on the street. I think that's simply great. You can grow old and you can get old—or you can grow old and stay with it. I think it's no doubt that Miss Gordon is with it. She can talk with teen-agers on their own terms. She can rhapsodize over such new theatre as Hair and Your Own Thing. Mia Farrow calls her "my only hippie friend."

She appears to have no formula for her immense vitality beyond a three-mile daily walk and a sustaining interest in the world around her.

"People do retire, but that is something I can't understand," she remarked. "I once retired for all of five years. I had known success in the theatre, both as an actress and a playwright, and I had a happy marriage to Garson. I figured that was enough.

"It was retired just long enough to miss out on A Streetcar Named Desire, Irene Mayer Selznick, who produced the play, offered it to me, and I said thank you, but I am retired. Imagine—the part of a lifetime! Sent afterward I decided that retirement was not for me."

Busy Time at Playgrounds

On July 17, Wellington Crescent was the setting for a dinosaur-egg hunt. Of the teams searching for the treasure, the winners were, Susan La Croix, Joanne Bohene, Elizabeth La Croix, Carole McPherson, Eddie McPherson. All enjoyed a piece of the dinosaur egg — a portion of watermelon.

A freshie sale will be held on Friday, July,19. Prices will be 3c for the first glass and 2c for refills. Let's have a large turnout from the Wellington Crescent area in the afternoon!

OSD PLAYGROUND

On Thursday, July 12 OSD playground held a Hippie Day. In the morning the children made arts and crafts which could be used in their costumes. Such crafts were kleenex flowers and pyschedelic posters.

In the afternoon, following the judging of the hippie outfits, a dance was held. In judging the costumes, the judges chose winners in the following categories: most original, hippiest, dirtiest, and funniest. Prizes were given to the winners. A hippie scavenger hunt was also carried out.

AVONDALE PLAYGROUND

On Monday, July 15 a treasure hunt was held at Avondale playground. Clues and arrows were divided into three groups and were sent out to follow the clues. After the treasure, watermelon and freshie was found, it was enjoyed by all twenty participants.

On Tuesday, July 16 we had a bicycle decoration contest in which twenty four children took part. There were three categories: best decorated girls' bike, boys' and tricycle. Abby Boisvert and Steve Martin tied for first place in the boy's division as did Pam Thrasher and Linda Martin in the girls' division. Allen Brown won the ribbon for the best decorated tricycle.

EAST . HILL

Supervisors — Peggy Ackerman, Tom Gill.

On July 16, the children of East Hill Playground went on an excursion to Corby Park. The cool breeze there and the sweet smell of flowers refreshed everyone on such a sweltering day. We counted over 30 kinds of trees. But the gardener told us there were over 50 varieties. Some of the names of roses amused us — "Jimmy Cricket", "Summer Snow", and "Hawaii". We found the biggest rose was the "Eclipse". After our visit the kind gardener gave us a "Prairie Down" rose. Thank you.

On July 15 a 4-leaf clover hunting contest was held. The winners were Bernice Kain and Bruce Callaghan. "Lots of luck to them".

JOHN STREET PLAYGROUND

John Street Playground held a Penny Carnival on Tuesday July 16. Forty children participated in a Freshie Sale, Sponge Toss, Ball Throw and Fish-pond. The money raised will be used to go on an excursion. Teresa Cooper, Dennis Lloyd, Bobby Coops, Doug Nauss, Penny Clark and Ken Bailey help to run the carnival. Pat Bailey and Kathy Coops looked after the freshie sale.

On July 17, a stuffed animal contest was held. Winners were Donna Coops, Ken Bailey, Kathy Coops, Noel Leger, Teresa Coops, Joanne Warren, Helen Gunn and Jacqueline Bailey.

The leader at John Street Playground is Elizabeth Kog lin

CNR PLAYGROUND

CNR's first Talent Show of Summer '68 took place on July 11, and was a great success. All the participants displayed excellent talent, but Coubiques, Heather and Margaret Johnson, narrowed their choice down to the "Four Stooges." — Gloria Bunnett, Sylvia Thorne, Karen Wood, and Debbie White, for their fascinating performance of "Operation Jewels."

July 12 was "animal day" at our playground. The kids brought pets of all sizes and colors and the final decision of our judges, Sue Adamson, Chris McKenna and Wayne McLaughlin, was as follows: 1st, Mark Hannah's dog, Mandy; 2nd, Chris Cousin's cat, Snowball; 3rd, Phillip's dog, Tinker; 4th, Debbie White's kitten, Smoky. We also saw a special note of thanks to Steve Gilbert for his assistance in handling our "Pet Show."

For all those registered at CNR, we extend a hearty welcome to attend our "special" Field Day, Monday, July 22. Your support is needed to make it a success, so everyone come and join the fun.

RETARDED CHILDREN'S PLAYGROUND

On July 12 a special event was held at the Retarded Children's Playground at 281 John St. The children made paper chains of many varied colors and there was a contest to see who could make the longest one.

They were given 15 minutes to work on their chains and then they were judged. There was a tie between Bobby Veszerfelz and Betty Barnes for first place.

The winner of their guests for the day was Nancy Murray. The children were presented with prizes and then helped to decorate the schoolroom with their chains.

ALEMITE PLAYGROUND

On Friday, July 12 Indian Day was held at Alemite Playground. Approximately 48 children participated in the parade around the neighborhood under the direction of leader Linda Medcalf. On returning a contest was held for the best costumes.

PRINCE OF WALES

A Freshie and Popcorn Sale was held at Prince of Wales Playground on Wednesday, July 13th, at 1:15. All profits will go to the playground itself, to provide equipment and prizes.

Keep watching for information regarding Prince of Wales' penny carnival to be held in the near future.

PARKDALE PLAYGROUND

On Tuesday, July 16, a pet show was held at Parkdale playground involving the owners of their assorted animals. There were seventeen prize winning categories including the wheiest cat, which was won by Janie Parsons pet, Cotton. The biggest dog was Tawny, brought by Cindy Ross.

The smallest kitten was Blackie, owned by Henry Bell. Roy Bays' cat Fluffy, had no tail. Ron Bell's guinea pigs were very well liked. Rusty, Brian Denman's dog, was the cutiest, the loudest dog. Prince, belonged to Harry Hicks. Snoopy, the funniest turtle belonged to Alan Rutherford. Rosemary Rodgers had the most pets, three turtles called Scamp, Junior and Skipper. The most common pet was Richard Bell's dog, Bojtie.

PARKDALE PLAYGROUND

On July 17 it was Circus day at Parkdale playgrounds. There were many events available to enjoy, one of which was the spook house under the direction of Billy Coughlin, Brian Coughlin, Judy Leonard and Susan Wood.

There was also a very profitable freshie sale managed by Greg Cronkright, Ron Davis and Allen Wilson. Each event cost one or two cents to enter. There was a weight guessing contest involving Kim Huuart, directed by Ron Bell. There was a marble guessing contest managed by Sharon Coughlan. An alley game was run by Glenn Pearson and Chad Masterson.

A tin can contest was managed by Bob Andrews and Ricky Birchard. All events ran smoothly and Parkdale's fascinating performance of "Operation Jewels."

WELLINGTON CRESCENT PLAYGROUND

The first week of playgrounds is over and so is Wellington Crescent's pet show. The afternoon began with Simone at it's peak—a pet" followed by a parade. Then the all important judging took place.

RETARDED CHILDREN'S PLAYGROUND

On July 18 an Indian Day was held at the Retarded Children's Playground. In the morning the children made Indian hats and enjoyed playing games in a pow-wow. The winner of wonderball, Ronnie Vesterfelt, was made chief for the day.

After lunch their hats were judged by Susan and Michael Adamson. The prize for the hat with the most feathers was Julie Murray, for the most colorful was David Glover, and for the least feathers was Bruce Laurence. After the hat contest the children made teepees and one of the girls made a peace pipe. Races were held to determine who was the fastest Indian. Some of the winners were Billy Irvine, Julie Murray, Nancy Murray, Bruce Laurence, Ricky Vesterfelt, Ronnie Vesterfelk and Vicki Markwell. Prizes were given to the children.

Dear Chicken Lovers:

It appears that some of your families have divided tastes.

More and more we are receiving mixed orders calling for perhaps a bucket of chicken, some fish dinners and a pizza.

Mama Mia! It's those pizza orders that really surprise us in their quantity as we seldom advertise them.

But, we should warn you, we can't give service on Pizzas as fast as we do on Dixie Lee Fried Chicken.

So, we suggest you phone ahead when you'd like a pizza included in your order.

Rylstone Personals

Several women from Rylstone were guests of Mrs. Jack Watson on Sunday afternoon and evening, when she entertained at a trousseau tea, before her eldest daughter, Barbara, a July bride-to-be.

Danny Hunter of Campbellford was a guest last week, of his cousin Stephen Thomson and other cousins. Karen Thomson spent the week with Debbie Dooher, Christie and Laurie Ann.

Mrs. Bill Amm and daughter Chereee, of Toronto, spent the week with her sister, Mrs. John Spencer, her husband and family and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bateman, of Lowbanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Brent, of Havelock; and their granddaughter, Rose Marie McMillan of Mitchell, visited their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Jones on Friday.

A shower was given for Mr. and Mrs. Ted Reid (the former Joyce Cooney, of Frankford) who held the reception in the Legion Hall on Friday evening, with many from the community attending.

Several from this area attended the celebration of the Battle of the Boyne, in Cobourg on Saturday. Robert Spencer was piper for the Sabine Lodge at Petherick's Corners. He and Mrs. Spencer and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bennett, in Cobourg, before returning home

Summer Stock Rally Cautiously Revives

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The summer rally revived cautiously on Canadian stock markets this week after a brief interval of sluggish trading.

The Toronto Stock Exchange industrial index, the best single indicator of price levels, was up 1.14 to 171.29 after touching an 11-month high shortly after mid-day Friday.

This marks a 25-point advance since Prime Minister Trudeau's speech at the end of March, when he promised not to run for re-election and to limit the war in Vietnam. The bull trend dates from this event.

Leading groups were food processors, pipelines, banks and oil refiners, while steels, chemicals and western oils lost ground. Golds recovered after slipping earlier in the week.

Among the largest gains, Great West Life was up 11 to 66¼, Dylex Diversified 7⅛ to 34, Leigh Instruments 6 to 69¾, Imperial 3⅞ to 33¾, Revenue Properties 3 to 35¾ and Peel Elder 3⅛ to 31⅝.

Other stocks touching highs for the year included B.C. Forest, C.J. Pipe, Crown Life, Noranda, Toronto-Dominion Bank, Great Lakes Paper and Zellers.

Analysts are extremely optimistic for a strong further advance, with Labor Day effort at the next possible moment for another correction or breathing spell.

Canadian markets are still showing a far more consistent pattern than New York, although there seems to be at least a whispering doubt among technicians about the ability of the Dow to hold the record level reached 1 1955. This point is nevertheless extremely close.

No one conected with the securities business will willingly declare that prices are at a ceiling, let alone on their way down. But analysts naturally try to cover themselves after the event by pointing to the small print and buried sentences in their forecasts.

And this is what will happen if, for instance, adverse foreign developments depress the market before the end of August. However, traders say that demand for stocks has become so heavy in relation to supply that a lot of bad news can be absorbed before prices slide.

Right now, the financial outlook is promising. A further reduction in interest rates is expected, and money market developments suggest that the Bank of Canada may be about to cut bank rate again.

The rate was reduced to 7-per-cent from 7.5-per-cent July 2, and this week the bank bought $11,700,000 in treasury bills, which is another step which tends to bring interest rates down.

The average yield on 91-day treasury bills fell to its lowest level since January 17, although the yields in investors on long term government bonds were largely unchanged.

Observers also say that rising unemployment has become a pressing factor which should lead the federal government to relax its monetary policy. According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Unemployment in June reached a four-year high of 5.5-per-cent of the labor force.

The heaviest stocks, Dome and Campbell Red Lake, declined steadily until 1 p.m. Thursday on the widespread belief that South Africa and Russia would shortly decrease the free bullion market by selling gold.

However, investors were completely taken by surprise when the South African government announced that it had no early plans to sell privately-mined bullion, and had in fact been actively testing the free market by sales in that area.

Gold stocks rebounded on the news and closed near last week's highs. Dome was up 1 to 41¾ after trading as low as 57. Campbell Red Lake gained 1⅛ to 71 after touching 73.

Bullion dealers said the prospect of Russian sales in exchange for wheat, also would be the first since 1966, helped to keep the price of gold in check since the South African statement.

A report from a Texas firm of oil and gas consultants is creating the major oil and gas discovery by Atlantic Richfield Co. and Humble Oil on the Arctic slope of Alaska spurred several oil stocks on Canadian, U.S. and British exchanges.

At Toronto, Imperial Oil jerked 3 to 70¼ after hitting a record 72⅞. The company, like Humble, is a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey, it holds about 9,00,000 acres of exploration permits some 400 miles east of the find.

Bow Valley Industries of Calgary jumped 3⅛ to 16⅝ in heavy trading. The firm said Friday it is acquiring an interest in an off-shore acreage in the Canadian Arctic about 250 miles east of the Alaska discovery.

The index at Toronto, golds gained 3.35 to 198.70 and base metals .22 to 106.46. Western oils fell 3.33 to 210.78. Volume was 16,165,00 shares compared with 19,034,00 last week. Gains outran losses 206 to 33.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index rose 1.89 to 164.52. Combined volume was 5,307,000 shares compared with 6,095,000. Gains outnumbered losses 192 to 159.

SIU Denies Gift to Democrats Linked to Banks

NEW YORK (CP) — The Seafarers Inffernational Union says there was no connection between the U.S. state department's refusal to extradite Hal C. Banks to Canada and $100,000 in donations to the Democratic party campaign funds by the union.

The Wall Street Journal says the union donated the money to Democratic campaign organizations after Rusk refused March 25 to approve extradition of Banks to Canada.

The financial newspaper says half the money went to campaign committees supporting the White House bid of Vice-President Hubert Humphrey.

The province of Ontario sought the extradition of Banks, former head of the SIU in Canada, in connection with a charge he perjured himself in testimony to a royal commission investigating shipping violence.

The Wall Street Journal says the SIU refused comment on the contributions or why they were made.

However, the union said Friday it had made such donations in the past.

"These contributions were made openly as are all Seafarers' contributions," the union said in a statement.

"They were made legally, as are all Seafarer contributions. They are reported publicly, as all Seafarer contributions, and after careful consideration of this right is linked to any other situation or circumstance is wholly without justification."

But Rusk refused to grant it and later explained that to release Banks to Canadian authorities would have violated "my own sense of old-fashioned justice," the newspaper report says.

Prime Minister Trudeau said the report "sounds extraordinary."

But he said the U.S. was acting within its legal rights when Rusk rejected the Canadian appeal for Banks's extradition.

"This matter is relevant to us inasmuch as we asked the U.S. government to grant extradition Banks," Trudeau said.

The U.S. state department, in commenting on the report, said Rusk had vowed "to throw out any visitors who might try" to influence him in the extradition of Banks.

Robert J. McCloskey, state department press officer, quoted Rusk as saying:

"No one at the Democratic national committee ever communicated with me on this matter. No one at the White House ever attempted to influence my decision nor did any congressman.

"This matter rested solely with the secretary of state."

McCloskey said Rusk "is satisfied with the correctness and the legality of the decision in this case."

Banks was convicted in Montreal in 1964 of conspiracy in the beating of Capt. Frank Walsh, a rival union leader. He was sentenced to five years in prison but jumped bail and fled to the United States, forfeiting $25,000 bail. The conspiracy conviction was upheld but he could not be brought back to Canada because the conspiracy and extradition treaties ended under a Canada-U.S. agreement.

The contributions from the SIU to the Democratic campaign organization were made without Rusk's knowledge, the newspaper report, adding:

"Conceivably this sequence of events represents aberrant collusion. But it may be that Secretary Rusk emphasizes that no political pressure was applied from any source to influence his decision."

It was also conceivable, says The Journal, that the donation was a gift gratuitous, and that SIU President Paul Hall may have been misled by Democratic party fund raisers into believing that political pull had influenced Rusk.

The newspaper says Rusk, as well as overruling the U.S. commissioner's extradition recommendation, rejected the arguments of his legal adviser, Several months prior to his decision.

It says lawyers representing Canada had argued against Rusk at an informal meeting in the secretary's office, to surrender Banks to Canadian authorities. But Rusk let Banks go free.

"Then a noteworthy thing happened," writes reporter Jerry Landauer.

"Within days after the Rusk decision, unknown to the secretary, cheques totalling $100,000 started flowing into Democratic party campaign coffers from Seafarers Union headquarters in Brooklyn."

The money was distributed in two packets of 10 cheques each. The smallest was $5,000, the maximum amount an organization can legally contribute to a single campaign committee within the course of a year.

The newspaper says: "The chronology of subsequent events seems to underline the question about a possible connection."

The newspaper sums up the events this way:

On March 13, after conferring in his office with seven lawyers, Rusk informed the Canadian government he would not honor a surrender warrant for Banks. The next day the Canadian government appealed for reconsideration and asked for international arbitration.

On March 25, Rusk rejected the appeal.

On April 21, President Johnson made his surprise announcement that he would not seek re-election.

Then, on April 3, the SIU sent its first batch of 10 cheques to campaign organizations.

In addition, the paper says, Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz had "put in a good word for Banks" in a memorandum to Rusk, a cabinet colleague.

But the newspaper quotes Wirtz as saying, after being told of the union contributions: "It is extraordinary and I intend to find out about it."

The story also quotes Wirtz as saying he knew nothing about any big SIU contributions to Banks's release. It says he expressed surprise at the size and timing of the donations could hurt Vice-President Humphrey seeking the Democratic party's presidential nomination for the November election.

In Washington, a aide to Wirtz verified the accuracy of the quotations and said he expressed no further comment from the secretary.

Douglas Urges Canada to Copy Sweden's Labor Peace Formula

REGINA (CP) — Federal-NDP Leader T. C. Douglas said Friday Canada should follow the example of Sweden in establishing an "industrial peace commission" that would provide unbiased, credible information on issues in labor-management disputes of deep public interest.

There were more than 35 strikes in Canada today and "there will be more if we don't do something about the rising cost of living," he said at a joint news conference with the Ontario NDP leader, Donald MacDonald. "Nobody really gains by a strike. It's the only weapon that he has."

Mr. Douglas, in Regina to attend tht three-day annual meeting of the Saskatchewan New Democratic Party, said the federal government should have acted earlier to speed up talks between the Lakehead Terminal Elevator Association and the 1,300 Lakehead grain handlers now on strike.

His proposed industrial peace commission would be similar to that in Sweden where, he said, there has not been a major strike in 28 years.

The commission would be a quasi-judicial body, comprised of labor and management experts, sociologists and economists, and would provide technical information on economic issues in disputes between labor and management.

Mr. Douglas said appointments to the commission should be made with the approval of labor and management. The commission's findings would not be binding but they would be "pretty difficult to argue with."

Government has an important role to play, and it hasn't been playing that role," he said. Compulsory arbitration was not the answer to labor disputes because "you can't make men go back to work."

Mr. MacDonald said he took issue with Prime Minister Trudeau's argument that the effect on the economy of a wage increase should be severely restrictive. Inflationary than a similar increase to people who worked in the private sector.

"If a civil servant is going to be a second-class citizen, this is no invitation for society as a whole," he said.

Mr. Douglas, defeated in Burnaby-Seymour in the June 25 federal election, said later that three universities have offered him teaching positions, and as yet he has neither accepted the offers nor turned them down.

He declined in an interview to name the universities, but said that one of them was in Saskatchewan was not among them.

He said Prime Minister Trudeau is not using the same line on constitutional questions as Prime Minister Mackenzie King did in 1945. Douglas said, dismissed unemployment, housing and pollution as purely provincial problems.

"Workers in the 1930s were incensed with the failure of governments to act. I don't think they'll accept it now . . . people are not going to be fluffed off with a phony argument."

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY,
Manpower Counsellor

Despite the hot weather during the past week, and the fact that several local plants are in their annual holiday period, the labor demand indicated an increased requirement for additional workers. This trend showed a much stronger demand for men than for women, which was the reverse of the previous week.

Although no particular field of employment was predominant, there is considerable demand for agricultural workers. The next crop of the season locally, is the raspberry crop, which is expected to be ready for picking and processing during the coming week. The cherry crop in Prince Edward County is also ripening and it is anticipated, within the next two weeks. Any employer requiring temporary help to harvest to assist in harvesting crops is invited to contact the Manpower Centre.

There is another crop, tobacco, rapidly maturing which will require harvesting this Canada Manpower Centre's area, does require a large number of harvest hands. In this connection, the Ontario Flue Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board is of the opinion that harvesting will not likely be general until after the first week of August. Persons seeking employment in the Tobacco harvest are requested to contact their nearest Canada Manpower Centre for information. This would avoid any possibility of persons suffering undue hardship as a result of lack of employment on arrival in the tobacco areas. Although experienced pickers are preferred, inexperienced persons accustomed to hard work can usually adapt to the routine in about four days. The work requires much stooping and bending, and demands physical endurance.

In the female division locally, still required are capable housekeepers who would be willing to live in. Experienced waitresses are wanted. So is a qualified bookkeeper, to work for a period of possibly two months. A motel requires the services of a dishwashing-machine operator. In constant demand are registered nurses with at this time, special emphasis for anyone having physical therapy training. A large industrial plant in a neighboring town is looking for a qualified stenographer.

In the male division locally, still unfilled is a position for a qualified engineer who possesses one to three years of industrial processing experience. Another engineering position calls for a mature person whose background would have been in production. Qualified Class II and Class IV stationary engineers are being sought for permanent positions. A manufacturer of sailboats is seeking a qualified fiber cabinet-maker who will do the interior woodworking and finishing of the boats. A rural firm engaged in the saddlery business needs a saddle maker who will be interested in making either Western or English-type saddles. An industrial plant is seeking a qualified wood pattern-maker for permanent work.

Interested in any of these positions, seeking other employment or thinking of re-entering the labor market, contact the Canada Manpower Centre at 324 Church Street, Belleville.

To Your Good Health

Non-smokers Can Get Emphysema, Too

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is 60 and has been told he has emphysema. He has never smoked in his life but has had asthma attacks often. It hurts him to hear people tell him he had better quit smoking. How about this? — R. J.

It is true that an emphysema patient should not smoke, but it obviously is silly to tell a non-smoker to quit. Your husband shouldn't let it get under his skin.

Emphysema existed long before smoking became so popular. While smoking is one thing which either helps bring it on or makes it more severe, there are other factors? Some weakness in the lung tissues, excessive pressure on the lungs, infections, irritants of various kinds including smog. Unquestionably your husband's asthma had a good deal to do with his case.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had my eyes examined and was told by tear ducts were dry. I was given a bottle of artificial tear drops and told to use it a few times a day. Will this help the tear ducts? — Mrs. E. H.

It will not affect the tear ducts. It isn't intended to be a medication for that. It is merely a safe form of providing moisture to replace the absent tears. Moisture is necessary to keep the eyes clean and comfortable.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: The question arose at work about hospitals and other places having Negro and white blood banks. I said I read this, but others disagree. Will you clear the matter up please? — G. D.

I don't know what I can say; I have no doubt that there has been such segregation of blood which is fairly widely accomplished in areas where there is sharp segregation of patients. There may be, although I do not know for certain, places where a racial distinction is made between blood donors now.

From the standpoint of health, medicine, and science, however, there is no point in making any distinction. Blood is blood and the color of the person who gave it has no bearing.

The important question is whether the blood comes from a healthy individual — and, of course, the Red Cross, hospital blood banks, and other such reliable agencies make every effort to see that the donors are healthy.

It is necessary to match blood types — give a person blood of a type matching his own. Blood types follow the same A-B-O typing regardless of race.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I use Teflon cooking utensils. Now I understand or hear rumors that it causes cancer. Is this true? I do know the cooking will peel off if not carefully handled. What is the Teflon substance? — Mrs. F. A. B.

That's all they are — rumors. There is no truth to the story that Teflon "causes cancer," yet, this rumor keeps bobbing up in all parts of the country.

Teflon is a form of plastic, and chemically inert, meaning that it doesn't easily interact with other substances chemically. It has high heat resistance and has low friction characteristics, which make it so useful on cooking utensils.

True, it can peel off if not carefully handled, after which food being cooked in the utensil can stick to these parts. But the Teflon is perfectly safe, is not toxic, and does not cause cancer.

OFF THE RECORD — BY ED REED — MR. TWEEDY — by Ned Riddle

Ray Waits to See His Lawyer

The lawyer, Arthur Hanes of Birmingham, Ala., arrived by plane from New York shortly before midnight Friday night and drove to a downtown hotel —escorted by six policemen.

After being searched and passed through cordons of heavily-armed sheriff's deputies, Hanes presumably will be admitted to the third-floor cell block where Ray, charged with the April 4 assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., is confined in the Shelby County jail.

Ray, arrested in London June 8, was taken to the jail just before dawn Friday after a secret flight aboard a U.S. Air Force jet from Britain. Hanes, who caught a later flight to the United States, protested the decision that prevented him from accompanying Ray.

No date has been set for arraignment for Ray, and Hanes is expected to work this out with Judge Preston Battle, who will preside at Ray's trial, and the prosecution. Ray must enter a plea at the arraignment.

In London, police said they had evidence Ray may have robbed a bank. They said the evidence is fingerprints on a "give me cash" note handed a bank teller.

The note was handed to a teller in the Trustee Savings Bank in London's Fulham District June 4—two months to the day after King was killed. The man escaped with about £100—$260 —in £5 notes.

When Ray was arrested four days later he had 60 £5 notes. He also had just bought a ticket to Brussels.

Sirhan Complains He Cannot Sleep

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan has been complaining of insomnia as he waits in jail for his trial on a charge of assassinating Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

And he told Superior Court Judge Richard Schauer Friday he would agree to a waiver granting psychiatrists access to his jail record on condition that he be given sleeping pills.

"I have constantly been asking for sleeping pills—if they give me sleeping pills, I'll waive it."

No more mention of the pills was made but Sirhan's lawyer, Russell E. Parsons, said later, "I assume the doctor will do his duty and give the man sleeping pills if he needs them."

Sirhan was in court to enter a plea to the murder charge against him, but Parsons requested and received a two-week delay.

Parsons asked for the postponement, after a month's delay, so psychiatrists can complete reports on Sirhan.

He also requested authorization for x-ray and electric-wave studies of his client's brain.

Parsons said that in another case he handled, such tests led to the defendant's being found insane and that he went to a state mental institution rather than the death house.

The lawyer previously had indicated he may try to show Sirhan suffered brain damage in falling from a horse in 1966. The young immigrant later demanded and received state disability for the injury.

LBJ Fails To Get Guns All Listed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's call for registration of all guns has been turned aside by two votes that appeared to kill all hope for such legislation this session of Congress.

By a margin of nearly 2 to 1, the House of Representatives Friday defeated registration amendments to a bill that would ban interstate mail-order sales of rifles, shotguns and ammunition, plus over-the-counter sales to residents of nonadjacent states.

One amendment would have required registration of all firearms. It lost by a standing vote of 172 to 68.

The other would have required pistol registration only. It was turned back 163 to 89.

A final vote on the bill and on numerous pending amendments that could still weaken or strength it was put off until Monday.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For July 21

Your birthday today: Changes in home and social life are apt to be plentiful in the year ensuing on. Some friendships will be outgrown. Today's natives tend to be impulsive, imaginative, and misunderstood by associates.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your mood is possibly aloof, even while at home or with close friends. Indulge yourself: give your mind rest from the impact of close signals.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Today confronts you with putting out money you had not planned to spend and with the opportunity to see your budget in a new light. Plan to consider your loved ones more.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Home repairs are favored. Check your property for hazards. Your health is better protected with a comprehensive program.

CANCER (June 21 — July 23): Do what you can to support your faith today. Avoid pettiness while pursuing your goals. A quick, short trip may be needed. Letter writing is best put off till a less tense time.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Uphold your dignity today. Unruffled replies to anxious remarks pay off. Your finances need not be mentioned. Look over your property; check it limits again.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Open your day with a prayer; then select a mental approach to the day's possible experiences. Your friends may squabble; stay out of it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): After church, think over your immediate plans. Be patient when other people are being restless. Travel and visiting are not favored.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): The fine art of letting other people have your way about things is in practice again this day.

FOR DIAMONDS COLES BELLEVILLE PEARL

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): With the day going pleasantly enough in nearly all departments, somehow personal schemes get pushed off the main stream.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Expect little of others today. Avoid fatigue your self. Give intuition a better chance. Relax tonight and have some fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Impatience leads to bickering with others. Upsets the whole day. So check your impulsive remarks. Especially for church.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): There is a high probability of being distracted from your original plans. No matter what happens, you are going to achieve your proper destination anyway.

For July 22

Your birthday today: Prosperity is promising in the coming year. Long-standing personal habits may require response to circumstances. Speculation and sentiment appear suddenly all year, and you act in ways altogether different from expectations. Serious attention to the intuitive process is needed for solving the puzzles of this year.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Take every opportunity to protect your health care. Interruptions tend to delay. Travel is dubious; use care in driving.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Spend the day tidying up rather than launching ambitious projects. Older people may offer odd advice. Panic reactions in finance are bound to be destructive today.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You may regret being rushed into drastic changes today. Require a full explanation, then stall until next week if you can. Get old friends to help.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Today is good for confidential manoeuvring; there is difficulty in the fact that people you work with are be well known and the others are inaccessible. Consult directories for better information.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Money hinders friendship today. Take care of papers' friends and relatives, but do not plague them with questions. Postpone financial decisions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You will be called on to use your skills in formation of faults. Do your fair share, but then look for fun.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Monday is not exactly blue, nor gray. Distractions threaten so that the week is difficult to start. Not a day for dealing with large institutions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Friends are late in offering assistance, and all of them are ready to offer complex advice. Follow your own intuitions this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Work on matters that require no help. Avoid needless changes. Older people may, for a short time, block you. Be patient.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): If you can skip impulsive moves, things will be simple. Perhaps you can have comfortable routines back. Make an appointment for a dental checkup.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Try to dislodge logjams and the individuals causing them. Try a new approach. Assistance may come from an unusual source. Study tonight works.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Conservative approaches are difficult against older people's whims and family. Pause for meditation to unlock the intuitions that guide through all circumstances.

Czechs Voice 'Stay Home' Plea

Russell Warns Russia

LONDON (AP)—British pacifist Bertrand Russell, who denounces United States intervention in Vietnam, turned on the Soviet Union Sunday and warned that military action against Czechoslovakia "would provoke the opposition of Communists and Socialists in five continents."

Russell cabled Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin:

"I urge that you state publicly that the Soviet Union has no intention of using military force in Czechoslovakia. Such a declaration would decrease the threat to world peace and show the possible elasticity of communism."

BELGRADE (AP) — A prominent Yugoslav Communist said Sunday that Soviet pressure on Czechoslovakia's reform leadership is "a tragic blunder" and a blow to confidence in foreign policies of the Soviet Union."

Leo Mates, director of the Yugoslav Institute for International Politics and Economy and former aide to President Tito, wrote in a weekly publication that thwarting liberalization would "have grave consequences for the political position of the Soviet Union."

"Destruction of confidence in the Soviet Union," he said, would diminish Moscow's ability to act "in the service of peace and international co-operation."

Leaders Urged To Shun Russia

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Public demands for Czechoslovak leader Alexander Dubcek to stay away from Moscow grew today as Russia accused Czechoslovak reformists of ignoring alleged danger from counter-revolutionary forces.

Czechoslovak party leaders were meeting today to discuss terms for facing Soviet leaders as telegrams and other appeals were reported flooding into Communist party headquarters in Prague urging Dubcek not to accept a Russian invitation for talks in Russia.

The Russians proposed Moscow, or the Ukraine cities of Kiev or Lvov as a site. The Czechoslovak party now will discuss the proposal and decide on the site, the size of their delegation and the agenda.

Radio Prague reported that Soviet troops which took part in Warsaw pact exercises in Czechoslovakia last month began crossing back into Russia.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Communist party today rejected the defence by Czechoslovak leaders of their liberal course and demanded again that the leaders in Prague come to the Soviet Union for a showdown meeting today or Tuesday.

Reports from Prague indicated the demand for a meeting on Soviet soil would be rejected. The Czech leaders were reported willing to meet their Soviet critics, but only on their own territory.

Pravda rejected the Prague leadership's denial last week of charges made against it by the Warsaw meeting of the Soviet Union and its four hard-line allies—East Germany, Poland, Bulgaria and Hungary.

The Soviet party paper accused the Czech leaders of playing down the threat to the Communist system in Czechoslovakia. It warned that the Soviet Union regards the defence of communism everywhere in the East bloc as its business.

Ray Pleads Not Guilty

Truce Hopes Shrivel

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson is enjoying a rancher's respite in the Texas hills after U.S.-Vietnam summit sessions that withered hopes for any early ceasefire or even a let-up in the Vietnamese war.

President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam did see some prospect, nevertheless, that his army's power will grow to the point of permitting what he termed a phasing out of some American military units one at a time in 1969. But he stressed this would not mean a complete U.S. withdrawal from the war.

Viet Cong Launches New Terror

SAIGON (CP) — A new wave of Viet Cong terrorism hit Saigon and two provincial capitals Sunday, killing 13 Vietnamese and wounding 52.

Intelligence sources have said terrorist attacks might precede the announced third major enemy offensive of the year, but the lull in the ground war continued.

Twelve Vietnamese were killed and 31 wounded in the weekend bombing of four theatres, one of them only a block from national police headquarters in Saigon. A large explosive charge set off outside the Saigon theatre killed four persons and wounded 15. Also in Saigon, a minor official was assassinated.

A hand grenade was thrown into a group of militiamen watching a travelling troupe perform in Phu Cuong, a provincial capital 15 miles north of Saigon. Four persons were killed and 22 wounded, including two of the performers.

Little Progress Is Made In Talks on Postal Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — The nation-wide mail shutdown entered its fifth day today with the parties in the dispute still talking through a mediator but there were no indications of an early end to the tieup.

Representatives of the government's treasury board and the 24,000-member Council of Postal Unions talked for eight hours Sunday including time out to eat, then quit at 11.30 p.m. EDT to announce plans for further meetings.

"We've still got a lot of work to do," Douglas Love of treasury board told reporters.

Mediator Judge Rene Lippe termed the Sunday talks useful and said some progress was made. Monetary and non-monetary matters were discussed. He would not be more specific.

The mediation talks had adjourned Wednesday night to allow the parties time to reassess their positions. The strike began at 2.30 a.m. Thursday. The negotiations leading to the strike began more than six months ago.

Today Mr. Mathieu and Mr. Love were told to hold meetings with their organizations to report on Sunday's talks, then the two men were to move back into Judge Lippe's hotel room for more mediation. Exact times of the meetings was uncertain.

The strike and talks to end it are being conducted in the awareness that Prime Minister Trudeau may decide to recall Parliament to end the walkout.

He left here Sunday on a week-long visit to the Yukon and Northwest Territories. He has stressed the legality of the strike under new collective bargaining legislation and said the situation would have to be "extremely serious" to bring about parliamentary intervention.

Perhaps Stomach Grumbled

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A Dallas man who claims the U.S. Air Force implanted an electronic eavesdropping device in his body has filed a $15,800,000,000 lawsuit against the U.S. government in federal court here.

Andrew J. Tubbs said in the hand-written five-page damage suit that he was a serviceman stationed at Sheppard Air Force base in Wichita Falls, Kan., when he was operated on in the base hospital in May, 1960. The suit claims that his stomach was removed in the operation and an electronic listening device installed.

Talks May Resume In Lakehead Strike

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — A negotiating impasse between union and company officials at the strikebound Lakehead grain terminals may break early this week, union officer Frank Mazur said Sunday night.

Talks resumed Thursday after an eight-week lapse but ended abruptly again Friday morning when the company team walked out.

Mr. Mazur said the union has received "some indication" that company representatives would like to meet again.

Negotiators for the Lakehead Terminal Elevator Association walked out Friday morning after they received what a spokesman described as an "intemperate response" to a suggestion that wages should not have absolute priority in the talks.

The association represents 10 companies that operate 23 terminal elevators.

Doom Forecast in 1150 Falls

ALRESFORD, England (AP) — The death of Baronet Sir Anthony Doughty-Tichborne, reported today fulfilled an 800-year-old curse that the family would die out if the lord of the manor ever stopped giving food to the poor.

Sir Anthony, 54, died last Thursday, the 14th and last baronet of his life. Cause of death was not given.

The legendary curse was pronounced in 1150, when Lady Mabel Tichborne begged her husband from her deathbed to give the produce from part of his Hampshire estate to the tenants every year.

If the donations, which came to be known as the Tichborne Dole ever stopped, she warned, seven sons would be born, followed by seven daughters, and the manor house would collapse and the family name would cease for lack of male heirs.

Her husband agreed to give the value of the land she could walk around with a flaming brand in her hand.

The dole was given for 644 years, before district magistrates ordered it stopped. The family later resumed the donation — Sir Anthony kept it up through the Second World War until 1947, despite food shortages and opposition from the wartime ministry of food.

But the curse went into action.

Seven sons were born, the family mansion fell down, and seven daughters followed.

Sir Anthony was the last male heir.

Nigeria, Biafra Confer

NIAMEY, Niger (AP)—Representatives of Nigeria and secessionist Biafra have begun talks aimed at breaking the stalemate that is keeping food from millions of refugees threatened with starvation in the breakaway West African tribal state.

The two delegations met Sunday in Niamey, the Niger capital northwest of Nigeria, and agreed on an agenda for peace talks getting under way soon in Ethiopia.

A communique issued after the conference said the delegates also discussed "concrete proposals for the transportation of relief to the civilian victims of the war."

There was no indication, however, of any progress toward agreement on relief measures.

Millions of persons are on the verge of starvation and as many as 1,200 persons are said to be dying daily in surrounded, landlocked Biafra and in areas reoccupied by advancing federal troops.

Rats, Bats, Lizards, Grasshoppers On Diet Prescribed for Starving

EMEKUKU (AP) — Doctors are turning to insects, rodents and reptiles for their fight against malnutrition disease that bloats and slowly kills the children of this Biafran famine belt.

At Holy Rosary Mission Hospital, where pain-wracked babies lie dying two in a bed, outpatients are implored to eat any protein food they can lay their hands on.

A big poster shows them picture of the prey they can find in the food-scarce area-bush rats, turtles, bats, grasshoppers, lizards, snails and frogs.

"We have to do something," says the hospital pediatrician, Dr. Aaran Ifekwunigwe, 32. "If the food situation goes on like this with no improvement, there will not be many children left in Biafra in three months time."

The year-old Nigerian civil war between the federal state and breakaway Biafra has cut off most of the normal food supply and protein deficiencies are claiming lives every day.

Dr. Ifekwunigwe, a British-educated Biafran, estimates that the number dying of malnutrition in besieged Biafra "is in the thousands every week."

He called estimates of 300 deaths a day—given by other relief workers here—"gross understatements."

Most of the victims are chil-

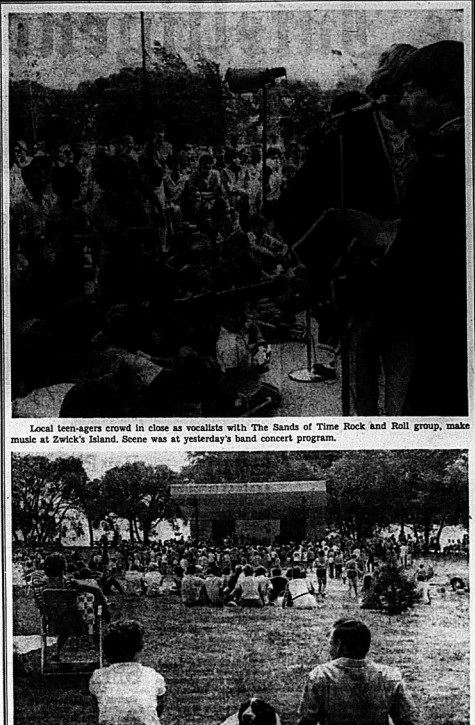
Bonarlaw Man Killed In Auto Accident

Two Saturday afternoon road mishaps in the Centre Hastings area north of Belleville resulted in the death of one man and sent four others to Belleville General Hospital.

Fatally injured in a headon collision on the 14th concession of Rawdon, a mile west of Highway 14, was Herman Leopold Siwek, 47, of RR 2, Bonarlaw.

Mr. Siwek was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital. Mrs. Mary Ann Walker, 39, Weston Road, Toronto, driver of the second vehicle, is in intensive care at Belleville hospital.

In another accident on Highway 37 a mile south of Tweed, an Ottawa couple and their 19-months-old baby were injured when their car was in collision with another vehicle driven by Gordon Kenneth Fraser, 22, of 54 Catherine Street, Belleville.



Mr. and Mrs. Horne and their small baby suffered facial and internal injuries. Mr. Fraser suffered a shoulder injury but was not admitted to hospital.

Provincial police from Madoc said the Rawdon township accident occurred on the crest of a hill. Mr. Siwek was driving east while the Walker car was westbound.

The injured from both accidents were taken to hospital by City Ambulance of Belleville.

And also on Saturday afternoon the name ambulance firm was called to the Oak Lake area where Dennis J. McAuley suffered facial lacerations in a motorcycle accident.

ARNOLD ALFRED RYCKMAN

Shannonville

A life resident of the Quinte district, Arnold Alfred Ryckman, of Shannonville, died in Belleville General Hospital Saturday.

In his 52nd year, he had been ill about two years and in hospital two weeks.

Mr. Ryckman was born in Trenton, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Austin Ryckman and had lived in Shannonville for 22 years.

He was a general-duties worker at Canada Cement Company, Point Anne, and was a member of Holy Trinity Anglican Church, Shannonville.

He was a member of the Loyal Orange Lodge 242 at Shannonville.

Mr. Ryckman is immediately survived by his wife, the former Margaret Ruth Reid, five sons and two daughters: Barry, Eric, Leslie, Danny, Ronnie, of Shannonville; Monica, at home, and Sandra Reid, of Belleville.

He also leaves a brother, Donald, of Trenton, and three sisters — Mrs. Donald (Mary) Harrison, Mrs. Donald (Sara) Laird, and Miss Beatrice Ryckman, all of Trenton.

WILBUR MARKER
(Lebanon, Ohio)

Father of a well-known Belleville businessman, Wilbur Marker, died at his home, New Lebanon, Ohio, July 19.

Among the immediate family survivors is James Marker, general manager of snack-food manufacturer W. T. Hawkins Ltd., and president of the Belleville Rotary Club.

The senior Mr. Marker was in his 77th year and was a member of the Lutheran Church.

Also surviving is another son, Donald, and a daughter, Doris.

Funeral service was to be held today at New Lebanon.

Mrs. Ellen (Nellie) Rigby

Funeral service for Mrs. Ellen (Nellie) Rigby was held Saturday at the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

The funeral home service was conducted by Rev. C. H. Savage while the committment at St. George's cemetery Trenton was directed by Canon J. V. Temple.

Friday night members of Rebekah Lodge 133 held a memorial service in the funeral home, led by lodge officers Lillian Summers, Elda Sopha, Irene McMartin and Eva Judge.

Mrs. William Henry Cooke

Funeral service for Mrs. William Henry Cooke was held Saturday in St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling.

Service was directed by Rev. R. H. Stewart, of Picton.

Interment was at St. Thomas Church cemetery, Rawdon township.

IN MEMORIAM

BOOTH — In loving memory of my dear mother, Maud Booth, who passed away suddenly July 22, 1964.

What I would give if I could say,
Hello Mum in the same old way,
To hear her voice, see her smile,
To you who have a mother,
Cherish her with care,
For you never know the heartache,
Till you see her vacant chair.
—Always remembered by daughter Verna.

BRADY — In loving memory of a dear mother, Ernest Brady, who passed away suddenly July 22, 1961.

Not in the ones she loved the most,
Without a last goodbye,
And in our sad and lonely hearts,
We keep our sacred vigil.
The reason is hidden somewhere,
In the mysteries of the unknown,
We must believe and trust in Him,
And someday we'll understand.

Junior Farmer Writes Letter From England

NAPANEE — Wayne Parks, exchange overseas delegate of the Junior Farmers of Ontario, has found his time so taken up that letters are a problem. A second one received last week was written at 2.30 a.m. on July 2, from Coventry, England, where Mr. Parks was staying at the Lamboth College of Technology while attending the Royal Show.

The letter describes the tour of Great Britain while the delegates had completed a week earlier, travelling 1832 miles in a small car they had rented.

During their tour of Scotland they visited the Burns country, and in England, on a Sunday "under a hot sun with the temperature in the 80's" had visited Shakespeare's home in Stratford on Avon. "I was amazed at the number of tourists here," the letter reads.

The tour took them through some of the highly industrial areas of England, where the writer notes that in spite of industry "There are still plenty of wide open spaces."

During their three days in Wales the delegates spent the day with Beth James who was in Lennox and Addington last year at this time as an exchange overseas delegate.

A few days after the letter was written Mr. Parks expected to go to the home of his last host, in West Sussex near Midland. The time had flown so fast that he was finding it hard to believe that the wonderful trip was nearly at an end.

The letter closes with a postscript: "I wish you could see the flower show here at the Royal. It is just magnificent, and so are most of the English gardens."

Wayne Parks is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rockwell Parks of Parkshaven Farm in the Hawley district. Their farm was judged the first in the county in the Centennial Farm Improvement contest last year, also fifth in the province. Wayne and his sister Marilyn had been chiefly responsible for the landscaping about the house and barn, including the profusion of flowers, which had helped to bring this honor.

Quinte Residents Enthused With Sunday Band Concerts

Zwick's Island Centennial Park and the summer series of band concerts has struck a popular note with Belleville and Quinte area residents this year.

Indication of this is the Sunday crowds of 2,000 to 3,000 people who each weekend jam the park on the Bay of Quinte for recreation, relaxation and music appreciation.

Parks administrator Lorne Williams says that since the summer series of Sunday concerts commenced late in June attendance at the park has averaged well over 2,000 people.

"Such parking lots have been jammed and we like to think that most of the people have come for the band concerts," he said.

The concerts are sponsored by The Intelligencer and the Belleville Federation of Musicians, Local 357, and are staged at the new Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans Island Bandshell.

The Combo group entertained for the first half of the two hour show after which the rock and roll group "The Sands of Time" took over.

The swinging crowd of hundreds of teenagers who crowded around the bandshell was visual indication that both groups were appreciated.

Also yesterday the Trenton area "Youth Sing-Out Group, sponsored by the Canadian Forces Base were featured at the Island.

The Sing-Out group, orginally scheduled to sing at Edmonton, drew a turnout in the evening almost equalling the afternoon crowd.

Newfie Joke or Big Carp, Farley's Shark Not Believed

TRENTON — A woman has come up with the explanation for author Farley Mowat's claim he has seen fish resembling sharks in Lake Ontario.

During spawning, she explains, male carp bunt the sides of the female. Several of them will break surface simultaneously and their tails give the appearance of a huge dorsal fin cutting the water.

"You'd swear it was one great, big, long fish swimming on the top if you hadn't seen them in bunches before," she says. "I'm sure they would deceive Mr. Mowat.

Members of the Quick family, whose forebears set nets in the lake before the 1900s, say until Mr. Mowat's report, they had never heard anyone suggest the posibility of sharks in local waters.

The Clarke family, operators of a sports and guides service for two decades, had a similar reaction.

One other cynical veteran fisherman wondered if it was some kind of "Newfie" joke the former intelligence officer had brought back with him to his native Ontario.

Mr. Mowat's report of pursuing what appeared to be sharks startled lakeshore dwellers last week.

"In Newfoundland I would have unhesitatingly identified them as small sharks," he claimed. "If they are, I'm not surprised to see them up here. . . ."

Credit May Be Problem

Telephone Replaces Mail During Strike

Belleville businessmen have got to feel the full effect of the postal strike, now in its fifth day.

"We're geared to withstand the effects of the strike for about two weeks. After that, we will be in difficulty," said Wilbur Fox, of Walker's Hardware Co. on Front St.

Most businessmen contacted this morning agreed with him.

Biggest problem foreseen by local shopkeepers is the credit field — getting out month - end statements and receiving payment in return.

"If the strike continues after the first week in August, we will be in trouble," said Stanley Albert, manager of Artistic Ladies Wear.

"The telephone is the key instrument in this strike," he added. "We telephone our orders and receive goods by express, but many wholesalers are hesitant about sending small orders by express. Our costs of sending and receiving orders have increased."

Miss Dorothy Matthews, general manager of James Texts Ltd., has found the problem of filling special orders for books has grown worse with every day of the strike.

"Companies we deal with accept collect calls on orders, but our volume is so large we are considering getting a Toronto telephone for a day a week and sending someone there to man it personally," she reported.

The store's orders are delivered by express and transport, "and we have our own 'male carriers' for local deliveries from the store".

Like other stores which have a high volume of credit business, James Texts is finding the collection of accounts difficult.

Ireland's Furniture and Appliances, like similar firms, deposits payments for its wholesalers in the local branch of the wholesaler's bank. A bankers' dispatch service is keeping money moving between banks.

Simpsons-Sears uses the bankers' dispatch cars to get its orders to Toronto and receive goods-in return by CN express. A spokesman for the company reported that the strike has had little effect on his firm's operations.

Many Toronto wholesalers are running trucks and transports throughout the province picking up orders and delivering goods. Drug Trading Company in Toronto supplies Belleville drug stores in this manner, and drug store film services still offer 24 hour return by using express and bus.

Most shopkeepers have found no differences in business volume due to the strike.

The manager of Shopette on the plaza expects greeting card sales to drop as a result of the strike.

For Checker Taxi, business is up. The bankers' dispatch service uses the taxi office as a drop-off point, and the company's cabs deliver the mail every morning in the Trenton-Belleville district.

Horse Shoes Unlucky

He was sitting on four of them — and look what happened:

Nearly two weeks ago the horseflesh fan set out from Maple, Ont., to ride 500 miles to Vermont.

Sunday morning his horse suddenly shied from a passing car at Sidney and West Dundas streets in Belleville.

Paul was thrown to the ground.

Doctor's Bag Returned Before Reported Missing

Belleville city policemen outdid themselves Saturday night when they recovered a stolen doctor's bag before it was even reported missing.

The doctor's bag belonged to Dr. Austin Walters and was stolen from his car on Queen Street Saturday night. The bag was returned to him with nothing missing or damaged.

Two Belleville youths were charged with possession of stolen goods valued at over $50, concerning the incident.

Arrested Sunday morning were Craig Martin, 18, of R.R. 1, Belleville and Bruce Elliott, 18, of 12 Cedar Street.

Charged was Henry Francis Armonas, 16.

Entry to the school was gained by breaking a window in the basement. Other windows and doors were smashed to gain entrance to the office and a number of classrooms.

Another Belleville man was charged with theft after he was arrested early this morning by the Cobourg Provincial Police.

Ronald Clarence Jones of 58 Byron Street in Belleville was picked up about 2 a.m. this morning.

The arrest followed a report that a car had been stolen Sunday night.

There was no damage to the vehicle.

Zwick's Still Safe For Swimming

They can carry on splashing at Zwick's.

City recreation officials are breathing easier today after pollution tests revealed Bay of Quinte water at the Zwick's Island park beach was safe for swimming.

Last week, apprehension mounted as public health inspectors decided to check the results of water samples taken earlier in the area. Simultaneously, five swimming areas in the city and district were closed.

Small as it is, the beach is the only one available to city dwellers and its popularity has been booming this summer.

Recreation commission officials, who supervise play facilities, saw any shutdown as a bitter disappointment to scores of youngsters and adults unable to reach more distant beach areas.

Results of the tests have shown the beach still safe for recreation although water samples will be taken regularly during hot weather, commission officials confirmed today.

Lowest Attendance At Sandbanks

A parks spokesman said that officials do not understand the attendance drop there. Only 2,731 visitors were reported the past week.

Overall attendance at the remaining three parks was high.

Outlet park was visited by 37,855; North Beach had 7,688 and Lake-on-the-Mountain 2,731.

Spokesman said that dead fish on the beaches have been a lesser problem this past week. While dead shad still drift ashore in patches, they are being cleaned up with little difficulty.

Meantime, at Presqu'ile further west along the Lake Ontario shoreline, 23,900 provincial park visitors were counted during the past week — an increase of 3,600 over the same time in 1967.

Around the "Cat"

A doubles rink from the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club, Bruce Miller and G. B. "Jerry" Hyde hurdled another obstacle in their climb to a provincial championship, when they won the semi-finals at Peterborough on Saturday. In the first game they defeated Reg. Norris and Jack Anderson of Oshawa 21-12. In the second they won a "cliff hanger" from Jack Mair and Bob Andrew of Ottawa 15-14.

The Ottawa rink was one up going home and Miller got shot behind the 'cat' when the skips went to play Belleville was still lying shot and with the last bowl of the game "Jerry" Hyde drew to the "eyed" draws to count two and win the game. The third game was an easy 20-9 win over Ken Kerr and Joe Bezse of Stayner. The Belleville rink plays in Oshawa on August 3rd, when the four men finalists will meet for the provincial title.

The rink of Jack Avery, Percy Graham, Orlo Smith with Bill Wright as skip made a bold try for a zone title but were beaten in a second extra end against an Ottawa rink, that won the playdowns with three wins. Had the Belleville rink won three rinks would have been tied in points and a playoff necessary. William Duncan Jr. of Kingston won the singles title.

Lil Mascaro and Jessie Hunter from the local club won the district playoffs for Doubles at the Belleville club last Tuesday. They will enter the zone finals. The Kingston club won the trebles and singles title.

Two rinks from the Belleville Bowling Club won prizes at the Tournament sponsored by the Kingston Club on Saturday. The men's trebles rinks played for the Shaw Craft Trophy which was won by a Kingston rink of Bill Gillespie, Harold Buck with William Duncan Sr. as skip. The second three - game high score was by a rink from Belleville of Frank Morrell, Ken Ashley with Bill Van Tassel as skip, another rink from the local club of John Sager, Wally Lavergne with Bill Fuller as skip won one - game. The two - game high score was won by a Trenton rink of Bill Slimmon, Dixie Newton with Clayton McGuire as skip. A Prescott rink won the one-game high score. There were 14 rinks in competition."

In the Women's Trebles for the Plaza Trophy a rink from Kingston of Edna Acton, Nell Lawless with Ethel McDonald as skip were high with a score of 49 and 2. The second three-game prize was won by a Belleville rink of Kay Fuller, Thelma Fitzgibbon with Grace Clapp as skip. The two-game high was won by a Kingston rink of Betty Pitcher, Jennie Hinton with Mary Edney as skip. Another rink from Belleville, Mary Burns, Marjorie Sherman with Vera McIntosh did not place. There were 10 rinks in play.

A Women's Trebles Tournament will be played at the local club on Tuesday for the Beryl Van Tassel Trophy.

TB Testing Clinics To Be at 2 Schools

The Ontario department of health tuberculin testing clinic to be held Wednesday for city public school children will be held at Queen Victoria School instead of at Queen Elizabeth school as was stated in Saturday's edition of The Intelligencer.

Two clinics will be held, one at Queen Victoria School from 1 p.m. to 2.30 and the other at the Harry Todd School from 3 to 4 p.m.

The TB testing clinics are being held for the more than 200 public school children who may have come in contact with an active case of tuberculosis discovered last week.

Sidewalk Sale Said Success

The Downtown Businessmen's Association has summed up the success of this year's sidewalk sale with raves.

Ben Corke, president of the association, said that generally speaking, the merchants were delighted. "It was very successful."

The sale, enjoying its second year, was held Thursday, Friday and Saturday and saw hundreds of people crowding the sidewalks in the downtown area. During the three-day event, the city's main street took on a carnival air with clowns, a clown band, parade and barbecue part of the fun.

"The crowds were very pleased," said Mr. Corke. "One or two things went wrong, but the people were delighted."

Murray McIntosh, one of the merchants involved in the sale, said that "people certainly came out and supported it."

David Kane, Loblaws Front Street store manager is presented with money laden hat by Mrs. Dorothy Snider at Saturday night retirement party. Mrs. Kane smiles her appreciation.

Grocery Manager Retires After 38 Year Stint

Thirty eight years in the grocery business will be ended this weekend for David Kane manager of the Front Street Loblaw store for the past 27 years.

Mr. Kane will turn the key in the downtown supermarket for the last time on Saturday night as he retires from a lifetime of merchandising groceries.

"It will be different not having to be down at the store at 7.30 in the morning," the Front Store manager admits. "But at the same time I will be relieved of a lot of headaches."

Saturday night Loblaw store employees — many of them having started as part time weekend help and are now themselves store managers — tendered their "boss" a surprise retirement party at the Shrine Club.

Approximately 150 store workers both present and past, attended the dinner party bidding a formal farewell to the popular store manager.

In recognition of Mr. Kane's Irish background, the evening's program was shamrock flavored with Irish songs and skits on the agenda.

He was even presented with an Irish top hat — adorned with 38 dollar bills in recognition of his 38 years with Loblaws.

He also received a grandmother clock, both the clock and the top hat being gifts from his store workers. Murray Atkinson, assistant store manager at Loblaw's Pinnacle street store and for 17 years holding the same role under Mr. Kane, was emcee for the dinner program.

Looking back over his 38 years in the grocery business Mr. Kane says the pace is now much faster.

"Competition is much keener — there are many more grocery chains in the business than when I started with Loblaw's at the Toronto-Danforth store back in 1930."

Mr. Kane came to Trenton in 1934 as manager of the Loblaw store there and moved on to Belleville as store manager in 1941.

During the World War II years, he recalls, days, he recalls long lineups at the Front street store as residents sought items in short supply.

"Once with the store already full I had to lock the doors for half an hour. When the doors were again opened there was a lineup down Front Street as far as Geet's."

"We'll never see days like those again," he said.

But as he heads into retirement Mr. Kane is almost confident that he has established some kind of a record in his 38 years as manager of the Front Street store. In fact since the store was opened in 1924 there have been but two managers.

Air Pollution

Water pollution is very much in the news these days. But this is only one aspect of what is becoming an increasingly serious problem.

What of pollution of the atmosphere for instance? Department of Health estimates introduced earlier this year indicated encouraging progress in dealing with this threat. For instance, the Air Pollution Control service in the province is being enlarged this year by the addition of 55 staff, bringing the complement to 140, while regional and district offices are being established at Windsor, Sarnia, Welland, Sudbury and the Lakehead.

Air quality studies are being carried out in Atikokan, Guelph, Lambton County and, Port Robinson. Others have been undertaken at Sault Ste. Marie, Aurora and along the Niagara river. Still others are scheduled elsewhere. In the Sudbury area, information on vegetation injury and atmospheric levels of sulphur dioxide is being evaluated. Fog formation west of Coppercliff is also being studied.

Sampling stations for gas fumes in the atmosphere have been installed in Metro Toronto. A mobile unit is also available for surveys in other areas. Regulations have been drafted governing pollutants by incinerators, cars, asphalt mixing plants and the like.

It all sounds quite impressive, but whether air pollution is being reduced by such measures is another matter. The extent of pollution of both our waterways and the atmosphere is formidable. That the provincial government has taken the steps it has is commendable. Their efficacy however is what matters most now. Taking samples is one thing, producing a clean, unpolluted atmosphere is another. It is up to everyone to play his part in bringing this about.

Arda Survey

A survey being undertaken of submarginal lands in Hungerford and Tyendinaga townships is one that will be watched with interest.

The purpose of the investigation is to see if the lands can be used to better advantage through a program of seeding and fertilizing. Hastings county ARDA committee (Agricultural and Rural Development Act) has initiated the survey and will be seeking the views of landowners.

The scheme is one of many the Ontario government has in operation to help marginal farmers. Northwestern Ontario for instance is one area chosen in the spring for a socio-economic survey. This was expected to lead to grants for economic development and improvement of living standards including grants for the Indian population, similar to those under way in New Brunswick's northwestern region, the Gaspe area in Quebec and Manitoba's interlake area.

Meanwhile, it is pertinent to recall another survey of interest to this area. That is, the study of the cheese industry in the province. Because of economic difficulties in Britain — a prime market — many of the smaller cheese factories here have been forced out of business while others are in difficulties. A committee of four has been studying all aspects of the industry with a view to expanding the sale of Ontario-produced cheese in the United Kingdom as well as in Canada.

Established in the spring, the committee is still conducting hearings and moves into eastern Ontario later this month. Their schedule includes Alexandria July 30, Kemptville July 31 and Belleville Aug. 1.

John Bain is chairman of the committee which in addition to determining export possibilities and what it terms "basic problem areas," is also probing how best to dispose of fodder cheese, alternative outlets for cheese milk in winter, the feasibility of establishing alternative facilities necessary to provide producers with the best possible return for their milk, and the potential of variety cheeses.

The committee's report, expected later in the summer, will be an important bearing on the future of the cheese industry in the province, so long one of the mainstays of the rural scene and yet, regrettably, under pressure of late because of economic uncertainty overseas.

Ontario Attracts

Emphasis on the expansion of health resources in Ontario is helping to reverse any "brain-drain" in the province, according to reports from Queen's Park. It is said that "substantial numbers" of persons are being attracted to Ontario from other countries.

This is all to the good. Medical resources are of such vital importance in the life of a community that there is no such thing as a saturation point. Doctors, nurses, equipment — the more we have the better.

West Is Apprehensive

Czech Liberals Heading For Showdown With Moscow

By DAVID PIKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Orthodox Eastern European Communists are running scared, and the subject of their fear is afraid that they might stumble and explode—thus spreading fallout which could have long-range effects on East-West relations.

The Soviet Union and its hard-line Communist allies—Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria—are demanding, in virtually unprecedented terms, that progressively liberal Czechoslovakia return to rigid dictatorial rule.

The hard-liners—especially Poland and East Germany—are nervous about the Czech Communist party leadership's trend toward socialist democratization, fearful it will create ferment in their regimented states.

Czech reformers are afraid that the Soviet Union, if it can't pressure them to back down, will force them into submission in the manner of 1956, when the U.S.S.R. crushed liberalism in Hungary.

In the apprehensive West, the word being used to describe the situation is "grave." If more pressure succeeds, East-West relations are bound to be strained. But if the U.S.S.R. uses its military to return Czech conservatives to power, progress toward an East-West detente would suffer a severe blow.

The blow could even strike efforts to achieve a settlement of the Vietnam war and the Middle East situation.

Western Communist sources in Moscow are reported deeply worried about the possibility of a head-on clash between the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia.

U.S. officials in Washington are said to be gravely concerned, and one report says U.S. diplomats have pointed out to Soviet officials that grave repercussions likely would result if force were used. And Britain has come out and stated bluntly that the U.S.S.R. should keep its hands off Czechoslovakia.

The policy-making central committee of the Czech party is due to meet today to approve the Czech leadership's reply to a letter from the five hard-liners which denounces the trend in Czechoslovakia. The reply, denying there is anything "counter-revolutionary" about the liberal course, warns that an attempt to restore the conservatives would face "the resistance of the overwhelmingly majority of the nation."

The hard-liners' letter ordinarily would have been sent to the Czech party president, the president, reformist Alexander Dubcek. Instead, it went to the committee. The hard-liners, moving cautiously, may hope to undercut Dubcek through the committee, whose members were appointed during the regime of deposed Stalinist Antonin Novotny.

The New York Times quotes well-informed reform Communists in Prague as believing that only 30 of the 110 regular and 30 alternate committee members can be counted on for support of the reforms. The rest are considered either conservative or doubtful.

A Czech party congress is scheduled for September. Dubcek might call it to order much sooner, to elect a new committee. Congress was last convened recently, would be expected to ensure a reformist body.

Meanwhile, Dubcek is counting on support from Yugoslavia, whose tough President Tito has steered his own course since 1948, and increasingly independent-minded Romania, as well as from the powerful Communist parties of Italy—largest in the West—and France.

Hay Fever Hits Early

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

The rainy summer experienced in Cornwall and many other communities has been blamed for an exceptional growth of noxious weeds, including ragweed and goldenrod, the bane of hay fever sufferers.

In a normal summer, the hay fever season usually doesn't arrive until August and September.

Weeds in the city, however, aren't solely responsible for the early start of the hay fever season. Noxious weeds, including goldenrod and ragweed, are plentiful in rural areas close to Cornwall. Flying pollen is the culprit that makes many fever victims suffer. And this could come from anywhere near the city.

According to Mr. Borovoy, it is not, much that nice guys finish last, but that they don't finish at all.

Mr. Borovoy has thus added a useful spur to those of us who so often see things that need to be changed, that can only be changed by a fight and still content ourselves with just "being nice" about it.

St. Lawrence Busy Again

Brockville Recorder and Times

The peace and quiet which has marked the seaway during the 24-day closure of canal workers has been shattered by the settlement reached at the week-end. For more than three weeks th St. Lawrence river returned to a wonderful resemblance of itself of years gone by when only the small lakers plied its waters. It has made this summer unusual, his absence of ocean - going shipping. It has made some people wish the seaway would remain closed.

Starting this week, the canals were again opened to traffic and we can expect that hundreds of ships will be coursing up and down river the rest of the summer attempting to make up for lost time. It will be difficult to find a "calm sea" again. People who boats have, remarked that the absence of the bigger shipping has made it pleasant to sail upon. There is no danger from huge waves. And property owners have been appreciative of the lack of damage caused by the wake thrown up by the ocean shipping.

Now that we've tasted a bit of the more pleasant side of river life again, we can only hope that officials will make certain that deep-water ships won't disregard the laws regarding speed in harbor areas, even though they feel they have to make up for lost time.

College Education Of A Century Ago

Christian Science Monitor

The Harvard College class of 1958 has just issued its decennial report. The 376-page volume, mostly sketches of their lives in progress written by the former Yardmen, brings to mind what Henry Adams, Harvard man of exactly a hundred years earlier, wrote in his autobiography. Adams saw in his classmates of 1858 "the most formidable array of judges he could ever meet."

He wrote: "If Harvard College gave nothing else, it gave calm. For four years each student had been obliged to figure daily before dozens of young men who knew each other to the last fibre . . . and no audience in future life would ever be so intimately and terribly intelligent as these . . . Self-possession was the strongest part of Harvard College, which taught men to stand alone, so that nothing seemed stranger to its graduates than the paroxysms of terror before the public which often overcame the graduates of European universities."

Adams (who, it may comfort other bashful observers, graduated smack in the middle of his class) displayed a high degree of self-knowledge in describing his education as a life-long process. Harvard men following after him by a century seem to share this view. Their 10 post-yard years, if anything, showed a growing acuteness in the desire to learn.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

Senate Reform Issue

Trois-Rivere Le Nouvelliste

—Prime Minister Trudeau is thinking of reforming the Senate. That our Senate, such as it has been since Confederation, does not fulfil the role given it by the Fathers of Confederation is an undeniable fact. This is why it has been so often criticized and why so many Canadians have called for its reform, some even going so far as to demand its abolition.

By letting it be known that he intends to reform the Senate, Prime Minister Trudeau has accepted the challenge. Nobody is coming to the defence of the upper house, but a great many people are wondering if its reform is possible.

Reform of the Senate certainly is not a recent problem; it has existed since the beginning of Confederation. During the debates which preceded the final accord of Confederation, Christopher Dunkin, . . . a reputable political figure well known in rural Quebec, predicted with a certain accuracy what was to come. If all Senate appointments, he said, were to be made by the federal government, this would only amount to a system of patronage. . . . Will Prime Minister Trudeau be able to put an end to this form of patronage? All his predecessors promised to do it, but not one of them was faithful to that commitment.

If in spite of all that has gone in the past, the prime minister is determined to reform the Senate, he will have shown a real mastery over his own party.—Hector Hereux (July 11)

Renewed Violence Possible In Heat Wracked U.S. Ghettos

By DAVID PIKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Is the United States experiencing a relative calm before a raging storm?

Will it suffer the agony of another hot and summer of racking racial rioting?

Some say only time will tell. Some say this pessimistic attitude invites death and destruction. And others say that only by ripping—not merely airing—the roots of racism from the nation can blood and tears be avoided.

But the roots are deep, and few can agree on just how they should be destroyed, or even on whether they can be in time. There is even disagreement as to whether the roots are there, or whether time already has run out.

And now the long, hot summer is upon the United States, and as the temperature climbs the tension intensifies.

Last summer's Detroit riot—claiming 40 lives and some $500,000,00 in property damage —didn't explode until July 23.

On the other hand, the 1967 Newark, N.J., riot—claiming 26 lives and more than $15,000,000 in damage—erupted July 12. Today is July 22 and the United States has yet to endure rioting of the magnitude of 1967.

There was scattered violence following the assassination of Martin Luther King in April. But it petered out.

Perhaps Robert F. Kennedy's assassination has had something to do with the relative summer calm. But how can one really know? Perhaps the Poor-People's Campaign in Washington took on some of the burden of frustration and futility, at least for a while.

But time comes a time when many black Americans—at least enough to constitute a riot —feel they just have to strike out.

Following King's murder, there were incidents of arson and firebombings in Newark. But that was in April. This last Sunday, a series of suspicious fires broke out in the same city's predominantly Negro Central Ward, scene of last summer's riot. A fireman died, fighting a fire.

Yet, there has been no explosion. In fact, at one fire, onlookers helped firefighters.

Then again, firemen in Newark, New York and elsewhere have recently been pelted by rocks, bottles and other missiles thrown by bystanders. Some have been attacked by youths.

Now it has been reported that some New York firemen have started carrying blackjacks—a misdemeanor punishable by a year in prison —for protection in the ghettos. Some of the Ladder Company 27, for example, has been attacked 13 times since April.

A fireman, risking his life for you, has a right to protection. Still, there, is the danger that firemen who use their blackjacks might provoke ugly violence.

Some of the reports have said the attackers were out for fun, having a good time throwing a brick and then melting into the crowd.

But the fireman has become to many slum and ghetto inhabitants a symbol of oppressive, do-nothing authority.

And it gets hotter and hotter, and a 17-year-old school dropout sits on a stoop in a Brooklyn ghetto on a Saturday night and stares angrily at a white passerby, and is too drained by the heat to scream.

"Listen, I don't know what's gonna happen," he says. "I just know it's hot and I got no job."

On July 10, some 1,500 youths protesting a reduction in the make-work summer job program for youths erupted into a brief rampage of violence outside city hall in New York.

Because of this and other factors, the city received $4,000,000 in federal funds to provide more jobs. But what if it hadn't?

But it's getting hotter, r i n the ghetto and the slum they're burning inside, and no one knows, really, when it's going to go from here this summer.

Manitoba Resort Hit

Tornado Wreaks Havoc, But Only Three Injured

LA RIVIERE, Man. (CP) — Stock-taking continued today in this battered southern Manitoba resort area, torn by a tornado Saturday night.

No official estimate of the damage is available but individual losses run into the thousands.

There were no deaths and that only injuries were suffered by a curious trio who went to investigate what they thought was a cloud of smoke.

Driver Clifford Davies, 39, of Brandon said: "When he got to where the smoke was, we couldn't see anything because of a line of trees. Then the tornado swept down on us from behind the trees. I tried to back out of its path but it picked us up.

"I floated around in the car just like a balloon. We all ended up in the back seat of the car . . . we had been sitting in the front."

His passengers were Lillian Ann Hills, 19, and Jack Hills, 14, both of La Riviere. All three suffered cuts and bruises when the car was thrown into a ditch. Miss Hills and Mr. Davies remained in hospital Sunday night but Jack Hills was released.

Wilfred Matthys watched the tornado twist to life over his farm three miles southwest of this tiny community. 70 miles southwest of Winnipeg. It missed him but flung apart the barnyards of his brothers, Asher and Arsene, causing damage he estimated at $45,000.

His has been a hard - luck spring for the Matthys brothers. Wilfred lost several farm buildings in a fire May 31; Arsene was blinded in a dynamite blast the next day. "And now this," said Wilfrid—"both their farms."

The tornado was the offspring of thunderstorms that covered much of southern Manitoba Saturday night.

Photographer Dave Bonner of the Winnipeg Free Press watched the funnel lick at the hilltops around this Pembina Hills resort 70 miles southwest of Winnipeg.

"It seemed to hover at the top of the valley," he said. "Then it dropped into the valley. It missed most of the town of La Riviere. I would say the funnel would be about 50 yards across."

The La Riviere ski resort caught the first blow. It was extensively damaged, a railway caboose was thrown 50 yards to the end of the Pembina River and a grain elevator lost its roof.

Elevator agent Dick Myers said the elevator contained 70,000 bushels of grain.

"If the elevator had not been full, the tornado would have probably lifted it right off its foundation."

There were cracks in the upper walls of the structure.

Mrs. J. M. Netterfield, whose family uses a converted railway car as a summer cottage, said: "It sort of lifted up a little and moved over.

"We watched it (the tornado) out of the window at the top of the hill for about five minutes and then it started to move down. We turned off the electricity and laid down on the floor when we saw the barns go up."

In the next hour, the tornado wound its way eastward through 15 miles of farms and farmyards before blowing itself out south of the village of Manitou.

Trees, sheds and implements in its way were picked up, mangled or discarded as slivers.

Telephones and hydro was disrupted but crews quickly restored service despite the handicap of roads clogged with hundreds of sightseers' cars. Some roads in the area were barricaded Sunday to give residents a chance to survey the damage done to their property.

Rats, Bats and Insects Form Diet of Starving

dren, mothers who recently have given birth and the aged.

More than 200 children are packed into four wards. All are suffering from a protein deficiency disease called kwashiorkor, a Ghanaian word meaning "red man" or "deprived man."

In its early stages it turns the hair red and lightens the skin color. Later the skin becomes hard and scaly. Swelling starts from the feet up and the patient becomes listless, even turning down food. Then comes death—quietly, during sleep.

The situation is getting worse, says the doctor.

"This is a 200-bed hospital, and already we have 500 people in it. Since March the situation has become catastrophic. We had 49 outpatients on June 3 and 263 on July 2. Now we're averaging 300 to 400 a day."

He says all that is needed to save most of the children are such high protein foods as milk, egg powder, meat, fish and beans. The food received by the hospital now arrives on occasional clandestine mercy flights arranged by relief organizations.

A 30-year-old woman lies panting on the ground, complaining in a croaking voice that she can no longer stand on her reed-thin legs.

"I can feed them for two more weeks," says the camp warden, Rev. Lawrence Nils, an Ibibio who became a Roman Catholic priest.

"We got 48 cans of tinned fish three days ago from Caritas (the Catholic relief organization) and today a man from the Red Cross came with six bags of milk and five bags each of egg powder and salt."

Father Nils said this means the refugees, at least for a few days, will get a little more than their occasional cup of mashed cassava root.

Most of the refugees came to the camp from the no man's land around Ikot Ekpene, a town which has been fiercely contested by the armies of the Nigerian Federation and breakaway Biafra.

The province is inhabited mainly by Ibibios, a minority tribe overshadowed by the main antagonists in the civil war—the Ibos of Biafra and the Hausas and Yorubas of the federation.

Many of the Ibibios fled into the steaming forest when the fighting got heavy and have not come out.

"They are starving," said Father Nils. Soldiers and civil defence workers go into the bush to try to get them out, but many of them run farther away, afraid the soldiers will shoot them."

Nevertheless there has been a steady flow of refugees to the camp, which now is overcrowded. And Itak Ikot is only one of many refugee camps in the area.

"The conditions are the same in all the other places," said Father Nils.

International Relief organizations have been trying for weeks to get aid to the camps but have been largely stymied by shaky clandestine transportation facilities and political controversy.

The Nigerian government does not want relief planes to come into Biafra because it fears they will also carry arms. The Biafran government has refused Nigeria's offer to open land corridors to relief shipments, saying this would also help the federal army a route into Biafra and the food might be poisoned as it passed through Nigerian territory.

Meanwhile, at Itak Ikot 100 new refugees sit in a stupor near crowded barracks, the camp's main building. Children whose ribs show through the skin of their chests sit, staring straight ahead.

HOME-OWNERS & TENANTS

Your Guide to Ontario's New System of Tax Reductions

Virtually all home-owners and tenants are entitled to benefit from Ontario's new system of residential property tax reductions.

By this system Ontario, in effect, is paying the first part of the municipal taxes on each eligible house or apartment. The reduction amounts to an average of 12½ per cent of the municipal and school taxes.

Your local municipality calculates the amount of the reduction and subtracts it on the 1968 tax bills. If a house or apartment is rented, the landlord is required to pass the full amount of the reduction to his tenants. The Province pays municipalities the total of the reductions.

Every owner of a residential property and every tenant of such a property is entitled to receive a tax reduction provided the property was eligible in 1967 to be separately assessed under The Assessment Act.

If you are a home-owner...

If you pay your municipal taxes directly, you receive your tax reduction directly from your local municipality—either as a deduction on your 1968 municipal tax bill or by cheque.

If you have agreed to make regular payments to the holder of your mortgage, with instruction to him to pay your municipal taxes on your behalf, you will receive the benefit of the tax reduction by way of an adjustment to these regular payments.

If you are a landlord...

As an owner of residential property, you receive the tax reduction in the manner described above for home-owners.

As a landlord, you are required to pay the full amount of the tax reduction to each of your tenants.

If you are a tenant...

Your landlord is required to pay to you the full amount of the tax reduction for your house or apartment, which he has received from the local municipality.

If you rent your house or apartment for all of the year 1968, you should receive the full amount of the reduction. On the other hand, if you rent your dwelling for only a portion of the year, you are entitled to a portion of the reduction; if you rent the dwelling for six months, for instance, you should receive one-half of the reduction.

- If your tenancy ended before June 30, you must apply to your landlord or to his agent to be entitled to a portion of the reduction.
- If your tenancy ends after June 30, or if it continues through to December 31, your landlord or his agent is required to pay the reduction to you.

In either case, your landlord or his agent is required by law to pay to you the amount of the tax reduction by December 31, 1968.

Any landlord who fails to pay tax reduction allowance in accordance with the law is liable to a fine of not more than $200 for each conviction and, in addition, will be ordered to pay the tax reduction allowance.

If you have any questions about residential property tax reductions, please address them to the Municipal Subsidies Branch, Department of Municipal Affairs, 801 Bay Street, Toronto 5; Telephone: Area code 416; 365-6881.

Alexander – Cooney

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH ALEXANDER

Monsignor J. P. Sullivan officiated at the wedding ceremony in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, on Saturday, July 13 at 11 a.m., when Rose Marie Cooney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon W. Cooney was united in marriage to Kenneth Royden Alexander, son of Mrs. Ethel Alexander, Belleville and the late Mr. Alexander. Miss Dorothy Grant rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Adrian Vogt in appropriate nuptial selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length nylon organza over taffeta gown featuring a scooped neckline and three - quarter length sleeves which were enhanced with Venice lace trim with matching lace outlining the Empire waist and hemline. A chapel train of the same material as dress with Venice lace trim highlighted the back of the dress. Her headdress was a sunburst of small petals centred with miniature aurora rosebuds studded with tiny seed pearls and crystals, and was caught to a four - tier illusion bouffant veil with scalloped edges.

Mrs. Faye Bradshaw, sister of the bride as matron of honor and the bridesmaids Miss Sandra Bonnetta and Mrs. Carol Cooney, sister-in-law of the bride were identically attired in gowns of French blue pure silk chiffon over taffeta in sleeveless style with flowing chiffon panels extending from a yoke of dainty Guipure lace and outlined with daisies. Each carried a nosegay of daisies, mums and baby pink roses mingled with baby's breath. Their headdresses were floral chiffon petals adorned with seed pearls caught to silk illusion veils.

A reception was held in the Parkdale Community Centre where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a powder blue nylon souffle dress and coat ensemble with a matching blue organza flowered hat, white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Assisting, the bridegroom's mother was attired in a deep grey silk knit two - piece dress with coral accessories and a corsage of white roses.

For the wedding trip to the United States, the bride chose a turquoise sheath dress with white accessories and on return they will reside at 38A Smith Crescent, Belleville.

WEDDING

Blakney of Flesherton and Rev. J. Hohn of Markdale. The bride was given in marriage by her son Carl Neal of Scarborough.

Attending the couple were Eleanor and Glen Croft of Ceylon, Ont.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Glen Croft.

Mr. and Mrs. Nobes will reside at the home of the bridegroom 5 Main St. Marmora.

Engagement Notice

MISS CAROLYN E. GIBSON — HENRY GREEN

The engagement is announced of Carolyn Esther, daughter of Mrs. Murney R. Gibson, Belleville, and the late Mr. M. R. Gibson to Henry Green, son of Mrs. Benjamin E. Green of Newfoundland and the late Mr. B. E. Green. Marriage will take place in College Hill United Church on Saturday, August 24, 1968 at 2 p.m.

STRIKING FALL FASHIONS — Two Paris couturiers turned to British wool fabrics for these stylings. On the left, a handsome reversible, all-purpose coat by Dior — guardsman's red to Irish green to guardsman's red. The blanket-like Yorkshire fabric is as light on the shoulders as it is soft to the touch. On the right, Patou turned to a mottled gray tweed from Scotland for the kind of suit that just about every woman can wear — snappy short jacket and all-round pleated skirt built high at the waist and girdled with deep white belt. Also lending emphasis are the white turtle-neck shirt and pull-on felt hat.

Pleasing Styles Shown in Spain

BARCELONA (AP) — Spain's fledgling fashion industry, fighting to pull more cash from milady's pocketbook, pleased but didn't startle in a two-day showing that ended Saturday.

Portegaz, the obvious heir to Balenciaga, clung to his classic tailored lines with hemlines just above and just below the knee.

In contrast to the veteran Portegaz, who exports more than all the rest of the industry lumped together, Marbel Junior, the youngest Spanish designer at 23, raised most his hems just short of censorship and played boldly with strong colors.

So did Elio Berhanyer, who contrasted the almost-didn't-make-it hemline with floor-sweepers, and drew considerable spontaneous applause.

By and large, the Spanish designers placed the hemline classically around the knee cap, with an adventure now and again into maxi country.

Subsidized by the government, most of the 11 Spanish houses in the showings displayed 50 or more creations each.

A REMINDER

Wedding forms for write-ups are available at The Intelligencer and should be completed and returned BEFORE the ceremony so a report can be published immediately after the wedding.

Pictures may be submitted by your photographer up to three days after the wedding. We cannot publish wedding write-ups submitted later than six days after the date of the ceremony.

Accounts of showers and entertainments in honor of the bride do not belong with wedding write - up and should be sent in immediately after they are held, for publication separately.

Teacher Active in Anti-draft Campaign

MELBOURNE (CP)—A redheaded, 22-year-old school teacher has become Australia's most efficient and active publicity officer in the anti-draft campaign.

She is personally involved:

Her 22-year-old fiance has been put in solitary confinement in an army jail in New South Wales because he is a conscientious objector and won't obey army orders.

The case of the reluctant soldier turned into a national political sensation when Mary Jane Boscacci smuggled a letter out of Holsworthy army detention centre. It was written by her fiance, Simon Townsend, a Sydney journalist, and was published in a newspaper and told of attempts at "psychological torture." Townsend alleged the army was trying to "break him from a war-hating pacifist into an acquiescent conscript soldier".

Mary Jane, who came to Australia from San Francisco two years ago, went on television to tell interviewers about this "torture." She said a loud-voiced army sergeant banged on the door of Townsend's nine-foot-by-nine-foot cell every half-hour of the night. Townsend was ordered to stand up and identify himself. He was living on only bread and water and was sleeping on a concrete floor with no mattress.

Army minister Philip Lynch admitted this was so. And in Parliament he faced a barrage of criticism, some of it from members of his own Liberal party. Army authorities were ordered to cut out the half-hour banging on the cell door. In any case, Lynch explained, this was done to ensure the prisoner was still right and hadn't committed suicide.

Mary Jane wasn't satisfied and said she would keep up the fight until her fiance was released by the army.

"It's like a nightmare," she said. "It seems unbelievable that in a democracy a pacifist could be put in a military jail."

Mary Jane, who is a trained teacher and has a degree in social science, organized a demonstration outside parliamentary offices and circulated a petition calling for his release. She asked Lynch if she could see him for a personal appeal, but Lynch refused.

Townsend, however will almost certainly be the last conscientious objector to be put in a military jail. After strong representations by churches and veterans' organizations, the government has introduced a new law under which youths who refuse to be drafted or whose appeals for registration as conscientious objectors are refused can be put in a civil jail for two years.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

MOUNTAIN VIEW W.I.

At this meeting the 4-H Girls were present and many of their mothers and with the Institute members there were about 60 in attendance.

Home economics was the topic for this meeting under the convenership of Mrs. Grant Minaker, who with the help of Mrs. Ronald Giles showed films on the eating habits of the people of Japan.

Mrs. K. Motley gave a report on the convention which had been held at Hillier in June, it was also the 60th anniversary of the convention.

The 4-H girls with the help of their leaders gave interesting demonstrations on the work they had taken during the year. The girls were all presented with spoons from the Institute, Mrs E. Hall officiated at these presentations. Presentations were also made to the leaders and to Mrs. Giles and also to the retiring secretary, Mrs. R. Barber for her work.

Office of the Treasurer,
Belleville, Ontario.
June 1st, 1968.

John J. Grohn,
Treasurer.

July Is Salad Month in Canada

July, being Salad Month in Canada, is the opportune time for homemakers to plan simple, warm weather meals for family and friends. Salad vegetables are at their crisp, tender best and when combined with meat, poultry, eggs, or cheese they make satisfying main dishes.

All foods for salads should be kept refrigerated right up to serving time. In warm weather it is most important to handle all meats and poultry carefully. Fresh, cooked or packaged meats should be refrigerated immediately when they are brought home. Cooked roasts should be refrigerated at soon as the dinner is over.

Cold meats, whether taken from a chilled can or sliced from a roast, form a nutritious base for a hearty salad. For sheer good eating, the simple cold plate of sliced meats, potato salad tucked into a lettuce leaf and a tossed green salad is always popular. To make a hurry-up main dish salad, generous amounts of cubed cheese and slices of hard-cooked eggs may be added to a green salad.

Another favorite, which comes from the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, uses cooked ham in julienne strips together with cantaloupe balls. It is worth buying extra ham to have enough to try this showy aristocrat. Other ingredients are celery, cucumber and green onions. When this is served in cantaloupe shells, it makes a spectacular salad centrepiece.

In-Law Wants to Run Home of Her Own

Dear Doris: For the six years of our marriage I have lived with my widowed mother-in-law. Now I find that my husband has no intention of ever moving out.

We can't have our friends in for a social evening. My husband is forbidden to have alcoholic beverages around. My little boy's pals are chased out because of their noise and tracking in.

My working has been explained this way: "Molly loves nursing, and she's no housekeeper, you know."

I would like to be able come into my house singing at the top of my lungs without feeling guilty. I would like to leave my house in complete chaos without being chided about it. In other words, I would like to be mistress in my own home. — End of My Rope.

Dear End: Then say so — where it matters. It'd say mother-in-law got the upper hand and kept it because of your work outside the home.

Obviously the plan was for you to have your own home eventually; but now your husband hates to face the added expense. His nose is not the one which is out of joint, and he isn't aware of what the strained atmosphere could be doing to his boy.

Better make a bid for the job of mistress-in-your-own-home before you find yourself facing a marriage breakdown.

* * *

Dear Doris: My daughter of 21 very seldom attends social events. She has been an epileptic since age two. She does not seem to know what to do to occupy her time and feels that it would be better if she found a steady job.

She stated that the assistance of a lady would be more convenient, because her spells usually occur at night, lasting for about two minutes, about once a month, but are more frequent when she is overtired or upset. She is a willing worker, but inexperienced in everything except housework.

At home she is bossy and jealous with the younger ones, which results in constant quarrels and more frequent spells on her part. — Help Wanted.

Dear Help: Life is not easy for an epileptic. Your girl is terrifically frustrated.

Ask yourself whether there is a chance she has some as yet largely undiscovered talents. Office detail or handcrafts or work with people might appeal to her and give her new hope.

She could use skilled personal counselling and a better understanding of herself. Hunt till you find the guidance she needs and I'm betting that with a little training along the right lines you'll find a new girl too.

* * *

Dear Doris: Where can I get a list of what I need to start housekeeping? The wedding is in the fall and since it was all very sudden I haven't got a thing but one pretty tablecloth my favorite aunt gave me last week to celebrate our engagement. — Marianne.

Dear Marianne: Aunts like that come in handy.

I have a leaflet called Your Household Trousseau. Lists such needs as chinaware glassware, basic dinner service, pantry staples, kitchen utensils, linens for kitchen, bedroom, diningroom and bathroom. Pretty good for a start. (And may be had by anyone writing in for it and enclosing 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Ann Landers

Death of Family Pet Results in Accusations

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our dog Rags was a faithful family friend for nearly 14 years. Since Christmas Rags had been moving so slowly it was painful for me to watch him. His eyesight was nearly gone and he kept bumping into things.

ANN LANDERS

I mentioned to my husband that perhaps it would be best if we had the vet put Rags to sleep. My husband blew his top — said it would be like murdering a friend. I never mentioned it again.

Friday evening I let Rags out for a few minutes and the next thing I knew he was involved in a three-dog fight. I ran out immediately. Rags was not hurt but he was breathing hard. Ten minutes later I saw him lying under the table very still. I knew at once he was dead.

I drove Rags to the vet although I was sure it was too late. The vet said he had died of a heart attack.

When my husband came home I told him the bad news immediately. He flew into a rage — said I had killed his dog because of my stupidity — that I had let him get into the fight. He phoned relatives and told them I was an idiot and a murderer. (My sister hung up on him.)

Three days have passed and he still refuses to speak to me. Please tell me what to do about this awful situation. — NOT GUILTY.

DEAR NOT: There's no point trying to talk sense to a man who is not rational, so stop trying. Eventually your husband will recover from his grief and settle down. Perhaps if you bought him another dog it would help. I recommend it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have yet to read a kind word in your column about a mother-in-law. If one is to be said it will have to come from a reader because you are clearly against them.

Your portrayal of the typical mother-in-law is unfair. You see her as a horned creature who clings desperately to her son (or daughter) — a domineering shrew who makes trouble, spoils the grandchildren and insists on being included in vacations.

My mother-in-law is the kindest, wisest, most considerate woman in the world. She keeps her life filled with interesting things and we consider ourselves lucky when we can get her company. Our children adore her and value her opinions. Our friends often include her when they send us an invitation, but she rarely accepts.

I recall vividly when my husband and were newlyweds (18 year ago) and we became involved in an argument. My husband turned to his mother and said, "What is your opinion?" She thought a moment and replied, "My opinion is worthless. This is between you and your wife. The only opinions that count are yours."

I am asking you to print this letter because I'm sure there must be other wonderful mothers-in-law who do not fit the image your column portrays. They deserve a good word. — LOVE MY MOTHER-IN-LAW.

DEAR LOVE: Here's your letter, and with it I'm blowing a kiss to that great lady. I know there are such mothers-in-law in the world, because I have one, too.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Banana Cake With Lemon Sauce

By MARY MOORE

On a cool or rainy day at the cottage warm the hearts of your family with the sweet pungent aroma of a spice cake.

You can do three things with this cake: bake it in a square and serve it fresh from the oven with a lemon sauce over it for dessert (see below); or let it cool on a cake rack and serve it sliced with fresh fruit for dessert; or bake it in an angel food pan and frost it with a lemony butter icing (see below).

BANANA SPICE CAKE
- 2-3 cup shortening
- 1 1-3 cups sugar
- 2 eggs
- 2 tsps. vanilla
- 1 2-3 cups mashed bananas (about 4)
- 1 cup raisins, plumped (see below)
- 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 tsps. baking powder
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- 1 tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. cloves
- 1½ tsps. cinnamon
- ¾ tsp. nutmeg

Plump the raisins by pouring boiling water over them. Let stand 5 min. Drain and dry. Set aside. Mash and measure bananas.

In large mixing bowl cream shortening and sugar until light, then beat in eggs and vanilla thoroughly. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and spices. Add to creamed mixture alternately with mashed bananas until batter is smooth. Stir in raisins. (Note: This batter is thick but turns out fine.) Line bottom of a 9" square pan with buttered wax paper or use an unlined buttered Teflon pan or a well buttered angel food pan with removable centre. Pour in batter and bake at 350 deg. Fahr.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled Sausages and Liver; Savory Baked Rice; New Green Peas; Crisp Lettuce, Cucumber and Radish Salad with Italian Dressing; Bing Cherry Compote; Tea.

Square pan and tube pan both require 70 min. Turn out on cake rack to cool. If desired, serve warm with —

CLEAR LEMON SAUCE:

Mix together in a saucepan 1 tbsp. cornstarch, 1-3 cup white sugar and ¼ tsp. salt. Stir in ¾ cup boiling water and cook stirring until thickened and boiling. Remove from heat and add ¼ cup lemon juice and 1 tbsp. butter. Serve hot.

If you have chosen to frost your cake use —

LEMON BUTTER FROSTING

Cream 2 or 3 tbsps. butter with ½ lb. (about 2 cups) sifted icing sugar, adding enough lemon juice to make of thin spreading consistency.

EOBA Midgets

Ellis Takes Best 2 of 3

The Ellis Midgets EOBA team took two of three this weekend as they topped the Kendall and Ajax crews 15-12 and 2-1 respectively, but fell to Oshawa 5-4.

Pitcher Wayne Farrell went all the way in the Saturday Kendall game, allowing 12 runs on nine hits and one error while walking five and fanning 15.

Ilic opposition, Mr. Mc-Gregor, allowed 15 runs on as many hits and three errors while walking 15 and fanning nine.

Top hitters in the Kendall contest were Midge McTaggart with a homer and two singles, Brian Coughlin and Paul Hall with a double and two singles each, and Rick Graham with a triple and a single.

B. Mercer led the Kendal batters with a double and a single and J. Thompson had two singles with S. West connecting for a double.

In the Ajax game on Sunday, Farrell again shouldered the pitching load for the winners, being relieved by Midge McTaggart in the eighth. Robert Limklide did the honors for Ajax.

Ellis took this game with two runs on three hits while giving up one run on six hits. The winning pickup allowed two walks while fanning five and the losers walked four and struck out seven.

Belleville hitters against Ajax were Paul Hall with two singles and Wayne Farrell with a single.

In Friday's loss to Oshawa, Midge McTaggart did the Ellis pitching still relieved by Farrell in the eighth. Grove Bennett and Kim Rodgers did the Oshawa pitching in the win.

Belleville allowed nine runs on ten hits while fanning eight and walking five. The winners allowed four runs on 12 hits win 13 strike outs and two walks.

Top Belleville hitters were Paul Hall with a triple and two singles, Brian Coughlin with a double and a single and the same for Rick Graham. Rick Meagher had a double.

Oshawa hitters were T. McComb with a homer and a single, Bamber with a double and a single, and Wayne Twin with two singles.

Tykes on Weekend

Booth Split in EOBA

Booth Radio and TV EOBA Tyke entry split their weekend series with a Saturday loss to Nipigon 14-13 and a Sunday win over Whitby 14-6.

B. Whalen and Randy Hutchinson shared the Saturday loss, allowing 14 runs on 22 hits and three walks while fanning six.

McMullen, the Nipigon hurler, allowed 13 runs on 20 hits and seven walks while striking out 13.

Whalen tried for the win at the plate with a triple and two singles. R. Culkin followed with four singles, and M. Burke also collected two.

Nipigon hitters included B. Herd with a double and two singles, Johnston with the same, and Willmore with a double and three safeties.

In the Whitby win Saturday, Brian Loveless took the mound for Booth with Allen doing the honors for Whitby. Loveless took the win, allowing six runs on five hits and seven walks with four strike outs.

Allen allowed 14 runs on 16 hits and two walks, fanning ten.

Hitters for Booth included T. Meagher with a double and two singles and Loveless with a double.

Whitby hitters included Hicks with two singles.

Aristocrats On Way

Disney Studio Producing New Cartoon

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—For the first time in the history of the Disney Studio, a feature cartoon is being made without the guidance and control of Walt Disney.

Jungle Book was the last animated feature produced under the watchful supervision of Walt, who oversaw all the films, beginning with the trail-blazing Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs in 1937. Now his studio's animators and artists are engaged in a brand-new film. The Aristocats.

"Actually, Walt did put the project into work," says Wolfgang (Woolie) Reitherman, directing the feature.

"At the beginning it was very loose, just as all of them are at the start. It began as a show for the television series, and we were working on it after 101 Dalmations (1961). The idea kept growing, and it appeared more suitable for a full-length feature."

The Aristocats had scarcely progressed beyond the formative stages when Disney died in December 1966. While he hadn't animated a frame of film since the earliest days of Mickey Mouse, his imprint had been placed on every detail of the cartoon features.

"Walt kept a good over-all eye on everything we did," said Reitherman. "During the earlier years he was in on every stage. In the last 10 or 15 years he was busy with other things, and his comments were more general.

"He would check to determine if the sequences were well balanced and if the personalities were coming off in a pleasant way. He came up with some damn good ideas in that important field.

The storyboards that line the walls of Reitherman's office and spill out into halls of the animation building—these are the pinned-up, preliminary sketches of the films—indicate a wide range of personalities and characters in Aristocats. The plot concerns an eccentric Parisian lady, with the voice of Hermione Baddely, who leaves her fortune to her cats. Upon their death, the money goes to the butler, and there hangs the plot. The butler tries to eliminate the cats—in a nice sort of way.

The mother cat is voiced by Eva Gabor, and Phil Harris plays Thomas O'Malley, the alley cat. He sings a rollicking duet with Louis Armstrong. Everybody Wants to Be a Cat.

It will be a long wait before audiences will see Aristocats.

Ratherman reported that about one-third of the feature is in animation. The rest will be ready for the theaters by Christmas of 1970—"if we're lucky."

The Disney studio has been averaging a new carton feature every three years, the high cost and limited number of talented animators limiting the output. Production requires three to four years and cost per feature has soared to $5,000,000 and $6,000,000. Snow White cost $1,700,000.

But Jungle Book proved that the animated feature can still be a worthwhile venture. It has been the studio's biggest cartoon grosser in its first release. Why has it been so popular?

Reitherman theorized, "More than any other feature we were able to work with a variety of animals. That gave us the freedom to poke fun at a variety of things—the military, hypnotism, etc. Each sequence was played for personality and entertainment, and there was a certain boldness of execution throughout."

City Track Club

Nine Individuals, Two Teams Take Ribbons at ECO Meet

The Belleville City Track Club placed nine individuals and two relay teams in the ten-teen events at the East Central Ontario Track and Field Meet in Oshawa Saturday.

The Belleville club took only a partial team of 22 as not all events and age groups were included in the meet.

Top winners for the local club were Marie Brain in the Bantam (under 14) Girls and Dave Simonds in the Midget Boys (under 16) classification.

Miss Brain took two firsts in the five events — the 220 dash (:11.7) and the 220 (:27.5).

Simonds won his red ribbons in the mile (5:02.2) and the 880 (2:15.1).

Other Belleville winners in the Bantam Girls were Kaarina Lokinen with a second in the 100 and a third in the 100 yd. The Belleville Bantam Girls relay team (Marie Brain, Karen Lokinen, Cheryl Dales and Dawn Yateman) placed third in that event.

Barb Platt was the only winner for Belleville in the Midget Girls (under 16) with a fourth place in the 880.

Murray Dales paced the bantam boys with a first in the 440 (:64.0) and a third in the long jump. Steve Cowan collected a third in the quarter mile as did the bantam boys relay team, comprised of Murray Dales, Dave Harvie, Steve Cowan and Rick Watt.

In the midget boys, other than Simonds, ribbons went to Pete Locke with a fourth in the mile and a fourth in the high jump.

Dave Miracle took a third in the long jump in the Juvenile (under 18) boys and Tom Will placed second in the mile in the open mens' class.

The club's next competition will be on August 3 at Newmarket.

Carmel

Drops Two

In a doubleheader with Welcome on Saturday, the Carmel EOBA Bantam C team couldn't even pull a draw. They dropped the first game 4-2 and the second 16-11.

The winning pitcher in both contests was Welcome's Moore. In the first game, he allowed two runs on four hits and two errors while walking one and fanning 21.

In the second game, he allowed seven of 11 runs on ten hits and 8 walks with 13 strike outs and four errors.

Top Belleville hitters were Paul Hall with a triple and two singles, Brian Coughlin with a double and a single and the same for Rick Graham. Rick Meagher had a double.

Oshawa hitters were T. McComb with a homer and a single, Bamber with a double and a single, and Wayne Twin with two singles.

Damascus A Winner; Now in Millionaire's Row

NEW YORK (AP) — Damascus flashed past Dr. Fager in the stretch Saturday to win the Brooklyn Handicap in track-record time at Aqueduct and become the eighth millionaire thoroughbred.

The 1967 Horse of the Year, flying the colors of Mrs. Edith W. Bancroft, passed Dr. Fager approaching the eighth pole and beat the Tartan Stable colt to the wire by 2½ lengths.

The time of 1:50 1-5 for tre 1¼ miles broke the track mark of 1:59 3-5 set by Gun Bow in 1964, and tied by Dr. Fager last July 4 when he beat Bold Hour and Damascus in the Suburban Handicap.

First money of $71,110 out of the gross purse of $108,000 boosted Damascus' career earnings to $1,025,326.

Damascus, ridden by Manny Ycasa and coupled in the betting with Mrs. Bancroft's Hedevar, returned $4.80, $2.60 and $2.10.

Dr. Fager, Braulio Baeza up, finished second by three lengths over Mrs. Peter Duchin's Mr. Rigel, who saved the show for a head over Gustave Ring's Grace Born. Dr. Fager paid $2.20 and $2.10 and Grace Born $2.10.

For her fifth victory in as many starts, Big Advance earned $20,000 and paid $5.20, $3.60 and $3.

Alert Princess returned $6.60 and $5.80. She finished three-quarters of a length in front of White Xmase, who survived a foul claim to take third money and pay $8.20.

At Hollywood, Calif., Fleet Directs, a rival shot, made his first stakes victory a big one when he won tre $180,800 Hollywood Derby at the championship 1¼ lengths over 13 rival two-year-olds at Hollywood Park.

Cozy, Ellis Post Wins

Cozy Grill and Ellis Printers collected weekend wins in the Belleville Minor Softball Association as the Restaurateurs took Quinte Transport 3-1 and the Printers trounced General Bakers 2-1.

Cozy's took the win in a hard fought game with their tough attack in the second half when they netted three goals to break the 1-1 half time deadlock.

In the Ellis win, J. Aitken opened the scoring for the winners in the first half. The Ellis kicker were awarded a penalty shot early in the second period and Aitken collected his second, and the team's winning, goal.

General Bakers robbed the Printers of a shutout when R. Asselstine's late second period shot caught the Ellis goalkeeper out of position for the final score of the game.

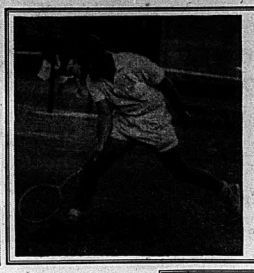
VANCOUVER (CP) — After sweeping all but one event in last year's Canadian junior open tennis championship, United States players are again favored in the 1968 tournament that opens today.



Bill Washauer of San Francisco is top seeded in the boys under-18 event with team-mate Chip Fisher of Palo Alto, Calif., ranked first in boys under-16 competition.

Jim Boyce, who won the under-18 division in the just-finished closed tournament, and Pat Gamey, also of Toronto, are top Canadian seeds in these events.

Alberto Ribo and Pedro Farreras, top Spanish junior tennis players, of Barcelona are ranked fifth and sixth in boys under-18 class.

She will have to defeat second-ranked Donna Kellock of Richmond, Calif., to take the title and is expected to play Karen Wills of Clarkson, Ont., the top-ranked domestic player in the girls under-16.

Recuperating from a tonsillectomy in Belleville General Hospital's children's ward, six-year-old Dean Timson of 185 Pine Street in the city found his own remedy for post-operative blues. Julie Wins PGA "To Keep Kids in School"

The 48-year-old champion of the 1968 PGA tournament plans to keep on playing and playing.

"I've got seven kids to educate—and the first one starts college in a couple of years," Boros said after winning the PGA crown Sunday for the first time in his long career.

The paunchy, sweet-swinging hero of the middle-aged set was able to boost the college kitty with a $25,000 check for his one-stroke edge over Arnold Palmer and New Zealand southpaw Bob Charles in the frenzied finish at the Pecan Valley Course.

They all started the final round two strokes off the pace. Boros fired a one-under-par 69 for a 281 total, and Palmer and Charles each turned in a 70 for 282.

Palmer made a bid for a tying birdie on the 18th with a spectacular three-wood blast from the rough to the green, but he missed the eight-foot putt and took a par.

"Maybe it's just not to be," said Palmer, who has never won a PGA title and has been in a slump for months.

At the age of 38, Palmer still has plenty of chances left. Boros proved that by becoming the oldest man ever to win the PGA crown, an honor held previously by Jerry Barber, 45, when he took the title in 1961.

Boros' last victory was in the 1967 Buick Open, but he has won $82,701 this year.

The 220-pound Floridian said he thinks he is playing better now than he was when he was young.

"I'm hitting the ball longer now, and I have some spasms of good putting," said Boros.

He had plenty of good shots on rugged Pecan Valley course including a clinching three-foot putt on the 18th hole after a deft chip from the fairway when it appeared he might blow the lead.

Boros said he sort of backed into the title because nobody uncorked a hot round in the finish.

"If they keep on shooting 280s, I've got a shot at it every week," he added, noting that nobody broke par for the full 72-hole route on the par-70, 7,096-yard course.

Tied for fourth were George Archer, who closed with a 69, and Marty Fleckman, who led for three rounds but slipped to a finishing 73. They had 283 totals.

Frank Beard, who shared the lead with Fleckman in the second and third rounds, faded to a 74 and finished in a tie for sixth at 284 with Billy Casper, who closed with a 70.

Eskies Put Als On Ice

EDMONTON (CP) — Frank Cosentino passed to end Larry Plancke for two touchdowns Sunday to lead Edmonton Eskimos to a 17-6 victory over Montreal Alouettes in a Canadian Football League exhibition game.

About 12,000 fans turned out for the game, despite a threat of rain and the attraction of Klondike Days activities in downtown Edmonton.

Eskimos took a 7-3 lead in the first quarter, matched field goals with the Alouettes in the second quarter and wrapped up the scoring in the third quarter.

Peter Kempf converted both Plancke's touchdowns and booted one field goal for the Eskimos. Jim Leeg got Montreal's points on field goals in the first half.

The game featured a spectacular punt by Eskimos' Garry Lefebvre, who kicked the ball high in the air early in the second quarter on a third-down situation. As a headwind caught the ball and slowed its forward progress, Lefbvre ran under it and caught it to keep the Eskimos in possession.

Eskimos had a heavy statistical edge, with 206 yards passing to Montreal's 122 and 113 yards rushing to Montreal's 38.

Plancke was Edmonton's top pass receiver, with four receptions for 107 yards. Halfback Ed Tomlin was Alouettes 'offensive standout, gaining 37 yards on 12 carries and another 27 on four pass receptions.

Cosentino completed seven of eight passes and Williams completed 11 of 19. Fulton was two for eight and Buzzell three for five.

Eskimos opened scoring when Cosentino from the Montreal 29, faked a hand-off, dropped back and passed up the middle to Plancke, who caught the ball in the Montreal five and walked over the goal-line. Plancke is a

Joyces Win

"Latch" Gives Free EOBA Lessons

By JERRY HOFF
Staff Sportswriter

KINGSTON — Bill Latchford got his first and only summer break from his Ottawa summer teachers' course Sunday and used it to take 8-3 revenge on Kingston for their defeat of the Belleville Joyces.

In Sunday's game at the Kingston Cricket Field, "Latch" allowed Kingston three runs on six hits and three Belleville errors while walking one and fanning eight.

The win avenged last Wednesday's 8-6 Joyce defeat by the defending provincial champions from Kingston, the team they will likely meet first in playoff competition.

Johnston took the loss for Kingston with Keith Weese coming in for the losers in the sixth. The two pitchers yielded eight Belleville runs on ten hits and two errors while fanning seven and walking two.

But his solo shot was overshadowed in the fifth frame when second-place league hitter Larry Mavety, backstop for the Joyces, gave the Realtors a 5-1 margin with a grand slam homer.

Three runs in the sixth cinched it for the locals and nullified a pair of eighth-inning Kingston tallies.

Kingston had picked up their other run in the third.

Top hitters for the Joyces included Goyer, who connected for two singles besides his homer, Mavety with his grand slammer, Wayne Woods — playing in the outfield — had two singles, as did second-baseman Pat Anelatine, and Latchford and Rodger Hunter collected singles.

Hunter, a member of the Joyce mound staff, took "Moe" Hunter's regular third-base spot. The Realtors' third-sacker was sidelined with a six-stitch gash in his hand suffered in a slide during last Wednesday's game against Kingston at Belleville.

Kingston collected their runs from hits by Earl Watts, and Goodridge. League-leading hitter Guy White went hitless in the contest to keep the Joyces' Mavety in second-place contention.

The Joyce win was their fourth against the Limestone City crew in the teams' five meetings to date this season.

It's a time of travel for several of the city's outstanding athletes, and if successful, they may find themselves going even further afield.

Today, Belleville's Carol Armstrong begin a gruelling four-day test of her archery skills in Regina in defence of the Canadian women's title she won last year in Toronto.

This week's championships will require the comely brunette to draw her 28-pound test bow about 600 times in a variety of target competitions against the best in the land.

And without intending to cast a jinx in Carol's quiver, we think things augur well for an encore title-winning performance.

At last Sunday's invitational meet for 60 top Ontario archers at Zwick's Island, the local bow-woman shot a 1,097 score in a free-style (using sights) event.

Maximum score is 1,440 on 144 arrows but only three other Canadian women have ever equalled Carol's Sunday score for the same event in tournament. And no woman's score of 1,100 has ever been turned in by a Canadian in competition.

A good showing in Regina this week would encourage Carol to pack her arrows for even more prestigious participation.

She has already made tentative plans to compete in the upcoming edition of the biennial world archery championships, scheduled for Valley Forge, Pennsylvania next summer.

Shooting in the event last year in Holland, Carol placed a respectable 15th in an outstanding field.

As in Carol's case, all arrows for six members of the local Apollo Barbell Club point westward.

For the half dozen weight-lifters, including respected heavyweight Price Morris, it's off to Calgary in a week or so to take part in the Canadian Olympic Game trials.

And coach Ken Kay Carr-Brainz has high hopes for Price, who has lifted 1,030 pounds in a three-lift combination.

But both know Price must come up with a 1,050-pound performance in Calgary to match the International Olympic qualifying mark for October's Mexico City Games.

Tipping the scales at 150 himself, Bob hopes to get the chance to carry more than his share of the Canadian Olympic weightlifting team's load.

For Carol Armstrong, we wish an excess of arrows in the gold ring, and to the Apollo boys, the fullest of barbells to you.

THE CAR BUYER'S PROBLEMS

HOW HONEST IS AUTOMOBILE ADVERTISING?

It is a mark of our times that people are more surprised by honesty than dishonesty.

Supermarkets have been known to raise their prices on heavy shopping days; nationally-known food manufacturers in price their "large-size economy" packages at MORE per ounce than the regular size; and packages designed to mislead the buyer.

But it takes two to tango. Too often, misleading advertisers are rewarded repeatedly by buyers who are sold on the face value of words like "discount" and "terms" improperly used. There is a great temptation for reputable merchants to follow suit in self defence.

In this marketing climate, automobile advertisers generally are no worse and often maintain a higher ethical standard than their equivalent in other industries.

Dealer associations are continually policing their ranks against unethical advertising trends — incorrect and inadequate statement of guarantees; statements like "No Cash Needed" without explaining a collateral loan is required; terms beyond 36 months without explaining what else is required.

There's a lesson in the story about the inquest where the young wife reported her husband's last words just before he died quite suddenly of stomach cramps: "I can't understand how they can make any profit out of this stuff at a dollar and a half a fifth."

Norman Paces Pros at Regina

REGINA (CP) — Moe Norman of Toronto won the $5,000 Saskatchewan open golf championship Sunday after three extra holes of play.

Norman and defending champion Len Harvey of Regina were tied at 208 after the 54-holes of play which began Friday.

Norman fired a two-under-par 69 in the final day and Harvey had a 72. Bobb sank birdie putts on the final hole to force the playoff.

The victory also gave Norman a berth in the all-Canadian championship, which will be played in September in Toronto.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, who won a berth in the all-Canadian championship last month with a victory in the Millar championship in Toronto, was third with a 209 and won $600. Homenuik, who rimmed a birdie putt on the fifial hole, was one shot ahead of Bobby Cox of Vancouver.

Fifty at 212 was Billy Wakeham of Victoria, who had been tied with Harvey at 138 after

Planes Break Even In Weekend Action

Weekend action in the South Hasting Baseball circuit saw Planes of Cannifton drop a Saturday tilt with Shannonville 6-1, then come back Sunday to take Read 8-1.

Shannonville won the Saturday contest behind Larry Lewis who allowed Planes only one run on seven hits and one walk while fanning six.

Planes took the loss behind pitchers Pat O'Connor and Bernie Coughlin. They combined to allow the runs on seven hits and three walks while striking out eight and committing four errors.

Top hitters for Shannonville were pitcher Lewis with a double and a single, Bill Bartstock with a double, Bob Detler with two singles and Roy Hinch with a single.

Planes batters were Court Bralley with a double and a single, Bob Moon with two singles, and Ernie Emerson, Larry Adams and Warren Haye with singles.

In the Sunday contest, Planes redeemed themselves behind pitcher Garnet Adams who downed Read by allowing one run on four hits and seven walks while fanning five.

Read hurlers Frank Farrell and Harold Pascoe combined in the loss.

The two Read chuckers allowed eight runs on nine hits walking two and striking out six.

Top Planes hitters in the victory were Eric Emerson with three singles, Larry Adams with a double and a single, John Tweedy with a triple, and Bob Loffman, Bob Moon, and pitcher Adams with singles.

Read hitters were Carm Milligan with two singles, Ken Abrams with a double, and Leo Enright with a single.

Local Team Blasted In Norwood Exhibition

The Belleville SACO OASA Bantams were downed 12-3 Sunday in Hastings by Norwood in an exhibition game.

The Belleville players couldn't seem to keep the errors away when Norwood had men on base. The locals committed four mistakes in the game.

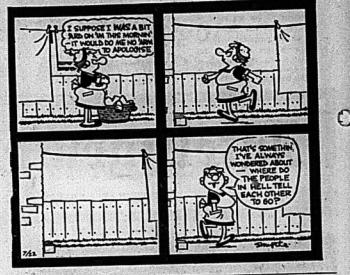
The winning pitcher, Norwood's D. Wellman, allowed three runs on seven hits and three walks, fanning seven.

Ron McIntyre, the loser, allowed 12 runs on 14 hits and six walks while striking out five.

Hits for the winners came from L. Thompson with three singles, McGee had two triples, Williams, Smith and Andrews hit two singles each and Wright, Maloney and Wellman had safeties.

The Belleville hitters were Bill Kirkham with two safeties, John Ramson, Bob Collins, John Sprackett, Ken Vos and Herbie Pointer had singles.

He's Blind - Shoots 105



CONCORD, Mass. (CP-AP) — Joe Lazaro of Waltham, Mass., retained his United States blind golfers' championship Sunday, edging out last-time winner Charley Boswell of Birmingham, Ala., by two strokes.

Claude Pattemore of Hamilton, was third in the Class A standings with a 219. He shot a 107 Saturday and a 112 Sunday.

Gibson Wins 10th Straight In Spoiling Met Hurler's Debut

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jerry Koosman split a pot with Bob Gibson when New York Mets stacked the deck at St. Louis Sunday.

Gibson hurled his 10th consecutive victory and seventh shutout as the Cardinals spoiled Jim McAndrew's major league pitching debut by shading New York 2-0 in the first game of a National Baseball League doubleheader.

Koosman, deliberately held out of a direct confrontation with Gibson, then pitched the Mets to a 1-0 victory, setting a club shutout record in the process and matching the St. Louis ace's 13-5 season mark.

McAndrew, who battled Gibson to a standoff until Bob Tolan tagged an inside-the-park homer in the sixth inning, wasn't around to see Met manager Gil Hodges' gambit pay off in a split with the league leaders.

The Mets returned the 24-year-old right-hander to their Jacksonville farm club after the first game.

Second-place Atlanta Braves bowed to Pittsburgh Pirates 6-0 and fell 10½ games behind the Cardinals, Cincinnati Reds slugged Philadelphia Phillies 12-6 for their fourth straight triumph and climbed into a third place tie with the Phillies and San Francisco Giants—13 games off the pace.

The Giants divided a twin bill with Houston Astros dropping the opener 2-1 in 10 innings and taking the nightcap 6-1, Chicago Cubs cuffed Los Angeles Dodgers 7-2 in a single game.

In Saturday games: New York 9, St. Louis 2; Houston 0, San Francisco 1; Philadelphia 3, Cincinnati 8; Pittsburgh 2, Atlanta; Chicago 2, Los Angeles 5.

Gibson, unbeate nsince May 28, scattered seven hits and struck out 13 in outlasting McAndrew under a blazing sun at St. Louis.

McAndrew, throwing hard in the 94-degree heat, allowed six hits, fanned five and walked none in the six innings he worked. The Cards scored their second run on seventh inning doubles by Lou Brock and Orlando Cepeda and Tolan's homer.

Koosman scored a four-hitter in the nightcap. He struck out 12 on the way to his 11th shutout—a Mets season mark.

The game's lone run came in the sixth when Cleon Jones singled, took second on an infield out and tallied on a single by J. C. Martin.

Home runs by Willie Stargell, Donn Clendenon and Jose Pagan propelled Pittsburgh's Steve Blass to his seventh straight victory and gave the Pirates a sweep of their three-game set at Atlanta.

Lee May, Jim Beauchamp and pitcher Tony Cloyer belted homers and Leo Cardenas stroked a single, double, triple and sacrifice fly, good for three RBIs, as the Reds buried Philadelphia under a 15-hit barrage.

Dick Simpson's run-scoring single in the 10th sent the Astros past the Giants in the first game. Southpaw Mike McCormick throttled the Astros on six hits in the nightcap while rookie Bobby Bonds triggered San Francisco's attack with three hits.

Billy Williams poled a pair of two-run homers and delivered another run with a sacrifice fly as the Cubs trimmed the Dodgers behind Bill Hands, 10-15, and reliever Phil Regan.

Glenn Beckert, who had run his hitting streak to 25 games—tops in the majors this year—in Saturday night's loss to Los Angeles, cracked a triple and three singles and drove in the other two Chicago runs.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gary Hall, a 16-year-old from Garden Grove, Calif., smashed the world record in the 400-metre individual medley Saturday with a time of 4:43.4 in the Los Angeles invitational swimming meet. His time bettered the listed world mark of 4:43.4, set by Dick Roth of Santa Clara, Calif., Swim Club, in the 1964 Olympic Games at Tokyo.

When Frank Verdi took over as manager of Syracuse Chiefs of the International League June 17, Syracuse was in last place. But since then, all this has changed. Almost unbelievably, Syracuse — which lost 31 of its first 32 games — has won 23 of 38 under Verdi, including the last five, and from the basement has climbed to a tie for second place, three games behind Toledo.

TORONTO (CP) — Balmy Beach won the annual international triples beach volleyball tournament Saturday against 11 other teams, including two from the U.S. The Toronto team defeated Hamilton 7-11, 11-7, 11-1 in the final after disposing of Montreal 11-8, 11-6 in the semi-final. The U.S. teams — from Pittsburgh and Columbus, Ohio — were eliminated early. The teams used three men each in contrast to indoor volleyball in which six players are used on a team.

Mayo Still An Optimist As Tigers League Lead Dwindles

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What does it take to make Mayo Smith unhappy?

The Detroit Tigers manager, with a stiff upper lip, watched second-place Baltimore Orioles sweep a doubleheader from his club 5-2 and 4-1 Sunday.

It also turned the Tigers' American League pennant Funaway into a pennant race. And still Mayo found reason to rejoice.

"I'd have liked someone to tell me we would be 5½ games in front this late in the season," he said with a smile.

This despite the fact that the Tigers led the league by 9½ games 10 days ago at the all-star break.

A Hangover In Boston

BOSTON (AP)—Two Boston Red Sox baseball players were fined $500 by the club for curfew violations and face court arraignment today on charges of being drunk.

Third baseman Joe Foy, 25, and pitcher Juan Pizarro, 31, were arrested early Sunday after their car and a taxi collided near Boston Common. Police said Foy was driving.

Alvin Dark, manager of Cleveland, can't be too sad either after his Indians walked backward into third place and still gained ground on Detroit. The Indians are also 5½ games back, two percentage points behind Baltimore, after beating the New York Yankees 4-1 and then losing 8-4.

Boston, 9½ games out, also missed a chance to climb closer by splitting with Washington, winning 4-3 before losing 4-3.

Completing the full schedule of doubleheaders, Minnesota swept Oakland 7-5 and 10-0 and the Chicago White Sox stumped California 5-1 before losing 7-0.

Saturday's scores were: Baltimore 5, Detroit 3; Cleveland 2, New York 0; Oakland 2, Minnesota 1; Washington 2, Boston 7 and California 7, Chicago 6.

Manager Dick Williams suspended both players for the curfew violation. The curfew requires both players to be in bed by 12:30 a.m. and within 2½ hours following night games.

Both players were not at Fenway Park for Sunday's doubleheader with Washington. This automatically cost them a day's pay.

Your Car Brake Squeals Hard to Cure

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes: "About a month ago the brakes were relined on my four-year-old car. As well as new linings the drums were turned, the brake shoes were ground to fit the oversize drums and the wheel cylinders were overhauled. The brakes seem quite efficient but from the first day after the job was done, each time I apply the brakes there is the most nerve-wracking squeal. My mechanic tells me the squealing will stop after the new linings seat in, but I've driven well over 1,000 miles and it's getting worse. Last week they replaced the front brake shoes again but this didn't help. I'm willing to put up with squeal for another 1,000 miles or so if the noise will eventually stop, providing there is no danger of brake failure. It is safe to continue driving and have you any suggestions that would do away with this awful squeal?"

Assuming the job has been done properly there is no danger involved from a brake squeal. In the first place, brakes are not supposed to squeal and thank goodness, for the best part they don't. However, when operating a garage I ran into the occasional "squealer" that would drive me up the wall. I would just have to stick with it until we stumbled across something that silenced the brute.

Loose or worn backing plates, weak pull-back or holddown springs, loose front wheel bearings, uneven bearing surfaces between the brake drum and shoes, wrong lining material — all or any one of these could be the cause of a baffling squeak. Sometimes wrapping a heavy spring around the outside of the brake drums is the answer. Some car makers install these springs on the drums at the factory. There are fibre insulators between the brakes of flat leaf springs. Should these insulators wear out and allow the leaves to rub together, brake squeals can result. Some mechanics swear that substituting bonded type linings with the riveted variety is the sure cure.

There's one thing for sure; seldom do brake squeals disappear by themselves. Give it a little more time and then if the noise persists ask your mechanic to run through a step by step diagnosis or call in the trouble shooting technician from the company who manufactured the brake lining.

This is the time of year when tires are called upon to take a lot of punishment. On long holiday trips cars are often weighed down with maximum passenger and luggage loads and belt along mile after mile at sustained high speeds on blistering hot freeways. Water boils at 212 degrees F. and most of us have suffered the instant pain of contact with this burning heat. But engineers tell me that tires can withstand much higher temperatures than the boiling point of water.

The temperature of the highway just can reach around 160 F on a hot day. Add to this the frictional heat build up as the tire grinds and flexes on the surface of this hot asphalt and we can readily see the torturous temperatures a tire is designed to live with. The average tire weighs about 20 pounds, which means that 80 pounds of rubber and fabric are supporting, driving, stopping and steering a machine weighing up to three tons.

I marvel at the mechanical strength and lasting qualities of modern tires. In the early 20's tires cost about $1.67 per pound. Today, even with our inflated dollar, the price has dropped to something like $1.20 and mileage is about 10 times more than the "good old day."

I've visited the proving grounds and laboratories of leading tire makers in the industry and am convinced they are capable of turning out an excellent product and are constantly striving possible to do so. Neglect is by far the prime cause of tire failure. The indifferent attitude of many motorists regarding tire care is alarming. On a parking lot recently I checked the tires of 30 cars. Twelve of them were bald or close to it, six showed side wall defects and, while air is free, at least eight were underinflated. Improper inflation, overload, and sustained excessive high speed lead to premature wear and failure. For those interested in attending tire life, at 70 mph tires wear out three times faster than at 50 mph.

When did you last check the air pressure and general condition of your tires?

To Your Good Health Praise Is the Key to Toilet Training

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: My child is 17 months old. He is very smart and learns readily. Is he old enough to be toilet trained or should I wait a few months? Also he loves a mirror. A friend says it will make him emotionally unstable. Is this true? — M. M., a 19-year-old mother.

Any time now is a good time to start toilet training. The basic rule for toilet training is to try to catch a youngster "in the act." Or when he has to go. Then put him on the toilet, and when he goes a head and performs, praise him to the skies. It doesn't take a smart Infant long to catch on.

Now I admit that a certain percentage of young ones have a hard time learning, for which there are various reasons. But let's take it for granted that your youngster is average or better and won't have trouble.

Don't let him get the idea that he is being punished if he makes a mistake.

Don't strap him on the seat and make him sit until he goes. He'll just feel abandoned and resentful and he'll be the sad old enough to get the idea of "staying there until you do." Some grownups praise at the right time is a lot more useful than force or punishment.

Remember that most youngsters do not like having wet or messy pants. They're willing to learn if you teach them.

As to bowel training, the procedure is pretty much the same except for the addition Youngsters (like anyone else who hasn't managed to wreck the natural rhythms of life) fall into some sort of bowel pattern. For some, they may have a tendency for the bowels to move soon after breakfast. For others, it can be some other time.

If you learn your child's usual time (or sometimes can notice when he starts to squirm, turn purple, etc.) for a bowel movement, you can put him on the toilet then. If he doesn't tart quite as fast as the baby size one, there are glycerin suppository, which you can get by the bowful at the drugstore. They give him a start. And when he starts a movement remember to give him that praise!

Depending on how quickly he learns to express himself, he'll pretty soon start yelling to you when he has to go. And when he does — praise him even more!

About the mirror — all kids seem to enjoy mirrors if they happen to discover one. I've never heard of one yet that was made "unstable" from being entranced by a looking glass.

Dear Dr. Molner: What do you think of a mother who stuffs her small children with food and brags about how much they eat in front of them? Then the oldest child tries to feed them more. She eyes them all the dessert they want. She has stuffed them from babyhood and they are all overweight. — A. M. H.

I think she probably loves the kids and thinks stuffing them will make them big and strong. But she's horribly misinformed, and let's hope that something opens her eyes. Because she isn't being healthy. Quite the reverse.

The poor kids, thinking that overeating is the right thing to do, will have the misery of being called "fatty" in school, and struggling against overweight later, and (statistics prove it) dying much younger than they otherwise would.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can arthritis cause earache? — Mrs. B. H.

Arthritis of the jaw joint may cause referred pain to the ear somewhere the answer is no. (Referred pain is pain from a muscle or nerve so the pain seems to be at a point distant from the place where the real trouble exists.)

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is ur ble to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Bottle War Grows as Shattered Glass Hits Beaches, Parks

TORONTO (CP) — Disposable pop bottles are becoming a hazard to picknickers at the city's parks and beaches.

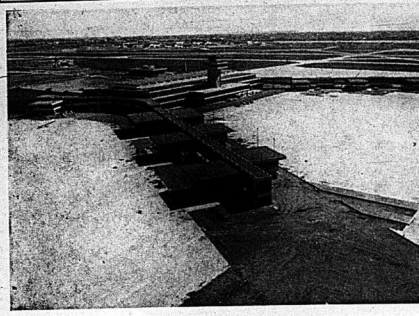
City parks department employees visit playgrounds each day to pick up pieces of glass from smashed non-returnable bottles. Along the city's eastern beaches, 100 to 125 bottles are collected each day.

The bottles were introduced in Canada three years ago, and for the second year in a row the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves has declared that the use of the non-returnable bottles invites their destruction on sidewalks, lanes and streets.

"It's almost impossible to gather up this type of bottle; it smashes into such small fragments," said Mayor True Davidson of suburban East York, tre association's president.

The association plans to meet provincial authorities in September to repeat its previous request for a prohibition of the sale of non-returnable glass bottles containing soft-drinks and beer.

Mayor Albert Campbell of suburban Scarborough, president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, said the broken-bottle issue needs more research before pressure is applied for a ban.



"We should bring in the packaging industry and see if some alternative for glass containers can be found that will not constitute a hazard," he said.

"We cause six per cent of the litter but get 90 per cent of the blame."

Mr. Morrison said he has distributed "Keep-Canada-Beautiful" bumper stickers to all Consumer employees and added that the company has joined the new Glass Container Council, which hopes to solve the whole question of litter.

"We don't intend to be accused of producing dangerous instruments," he said.

Vietnam Widows Wonder if U.S. Killed Husbands to Weaken Ky

SAIGON (AP) — The widows of six high-ranking South Vietnamese officers, killed June 2 by what U.S. authorities said was a misfired rocket from a helicopter, said Sunday the United States might have murdered their husbands for political reasons.

Wearing mourning clothes, the widows held a bizarre press conference in a Buddhist temple and presented to reporters a handwritten notebook listing the charges. They refused to make the allegations orally.

In a notebook, the widows called the U.S. explanation of the accident "unbelievable." The notebook said:

"Rumors say the killing of our husbands was aimed at putting out of action friends of Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky."

Mrs. Ky, the vice-president's wife, attended the press conference but said nothing. Ky was a close friend of the six dead officers.

At the time of the accident, the U.S. mission explained that the rocket had been aimed at Viet Cong forces fighting in Cholon suburb, but had misfired and hit a Vietnamese command post in the Saigon suburb.

The South Vietnamese military command completed an investigation of the accident several weeks ago but has not disclosed its findings.

In a notebook, the widows said: "We strongly protest the cowardly attitude of the Republic of Vietnam and the misdeeds of the Americans who pay so little regard for the lives of the people."

The widows also gave reporters copies of letters they had written to U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The letter to Bunker did not mention the charges, but protested "rumors that the U.S. may accept a coalition settlement with the Communists."

In their letter to Thieu, the widows urged him to press the Americans to admit what really happened in the rocket incident.

Quebec Acting Premier Guarded After Threats

QUEBEC (CP) — Labor Minister Maurice Bellemare, the subject of recent threats against his safety, is under the constant surveillance of his chauffeur—a Quebec Provincial Police officer.

Mr. Bellemare, acting Quebec premier because of the illness of Premier Daniel Johnson, received threats after remarks he made in connection with the strike by 2,800 employees of the Quebec Liquor Board.

The minister had suggested the strike could last six months and that the government was considering turning over the retail sale of liquor in the province to private enterprise.

Spokesmen for the strikers, angered by the remarks, said the minister's statements were "political" and did nothing to alleviate the situation or answer the strikers' demands.

"I am not afraid of threats," he told reporters. "I will continue to fulfil my duty according to my conscience."

Earlier, Mr. Bellemare had been protected by three uniformed security guards.

The minister's summer home at St. Jean des Piles, about 75 miles west of Quebec City, was ransacked last weekend and several objects of value stolen. Police cars have been patrolling the area since.

Mr. Bellemare has been charged with "trying to intimidate" the unions in his statements on the QLS strike.

Meanwhile, negotiations appear to be at a standstill, with no date yet fixed for discussion of the dispute.

STUDENT LOANS RISE

EDMONTON (CP) —Loans to Alberta students during the 1967-68 school year totalled $10,070,754, an increase of $2,560,000 over the previous year. The money, more than half in federal funds, went to 16,193 students.

Soviet Nuclear Physicist Proposes Rapprochement

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times today carried in full a proposal by a prominent Soviet nuclear physicist for widespread collaboration between the United States and the Soviet Union by the year 2000.

The Times says Andrei D. Sakharov, 47-year-old member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, has been circulating the plan among acquaintances without official sanction.

Sakharov warns that "convergence" of the two top powers is the only way of averting such dangers as thermonuclear war, overpopulation, famine in the poverty-stricken areas of the world, chemical pollution and police dictatorships of the Hitler, Stalin and Mao Tse-tung varieties.

He asserts that "the now-inevitable rapprochement" of the socialist and capitalist systems provides the hope for averting the division of mankind which "threatens it with destruction."

Sakharov says the current liberalization effort of the Czechoslovak leaders is a significant experiment in the quest for a middle ground between socialism and capitalism.

One social reform cited as essential by Sakharov is an end to "the poverty, lack of rights and humiliation" of 22,000,000 American Negroes. He says "the racism and egoism of white workers" is involved, in contrast with the usual Soviet propaganda line blaming the situation on governmental machination.

Deceptive Packages and Ads Consumer Minister's Targets

VANCOUVER (CP) — High drug prices, deceptive retail packaging and false advertising are among the first targets to be attacked by the department of consumer affairs, Ron Basford, its new minister, said Sunday.

He said in an interview that he has scheduled a heavy load of legislative reform for his department.

First priority will be revival of legislation affecting drug prices. The proposed bill would allow imports of drugs and drug components to facilitate competitive pricing with Canadian manufacturers.

The bill was held up during the last session because amendments appeared necessary, Mr. Basford said the bill will be reintroduced soon after the next session begins in September.

"If Canadian manufacturers' prices are too high, other producers can get a licence to import components," he said. "This will increase competition and keep prices down at the manufacturing level."

He said his department will also bring in a bill to standardize retail packaging.

He said regulation of packaging will insure more honesty into retail selling and purchasing. These moves may be bolstered by strengthening a Criminal Code provision that prohibits fraudulent or deceptive advertising.

He said he also is contemplating legislation to modernize the federal Companies Act to include a reform of insider trading and disclosure provisions and new legislation for the securities field.

"It would be a great benefit to industry and to investors if laws regulating securities trading were uniform throughout Canada, if companies could qualify their security issues through one agency, a federal or federal-provincial agency," he said.

Bathtub Races 35 Miles in Two Hours

VANCOUVER (CP) — Stan Vollmers, a 38-year-old Nanaimo sheet metal mechanic has designed a better bathtub, but you won't see it gracing the bathrooms of Canadian homes.

Vollmers' tub is the sea-going type, and he outran 277 other entrants Sunday in the second annual international bathtub race across Georgia Strait from Nanaimo to Vancouver.

He covered the 35-mile distance, in one of the weirdest boat races ever staged, in two hours and one minute and attributed his victory to a better design.

His outboard-driven tub allowed him to ride standing up. His right hand tripped a tubular steel bar at the front of the cockpit and the left hand steered with a long, rudder-arm extension.

Vollmers' design also enabled him to raise the bow and keep it on top of waves that reached nearly six feet during the early part of the race.

Another 128 starters probably wished they thought of the idea earlier. Their crafts sank before reaching the finish line. Only 150 starters in the crazy flotilla reached Vancouver.

"Vollmers said his crossing was "really rough."

"It's really been me up. I didn't think I could make it but I did. It's a crazy thing to do but if you think about it, it's worth it."

Followers Thinkers' Foes

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In their own time, the enemies of great thinkers are those who disagree with them. After their death, however, their worst enemies often become those who follow them.

Both Marx and Freud understood this sad fate that befalls seminal ideas. Marx is supposed to have said, "I am not a Marxist," and Freud is supposed to have echoed it with "I am not a Freudian."

What happens to such systems of thought — and to the institutions that embody them — is that their founders become distorted, vulgarized and used for purposes that are not their own.

Lenin, for example, was a great, if confused, thinker. Several different consequences flow from his body of thought, depending on which aspect of his writing you wish to consider canonical, and which part you care to slur.

Lenin took one aspect of Marx and created a hybrid called "Marxist - Leninist" thought, which emphasized one part of Marx's ideas at the expense of another part. Likewise, all Communist factions ignore those elements in Marx which do not fit into their own private ideology.

Freud, in turn, was out-Freuded by some of his disciplines. Whereas he personally was modest, tentative, and unafraid of contradictions, they have felt the need to turn him into a "pan-sexual" theorist,—which he never was, or to go along with early concepts that he would have discarded in time.

In the U.S. John Dewey's ideas on education were never as extreme and one-sided as those of his followers, who took the phrase "life-adjustment" much more seriously than he did. And, of course, William James was not the simple "pragmatist" his devotees took him to be; while Russian psychologists stress the "conditioned reflex" of Pavlov far more strenuously than he himself did.

It occurs to me that the man with the greatest idea of all would be tempted to say "I am not a Christian," if He could come back, look around, and see what has been promulgated in the name of Christianity.

It is doubtful, from my assiduous reading of the gospels if Jesus meant to start a new religion, still less a new church; doubtful if he believed in institutionalization of any sort; and almost certain that He was some kind of anarchist, some kind of pacifist, and some kind of mystic (like the Essenes to which He belonged) who would be amazed and appalled to see what has been perpetrated — and perpetuated — in His name.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For July 23

Your birthday today: Preparation is the key word this year. Everything that is attempted is only the preliminary stage of later, larger projects. The drift of the year is toward emptying your life of concern property and relationships. Abundant psychic energy is available for this although romantic ties may be thus neglected. Today's natives are gifted with personal authority.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): This is the day to settle the loose ends of your earning projects. Start early, with a definite schedule. Life at home can be rewarding this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): News from distant places stimulates your thoughts today, possibly triggering important decisions. The last piece of the jigsaw puzzle falls into place. Fresh contacts offer interesting opportunity.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Now is the time to settle what can be achieved with what you have to work with. Take the most distant or deepest item first.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Do your best soft-sell today. Somebody newly arrived from a distance is able to tell you something helpful. Entertain this evening, quietly.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Go through your correspondence to make sure you missed nothing. The circumstances require great discretion, and a go-between to work on your behalf or to attend to details. Keep your own counsel.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Start as early as you can. A good day to close deals and make deliveries. Bring your old friends together this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): This is apt to be a good, regular day. Put in a solid effort, quit at a normal time, relax early. Take the break you have earned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Begin new studies, particularly to gain mental equipment for new disciplines. Travel is likely to live up to its billing today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Call conferences. The day is favorable for making final deals. Make sure your insurance is adequate. Limited travel is essential in saving the time you need today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Today can come to a bit better terms with relatives and friends. Pay attention to what they do rather than what they say.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): This is a day of opportunity for learning. Methods change quickly; you may need to know things not subject to modern controls but still in demand.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Attack unfinished work. Make a search over your area. Make sure conditions do not get so far out of hand that there are too many strikes against you.

Iraq Regime Curbs Nasser Supporters

BAGHDAD (AP) — The men who took over Iraq in a bloodless military coup last week have cracked down on followers here of President Nasser of Egypt, excluding them from the government and throwing many of them in jail.

This is an early sign that the overthrow of President Abdul Rahman Aref Wednesday may put a heavy strain on relations between countries of the Arab world and perhaps herald further political upheavals.

In his first policy statement since what is being called here the "white revolution," Premier Abdul Razzak el Naef made no mention of socialism, the required approach for Arab revolutionaries following Nasser.

Six Youngsters Accompanied Man

ELMIRA, Ont. (CP) — Six Elmira youngsters missing since Thursday were found Sunday in Dearborn, Mich., with an unidentified 28-year-old Elmira, man, police said Sunday.

The police spokesman said they were located when a Dearborn police patrolman noticed a house trailer with an Ontario Licence in a city park.

He said the youngsters were apparently the willing companions of the man, who is wanted by police.

Police across Ontario had been looking for the youngsters —three brothers and three sisters—since they were reported missing.

The youngsters are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Selman Valerie, 14, Cynthia, 13, and Linda, 9—and the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cathres —Robert, 15, Richard, 13, and James, 12.

Elmira is 12 miles north of Kitchener.

Child Is Killed After Wedding

KINGSTON (CP) — A wedding reception ended in tragedy Saturday when a six-year-old flower girl was fatally injured while standing outside the bride's home on a county road two miles north of here.

Darlene Young, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Purdy Young, of Peterborough, had attended the marriage of her cousin, Sheila Quinlan, to Robert Barrell.

The reception at the Quinlan home was just ending when a car sideswiped a trailer, hit the child and veered into parked cars before coming to a stop. She died two hours later in hospital.

Brockville Boat Sinks

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Seventy persons scrambled to safety Sunday afternoon just before the Thousand Islands cruise ship Miss Brockville V sank in 10 feet of water.

The cruiser was starting its regular run through the Islands when a gust of wind threw its stern against the Brockville dock, ripping a hole 18 inches long below the waterline.

Snider Boat Lines of Brockville, owners of the ship, said the cruiser will be raised and repaired. The passengers continued their tour of the islands on other ships.

Oil Slick Disappears

KINGSTON (CP) — A huge oil slick threatening to move into the St. Lawrence River from Lake Ontario has dissipated, a United States Coast Guard official said Sunday night.

"The oil is no longer a threat," the spokesman said in an interview.

"It has dissipated and there appears to be little damage."

The slick, about three miles long and two miles wide, is believed to have leaked from a lake vessel. An investigation is under way to try to identify the ship.

Some of the oil washed up along the north shore of Wolfe Island near Kingston and brought complaints from cottage owners and boat operators.

David Lewis Named to Lead NDP Caucus

He becomes parliamentary leader, responsible for the party's action in the House of Commons, while Mr. Douglas looks after the business outside.

The action, taken at an NDP caucus meeting, resulted from the defeat of Mr. Douglas in the June 25 federal election. Mr. Lewis won the Commons post by defeating Andrew Brewin on a secret ballot. The vote was not announced.

At the same time, Mr. Douglas announced he would not accept offers of MPs willing to step down and let him contest a byelection and Mr. Lewis said he would not be a candidate when the party leadership convention is held.

"My hope would be that we should choose one of the new generation," Mr. Lewis said. "Mr. Douglas and I have been active in politics for the same length of time. My intention is not to contest the position."

He said the national council will meet this fall to decide when and where the leadership convention will be held. It will also consider a salary for Mr. Douglas who lost his pay cheque with the election.

Mr. Douglas said he expects to spend more time travelling across Canada and working for the party without the pressure of election campaigns.

Mr. Lewis said the national council is expected to establish a commission to direct action in various political areas and Mr. Douglas would be its leader.

94 Lose Lives

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 94 persons were killed in weekend accidents across Canada during the weekend, 75 in traffic.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, also showed 17 drownings, one death by fire and a man electrocuted.

Ontario had the worst toll with 26 fatalities—19 on the roads, six drownings and a man electrocuted when he touched a TV antenna that had fallen across a power line.

Humphrey, McCarthy To Debate

WASHINGTON (CP) — Vice-President Hubert Humphrey and Senator Eugene McCarthy, vying for the Democratic presidential nomination, agreed Saturday to a nationwide television debate sometime before the Democratic national convention Aug. 26.

Humphrey's aides say they favor a "discussion" between the two, but there was apparent disagreement on exactly when the debate should be held.

Meanwhile Governor Ronald Reagan of California predicted that former vice-president Richard Nixon won't win the Republican nomination on the first ballot at that party's convention.

TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW
NOTICE RE: NOXIOUS WEEDS

Notice is hereby given to all persons in possession of land, in accordance with The Weed Control Act of Ontario, (R.S.O. 1960), Chapter 427, Section 3 and 13, that unless noxious weeds growing on their lands within the Municipality of the Township of Thurlow are destroyed, and throughout the season as often as it is necessary to prevent the ripening of their seeds, the Municipality may enter upon the said lands and have the weeds destroyed, charging the costs against the land in taxes, as set out in the Act.

Also, under Chapter 427, Section 19, the said Act provides that every person who contravenes any of the provisions of this Act or of the regulations, or of any order made under this Act, is guilty of an offence and on summary conviction is liable for a first offence of a fine of not more than $25.00 and for a second subsequent offence to a fine of not less than $25.00 and not more than $100.00.

U.S. Stands Aloof

Russia Wants Army On German Border

Rusk Denies Plot

"I'm for closer cooperation, but vodka and cake?"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Informed sources say the United States is determined to consider the current Soviet Union-Czechoslovakia rift a domestic dispute of the Communist bloc, something in which the American government won't interfere.

The protest, delivered orally, dealt with Moscow claims that the United States has been part of a Western plot to subvert the Communist leadership of Czechoslovakia, which has been undergoing a liberalization campaign.

It was significant, the sources said, that the protest made no mention of the dispute itself.

The U.S. officials said they had no quarrel with the conclusion that the United States is taking a hands-off policy similar to that of 1956 when Hungarians revolted against the Soviet Union.

Meanwhile, Soviet diplomats in Washington privately spread the word that their government does not think in terms of a repeat performance of 1956, when more than 100,000 troops and hundreds of tanks were deployed to crush the Hungarian revolt.

Czechs Win Point, Talks on Own Soil

PRAGUE (AP) — Russia conceded to Czechoslovakia's leaders on the site for a meeting to discuss the former satellite's new liberal course and pulled the last of its troops out of Czechoslovakia Monday.

But there were reports that Moscow is demanding a strengthening of Czechoslovakia's frontier with West Germany—presumably by a Red Army force.

The Kremlin backed down from its demand for top-level talks on Soviet soil and agreed to send its Communist party politburo to Czechoslovakia for a conference with the Czechoslovak party presidium.

There was speculation it might begin Wednesday or Thursday in Bratislava or Kosice.

Agreemnt was reached after the last of some 18,500 Russian troops were reported to have withdrawn through the Soviet-Slovak border town of Presov.

The Soviet forces had remained in Czechoslovakia after Warsaw pact manoeuvres ended three weeks ago, raising a scare that Moscow might try to reverse the country's liberalization drive by armed force.

Despite the withdrawal, reliable sources in Warsaw said Soviet Army combat equipment, including rocket launchers, has been sighted a few miles from Poland's southern border with Czechoslovakia. The sources estimated the equipment was backed up by several thousand men.

Informed sources in Prague said Soviet leaders had sent a new note to the Czechoslovak government contending the Czechoslovak army is incapable of defending the country's western frontier with Germany and demanding a "solution to this situation."

Foreign Minister Willy Brandt told the West German cabinet in May that Soviet-block nations were planning for 10,000 to 12,000 non-Czechoslovak Communist troops to be stationed permanently in Czechoslovakia.

Coincident with this report, West Germany, the United States and France were reported to have changed plans to hold manoeuvres in September three miles from West Germany's border with Czechoslovakia.

West German officials predicted the exercises would be held well away from the border or at a later date in order not to give the Soviets any pretext for intervention in Czechoslovakia.

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, said today the Western allies' change of plans changed nothing. It said the manoeuvres merely will be being shifted closer to another time or another place.

Marmoraton Miners Back Steel Strike

By HARRY MULHALL, Staff Reporter

MARMORA — Local miner Cecil Bell returns to contract talks in the United States today with solid backing for strike action by workers at Marmoraton Mining Co. Ltd.

But he is hopeful of an amicable settlement.

Yesterday, the 280 members of United Steelworkers Local 4854, voted to strike by August 1, if negotiations fail.

Marmoraton, subsidiary of the giant U.S. Bethlehem Steel Corporation, is a major contributor to local economy. Besides its huge open-pit operation here, it also maintains docks at Picton for shipment of iron ore pellets to the U.S.

Mr. Bell, president of Local 4854, said yesterday's vote was 92 per cent in favor of strike action if necessary.

Israeli Plane Hijacked By Armed Palestinians

ALGIERS (AP) — An Israeli jet airliner bound from Rome to Tel Aviv was forced to land in Algiers early today by two armed Palestine refugees. The Algerian government announced that the 38 passengers were free to leave the country but the Boeing 707 and 19 members of the crew were being held.

The refugees, members of an Arab guerilla organization, had asked the Algerian government to hold the Israelis among its passengers and crew members as hostages for Arab commandos held prisoner in Israel.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, one of several Arab guerrilla groups which sends commando squads on sabotage missions in Israel, claimed in a communique issued in Beirut that one of its units took control of the plane and forced the pilot to land in Algiers.

An El Al spokesman said the pilot radioed from over the Mediterranean that an armed passenger was forcing him to change course. But a source in Algiers said two armed Palestinians broke into the captain's compartment and took over the plane.

The commando group said it was asking the Algerian government to hold the plane also.

The commando group's communique said non-Israeli passengers would be allowed to leave Algeria.

The Italian embassy in Algiers said it was told nine Italian passengers would be free to leave Algeria. They included seven Roman Catholic priests on a pilgrimage to the Holy Land.

Lawyer Finally Admits Arrested Man Is Ray

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray—charged with murdering Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.—is the same man arrested in London under the name of Ramon George Sneyd, his lawyer admitted Monday.

Arthur Hanes made the statement to reporters after Ray, 40, had pleaded innocent to a charge of murdering King.

Ray will be tried Nov. 12 on a charge of murder, a trial which could last up to six weeks.

Hanes had never referred to his client as Ray until he met with reporters after Monday's arraignment. And Ray, himself, had used the name Sneyd as recently as a week ago.

July 19, while Ray was awaiting extradition from London, Hanes refused to tell the name of his client. "That is up to the prosecution to say," replied Hanes, a former mayor of Birmingham, Ala. "They made the charges and allegations and they will have to establish his identity."

Five Bodies Are Found At Wasaga

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP) — Five bodies were found washed ashore on nearby Wasaga Beach today, Police said they were those of five persons on a Georgian Bay Cruise and had been missing since Sunday.

Collingwood police identified the bodies as Wally Zerickney, 30, of London, Ont.; Barry Eakins, 28, Sylvia Scott, 22, and Doreen Whelan, 27, all of Toronto; and Marion Collins, 23, of Sydney, N.S.

The five left this town 25 miles northwest of Barrie Sunday under ideal weather conditions for a 16-mile trip across Nottawasaga Bay to Wasaga Beach.

On Monday, search and rescue officials from the Canadian Forces base at Trenton found a cushion believed to be from the missing boat.

Crunch for Business Nears As Need to Mail Increases

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With no settlement in sight of the country-wide strike by 24,000 postal workers, business is booming for alternate services established almost overnight to transport the nation's important mail.

But the real crunch may come soon when businessmen can no longer put off sending material by mail.

Louis Lawrence, a spokesman for National Couriers of Toronto, said Monday requests for transit services are increasing daily but the strike had not yet reached the point where businessmen are forced to turn from telephone and telegraph to transportation services.

"But the pressure is increasing daily," he said.

His group was formed last Thursday when the strike began and already its volume is approaching 300 pieces of mail a day at branch offices in Ottawa and Montreal.

Similar responses came from Toronto spokesmen for Foreign Mail, Pony Express and Pacesetters, who described present volumes as varying from "not bad" to "really terrific" to "rushed."

University officials across Canada said the strike is delaying admission procedures even though most universities are using telephones and telegrams to advise students whether they have been accepted for the fall term.

Officials of Bell Canada said there has been an 11-per-cent increase in the combined total of direct and operator-handled long distance telephone calls and further increases are expected. Calls to Europe have jumped by 25 per cent.

Canadian Pacific Express officials reported an increase in business of 30 per cent while Canadian National Express an increase of 30 per cent.

Both Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Telecommunications noted a 50-per-cent increase in business.

An Air Canada spokesman said shipments have doubled to 10,000 from 5,000 pieces of mail and Canadian Pacific Airlines said that 900 pounds of mail a day are now being shipped from Toronto International Airport instead of the usual 80 to 100 pounds.

Not only is the postal strike affecting the flow of information among Canadian businesses, but the services provided by federal government departments and agencies are also being affected.

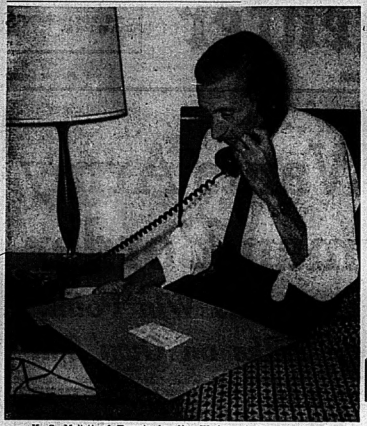
No Sign of Agreement But Talks Continuing

OTTAWA (CP) — Mediation talks in the national postal strike are due to go into yet another round today with no indication that a settlement formula is in sight.

Judge Rene Lippe of Montreal, the federal mediator, spent 3½ hours Monday in closed sessions with a representative from each side and reported Monday night that another meeting had been set for 10 a.m. EDT today.

"It is a very complicated matter," he said. "Don't expect miracles in a few days."

Earlier Monday the government's chief spokesman, Treasury Board President Drury, told reporters that a cabinet meeting Wednesday will review the postal strike situation.



Judge Lippe said the mediation talks are covering all the matters in dispute, wages and working conditions. But he warned that the situation is far more complex than the recentlysettled seaway strike and that it would take time to get all matters cleared away.

Judge Lippe said the mere fact that the mediation talks are continuing is the most hopeful sign. He declined to specify the matters under discussion.

K. S. Mallett of Toronto handles Workmens' Compensation Board business from an improvised office in Hotel Quinte for the duration of the postal strike.

Board Operates at Hotel During Postal Strike

The mail strike has upset the ordered way of life of many Canadians.

For K. S. Mallett, accountant, it has meant exile from his Toronto home to a room in Belleville's Hotel Quinte.

He has been posted here for the duration of the strike by the Ontario Workmens' Compensation Board, to handle the board's business in this part of the province.

Mr. Mallett has no complaints about his posting. He is familiar with the city from previous visits and says he always enjoys his brief stays.

"You have so many beautiful houses," he says. "I enjoy just strolling up Bridge St. and admiring them."

Mr. Mallett has had little opportunity to house-watch this visit. For most of the day, and into the evening, he distributes compensation cheques and handles accident reports from his hotel room.

Mr. Mallett is responsible for its distribution in the electoral districts of Hastings, Quinte, and Prince Edward-Lennox.

Claimants pick up their cheques at the hotel. Yesterday he received 30 cheques for delivery. He also keeps official forms on hand for any business or industry needing a supply.

Mr. Mallett can be reached through the 24 hour Quinte switchboard. He advises everyone expecting a cheque to telephone him first and avoid a fruitless trip if the expected cheque has not come in with the courier.

Strike Holds Up Loyalist Building

And if the electricians' strike continues there is some doubt that the new college building will be completely ready for opening of classes in September.

The Dalton Construction works superintendent said yesterday that there hadn't been an electrician on the job for several weeks.

As result tinsmiths, plumbers, panel installers and painters are working with less than half crews.

Partitions in the 55,000 square foot building are being left with one side open to allow completion of the wiring after the electricians' strike is ended.

"We're just keeping our fingers crossed hoping the strike will soon be over," said the works' superintendent.

Postal Strike Delays Tenders For Reconstruction of Street

The national postal strike which got underway last Thursday will hold up the official tender call for the reconstruction of West Bridge Street by about one week, it was learned today.

A notice of tender call for the project published in the newspapers several weeks ago and last week the covering bylaw was passed by city council for forwarding to Toronto for approval by the Ontario Department of Highways and the Ontario Municipal Board.

On the assurance of postal authorities that it would be delivered before the strike, the by-law was placed in the mails but work startages went into effect before delivery was made.

When city hall officials learned that the by-law had been held up a new one was hastily prepared yesterday and taken to La Vallee Lake in North Hastings for the signature of Mayor Dr. J. R. Scott.

Today the by-law is on its way by courier.

Originally it was expected that the Bridge Street reconstruction tenders could be called for specifications by the City Engineer Wilbur Purcell says that because of the postal strike and the tender closing date may now have to be set back about a week.

The contract calls for completion of the storm sewers by the end of July, but a few minor unforeseen difficulties have been encountered and the contractor is asking for a few days extension.

The engineer said he expected the requested contract extension would be granted as the difficulties encountered were no fault of the contractor.

And as it turns out with the official tender call on the reconstruction being delayed by the postal strike, the storm sewer installation will be well out of the way before construction and paving can be commenced.

Trenton's Non-striker Handling 'Odd Jobs'

Trenton's only non-striking postal employee will go on vacation beginning Monday, July 29.

Meanwhile Reid continues to do what postmaster Gordon Hanna describes as "the thousand and one odd jobs that need to be done around the office."

Trenton's postmaster noted that Reid cannot deliver mail so he helps to keep the office in order.

"Mr. Reid makes labels and does other small jobs that need to be done here in the office", said Mr. Hanna.

He will return to his regular job of delivering mail when the strike is over.

According to Mr. Hanna there should be enough work to keep the non-striker busy this week. If the strike continues beyond his holidays, Mr. Hanna believes work will build up for Reid.

When asked if a space had been made for Reid at the office Mr. Hanna had this to say:

"We didn't know who was going to work during the strike and as postal officers we have no influence on the matter. We had to take the situation as it came."

Reid is receiving $90. a week, take home pay, for handling the "odd jobs" around the Trenton Post Office.

Fellow union members who are striking say Reid will benefit from any raise gained through the strike. For this reason they believe he should not work while negotiations are underway.

John Willard (Jack) Beckwith
R.R.2, Belleville

A veteran of World War II with service in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, John Willard (Jack) Beckwith of Wallbridge, was buried last Friday in Mount Evergreen Cemetery at Trenton.

Mr. Beckwith was fatally injured a week ago while at work as a mechanic at Trudeau Motors in Belleville. He was 56.

The funeral was held from the Weaver Funeral Home Friday afternoon with service conducted by Rev. J. A. Payton of Grace United Church.

Born at Mactier, Ontario, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Beckwith and came to the Belleville area six years ago from Toronto.

He is survived by his wife, the former Lorna M. Harris, two daughters, Mrs. Foster (Joan) Hall.t, and Mrs. Lloyd (Geraldine) Mackey, both of Toronto, and a son Joseph Beckwith, also of Toronto.

He is also survived by four grandchildren, three brothers Alfred of Toronto, Charles of Smiths Falls and James of Calgary, and a sister, Mrs. Maude Stockford of Trenton.

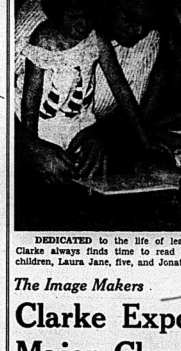
Ameliasburg Flour Mill Now at Pioneer Village

The wheels of century old Roblin's Mill which for many years produced flour for pioneer settlers in Prince Edward County at Ameliasburg are soon to again officially turn.

Purchased several years ago by the Metropolitan Conservation Authority of Toronto, the long idle mill, was moved to Black Creek Pioneer Village in North Toronto where it was painstakingly reconstructed as a memento of pioneer days.

The picturesque four storey stone structure with its four grinding equipment completely restored, will be officially opened on Thursday, July 25, by Hon. J. R. Simonett, Ontario Minister of Energy and Resources.

Norris Whitney, M.P.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox, said yesterday that there is still considerable local interest in the old Roblin Mill even though it is now situated in Toronto instead of at Roblin's Lake.



He expected that some county residents may be interested in attending the official opening of the old mill at Pioneer Village on Thursday.

Clarke Expects Major Changes

(Second in a Series on Community Leaders)

"Our greatest task is to establish a philosophy of educational process in Hastings," says James L. Clarke. "It's going to be different."

Mr. Clarke is chairman of the Bay of Quinte High School Board in January of this year and is chairman of the Interim School Organizational Committee which has been set up to organize the new county school board.

He was appointed to the school board by the city in 1962.

He believes that the new system of county school boards is going to be the "greatest change since Egerton Ryerson."

"The new county school board could be a tremendous step forward."

The man speaking, Jim Clarke, was born in 1935, in Ilford, a small suburb of London, England.

He was educated in that country at the University of Bristol where he took engineering. He came to Canada and Belleville in 1959 and immediately began employment with Wilson Concrete Products Ltd. as a junior design engineer.

At present he is a vice-president of the company and in that capacity he is company delegate to the Canada Pre-stressed Concrete Institution. As well he is chairman of the Marketing Committee of the Ontario Pre-cast Concrete Organization.

An avid tennis player, Mr. Clarke is also active in the church. He is assistant church warden at St. Thomas' Anglican Church.

Mr. Clarke has a wife, Daphne, and two children, Jonathan, eight, and Laura Jane, five.

Educational work can be exhausting and time-consuming and Mr. Clarke will admit it. But, "you enjoy it, that's why you do it."

IN MEMORIAM

MALLOY — In loving memory of a dear daughter Marie Malloy who passed away July 23, 1957.
Sweet is the memory of her dear,
Keeps her memory ever near.
—Never forgotten by mother.

REID — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Alex Reid who passed away July 23, 1965.
Time and time again we've shared
Joys and sorrows, smiles and tears,
But now memories are all we have left,
With the passing of the years.
—Ever remembered by wife Estelle, sons Morley and Malcolm, daughter Jean.

REID — In loving memory of a dear brother who passed away July 23, 1966.
Whiles reside the memory
Of a loved one gone to rest,
We think of him in silence
And those who loved him best.
The flowers we lay upon his grave,
May wither, decay, fade,
But the love for him who lies beneath
Will never die.
—Lovingly remembered by sister Brenda and brother-in-law Gord.

Belleville Resident Killed in B.C.

Mrs. Elsie Janet Langard, wife of Lawrence (Ted) Langard, died in a two car headon collision between Golden and Cranbrook, British Columbia on Saturday. The road was under construction.

Mrs. Langard, a resident of Meadowvale Avenue in Belleville, was visiting her and her husband's parents, together with the Langard's four children. The youngsters were not in the car at the time of the accident.

Mrs. Langard was vacationing from her job at Pape's Steakhouse in Belleville. Her husband is a flight engineer with 437 Squadron at CFB, Trenton.

New Experience in Dining -- Sun Luck Gardens Opens

But its uniqueness is tempered by personal familiarity, particularly in the personality of its manager, Michael Tom.

Mr. Tom, who first came to Belleville in 1952, is well-known to hundreds of city and district restaurant patrons. For many years, he was manager of the Paragon Cafe on Front street.

His latest venture expands on his experience and knowledge of local custom and its expectations.

The Sun-Luck Gardens serves both Chinese and Canadian dishes at what he terms the "usual popular prices."

It's the surroundings in which they are served that are radically different for Eastern Ontario.

Basing his design on Chinese motifs, Mr. Wardell laid out a building on two levels that includes two main dining areas, a banquet room for meetings and receptions.

Bars have been built into both restaurant levels preparatory to the management seeking a licence from the Liquor Control Board of Ontario.

There are some notable affects, particularly the fountain and indoor garden that fronts the lower - level dining area.

Each dining area can accomodate approximately 100 while the banquet room, already in use, can serve 30-40 persons.

The upper level opens today, while finishing touches still are being put to the downstairs area, expected to open in about two weeks time.

Finally — and perhaps the most important feature of any new building — there's a parking lot, with space for some 40 vehicles.

Sun-Luck is Chinese for something that is new, bright and comfortable, explains Mr. Tom.

Strike Increases Business

Vacations Cancelled for Express Workers

The volume of business handled by the railway and bus lines continues to climb as the postal strike enters its sixth day.

Canadian National Express traffic in the Rideau area is up 20 per cent over pre-strike levels and vacations have been cancelled for employees in Belleville and Ottawa until the strike ends.

"We have had to employ some temporary casual staff in Ottawa and Belleville," R. G. Messenger, operations manager of the CN's Rideau area said today. The area extends from Oshawa to Dorval, Que.

"Traffic is moving smoothly and well," he added.

Mr. Messenger said businesses, which switched to parcel post for shipment of lightweight goods when the CN raised its rates, are now switching back to express.

"We have noted a big increase in air-express out of Ottawa, for the most part in federal government material," he reported.

The operations manager could not estimate the number of people sending letters express, enclosed in small parcels, but doubts if many use the dodge.

Cost of mailing a letter to Toronto in this fashion is $3.

Spokesmen at CN Telecommunications said employees' hours of work have been extended to cope with the increased volume of business passing through the office.

One part-time telephone operator has been hired, but no vacations have been cancelled as yet.

The office has no backlog of telegrams piling up, and while they report they are "busy," employees add that the messages are going out on time.

At the bus terminal, number of packages shipped is up by 50 per cent, James Jarrett estimates.

"We handle small stuff for the most part — loan company mail and forms for the federal taxation department and the like," he said.

No extra staff has been hired.

Meanwhile, back at the empty post office, the postmaster and six supervisors continue to report for work each day.

No mail box pick-ups are being made and no mail is moving.

In Kingston, where regular pick-ups at street mail boxes are being made, the post office reports finding about five per cent of the average daily mail volume deposited.

Hardest hit by the strike are pensioners of American and British companies who now live in Canada. Their cheques are being held up at border points by the embargo on mail entering the country, and they will have to await the end of the strike before receiving them.

Textbook Refurbishers

Lorraine Kokesh and Carol Richardson work on some of the 2,000 textbooks they and three other students have been repairing in the basement of BCI for the last three weeks. High school students are employed each summer in city secondary schools to put damaged texts in shape for the coming school year.

Fire Hazard Rated High

TWEED — Forest fire hazard was rated high in the northern zone of the Quinte district today as firefighters sought to control a 15-acre blaze northeast of here.

Warm weather has pushed the hazard rating higher in recent days, drying out district forests as outdoor vacation travel peaks in the area.

Scene of the latest outbreak was Abinger township in Lennox and Addington County.

Marmoraton Miners Back Strike

The Marmora miner is the only Canadian representative on a union advisory committee involved in contract negotiations since mid-April. Current talks seek a 6½ per cent across-the-board increase over three years, he said.

Basic rate at Marmoraton is $2.45 said Mr. Bell.

He returns today to Pittsburgh where the next bargaining moves are awaited following similar strike-supporting votes by steelworkers across the continent.

"I think we've a good chance of getting a settlement," said Mr. Fyfe optimistically.

However, he revealed, union officials met with Marmoraton management yesterday to discuss the affects of strike action.

"If there is a strike we'll give them lots of time for an orderly shutdown," said Mr. Bell.

A shutdown is a matter of grave concern for the local population since it would drastically inhibit the economy.

Marmoraton sparked a minor boom in the area when it opened 15 years ago.

There was a six-week strike in 1956, but the most vivid memories of economic cutbacks date from 1959 when the miners launched their second walkout.

That strike dragged on for nearly four months before a settlement was reached.

"It took a long time to get over that," he recalled.

He was hopeful Marmoraton miners could secure their demands without a strike.

Negotiations on local issues began April 15 at Marmoraton, then later switched to international levels. First in New York, then Pittsburgh, said Mr. Bell.

Much progress has been made on such issues, involving local working conditions, said the local president.

"We started with 3,156 issues — now they've been cut down to 24."

CN Employees To Be Transferred

CNR realignment of work schedules in its national car department operations will mean the transfer of 17 long-service employees from Belleville.

The men, all car inspectors, may be moved to Ottawa, Montreal or Toronto in what the railroad calls a readjustment to modern work requirements.

Most of the men have "quite a bit of service" as freight car inspectors in the Belleville yards, confirmed Ron Messenger, CNR Rideau area operations manager today.

The men inspect freight cars for repairs at the Belleville yards. Most major repair work now is concentrated in larger centres, hence the transfers, said Mr. Messenger.

"This is just a realignment of staff in light of 1968 requirements," he added.

The move will affect no other part of the CNR's Belleville work force involved in repair programs "related to Belleville-and-area requirements."

Club Honors Auctioneer For Work During Sale

PCTON (Staff) — "It's about time that somebody did something for Creighton Carr," said Chris Lockyer, past president of the Picton Kiwanis Club.

He presented a briefcase on behalf of the club to Mr. Carr yesterday.

Mr. Carr, a local auctioneer, donated his time and effort last month during the club's mammoth auction sale. More than $800 was raised.

Mr. Lockyer pointed out that Mr. Carr has put great effort into the annual horse show here as well.

"The show has not always been financially successful", said Mr. Lockyer. "But it has always entertained many people, both young and old."

Said Mr. Carr in accepting the briefcase: "I was only doing my part as a member of the community by helping with the auction sale. As for the horse show there is a great deal of work to be done but it doesn't seem like that when you enjoy what you are doing."

Strikes Are Passe

The summer of 1968 will probably go down in history as the year of "the big strike," but not the kind you are looking for while fishing.

Coming on top of an expensive federal election in which all parties agreed the economy of the country was in an unhealthy state, the financial impact of the country's strikes is enough to drive a man to drink — now that the beer strike has been settled.

And talking about the beer strike, who won that nonsensical battle?

The workers obviously didn't gain enough in pay and fringe benefits to offset loss of wages. The brewing industry suffered a costly 24-day shutdown at a peak seasonal time. The revenue of the province dropped through a substantial cut in tax revenue. The strikers failed to gain the sympathy of the populace and the brewing industry can be criticized for its arrogant, arbitrary exercise of power. Even the province of Ontario must suffer in prestige for giving the brewers a monopoly and then allowing them to flaunt this position in front of the buying public.

The recently settled seaway strike cost millions of dollars a day in lost revenue. The postal strike is moving to a point where it is crippling communications. Locally, the strike of electricians contributed to a setback in the opening date of the Belleville General Hospital's new wing.

Garbage collectors in Toronto literally "raised a stink" when they went on strike earlier this year.

And what does it all prove.

Only that a group of men, if they are stubborn enough, can halt the provision of a service, even if it costs them money.

Only that management, if its hackles are raised enough, can perpetuate the strike past the point of practical solution, knowing that it might be hurt financially but not crippled.

And it also proves the general public, coerced, flaunted, used and abused, is always the loser.

Strikes have outlived their usefulness in the growth of our way of life. It is time unions and management agreed that a better solution to resolve difficulties must be found.

Highway Trouble Spots

Every Monday, residents of the Quinte area read about the accident toll which has mounted over the weekend. Fortunately, in list this week did not include injuries or death at the intersection of Highways 2 and 49 at the approach to Deseronto.

But it was more good luck than good management.

On Sunday, a station wagon bearing adults and children closely followed by a heavy car, barrelled through the stop sign at Highway 49 at 60 miles an hour. Traffic on Highway 2 was heavy, but the speeding cars fortunately squeezed through a gap in the east-west flow.

The intersection has not been without death since the skyway was opened linking the mainland with Prince Edward county.

At the last Hastings county council meeting protests that the intersection was not safe were sidelined when the comment was made the Ontario department of highways was conducting a survey.

Well, that answer is not good enough and the safety of residents in this area must not be ignored any longer. The approach to Highway 2 from the bridge is not adequately marked with warnings that a stop is required at Highway 2. In addition the hump created by the overpass of the mainline CPR tracks eliminates vision of traffic on Highway 2.

The advantages of the bridge certainly are not of such a size that they outweigh the injury and death brought about by the creation of a hazardous intersection.

The department of highways cannot wait any longer. Additional safety measures should be taken this week — not next year.

Safe for Swimming

News that Zwick's Island park is still safe for swimming is a happy item in these dog days of summer. With other areas around the bay being ruled off limits because of pollution, it's nice to know the city's residents can go for a swim right at their front door.

It was a worrisome few days last week when authorities said there was a possibility the swimming area would have to be closed. It only highlights the urgency behind MPP Richard Potter's fight to ease the pollution problem in the Bay of Quinte.

Trudeau's Dream For Canada Was Winning Ticket

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield sat quietly on the visitors' side of his Centre Block office desk and talked of what went wrong — and why—in the election campaign.

He looked back objectively, with regret but no bitterness.

Nor were there any recriminations.

And he made clear there would be no scapegoats.

"Scapegoats?" he repeated. "Of course not. What good are scapegoats?"

What essentially went wrong was this:

Mr. Stanfield and the Conservatives, by his own accounting of it, were too "rigid," and for some reason were not able to adjust quickly enough to the changing election mood.

Prime Minister Trudeau talked "generalities."

Not, emphasized Mr. Stanfield "glittering generalities."

There was nothing "hollow" or "empty" about them.

They were good. They made sense. They were what the people wanted to hear.

They were the "generalities" of the feeling Pierre Trudeau had of "the kind of Canada Canadians want."

Too late, says Mr. Stanfield, the Conservatives, and he, most of all, realized this.

They had made the mistake of, as Mr. Stanfield put it, "talking in specifics."

They had worked hard on policy, been working for months before the election was called.

And they had some good policy ideas. On housing. On taxes. On government spending. On prices and the cost of living.

All bread and butter stuff. Should have been just what the electorate ordered.

But it was not.

The national mood had changed.

But only the Liberals realized how drastically.

It was apparent to both Conservatives and Liberals, says Mr. Stanfield, that the voting public was not going to buy promises.

Even in the underdeveloped regions where previously promises of pension or baby bonus increases had been politically salable, this kind of thing was a drug on the election market.

"Perhaps people are becoming more sophisticated," suggests Mr. Stanfield, "and are more concerned with what it's going to cost them in taxes than what they're going to get in benefits."

It could be, too, that finally the taxpayers understand the government always takes more than it gives.

You pay, say for example, $1 in taxes that is to go into the family allowance fund — but you get a good deal less than the $1 back.

And for the simple reason that somebody — you, the taxpayer — has got to go good for the paper work in the operation, the accounting, the clerical handling charges.

So the initial $1 in tax shrinks to maybe 85 cents in baby bonus.

Every time the government does something for you, it costs you money.

So nobody, Liberal or Conservative, made promises as such.

What Prime Minister Trudeau did so successfully was "reflect a generalities" what kind of Canada he could lead Canadians into — just the sort of a country they wanted to hear about.

Mr. Stanfield realized this one afternoon on the platform of a little town on the Lake Huron shore of Western Ontario.

A student asked him to talk not in specifics of policy but in the generalities of a brighter, better Canada.

He should have been talking in just such appealing terms all along the campaign trail, but it was too late in the election day to change and the strategy was set.

Next time the Conservatives will keep their political thinking fluid enough to read and reflect the mood of the nation.

You leave Robert Stanfield's office quietly convinced that he could be prime minister in five years.

Dictatorship In Greece

Ottawa Citizen

Under a new constitution to be voted on in a referendum Sept. 29 the cabinet will rule by decree in all important matters. Parliament will be mere windowdressing.

Thi press is to remain tightly controlled; criticism will be stifled on the grounds that the press must perform a public mission. The monarchy may be restored at a future date, but stripped of all power. The king will have to take th eadvice of a "national council".

The membership of the Greek Parliament will be reduced to 150 from 300.

"If the country approves the constitution, the dictatorship will acquire the outward trappings of legitimacy. More, fundamentally, it will continue as the offspring of a coup d'etat spawned by a group of generals who destroyed democracy in Greece.

Postal Workers' Strike

Montreal Le Devoir—The

postal service demands, by its own nature, an almost flawless continuation. It is the general interest that demands this. It cannot be interrupted without greatly wrenching the entire public. The public can, in the final analysis, admit that the safeguarding of a particular interest compels it to accept certain privations. But the particular interest must be perfectly manifest and its safety seriously threatened. Unfortunately, we don't find these two factors in the case of the postal workers.

Newspaper reports say to effect that a postal worker's salary varies between $2.63 and $2.75 an hour. The 75 cents extra they are claiming would bring it to between $3.38 and $3.50 an hour. Prime Minister Trudeau is right in saying these demands are exaggerated in the present economic context. . . . One might well say that, taking into account the qualifications required for these jobs, we are not witnessing grave injustices.

A British manufacturer has developed an invasion-of-privacy gadget which directs a laser beam against windows and picks up conversations within the room by vibration.

We'd be worried about this one if it weren't for the calming facts of history.

The bow and arrow were countered by the shield. The machine gun was countered by the tank. The atomic bomb was countered by the principle of deterrent atomic bombs. For each weapon there is a defence.

It's easy to image a defence against the laser beam eavesdropper, and an appropriately inhuman and diabolical defence at that.

In any room where spying is suspected, simply install a powerful record player, armed with rock 'n roll records and timed to go into action at the approach of the laser beams.

Nigerian Civil War

Move Toward Resumption of Peace Negotiations

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) — African leaders attempting to sponsor peace in Nigeria after a year of civil war are grappling with a familiar problem of the 1960s.

The six-nation Organization of African Unity managed Friday to get Nigeria and the breakaway Eastern region, Biafra, to agree to preliminary negotiations in Niamey, Niger, and then resume peace discussions in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

But the effort involved in obtaining this agreement points up the dilemma that has plagued not only the newly independent African states but some of the older countries, including Canada: How to get people of different cultural backgrounds to live together as one nation.

Efforts to relieve starvation in Nigeria's embattled areas are blocked by long-standing rivalries among peoples lumped together by colonial conquest, inherited with Nigeria's independence Oct. 1, 1960.

The Ibos, Hausas and Fulani people of Northern Nigeria are dominated by Christian and pagan Ibos, Yorubas, Tivs and Edos because of their historical role as expansionists and the fact they were largely favored over other Nigerians by British colonial administrators, who made sure they got the whip hand at independence.

The Ibos of Eastern Nigeria are envied by compatriots and often disliked by resident whites, because they are brashly progressive — taking readily to education, business and administration and occupying the richest part of Nigeria.

The Ibos were dominant in the Eastern region—called Biafra since it seceded May 30, 1967—but they have had to worry about possible federal Nigerian loyalties among 5,000,000 members of minor tribes in the region.

Complicating traditional cultural divisions is a network of personal and political jealousies, competition for promotion in the army, rivalry for control of oil resources, cold-war politics and, lately, intervention by foreign public relations men.

The Ibo-dominated Eastern region party boycotted the first federal election in December, 1964. A year later, the Ibos became alarmed as a Hausa-Yoruba alliance was strengthened through rigged elections that returned a pro-federal government in the Western region.

The precedent of politics by bloodshed was established Jan. 15, 1966, when young, mainly-Eastern army officers rebelled and killed the Northerners running the federal government, the Northern and Western premiers and many army officers from the North and West.

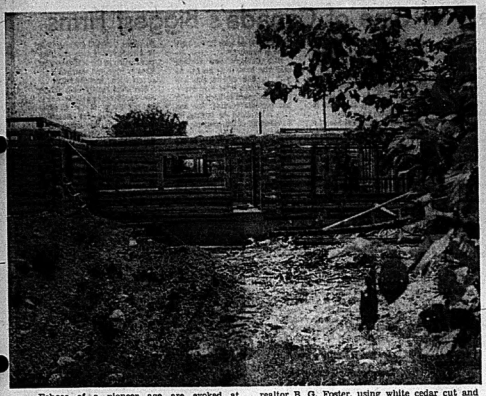
Maj.-Gen. Aguiyi Ironsi, the Ibo who took over in Lagos, denounced tribalism as the country's main problem and proposed to supplant federalism by a unitary state.

Northern suspicions that Ironsi's constitutional proposal was really an Ibo power play were supported by such pro-Ibo actions as army promotions for 19 Ibos and only four non-Ibos in six months.

Anti-Ibo riots erupted in the North in May, July, September. Officers mutinied July 29 and killed Ironsi. The slaughter of the Ibos continued this fall. Estimates of the number killed ranged between 10,000 and 30,000, while almost 2,000,000 fled to their homeland in the Eastern region.

Lt.-Col. Yakubu Gowon, 33, who has headed the federal regime since the coup of July, 1966, is a British-educated Northerner, but a Christian of the minority Tiv tribe.

Gowon's solution was to subdivide the country into 12 federated states in an attempt to break down the largely-tribal regional system that tended to exaggerate differences among an estimated 40,000,000 people sharing a country the size of British Columbia.



Lt.-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu, 34, son of a multi-millionaire and a contemporary of Gowon's at British military schools, declared Biafra's independence May 3, 1967, and had initial success against federal troops after fighting began July 6.

TIDE TURNS

Sympathy for Biafra began to grow after Markpress of Geneva, a public relations firm, began handling Biafran publicity.

The British public relations firm of Gallizine, Chant and Russell took charge of federal propaganda because, a spokesman was quoted as saying, the Biafran account was being handled so brilliantly.

Echoes of a pioneer age are evoked at Plainfield as workmen construct a log house for realtor B. G. Foster, using white cedar cut and peeled on the site.

Log Cabin With A Difference

Tradition dies hard in a pioneer community.

Witness the happening on Highway 27 just north of the Ontario Home for Retarded Infants at Plainfield.

No, your eyes aren't fooling you. That is a log cabin going up, but a log cabin with a difference.

Up-dated to 1968 standards, this log house encloses 1,500 square feet of living space, contains four bedrooms and will be equipped with electrical heating and air-conditioning.

B. G. Foster, local realtor, is building the house for his family, from an original design drafted by his wife and himself.

"The idea isn't strictly original," he admits, "Sam Ray in Madoc has a similar house and he has advised me on some details of construction."

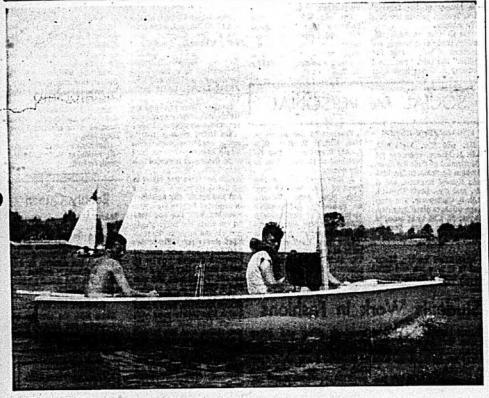
None have built with logs before, "but they seem to have a good idea of what it's all about from a country carpenter's general knowledge." Mr. Foster says.

The project began in the white cedar bush on Mr. Foster's 150 acres at Plainfield.

Last fall he cut over 200 logs for the house, and peeled them the hard way — with draw knives especially made for the job. The longest span in the house required 27-foot logs.

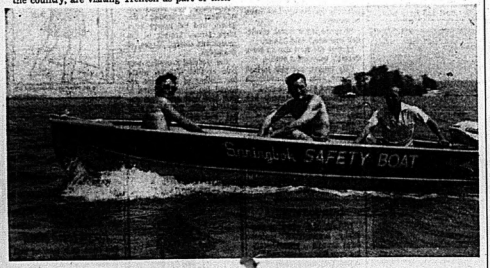
The logs were notched and raised on the concrete block basement foundation. Conventional framing was then constructed inside the log shell.



Wire mesh is now being tacked in the spaces between the logs, and will eventually be packed with mortar.

Mr. Foster hopes to cut his own cedar shake shingles for the roof. The interior will have exposed hand-hewn barn timbers in the ceilings, and barn - board and slab walls.

The logs will be finished with a combination preservative - stain, and final touch will be a field stone fireplace for use in case of power failure.



"We wanted something a bit different in a house," Mr. Foster explained.

While air cadets visiting Trenton get a chance to sail, this power crash boat follows the cadets to bail them out of any trouble. So far the cadets have not had much use for the boat as they are becoming successful sailors.

Forty seven air cadets from all over Canada last night boarded a plane at CFB Trenton to begin their journey to Europe. They are some of the 62 cadets who are part of the 1968 International Air Cadet exchange.

Air Cadets Travel to Europe

TRENTON — "It's going to be great, we get to see the world and it doesn't cost us a cent."

These were the words of air cadet, George Olmstead as he prepared for his transatlantic flight last night. The flight will end at Larr, Germany but for the cadets their visits to new countries will be just beginning.

It's all part of the International Air Cadet visits by which 62 cadets will spend from three to five weeks visiting foreign lands.

Forty seven of the number will visit the United Kingdom and other European countries while 15 cadets will devote their attention to the U.S.

It was at 6 p.m. last night that 47 cadets boarded a plane at CFB Trenton to land hours later in Larr, Germany. From here they will break up into smaller groups to visit various countries.

They came to the base on July 17 for briefing. They were told that they would be visiting 12 countries including the U.S. and the United Kingdom.

Return parties from each of these countries will be entertained in Canada by the Air Cadet League and the Canadian Armed Forces.

The idea of the exchange program was initiated in 1947 with the exchange of 46 cadets between the U.S. and the U.K. Since then the project has grown steadily until it reached its present height.

Besides promoting goodwill and friendship, the exchange serves as a means of rewarding those cadets who have rendered outstanding service to their squadrons over the years.

The cadets will return on August 16 but as Cadet Olmstead put it, "That's a long way away."

DOW ALE WINS GOLD MEDAL IN WORLD COMPETITION

From among 81 different brands of beer entered by 32 of the world's leading breweries at the 7th World Beer Olympics held in Bavaria, Dow was awarded the only Gold Medal for ale. This award was made by an international-jury on the basis of 21 exhaustive tests for quality, flavour and appearance. Dow was the only Canadian ale to be so honoured. The Gold Medal symbolizes Dow Ale's high standard of excellence.

Woman Is Secretary of One of Canada's Biggest Firms

HAMILTON (CP) — From secretary to the sales manager to secretary of the company is not a route many women have taken. Dorothy M. Cauley has, to become secretary of one of Canada's biggest companies, Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd.

Her appointment by 12 male directors gave Dofasco its first woman as secretary of the company.

"Yes, I was surprised. I thought some of them might have some uneasiness about a woman. But I guess they know me pretty well."

Miss Cauley started at Dofasco 30 years ago, as secretary to the sales manager, fresh out of Grade 13 and a business course. She says she was one of eight girls in office jobs. Now there are 350 out of 7,000 employees.

During the Second World War Miss Cauley took over from her boss who became one of Ottawa's dollar-a-year men. Miss Cauley handled plate development, scheduling in the mill and some initial resistance to dealing with a woman.

"At first when I was running the order department, old time steel people would hesitate to deal with a girl. But when they found I knew what they were talking about and sometimes after a few strong words on my part, for instance, saying no in a nice way, we were fine."

Miss Cauley, who has been assistant secretary since 1957, is the only woman in the executive post in her company. She says prejudice is a factor in the fact that few women achieve board room rank.

"The attitude of management has a lot to do with it. Perhaps mine is unusual."

Miss Cauley's own attitude may also have something to do with it. She admits she has taken home a brief case every night for years to keep up with her business reading. She has also maintained an intense interest in all of the company operation.

She lives in Burlington in the family home with two sisters and a brother.

One of her extra-curricular occupations fits the executive pattern. She plays golf at the Hamilton Golf and Country Club in Ancaster. She says she likes to vacation in the Maine woods, likes to read and watches a bit of television while she knits.

She knits mostly baby things for charity organizations. She is on the board of the Catholic Children's Aid for Hamilton Wentworth, on the executive of the Mount St. Joseph's Home for disturbed boys, and has been on the board of the Ontario Children's Aid Societies.

This year she will be the first woman to head the Hamilton district United Appeal.

MR. AND MRS. RONALD F. HIGH

High – Cowey

Father P. J. Carty officiated at the July wedding at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel when Glenda May Cowey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Cowey, of Belleville, was united in marriage to Ronald Francis High, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank High.

Organist for the ceremony was Miss Dorothy Grant, and the soloist was Robert Burke.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length shift of crystal crepe enhanced by a scoop neckline and three-quarter sleeves trimmed with a wide border of rhinestoned Alencon lace. The train was of the same material, also trimmed with a wide border of matching lace. The headpiece was a cluster of large organza petals and appliqued lace, embroidered with tiny seed pearls and crystals. Attached was a four-tier nylon organza veil scalloped at the edges, falling gracefully to her shoulders. She carried a semi-cascade of red roses and fern.

Maid of honor, Miss Anne Culhane, wore a floor-length gown of aqua spray featuring empire waist and scooped neckline. The long sleeves and semi-attached floating panels of chiffon gave a cocktail effect. The gown was trimmed at the waist and cuffs with imported Swiss embroidery. She wore flowers woven through her hair matching that of her crescent bouquet of white and aqua mums.

Bridesmaids, Miss Sandra High, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Marlene Denard were attired similar to the maid of honor and they also wore flowers woven through their hair and carried white and aqua mums.

Attending the bridegroom was James Haley; and the ushers were Rosa Chase and Dennis Meagher.

The wedding reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club where the bride's mother received the guests attired in a pale pink sheath dress and jacket ensemble in lace over taffeta, with pink hat and white accessories. She wore a corsage of blue tinted carnations.

The mother of the bridegroom was outfitted in an aqua Swiss eyelet princess line dress with a silk linen sleeveless coat to match. Her flowered headpiece and other accessories matched her ensemble. Her corsage was pink and tinted carnations.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and points North, the bride chose an ensemble of ice orange lace over taffeta sheath with a matching orange sleeveless duster coat in silk linen. Her accessories were white and she wore a corsage of pale orange roses.

Upon their return, the couple will reside at 140 William St., Apt. 12, in Belleville.

Toronto Family Runs 109-year Old Farm

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Six years ago the William Hoey family left Toronto for the quiet life on a 109-year-old farm near here.

Mr. Hoey abandoned city pressures to become a sheep farmer, retiring early from his job as a timekeeper mainly to enjoy the peace and quiet of rural Ontario.

It's not easy, this business of being a farmer's wife, Mrs. Hoey says. She has found that in addition to running her home and making her handicrafts, she has had to become a part-time midwife.

Mrs. Hoey delivers most of the lambs herself. That's the sort of thing that happens on a sheep farm.

The Hoeys call their home Elm Tree Farm. The old stone building is set off by fields, a rambling garden, a pond and a well-weathered barn. To enter the farmhouse is to return to the simple life of pioneer Canada.

Mrs. Hoey finds Elm Tree Farm a perfect setting for her own career as an artisan. Inside the house, which she has filled with early Canadian furniture, Elizabeth Hoey hand paints ceramic tiles and spins and dyes the wool from her husband's sheep. One of the farm's outbuildings serves as a studio for silk-screening fabrics; another contains the kiln in which she fires ceramic tiles and pottery.

Although the city is a mere 45 miles to the east, you seldom find time to get into Toronto," says Mrs. Hoey without regret.

But the bucolic life is not as restful as it seems. "Going back to the land means hard work," she says.

Every morning the Hoeys are up by 6 a.m. Mr. Hoey looks after his flock of sheep and Mrs. Hoey might be found doing almost anything—painting tiles, firing pottery, dying wool, looking after the house, delivering a lamb, or perhaps spinning or knitting in the living room.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR D. LUCAS

Lucas – Whittaker

Rev. Edgar Larimer officiated at the July marriage ceremony when Geortina Jeannette Whittaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] of Belleville was united in marriage to Arthur Douglas Lucas son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lucas, also of Belleville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length sheath [illegible] nylon sheer over imported Belgian taffeta. The [illegible] length net train was fastened at the waist with a tiny bow and was set off with appliques of imported Belgian lace. Harmonizing with the appliques on the train, the Belgian lace was utilized again in the scalloped shoft sleeves. The bride's headdress was four tiers of imported French tulle in which nestled tiny taffeta petals and crystal buds. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Bridesmaids, Miss Lois Kelleher and Miss Maureen Thompson dressed identically to the matron of honor, carried a basket of pink and white mums. Flower girl, Miss Janae Whittaker, niece of the bride, wore a white taffeta floor-length gown with white lace and blue trim, and carried a basket of pink and white mums.

Attending the bridegroom was Gary Lucas, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Mark Lucas, brother of the groom and George Magee, of Brampton.

The wedding reception was held at Club Canara, where the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a pink lace coat and dress ensemble with matching pink hat and white accessories, wearing a corsage of pink roses and green carnations.

The mother of the bridegroom was attired in a turquoise lace dress with white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

For the wedding trip to Quebec City and Gaspe Bay, the bride chose a white eyelet dress with pale pink hat and gloves and contrasting darker pink shoes and purse, with a complementing corsage of pink carnations.

MD Speaks at Family Planning Seminar

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Birth control knowledge will not encourage pre-marital sexual intercourse, but it may save young persons from the consequences of false information, Dr. Fred Kincl of the population Council of New York said Wednesday.

Dr. Kincl told a seminar on family planning that in some parts of the United States a black market traffic that feeds on the ignorance of youth exists in connection with birth control pills.

He said young girls are sold "a pill for a night's date" in the belief they can avoid pregnancy if sexual intercourse takes place.

"The pill-for-tonight method doesn't work," Dr. Kincl said.

"Doctors who prescribe oral contraceptives for their patients usually advise them to avoid intercourse or use alternative means of birth control for almost a month until after the medication has begun."

Dr. Kincl said knowledge of birth control is not an instigator of promiscuity, but rather protection against the mistakes of youth.

He said it is up to physicians to supply birth control knowledge. The public, he said, is entitled to know all about methods of birth control.

"Crucial Time in History of Family"

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — These are crucial times the world over, but the leaders of La Leche International believe the greatest crisis is that of motherring, like the art of breastfeeding, is in danger of dying out."

Marian Tomson, president and co-founder of La Leche, said its third international convention of the arts of mothering and breast feeding face extinction "for lack of understanding and support."

Listening to her remarks were nearly 1,000 mothers from Canada, the United States, Mexico, Argentina and South Africa. La Leche is Spanish for "the milk."

"This is a crucial time in the history of the family," Mrs. Tomson said in her keynote address.

"On all sides we see organizations ready to take over the functions of both mother and father," she said. "Pre-school and day nurseries have been followed by pre-school and infant-care centres."

Mrs. Tomson, a mother of seven children at Franklin Park, Ill., said institutional care is necessary in some circumstances.

But she said La Leche members fear "institutional care will become the norm unless we stand up for the rights of our children to a warm, personalized family life."

SOCIAL And PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Post, R.R. 1, Madoc, announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Lamoine, to Mr. Malcolm Ronald Mustard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mustard, R.R. 5, Chatsworth. The marriage will take place Saturday, August 24, 1968 at 12 noon, in The Avenue Road Church, Toronto.

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Ronald F. High (nee Glenda May Cowey) was entertained at showers given in her honor.

A shower was held at the home of Mrs. Doris Culhane with Miss Anne Culhane as co-hostess and another at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Nolan, with Mrs. Carroll Bailey as co-hostess, with the staff of the Royal Bank where the bride is employed, attending. The staff of the bank also presented the couple with a gift.

More Fat Than Lean in Beef

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. Cynthia Powell, an Ottawa housewife, said in Carleton county court Monday she ended up with only one pound of lean meat by the time she finished trimming the fat off an eight-pound roast.

Testifying at the preliminary hearing of two employees of Beef Town Freezer Meats, Mrs. Powell said 1,304 pounds of beef delivered to her home freezer was not the same meat she purchased on a visit to the firm.

The employees, Claude Mulaire, 24, and Gilles Chabot, 26, are charged with conspiracy to defraud the public.

"It was pretty nearly all fat, there was hardly any lean meat on it at all," she stated under questioning by Crown prosecutor. But the advertised beef, at 53 cents a pound, turned out to be "nothing but fat."

She said she and her husband, William, were attracted to Beef Town by a newspaper advertisebought.

Later, the Powells returned 293 pounds of fat meat to Beef Town and were told it would be replaced. Mrs. Powell said she weighed the replacement meat on her own scales at home and it was only "125 or 130 pounds." The new meat was no less fat than the meat she had returned, she said.

Mulaire and Chabot were arrested March 26 at their place of work in one of seven police raids carried out across Ontario on frozen-meat outlets. Mulaire is free on $10,000 bail, Chabot on $3,000 bail.

The hearing continues.

Engagement Notice

Miss Linda M. Hogg — Gerald R. Buzzell

The engagement is announced of Miss Linda Margaret Hogg, daughter of Mrs. Allan Hogg and the late Flying Officer Allan Hogg, to Gerald Raymond Buzzell, son of Professor and Mrs. Hall Buzzell of Northfield Falls and Newport, Vermont. The marriage will take place at Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, on August 31.

Students Work in Fashions

PARIS (AP) — The youthful ferment that turned France's educational system upside down in May has spread to the fashion industry.

Newcomers 25 to 25 are taking on responsibilities in some of the major haute couture establishments.

Jeanne Lanvin's director, Denise Masson, discovered a dark-haired, green-eyed 25-year-old student, Marie-Cristine Deshayes. Tall and slim, she is in her second year at the Beaux Arts school and loves painting, horseback riding and guitar playing.

"But I have always dreamed of becoming a real model," she said. "Papa and Mama have given me permission to stay out until midnight this week, and that is not easy to obtain from them."

The youngest press attache of any house is Carlin's Francoise Carlin Bastier, 23, a graduate of a two-year liberal arts course. When Bastier was 19, Pierre Cardin introduced him with press relations for his two Left Bank boutiques.

"It made my cultural revolution long ago," said Bastier.

"I was the first one to wear Cardin's controversial suits.

"My parents are still furious with me, even though everyone tells them I have made good."

Traditionalist Molyneux has welcomed three young designers.

The trio includes Mario Biancchetto, 22, who won an Italian government scholarship five years ago; Lars Illingso, 18, a Dane who won an international wool prize, and Michel-Philippe Laroche, 25, a nephew of the late Jacques Fath.

CALL FOR PICKERS

DIGBY, N.S. (CP) — The Digby horticultural project farm expects a record-breaking crop this summer and has called for more than 1,000 strawberry pickers to harvest the 1,000,000-quart crop. The agriculture department said a fast picker can earn up to $28 a day, while an average picker should be able to earn more than $12 a day.

AMOUNT DOUBLES

Since 1935, the amount of hamburger one hour's work will buy has doubled from 2.2 to 4.4 pounds.

Mono of London designs for the young for fall include: on the left, a coat in moufion with scalloped front and gilt-rimmed buttons; centre, a trench coat of Donegal tweed with tortoise shell buckle and buttons; and right, a coat in a check British wool with side-fastened collar, worn over a white dress in Saxony with short sleeves. Shown also are two coats and suit from Mono of London. Gili buckles highlight the dark melton coat which also features an inverted pleat with gilt buckle at the back. The collarless coat next is in an all wool transverse stripe and is worn over a dress in black Saxony with short sleeves and a large roll collar which is visible above the coat. On the right, an all wool Prince of Wales check suit featuring large patch pockets with flaps.

Ann Landers

When Trouble Strikes Friends Are Revealed

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I don't need advice. I'd like to give some. Please tell your readers that no woman knows for sure who her real friends are until she has announced she is getting a divorce. Here is what happened to me.

My husband and I were having trouble. I sought counselling (Jim would not go). After a while things seemed utterly hopeless so I filed for a divorce. The moment the word was out that Jim and I were splitting up, I was flooded with phone calls from people who had all sorts of "interesting" things to tell me "now that it is over."

Neighbors and acquaintances and even relatives offered to buy my better pieces of furniture (at low prices) "to help you out." Two of my closest friends applied for my job because they were sure I wouldn't remain in the city. A half dozen men (friends of Jim's) gallantly offered to provide the sex that would be missing from my life. (They'd have been shocked to know how little there was to miss.)

It so happens that after I filed, Jim agreed to go for counselling and now we are getting along much better. It appears now that here will be no divorce, but it was worth the trouble to learn who my real friends are.

Please tell your readers how we never know what people are like until they run into marital trouble. — WISER NOW.

* * *

DEAR WISER: You told them — and in way I never could have. Thanks.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our baby sitter is a nice girl, 15 years of age. Whenever we come home, even is it's as early as 10:00 p.m. she is sound asleep and we have to shake her for five minutes to wake her up.

This worries me. I wonder what would happen if one of the children became ill and needed attention. I worry, too, about, the possibility of fire, an intruder, or heaven knows what. When that girl falls asleep the children are as good as alone.

What are your views on this subject, Ann Landers? I have never seen this problem discussed in your column. — MOTHER OF THREE.

DEAR MOTHER: A sitter who sleeps like 10 dead elephants is of no value to you — or for that matter to anyone else. A girl who cannot be awakened by a telephone, a doorbell or a child's call should not fall asleep. After all, she is being paid to take care of the children while the parents are absent and if she snoks out she is not doing her job.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I enjoyed your straight-from-the-shoulder reply to the man who complained because American women want the same privileges that men get, such as smoking cigarettes on the street, sitting on bar stools, lapping up the booze, driving cabs and trucks, working in factories and becoming lawyers, doctors and engineers. Yet they expect men to get up on the bus and give them their seats.

During the last war, Germany had the same problems and they solved it very simply. They removed all the seats in the buses and provided the passengers with ceiling straps instead. This made everybody equal. — HEIL DEUTCHLAND.

DEAR HEIL: Equal to what?

Successful Living

Advice Given to Would-be Weight Losers

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am fed up with accounts of overweight females crying "I'm supposed to lose weight." All they need do is observe the three V's, namely: Vim, Vigor and Vitality.

Have Vim enough to exercise; try to touch the floor with the tips of their fingers, and do it ever so often. Those who have dryers could let the dryer rest and wrestle with the sheets on the clothesline.

Bake their own bread — save one third the cost of bread and I quote from statistics. Kneading bread is good for the form too. Get down on their knees to wax their floors. A well - known doctor told a patient that the mere exercise of mopping and waxing a floor would have more effect on reducing her weight than anything else.

Eat sparingly. The cure for any habit lies within oneself, be it smoking, alcoholism or reducing.

Complete Failure has made a start by acknowledging her faults to you. Now she should put her mind to helping her husbnd get out of debt. She can do something—help some other home-keeper with her problem, keep her mind occupied. — E. B. B.

Dear E.B.B: True, Far better than solacing herself by munching between meals. You sound as if you have been through the mill.

* * *

Dear Doris: Is there any way in which a mother can know for sure whether her child is perceptually handicapped instead of retarded? — Puzzled.

Dear Puzzled: There are some things to look for; and the sooner the better. I have gleaned these from an article in the Journal of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies, written by social worker Viola Edwards:

(1) In reading, does he tend to omit letters or syllables from words; omit whole words; read right to left?

(2) In writing or printing, does he tend to reverse the form of letters, i.e., confuse b and d, place the circle part of a on the wrong side or make letters upside down?

(3) In arithmetic, does he reverse numbers? i.e., does 12 come out as 21? Is he slow counting or adding?

(4) Does he have a behavior problem unaccounted for by circumstances?

A perceptual handicap can be missed in ordinary psychological testing. Sit down with the child, work through with him some simple reading writing and arithmetic problems, and you may well spot the handicap if it is there.

DORIS CLARK

To Retired and Restless: You can so teach an old dog new tricks. I see it being done all the time. But the old dog has to want to learn.

In choosing a hobby, link up with something connected with past interests. For a start, sit and think — about some game you used to play or wanted to play; about some school subject you enjoyed but never followed through on. Write them down.

Give yourself a few months to explore resources around you and decide what you want to get in on. Then let's have a report from you.

Three Appropriate Oven Dishes

By MARY MOORE

These three items — Italian Meat Loaf, Herbed Carrots, and this one-bowl, one - egg cake, — all are baked at the same temperature in the oven. Make and bake in order listed.

ONE-BOWL, ONE-EGG CAKE (Light, soft, wonderful)

1¼ cups sifted cake or all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. baking soda
1-3 cup shortening (room temperature)
2-3 cup thick sour milk
1 large egg
1 tsp. vanilla

Into a large bowl sift together flour, sugar, salt, baking powder, baking soda. Add shortening. Beat in shortening on "low" coaxing shortening into flour with rubber spatula. To milk add vanilla and then add a little more than half of this milk mixture to bowl. Beat two minutes in beater or by hand. Add egg and remaining milk and beat two min. Pour into 9 x 9" square pan lined on bottom with buttered wax paper. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 30 min. Serve, warm with fresh berries.

Three Musketeers Quite A Triumph

By ROBERT TANNER

In a tempestuous production of 40 scenes, and with an enormous cast, Alexandre Dumas' famous romance, The Three Musketeers, opened last night before an enthusiastic audience at Stratford.

The plot of his novel is so complex that its adaptation for the stage by Peter Raby, though marred at times by clumsy phrases, is in itself quite a triumph. In very broad terms, the story tells of the adventures of young D'Artagnan on his arrival in Paris to join the famed Musketeers, and especially in their inseparables" Athos, Portnos and Aramis.

His woof finds himself deeply involved in the intrigue arising from the enmity between Anne of Austria, Queen of France and Cardinal Richelieu, the grey eminence of Louis XIII's court. Throwing himself wholeheartedly onto the Queen's side, D'Artagnan, with the help of his friends, manages to foil many of the Cardinal's plots, but ultimate victory is continually snatched from his grasp by the machinations of the beautiful and mysterious Milady De Winter.

Of necessity, the production is episodic, with some of the scenes lasting less than a minute; faced with this difficulty, John Hirsch marshals his forces with military precision, and the pace never flags. In this, he is ably assisted by the incidental music of Raymond Pannell, which sets the mood, punctuates the action, and adds excitement to the many (perhaps too many) fights and battles which permeate the show.

In the large cast, few if any roles were inadequately handled; it was an evening of delightful "Cameo" performances by many of the leading members of the Company, sometimes playing two or even three parts, filling in the ever changing background to the principal characters.

Among the latter, Douglas Rain excelled as D'Artagnan, a character whose rapid conquest of his three excentric companions was completely credible.

James Blendick as Porthos, Christopher Newton as Aramis and Powys Thomas as Athos were sharply differentiated yet equally delightful, each in his own way. Leo Ciceri as Richelieu dominated the stage whenever he was on it with the intensity and depth of his scheming.

The two warring nations were represented by Louis XIII, played by Eric Donkin, and Duke of Buckingham, played by Kenneth Pogue. Both were beautifully dressed by designer Desmond Heely whose costumes and decor were both apt and pleasing.

On the distaff side, pride of place must go to Martha Henry for her powerful portrayal of the evil Milady De Winter. Although most of her plotting was at the Cardinal's behest, she obviously enjoyed every moment of it, yet when retribution finally came upon her she faced it with dignity and resignation. Pauline Hallaway made a very lovely and stately queen, while Mia Anderson was attractive as Constance Bonacieux, her lady-in-waiting.

All in all, a delightful show for the whole family but if you possibly can, read at least a synopsis of the story before you see it.

ANAF News

Perfect weather for a picnic greeted the happy youngsters, the harried parents and the watchful executive members as members and their families scrambled for places on the buses at the Market Square Sunday morning. The buses were soon loaded and started on their way to Cove Beach for one of the most successful picnics held in years.

The committee is to be congratulated on competent job of work well done. After the arrival at the picnic grounds, the president welcomed the members and their families and the members got busy selecting their tables and getting the hungry gang of kids fed, with the canteen being opened with free ice cream, soft drinks and milk.

The crowd were entertained with a medley of popular tunes by the Unit's Pipe Band. The winner of the attendance prize was Cdr. Bob Deslke. There were numerous candy and peanut scrambles throughout the day that kept the youngsters on their toes. The children's races were run off on schedule.

The names of the winners of the various events were as follows: boys 9 to 11 year. All contestants 1 to 2 years: A. Curnock; 3 to 4: B. Reid, W. Stewart; 5 to 6: T. Green, L. Andrews; 7 to 8: D. Rodgers, B. McCann; 9 to 10: M. Brandon, J. Moleski; 11 to 12: G. Cuskwright, M. Evans. Girls 9 to 1 year. All contestants 1 to 2 years: K. Brown; 3 to 4: K. Burke, C. Brooks; 5 to 6: K. Dodson, K. Brooks; 7 to 8: A. Dodson, M. Price; 9 to 10: J. Myers, B. Locke; 11 to 12: K. Summerville, J. Potts.

Impressive Front for Trenton Community Gardens

Gardens' Versatility Improved

By ROBERT AVERY
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A $22,000 facelifting which began last spring should turn Trenton's Community Gardens into "the best building of its kind in all of Ontario."

"When it's finished," said Mr. Bonn, "there will be no other town the size of Trenton which will have a building to compare with our gardens."

Repairs are in the form of a complete interior repainting, new dressing rooms for hockey players and improved lighting in the arena.

A major part of the building which will receive a new look is the upstairs auditorium. A separate entrance to the auditorium is being built on the east side of the gardens.

Included will be a neon marquee sign which will announce upcoming events.

"The separate entrance was badly needed", said Mr. Bonn, "because there always was confusion when we had different events taking place on both floors."

The auditorium will also be the scene of a new canteen, improved lighting and modern facilities.

"At present the auditorium is being used by teenagers to hold dances and adults hold bingos here," continued Mr. Bonn, "and we want to make it really versatile."

"It is, and will continue to be a place for people of all ages to come."

Mr. Bonn said it has been an "uphill battle" to get the arena board to go along with the idea of overhauling the building.

But he managed to talk them into it. And the new manager feels that the new-look centre will benefit Trenton in more than one way.

"We hope the Gardens will be totally self-sufficient," Mr. Bonn said.

"The improved facilities will get more people out here and our profits should handle all the operating costs," the arena manager pointed out.

He said this was the plan from the beginning. Originally Jack Bonn had planned carefully so as not to make this a burden to the taxpayer and it looks as though he has kept his promise.

The Gardens is situated in Centennial Park and in this way all of the town's leisure activities can be centered in one spot.

"This whole area will be the town's recreational centre," stated Mr. Bonn.

"The Trenton Community Gardens will be a place all of us can be proud of," concluded Jack Bonn.

Heavy road construction equipment creates something of a traffic jam as Lightfoot Construction stepped up operations this week to move in 47,000 cubic feet of fill for overpass ramp approach. Twenty big trucks will move in required fill in about 20 days.

The arrow marks the spot where the new CPR overpass and relocated Bay Bridge Road will intersect with Dundas Street just west of the Devil's Elbow. Houses in background will eventually be moved to complete Dundas roadway.

Project to Take 20 Days

Lightfoot Construction Moves Into High Gear on Overpass

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

With preliminary work underway for the past week, Lightfoot Construction moved into high gear Monday on its contract for building the new Bay Bridge Road—CPR overpass and approaches.

A fleet of 20 big dump trucks some of them carrying 20 cubic yards at a clip, is moving earth fill for the Bay Bridge Road approach across the north end of Zwick's Island Park.

A total of 47,000 cubic yards of fill will be required for the approach ramp and this will be moved in at the rate of about 3,000 yards a day.

The project foreman said he expected it would take about 20 days to bring in all the fill required for the job.

In the meantime culvert work is going ahead along the Bay Bridge Road and also at the CPR tracks which are to be bridged by the overpass.

The contract for the overpass construction, together with approaches, was awarded to Lightfoot in June at a tender price of $361,894.

The Bay Bridge Road—CPR overpass and the ramp approach across Zwick's Island Park is the first stage of the long proposed and much discussed three phase West Dundas Street bridge and roadway project.

On the recommendation of consulting engineers Damas and Smith, the overpass stage is being completed first, to be followed by the Dundas Street bridge across the Moira, and finally the connecting roadway from the river to the top of the Devil's Elbow Hill.

When all three phases are completed the present CP level crossing leading to the Bay Bridge Road will be closed.

And with the construction of the new Dundas Street grade up the Devil's Elbow hill, Highland Ave., at Dundas Street will become a dead end.

Several members of city council disagreed with the staging of the three phases of the over - all Dundas Street bridge and roadway project.

They felt that the river bridge should have been constructed as the first phase.

But the majority of council went along with the recommendation to build the CPR over-pass as the first stage.

The claim of the consulting engineers was that in this way there would be less interruption of traffic.

The new railway overpass structure will be a combination of poured concrete and pre-stressed concrete beams, with a clearance of 23 feet over the track. The overpass deck will be of pre-stressed beams similar to the new College Street bridge with a finish pavement of poured concrete.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the contractor had 120 working days to complete the project.

There may be a few details that would have to wait until spring but if the weather held good, he said there was every hope the new railway overpass would be in use during the winter months.

Youth Terms Belleville 'Most Mini-skirtless City in Canada'

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Will the mini-skirt fade into dust, never to be heard of again? Will it will be replaced by inhibited skirts and dresses such as the maxi and midi?

Belleville mini-skirt wearers (the few of them there are) don't think so.

It seems in Belleville, mini, maxi and midi skirts alike are as scarce as palm trees. One angry young fellow exclaimed, "this city is the most mini-skirtless city in Canada."

Still, there are a few here and there.

One wearer is Yvonne Duncan, 21, of Toronto but at present working at CJBQ radio.

"I like them. I find them very comfortable. They're fashionable, but it all depends if you have the nerve."

Will the mini fall victim to the fickle tastes of followers of fashion and descend into extinction? No, says Yvonne.

"I think they'll be here for a long time. They're definitely more fashionable. I don't think they're going out."

Sue Brown, 17, a dedicated mini-skirt booster has some very definite ideas about the mini and Canada's sense of style. She believes that the mini-skirt is instituting an awareness of style in the country.

"Most females are behind the times. They haven't any style. Canada's now on the right track".

She feels that the maxi because of its length restricts itself to special occasions. Other girls such as Sue Ellis, 15, don't like the way they look in the longer skirts.

"If they're too long I look like a granny," says Sue. She finds the mini cooler and easier to take care of. "They're fashionable. Besides I'm too short to wear anything else."

Ah, it seems that there is an element of security for the eager male who finds the mini one of the scenic views of Canada's landscape.

Vive la mini.

Raimey Scores 5 Majors In Loss

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A few years ago Cleveland Browns of the National Football League owned a defensive halfback named Dave Raimey.

He didn't play often and eventually wound up in the Canadian Football League with Winnipeg Blue Bombers who wisely decided to test him as an offensive halfback.

Raimey has been an outstanding running back in the Western Football Conference for three years, and it looks as if he is still improving.

Monday night he scored five touchdowns as the Blue Bombers bowed to Ottawa Rough Riders 43-35 in a CFL exhibition game watched by 18,700 at Winnipeg.

Elsewhere, Calgary Stampeders edged Toronto Argonauts 24-21 when quarterback Peter Liske and end Terry Evanshen combined for a brilliant passing display with five minutes left in the contest.

Joe Zalecki, the Winnipeg coach, predicted Raimey's effort was "a sign of even bigger things to come" for the fleet halfback.

Raimey scored on passes from John Schneider of 72, 24 and 25 and ran for touchdowns of 15 and 51 yards. Pierre Gubinon converted all five touchdowns.

Quarterback Russ Jackson of Ottawa threw two touchdown passes to Whit Tucker and one to Margene Adkins. Bo Scott ran for two touchdowns and Rick Black, one. Don Sutherin kicked six converts and a single.

Calgary's Jim Furlong conceded a safety touch at 8:30 of the final quarter with the Stampeders trailing the Argos 19-17.

Then Liske took over, leading Calgary to a touchdown in eight plays. He threw four passes to Evanshen, one to Art Froese and one to Bob McCarthy before hitting Evanshen again with a four-yard toss into the end zone at 11:45.

Bill Symons scored two touchdowns, one on a 39-yard run and the other on a 25-yard run for Toronto. Dave Mann kicked a field goal, a convert and a single. The Argos gained four points on two safety touches.

No City Men's Entry for OASA

by MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

For the first time in as long as most people can remember, Belleville will not be represented by a men's team in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association playoffs.

The word came from Jim Tebworth, the city diamond personality who this year serves on the O.A.S.A. executive committee.

And it came as "Tebby" announced a record number of affiliations by teams entering provincial playdowns next month.

But out of the 327 teams that have filed their intentions to go O.A.S.A., only three signed "Belleville," and those entries are the Associated Traveller Squirts, Belch Construction Pee Wees, and SACO Bantams.

"I can't recall when we haven't had either a senior or intermediate team from the city enter playoffs," said O.A.S.A. secretary Cliff Belch. "Frankly I was surprised — I thought the city had the makings of a good Intermediate "AA" club."

That team was expected by many to come from the ranks of the Commercial League, whose players meet the "AA" qualification of not having signed a senior "or intermediate (except AA) certificate during the previous year.

But Don Smith — spokesman for the league-leading Belvedere Hoteimen, the obvious nucleus for a city "AA" entry — described the "hitch" that he ran into when considering Belvedere's O.A.S.A. affiliation.

"A community Belleville's size has to have either a Senior "B" or Intermediate "A" team go O.A.S.A. before an entry is permitted in the "AA" category. And since the Woods Seniors have decided against entering, there's not much anybody can do."

"And there's not much point in a Commercial League team going into a higher category, because they meet better competition right off the bat. It would be a waste of time and money."

"Even if the local senior team had filed and forfeited, we could have made a move."

Cliff Belch corroborated the facts of the predicament: "We could have attended a point if a team had gone Intermediate "A" from Belleville and permitted an "AA" team.

"I'm rather disappointed about the whole thing. Belleville always is represented by a men's team. They may be beaten, but it's not uncommon that they're beaten by the eventual champions."

Caught in the middle of the no-playoff muddle is Ray Lucas, who took over as coach of the badly-disorganized Woods Seniors a month ago.

"Our problem, as you know, has been trying to field a team every game," he said. "Most of our good players also play on the senior baseball team, and we just couldn't rely on their services for O.A.S.A. games."

Lucas said the Woods will finish out their schedule in the Trent Valley Softball League, "but that's about it for us."

Commercial League

Stinsons Return To Second Place

Stinson Construction took two innings to move into runner-up spot in the Commercial Softball League Monday night.

Point Anne chucker Jim Hunter allowed the Construction crew all five of their runs in the first two innings of play. Point Anne had to wait until the third to collect three.

The 5-3 game puts Stinson a game up on City Hotel and gives the Builders an 11-7 season's mark. The Hotelmen, idle last night, are 10-7.

Stinson second baseman Scotty Reid took over from Bob Boyle after Boyle loaded the bases and walked in a run in the third. Singles by Genereaux and Whalen contributed to the other pair of Point Anne runs in the inning.

Stinson collected their five runs on two hits in the first for four tallies and three hits in the second for the fifth run.

Stinsons took the win with the help of Boyle's double and single, braces of singles from catcher Lyle Thompson and Paul Stinson, and singles from fielders Rick Locke, Neil Goyer and Bob Tunnan.

With diamond activity heading into the play-off stage, irony has reared its embarrassing little head in local softball ranks.

There will be no Belleville men's softball team competing in O.A.S.A. playdowns this year.

It doesn't take long to say it, but with that sentence goes a tradition of provincial competition that most local softball buffs can't recall being broken.

O.A.S.A. secretary, Belleville's own Cliff "Sonny" Belch, says he can't remember when there hasn't been a senior or intermediate squad to carry local colors into Ontario softball wars, and his reminiscences are supported by other habitues of city diamonds.

You remember the Joycs? They're the guys who head their loop all season, who now sport a 10-3 won-lost record, and who have defeated the defending Ontario champions from Kingston in four out of five outings to date this season.

They're also the fellows who usually play to home "crowds" of 50 or so at the Fairgrounds.

So Belleville's Commercial and Trent Valley league softball teams, which have enjoyed consistent spectator support all summer, will suspend activities after intermural playoffs sometime next month.

And the Joyces — who most people must think play all games on the road — will not only venture in foreign fields, but have a good head start towards provincial honors.

You don't think that's ironic, you say.

How about this.

The main factor behind lack of city representation in men's O.A.S.A. competition was the failure of the Senior Woods' nine to file their playoff intentions.

And the club's organizers decided against entering provincial playdowns mainly because they couldn't count on the regular services of a half-dozen vital lineup members.

The latter couldn't promise their services because — you guessed it — they had prior commitments to the Joyce baseball nine!

We think if everyone concerned had sat down together sometime before it was too late, arrangements could have been made to accomodate each party to their satisfaction, while at the same time reward the loyalty of all city diamond supporters.

But that would have taken some organization.

His Backers Rewarded by Vance

Al Vance had a good night last Saturday. The third-place Belleville circuit driver piloted three of his trotters to wins on the Fairgrounds track. He did his driving in front of the 881 people who clinked down $16,090 in pari-mutuel betting.

In the first race, Vance coaxed Lisa Chief to the winner's circle. He backed up that win in the fourth as he sent Brant's Lightning ahead of the pack to set a new record for the trotter in 2:15.3.

He proved the first two weren't luck in the eighth and final heat as he drove Unity under the wire from seventh position. Vance also showed behind Mae Herbert in the third and placed in the fifth with his own Nida Dillard.

Top event of the evening turned out to be the seventh heat. It was a four-horse finish with the winner, Henry Sizer's Cash Princess, coming in first by leal than a nose. Uncle Ben's Girl was a close second while Brian Wann was third. Johnny Hunsback drove Magic Charm C home fourth.

All four horses finished in 2:13.0 with only two seconds separating them from the field. The six-year-old winning mare paid $62.10 for a six dollar combination. There was a Quinella on the race, with numbers 5-6 paying $116.80 for a two dollar bet.

Reg. Baily from the Wannamaker Stables in Connecticut, was a double winner with Katrinka Wann in the third in 2:13.0, with Golden Chief in the fifth in 2:12.4.

Mailmen Deliver Combines 11-6 Loss

The Post Office strike seems to have left the opposition's Departmental Softball League team unscathed. Monday night it looked as if they might even have been using all that spare time to practice as they topped the CN Combines 11-6.

The win increases the Mailmen's tenuous one - point hold on second place in the league to three points and puts the Combines that much further into third place.

Jack Calnan did the slab honors for the Post Office, allowing six runs on eight hits and one error while walking three and fanning three.

The Combines tried to change their luck with their pitchers as they started with Brooks, then went to McTaggart in the second and switched to Junior Day in the third.

Brooks allowed four runs on three hits while walking one. McTaggart allowed seven tallies on five hits while fanning two and Day allowed no runs on six hits while striking out five.

Woods Srs. Lose Despite 12-Hit Attack

Belleville's Senior Woods won a slugging match against Madoc in a Trent Valley League softball game at the Ameliate last night, but the locals came out second best where it counts — in the scoring department.

Despite a 12 - hit attack the locals bowed to Madoc 12-8 to put their season's won - lost record at 3-7.

Carl Boomhower started on the slab for the Woodsmen, and yielded five Madoc runs on five hits before giving way to Bob Ethier in the fourth. The total included a four-run second frame for the visitors, in which the key blow was a home run by Madoc shortstop A. Hicks.

In all, Madoc touched the pair of Belleville hurlers for nine hits, while Ethier and Boomhower issued six walks and fanned a total of eight batters.

Owens got the win for Madoc, striking out a dozen Woods batters and walking a pair, and giving up 12 safeties. He allowed a pair of first, seventh and ninth-inning Woods' tallies, and a single score in the fourth and fifth frames.

Centrefielder Ralph Plane led the Woods at the plate, connecting for a pair of singles and a seventh - inning triple that batted in a Woods run. Boomhower collected a double and single to score two runners, and Gary Goyer, who played catcher, shortstop and right field, knocked a three - bagger and a single.

Outfielder Doug Defoe added a pair of singles to the Belleville attack, while second - sacker Joe Capp contributed a fourth - inning solo home run in five trips to the plate.

Last night's nine-man Woods lineup included four members of the Joyce Realtors senior baseball team, and a South Hastings Baseball League regular.

Injured Bosox Hurler Collects First Win of Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston Red Sox hope it was the start of another Impossible Dream.

The occasion was the first victory of the season Monday night for right-hander Jim Lonborg, who pitched Boston to their 100-to-1 shot American League pennant a year ago by winning 22 games and the Cy Young Award.

Lonborg missed almost two months of the season following surgery on a knee. He had lost three times this season but hurled six strong innings allowing only one hit in Boston's 7-6 triumph over New York Yankees.

Elsewhere, Cleveland Indians climbed into second place with a 7-3 victory over Baltimore Orioles; California Angels outlast Minnesota Twins 6-5 and Oakland Athletics trimmed Chicago White Sox 4-0. Detroit and Washington were not scheduled.

"This is what we've been waiting for," exulted manager Dick Williams after Lonborg pulled the fourth-place Red Sox to within nine games of front-running Detroit. "He is in the rotation now."

It was only the third start for Lonborg, who had worked only 12 innings while compiling an 0-3 record. He was wild, walking eight and hitting a batter, but allowed only a first-inning single by Ray White. Three walks brought White home for the only run off Lonborg.

Lonborg and Dalton Jones probably were smiling all the way back to Ft. Meade, Md., where they are serving two weeks of reserve duty. They got a pass Monday night and headed right back after doing the Yankees in.

After Ken Harrelson's 22nd homer tied the score in the fourth, Jones unleashed his first to the year in the fifth, a two-run shot that put the Sox in front 3-1. Rico Petrocelli singled in two more runs later in the inning.

The Indians, who trail Detroit by five games, got a run in the first on Duke Sims' RBI single. A triple by Dave Nelson highlighted the two-run second. Lou Johnson belted a two-run homer in the fifth after the Orioles had pushed in within 4-3.

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Don Wert's three-run homer in the first inning triggered Detroit Tigers to a 10-6 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates Monday in the annual Hall of Fame baseball game. Wert's homer was one of three the Tigers collected in the games watched by 8,700 at Cooper Field, near the Hall of Fame. Three former outfielders — Joe Medwick, Leon (Goose) Goslin and the late Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler — were inducted formally into the Hall of Fame.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pitcher Don Drysdale will form the nucleus of a completely overhauled Los Angeles Dodgers baseball team, says Dodgers' General Manager Fresco Thompson. "Most definitely, Drysdale will not be made available in the expansion draft, nor will he be traded or sold," Thompson told an interviewer. "We have a rebuilding job to do, and that will be around Don," Thompson said in a story in Monday's Herald-Examiner.

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — The $25,000 first prize in the PGA championship at San Antonio pushed Julius Boros' name into the list of top 10 money winners on the PGA tour. Boros was in sixth spot on the list released here Monday with $82,191 although the PGA was his first win of the year. Bill Casper held his lead with $135,833. The top 10 are Casper $133,935; Tom Weiskopf, $129,038; Lee Trevino, $97,845; George Archer, $96,041; Dave Stockton, $88,436; Boros, $82,701; Miller Barber, $75,142; Jack Nicklaus, $69,429; Arnold Palmer, $68,883; Bobby Lunn, $63,975.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The Keeneland yearling summer sale gives indications that last year's records will be surpassed. Some $5,900,000 changed hands at the sale last year, $3,136,000 for 142 head on the first day alone. Monday, 122 yearlings changed hands for $3,537,500. Several other records toppled. A yearling son of Fleet Nasrullah went for a world-record $230,000.

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Ake Mattsson, 44, a Swedish mechanical engineer from Stockholm, became the 18th finisher in the single-handed Trans-Atlantic yacht race Monday, leaving just one yacht still at sea. Sailing the Goodwin II, a 19.7 foot sloop, Mattsson logged an elapsed time of 51 days, 19 hours, 58 minutes.

Card Pilot In Jam, Has Pinch Hitter for Cepeda

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's the bottom of the ninth inning and you're two runs down. But you've got two on and nobody out and the league's most valuable player—your clean-up hitter—coming up.

So you pinch hit for him. Right?

Right, agreed struggling slugger Orlando Cepeda after pinch hitter Lou Brock's ground single keyed a three-run rally that swept the Cardinals past Philadelphia Phillies 5-4 in a nationally televised game Monday night.

"It was the right move," said Cepeda, the National League's 1967 MVP, of manager Red Schoendienst's switch to Brock, which helped the Cardinals open their league lead to 11½ games. "I'm not hitting and Lou is the faster man. You put in the fast man to stay out of the double play. And he's the manager."

While the Cardinals were scrambling to their 16th victory in 20 games, New York Mets trimmed second place Atlanta 5-2, running the Braves' losing string to four. Houston Astros topped Los Angeles Dodgers 4-0 and Chicago Cubs swamped San Francisco Giants 7-2 in other NL action.

Phils' southpaw Woody Fryman, backed by Don Lock's three-run homer and Roberto Pena's bases-empty blast, took a 4-3 lead into the ninth at St. Louis. But John Boozer replaced Fryman after Julian Javier's leadoff single and Curt Flood beat out a bunt against the reliever.

Brock, the Cards' hottest hitter in recent weeks, had been given a rest by Schoendienst. But he got the call to bat for Cepeda, who was hitting .264 after going 1-for-3 against Fryman.

The slim speedster bounced a single through the right side, scoring Javier, sending Flood to third and raising his batting average to .290.

Triples by Ron Swoboda and Bud Harrelson and doubles by Ed Kranepool, Jerry Buchek and Art Shamsky triggered the Mets' attack at Atlanta while Don Cardwell, 4-9, subdued the Braves on five hits.

Dave Giusti scattered seven hits at Los Angeles as the Astros handed the Dodgers their 18th setback in 21 games this month. Dick Simpson dangled and scored the first run in the fifth inning and doubled home another in the sixth.

The Cubs broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning at San Francisco on a two-run pinch double by Willie Smith, then shot beyond reach with a three-run burst in the ninth. Glenn Beckert stroked a single and double, extending his season-high batting streak to 27 games.

It's a Sport

He Promotes Fist-Clenching

WINNIPEG (CP) — Albert Gauger, 59, is trying to introduce fistball—a sport which developed in Germany early in this century—into the Canadian sport scene.

He's starting small. Winnipeg is the only city in Canada where the game is played, but he thinks the future looks bright.

"We have the AAU—Amateur Athletic Union—behind us now," Gauger said in an interview. "I think we can get the game going in five or six provinces in the next 12 months."

The game is played with two five-man teams who volley a 350-gram air-filled ball across a rope three metres above the ground by hitting it with the closed fist or any part of the arm.

"I used to travel in Canada after coming here in 1953 and never saw anyone playing fistball," said the enthusiast who, like his father, played on many championship squads in Germany where there are more than 10,000 teams.

"I thought the best people to approach would be immigrants and after interesting a few I got quite a bit of support here."

After establishing a nucleus of five teams in Winnipeg, Gauger's next project was to widen the game's popularity.

His big chance came this year when the first world fistball championship was held in Linz, Austria, June 8-16.

It took a lot of effort to wrangle an invitation and even more work to finance the team.

To be recognized by the World Fistball Association, Gauger formed the Manitoba Fistball Association. He got his invitation but failed in his money bid:

He approached the fitness council—the game is played by age groups ranging from 14 to 70 in Germany as a fitness sport—and although the council expressed interest in the game, it didn't come through.

Finally, he spent $2,400 of his own savings to take his team to Austria and while Canada ended up last in the eight-country competition, Gauger isn't discouraged.

"It was more important for us to be there than to win," he said. "We learned a lot and gathered international prestige."

He said the final match for the world championship showed the sport's popularity —15,000 out of a city the size of Calgary watched the final rounds.

The next breakthrough for fistball will be held by the world association. It is after Olympic status in time for the 1972 Olympics.

THE CAR BUYER'S PROBLEMS

HOW HONEST IS AUTOMOBILE ADVERTISING?

It is a mark of our times that people are more surprised by honesty than dishonesty.

Supermarkets have been known to raise their prices on heavy shopping days; nationally-known food manufacturers to price their "large-size economy" packages at MORE per ounce than the regular size; and packages designed to mislead the buyer.

But it takes two to tango. Too often, misleading advertisers are rewarded repeatedly by buyers who are sold on the face value of words like "discount" and "terms" improperly used. There is a great temptation for reputable merchants to follow suit in self defence.

In this marketing climate, automobile advertisers generally are no worse and often maintain a higher ethical standard than their equivalent in other industries.

Dealer associations are continually policing their ranks against unethical advertising practices. Incomplete and inadequate statement of guarantees; statements like "No Cash Needed" without explaining a collateral loan is required; terms beyond 36 months without explaining what else is required.

There's a lesson in the story about the inquest where the young wife reported her husband's last words just before he died quite suddenly of stomach cramps: "I can't understand how they can make any profit out of this stuff at a dollar and a half a fifth."

Olympics? Color Them Red

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Income from admissions and sale of television rights covered only one per cent of the cost of staging the Winter Olympic games in February, a final report indicated Monday.

Organizational expenses were set at $23,521,000. Spectators paid $1,230,000 for admission to the 1968 games and pre-Olympic competition in 1967. Sale of television rights and other advertising income produced an additional $2,400,000.

The French government made up most of the difference with a subsidy of $17,310,000.

The government also made heavy contributions to new housing, highways, rail service and other items necessary to get Grenoble in shape for the Games. In all, it was estimated that $200 million was spent.

Cross-Canada Problem

Cities in Four Provinces Seek Ban on Disposable Bottles

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ban-the-bottle movements are under way in four provinces, but non-refundable bottles are still available across Canada.

In Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, municipal organizations have passed resolutions urging government action to ban the non-returnable bottles because of an increase in the amount of litter in parks, beaches and highways, a Canadian Press survey shows.

The bottles were introduced in Canada three years ago and most major soft drink companies now sell their products partially in disposable glass containers.

For the second consecutive year the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves has said that the use of the non-returnable bottles invites their destruction on sidewalks, lanes and streets.

The association plans to meet provincial authorities in September to repeat its previous request for a prohibition of the sale of disposable bottles containing soft-drinks and beer.

At the annual meeting of the Western Union of Municipalities —representing municipal organizations from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—held May 1 in Regina, the disposable bottle came under fire.

The meeting passed a resolution recommending that non-returnable bottles be banned or that a five-cent refund be paid on glass beverage bottles.

The union said it was concerned over litter on highways, farmer's fields and resort areas.

Alberta's highways minister, Gordon Taylor, said in April that he was in favor banning non-returnable bottles, but only on a national level.

He said action by Alberta alone could cause bottling facilities to move to other provinces.

One member of the Nova Scotia legislature said the bottles should be banned, but nothing more has since been said.

Sam Hierman, British Columbia's minister of conservation and recreation, urged the beverage industry to go down on bottles since returnable bottles are more favorable to the non-returnable type.

"Certainly we don't have the problem with the returnable bottle that is beginning to shape up with the non-returnable bottle."

In Quebec, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland, the bottles are available, but no attempt has been made to prohibit their sale.

A spokesman of the Coca Cola Co. Ltd. in Ottawa said the non-returnable bottles are expensive to produce while the percentage of sales for disposable packaged drinks is comparatively low.

"We're in it because our competitors initiated it," he said.

He said the main reason the process was introduced three years ago was because retail stores did not want the inconvenience of storing and refunding pop bottles.

Ottawa's Borrowing Nears Quota for Year

OTTAWA (CP) — With the fiscal year not yet five months old, the federal government has borrowed at least $640,000,000 of the $750,000,000 it wants to limit itself to before next March 31.

But finance department officials do not seem to be worried. A spokesman said it is not possible to gauge a full year's performance by five months' experience.

Former finance minister Sharp set the target last Nov. 10 when he told the Commons the government would raise taxes and cut expenditures to bring the budget close to a balance.

"The government will be able to hold its over-all net cash requirements and its consequent demands on the capital market to less than $750,000,000 in the next fiscal year, apart from unforseen changes in our exchange reserves," he said.

This was to be less than half the government's borrowings in the 1967-68 fiscal year, which ended March 31.

Since April 1, the government has made three big borrowings of new funds:

—$106,000,000 was raised June 15 when the government issued $525,000,000 of market bonds to refinance $420,000,000 of old bonds falling due.

—$150,000,000 was raised June 28 in a special offering of one-year treasury bills.

— $300,000 will come into the treasury Aug. 1 in the new market bond issue offered investors last week.

In addition to these, the government has been obtaining $5,000,000 a week or more in its weekly three-month and six-month treasury bill offerings.

While the government has been borrowing these amounts, its pressure on the available investment funds does not appear to have caused market indigestion.

Interest rates, especially for short-term borrowings, have been falling from their late-March and early-May record highs.

The government has other big bond issues falling due later this fiscal year, which probably will be refinanced.

Power Corporation Adds to CSL Stock

MONTREAL (CP) — Power Corporation of Canada Ltd. has increased its interest in one of Canada's major transportation enterprises with the purchase of preferred and common stock valued at $12,000,000.

The corporation announced Monday night it had increased by more than 20 per cent its voting hold on Canada Steamship Lines Ltd. with the purchase, for an undisclosed sum, of 100,400 five-per-cent preferred and 313,000 common shares from the Montreal firm of Commercial Trust Co.

The corporation thus increased to 45.7 per cent from 25.5 per cent its share holding in C.S.L.

Among Canada Steamship Lines' wholly-owned subsidiaries are Davie Shipbuilding Ltd. of Lauzon, Que., and Canadian Shipbuilding and Engineering Ltd. with facilities at Port Arthur, Kingston and Collingwood, all in Ontario.

Earlier Monday the board of directors of the corporation declared a first dividend on new second preferred shares which were created three months ago to enable the take-over of Trans-Canada Corporation Fund.

W. G. E. Lanaman, secretary-treasurer of Power Corp. said the investment firm had decided to declare dividends on the new shares because of the merger.

Coincidentally, the company's directors declared dividends on other shares instead of waiting until August to synchronise dividend payments.

The next dividends now will be declared in October or November.

The board declared a dividend of 60 cents a share per annum on five-per-cent second preferred shares for the period July 1, 1968, or subsequently, to Aug. 15, payable on that date, to shareholders of record at the close of business Aug. 1.

A further dividend of 60 cents was declared on five-per-cent second preferred shares for the period Aug. 16/Nov. 15, to shareholders of record Nov. 1.

Also declared were:

A dividend of 56 cents on 4¼-per-cent 1966 series first preferred shares for the quarter ending Oct. 15, 1968, to shareholders of record Sept. 20.

A dividend of 11 cents also on the 50-par value common shares for the quarter ending Sept. 30, to shareholders of record Sept. 12.

Six Bodies Discovered

PETROSKEY, Mich. (AP) — The decomposed bodies of a suburban Detroit couple and their four children were found Monday in an isolated cabin in Northwest Lower Michigan.

Emmet County sheriff's department said all six had been shot to death.

They were tentatively identified by state police as Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Robison of Lathrup Village, an eight-year-old daughter, and three sons, aged 18, 17 and 12.

State police said the bodies were discovered by a caretaker late Monday, northwest of Harbor Springs. They said first estimate was that the deaths occurred about a month ago.

QUESTION: We are taking our vacation in New York State soon and wondered if you could suggest a few of the more interesting attractions fo. both children and adults, and a scenic route?

ANSWER: You can hardly drive for more than an hour without coming on at least one attraction designed for children, especially in the Adirondacks resort area where there are dozens of them.

Children usually like old fortresses and New York State has two — Fort Niagara at Youngstown, and Fort Ticonderog. on Lake Champlain. The latter, built in 1755, is one of the most masterful reconstructions ever undertaken. Ticonderoga is 30 miles northeast of Lake George, and a beautiful scenic drive surrounded by mountains is on route 9 N which extends for 39 miles along the shore from Lake George to Ticonderoga.

"There are daily cruises on Lake George which are delightful. The "Ticonderoga" sets Lake George at 10:30 a.m. daily in the summer, round trip fare is $4. The "Minerva" leaves Lake George at 11:00 a.m. and 2:14 p.m. daily round trip $3.

"There is Frontier Town near Schroon Lake, about 30 miles north of Lake George, which is a mining village of the Gay Nineties. Gaslight Village, near here, also is a turn-of-the-century community.

For really young children one of the most interesting places is Santa's Workshop at Whiteface Mountain. Here they can feed the reindeer and watch Santa and his Elves busy making toys. The Enchanted Forest at Old Forge, The Land of Makebelieve at Upper Jay were also created especially to appeal to children.

You can drive up Whiteface Mountain near Wilmington for $1.25 per person. A ride down Ausable Chasm, near Plattsburgh, is a great thrill for children.

At nearby Lake Placid is Sterling Alaska fur and gamé farm which claims to be the home of 1,000 animals. It features rides and chimp shows.

Most of these places for children can be quite expensive if you are taking a family of four or more especially if you are visiting a number of these attractions in a few days. Prices range from 50 cents to $1.50 for children and for adults $1.50 to $2.50.

If camping there are dozens of campsites in the Adirondacks and in some of the big resort towns.

Associated with West Point Academy is a Military Museum, largest in the U.S.A. It has everything from knights in armor to exhibits relating to atomic weapons. Admission is free. West Point is located about 100 miles south of Albany on the west bank of the Hudson River.

In the western part of New York State the Finger Lakes area is a lovely spot. There are six long, narrow lakes that stretch north and south across the State. At the head of Lake Seneca is Watkins Glen, set in a spectacular gorge with a drop of 700 feet. The town of Watkins Glen has become famous for the Grand Prix auto races held there in the fall.

Just to the South is Corning where you can visit one of North America's best glass museums. It contains pieces dating back as far as 1,500 B.C. Here you can watch glass blowers at work.

Wineries at Hammondsport and Maples welcome visitors and there is a free wine museum you can visit.

Taughannock Falls, located in a State Park near Ithaca, is 215 feet high, a greater drop than Niagara Falls.

There is a total of 350 miles of shoreline around the Finger Lakes which have many cottages, motels, and campsites areas. Motel rates start at about $10 for double occupancy.

Blood in Eye No Cause for Alarm

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a male, 46, in good physical condition except that two years ago a blood vessel burst in my eye. It has happened twice since then. Each time I called the doctor, but he advised me not to worry and said no treatment was necessary.

Since there was no appreciant cause for this to happen, I wonder if it is a sign of vascular weakness or deterioration. Can anything be done to prevent recurrence? — M. W. M.

This sort of thing does happen to some people, and as a rule they get the same correct advice you did. Ordinarily the explanation is a fragility of the tiny capillary blood vessels in the outer eyeball. The bleeding shows up vividly; the same amount of bleeding, or even a great deal more, in some other part of the body would merely appear as a small bruise that you wouldn't worry about.

Such bleeding in the eye can be caused by a minor injury, rubbing the eyes, or even a hard sneeze or two. But the fact remains that actually only a very small amount of bleeding is involved.

It does not ordinarily indicate any general vascular weakness, but just a minor weakness in the tiny vessels involved.

Deficiency of Vitamin C and calcium can contribute to such bleeding, so be sure you get ample Vitamin C (from citrus or tomato juices) and calcium from milk.

Dear Dr. Molner: How can I make my father stop smoking? He is in his 30's and smokes two packs a day. I have brought home reports on the death rate of people who smoke but he still smokes. — L. C.

You can't make him stop. He's the only one who can do it. But if he decides to do so, he might get some help from my booklet, "Tips on How To Stop Smoking." Some people try and fail but some have told me the booklet helped them succeed. The booklet will be mailed in return for 30 cents and a long, self-addressed, envelope.

I quit over five years ago, and have stayed off tobacco since.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a glue-sniffer. I would like to know whether sniffing can harm my liver at all. I have been sniffing for about two months and have had no bad effects. People tell me it destroys brain cells.

Is there any chance of hurting myself? I enjoy the glue trips and don't want to give them up. I am 15 and take a trip about once a week. — B. M.

Maybe you haven't harmed yourself so far and I hope not, but you must have been on a "trip" the times I wrote about this before.

The foremost dangers are damage to the liver and the blood, and by the time you begin to notice any symptoms, there will have been permanent damage that cannot be repaired medically.

A few months of glue-sniffing can wreck the liver worse than years of hard drinking. It's as simple as that.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a very noticeable mole above my right eye and would like to have it removed surgically but have been told that mole removal could cause cancer. Will it? — N. H.

Nonsense. Removal of a mole by a competent surgeon can cer than any other surgical procedure — having your appendix out, a wart removed, a tooth pulled. If you want the mole off, go to a dermatologist or a plastic surgeon, since because of its position you would want to leave as little scar as possible. In less conspicuous places your regular physician can easily remove moles.

Canada Agrees Not to Build Or Acquire Nuclear Weapons

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada signed a treaty Monday that prevents it from making or acquiring nuclear weapons, External Affairs Minister Sharp announced.

Canada is the 57th country to sign the treaty on the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons, which was opened for signature July 1 in Moscow, London and Washington. Ambassadors or representatives affixed their signatures in all three capitals.

The signatories to date include the Soviet Union, the United States and Britain, which were the principal negotiators of the treaty. The world's other nuclear powers, China and France, have both said they will not sign the treaty.

The treaty, endorsed at a special session of the United Nations General Assembly this spring after long, difficult negotiations in Geneva, imposes no restrictions or limitations on the arsenals of the nuclear powers. It merely prevents them from providing other countries with nuclear weapons or helping them to make them.

Mr. Sharp, nevertheless, characterized the opening of the treaty for signatures as "an important milestone in the history of arms control and disarmament negotiations."

The treaty signals no change in Canadian foreign or defence policy, a government spokesman said. Canada had no nuclear weapons of its own, and no plans to acquire any.

Other signatoory countries signed the treaty July 1. The government spokesman attributed the Canadian delay to the June 25 general election.

The treaty will come into force when the three nuclear signatories and 40 countries have ratified it. Nobody has ratified it yet, but this is no cause for alarm, an external affairs department spokesman said. It could take five to six months before sufficient ratifications were in hand.

Czech Communist Party Has Program of Reform

PRAGUE (Reuters) — The action program of the Czech Communist party is intended to serve as a model for liberalizing all state institutions and ministries.

Czechoslovakia's Road to Socialism, published April 9, announced the pass of the party's new progressive leadership under First Secretary Alexander Dubcek to reform the country's entire political system.

Its key points are:

—The "basic orientation of Czech foreign policy ... is its alliance and co-operation with the Soviet Union and other Socialist countries but Czechoslovakia will formulate its own standpoint on questions of world policy."

—Division of state security apparatus into two independent units, with one to defend the state "from the activities of enemy centres abroad" and the other to combat crime at home.

—Freedom of speech. Also, minority interests must be protected.

—A statute stating the rights of various minority national groups such as Hungarians, Poles, Ukranians and Germans living in Czechoslovakia.

—Economic relations with other countries on the basis of equality, mutual advantage and without discrimination.

—Ending the "long-term isolation" of Czechoslovakia's economy.

—Abolition of "preliminary censorship," and a new press law clearly stating how far the state can go in telling editors what to print. Preliminary censorship means complete cancellation of an article by the censor without right of appeal.

—Implementation of constitutional freedom of assembly.

—The right to travel abroad and stay abroad.

—A new electoral law embodying democratic principles for elections at the end of the year with a fewer choice of candidates.

—A strong parliamentary system.

Canadian-Born Coal Expert Wants to Move Aberfan Tips

LONDON (CP)—The National Coal Board, pressed to take sweeping new measures for protection of the tragic Welsh community of Aberfan, has received unsolicited offers of action from a hard-driving millionaire whose birthplace is Canada.

The action proposals come from Lawrence Ryan, Newfoundland-born specialist in the culling of good coal from the huge piles of mine waste dotting the landscape of Wales.

It was from one of these man-made mountains—or tips —that a soggy avalanche crashed down into Aberfan Oct. 21, 1966, and killed 144 persons, most of them children.

Now the still-shaken survivors are reiterating their demands that all tips around the community be removed.

Authorities in Wales encountered an upruish of anger from the residents following announcement of a decision against immediate removal.

Aberfan's population, fearful of few catastrophe and oblivious to assurances that the tips are being rendered safe, are appealing to Prime Minister Wilson for broader action.

Monday, Leo Abse, a Labor MP from Wales, promised that he will ask Wilson in Commons question about the situation.

"There are moments in governments when impossible bureaucratic logic must yield to deeply-felt passions," said Abse. "This is such an ocasion."

Ryan has told the National Coal Board, which runs the state-owned industry, that his company—L. Ryan (Holdings) —can remove the Aberfan tips for about $3,250,000.

He offered to reduce the price to $1,560,000 if the NCB allowed him to keep the coal he could recover from the tips during their dispersal.

George Thomas, the government's secretary for Wales, said last weekend he could not bring himself to approve such a project.

But Ryan reiterated his offer. Thomas cited, among other things, what he called possible dangers posed by the presence among the tips of coal-washing machinery needed for the scheme.

Ryan, who left school in Port Saunders, Nfld., to work as a lumberjack, came to Britain during the Second World War as a member of the Newfoundland forestry corps.

After felling trees for the war effort, he settled in this country and eventually won riches from the piles of coal waste written off by others as useless.

Now 53, he denied that removal of the Aberfan tips would cause new dangers to nearby residents.

Thomas was howled down by the residents when he tried speaking to them last weekend.

He promised to give new consideration to tip removal if current efforts at achieving safety through drainage proved unsatisfactory.

But Aberfan is racked with worry.

"People can't go to bed if it is raining, in case tips come down on them," a spokesman for the residents said.

Heart Patients Wait For Suitable Donors

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Surgeons transplanted the heart of a youth fatally injured in an auto accident into the body of a Nebraska man today in what they deemed as a successful operation.

It was the 27th such transplant in the world and the second in three days at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital, where seven now have been performed.

And it came a few hours after Dr. Denton Cooley, who performed the latest transplant, disclosed that six potential new heart recipients had died at the hospital for the lack of donors.

Six other possible recipients are awaiting operations at the hospital when suitable donors are found, Dr. Cooley said.

Hospital spokesmen identified the latest heart transplant patient as Harry W. Jurgens, 57, of Beatrice, Neb. They said he entered St. Luke's Sunday suffering from advanced heart disease.

The donor was Michael K. Beard, 16, of Houston, who suffered head injuries in an auto accident Monday morning. He died at 12:47 a.m., the hospital reported, and the transplant surgery was completed at 2:15 a.m.

Dr. Cooley supervised the operation, as he has the others at St. Luke's. Attendants said he pronounced Jurgens in highly satisfactory condition.

Hospital spokesmen said the patient who received a new heart Saturday—Fred C. Everman, 58, a retired barber from Alexandria, Va.—was able to walk unassisted from his bed to a chair.

A Tough Test in English

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If those baby tests about words and "word power" that appear in some publications are too simple for you, I've devised a little test at a somewhat higher level of literacy. If you can get as many as half of the following 20 questions, consider yourself a word master.

1. When someone turns "livid" with anger, what color does he become?

2. What is the difference between "discomfort" and "discomfit"?

3. If you had a wife who suffered from "oniomania," how would she exhibit it?

4. Where did the word "niggardly" come from?

5. When you overlap shingles or tiles, what is the process called?

6. When Feb. 29 is inserted into the calendar each Leap Year, what kind of day is it?

7. Which kind of creatures are "edificate" every year?

8. What are the original plurals of the generic words "cherub," "stigma" and "dogma," "index" and "appendix"?

9. As in the famous phrase, "What hath God wrought?" what is the present tense of the verb "wrought"?

10. If "chinology" is the medical specialty treating of the chin, what is "rosology"?

11. One of today's favorite vogue-words is "dichotomy"; now what is the Latin phrase for something that escapes a dichotomy between two supposedly exhaustive categories?

12. Everyone knows the common adjectives perting to dogs, cats, and cows ("canine, feline, and bovine"), but what are the generic adjectives pertaining to the following: lambs, moose, fox, bear, seal, skunk, and mouse.

13. What kind of law is "Draconic," what kind of speech is "Thrasonical," and what kind of retort is "Parthian"?

14 Distinguish between "perspicuous" and "perspicacious."

15. Distinguish between "ingenious" and "ingenuous."

16. What is the opposite of, "dysgeusic"?

17. Everyone knows about "nemesis," the goddess of righteous vengeance; but she was only the third of a triad, the first two being "Hamartia" and "Hubris." What do they stand for?

18. Why is "Donald Duck" a misnomer?

19. Distinguish among "refragable," "infrangible," and "refrangible."

20. What is "deja vu"?

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For July 24

Your birthday today: You may find yourself doing things for which you lack training and psychological preparation. The initiative remains in your hands but you must be careful planning and discreet attitudes. Romantic attachments tend to be easy but tricky. Today's natives have a way of pleasing the opposite sex but not their own.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The fresh start would be easy if you had anticipated the recent changes. Your personal problem today is in trying to have things both ways at once. Don't blame this on other people.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Today promises great results if you will focus on those things you have not tried before. Routine matters are hindered by people lacking full information. Partnerships fare better.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Do what you must today, but nothing more, at least until evening. Consult your older friends if you have to begin some new venture.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Work the normal schedule; saving puzzles for the end of the day. Don't fret over the problems of older people: do what you can, but go on with your own life.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 23): Today your personal traditions will be tested. Be courteous particularly to visitors and older people. Check your home safety. Buy something small and bright to make it more comfortable.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 — Sept. 22): Partnership affairs may seem rather depressing, but additional contacts show a more optimistic picture. Bring together tonight quietly compatible people.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): When personal schemes run counter to business you have to choose and take the consequences. An opportunity is in the air to try new techniques.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Today offers contacts with new people, and something creative. Make wholehearted effort during the day, then pursue romance later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): The temptation is to overspend. Seek ways of cutting cost, that will not mar the public image. Less indulgence is indicated.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Wild ideas are a dime a dozen today, and your relatives have a treasure on the market. Find business people to confer with.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Close relatives and associates create roadblocks today. Experimentation is profitable. Bring home something nice this evening and have a carefree social.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Get your pet project ready to go early. It's a day that runs thin per as it wears on, so get everything done earlier.

Lawyers Plead for 'Understanding' for Magistrates in Probe

TORONTO (CP) — The Judicial inquiry into the behavior of two Toronto magistrates concluded Monday with impassioned pleas for understanding from their lawyers.

Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court, who conducted the six-day inquiry, now will submit a written report of his findings to Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

Arthur Maloney, counsel for former magistrate Fred Bannon, said his client was "impulsive, but not impugnable" in his relationship with Vincent Alexander, who faces two charges of breaking and entering.

Mr. Maloney said Mr. Bannon was the victim of "a piece of trickery very old and very vicious" on the part of Alexander.

He said evidence showed that Alexander had an extensive criminal record unknown to Mr. Bannon and it was also unknown to the magistrate that Alexander was under constant police surveillance."

Magistrates Bannon, 34, and George Gardhouse, 60, were suspended June 18 pending the outcome of the inquiry. Counsel for Mr. Justice Grant, Mr. Bannon resigned from the bench July 15 as the inquiry opened.

Mr. Maloney also criticized the use of police wiretap telephone conversations and cited the danger of allowing police to tap telephone without judicial sanction.

"I am certain that the people of this province will be concerned that a police inspector, without the permission of a judge . . . can eavesdrop on private conversations," he said.

He told Mr. Justice Grant his report should make clear the wiretap transcripts were accepted as evidence because the two magistrates forebade their counsel to object to them.

"It was the express instruction of Mr. Bannon to myself to remain silent while this perfectly illegal evidence was presented against him," Mr. Maloney said.

A total of 185 pages of wiretap transcript were submitted as evidence during the six-day inquiry. The conversations were obtained by Toronto police wiretaps of Alexander's telephone between March 21 and May 27.

Earlier, G. Arthur Martin, counsel for Mr. Gardhouse, said evidence to date has "failed to show any evidence that reflects on his integrity or conduct."

"He has been completely exonerated," Mr. Martin said.

He said the two conversations between Mr. Gardhouse and Alexander contained "no evidence of impropriety."

Testimony showed that Alexander visited Mr. Gardhouse's home twice. The first visit ended when Alexander brought up his burglary charge.

Later Alexander discussed a charge against him being heard by another magistrate with Mr. Gardhouse. The magistrate said he told him if what he said was true, he would not be convicted under the circumstances.

Mr. Martin said there might have been "some minimal departure from caution here", but added that it was understandable since Alexander came "on the pretext of offering his condolences" on the death of Gardhouse's wife.

Mr. Maloney said Mr. Justice Grant "is fully aware that Mr. Bannon is a person on whose behalf I could have pleaded fellow magistrates and judges who have known him over the years as a lawyer for the Crown, Crown attorney and magistrate."

"All would vouch for his integrity and honesty and his basic humanity as a judge."

He said last week's testimony showed Alexander used his acquaintance with the magistrate to impress his associates.

Alexander pretended he could influence decisions in court cases and changed a fee for his help, Mr. Maloney said.

He said Bannon had learned a bitter lesson, but the evidence was "perfectly clear" that he had "never been offered a bribe and, indeed, would never have accepted one."

Avoiding Standard Stops on His Arctic Tour, Trudeau Goes Where No Other PM Has Visited

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's epic northern tour began Monday with visits to two new Yukon mining operations and an overnight stop at this Mackenzie River Delta centre inside the Arctic Circle.

Avoiding the standard northern stops, he is moving into territory no other prime minister has visited while in office. He flies today in the high Arctic islands, going first to a native settlement at Sachs Harbor on Banks Island, then to Drake Point and an oil exploration site on Melville Island and finally spending the night at Resolute, a community on Cornwallis Island.

He may fly Wednesday to Alert, Canada's most northerly community, if weather conditions allow. Alert is a weather station only 1,200 miles from the North Pole.

Mr. Trudeau renewed friendships made here 10 years ago when he canoed down the Coppermine River.

A crowd of 900 in this community of 2,000 cheered him at the Mr. Alexander Hotel in Inuvik where he made a non-speech, saying there had been enough talk during the election campaign.

"It is time for deeds," he said.

Actions spoke louder, than words in the North and this was one reason he had chosen to make it the site of his first post-election trip.

"Coming to the North again is to a sense stepping into Canada's future. . . ."

His day began in Saskatoon where he boarded a jet to Whitehorse then switched to a twin-engine DC-3 for the dirt airstrips at two interior mining sites.

First stop was the Anvil lead-zinc-silver mining development which is to begin production next year. About 500 construction men and miners, earning $1,000 a month and up, are on the site.

"Did you bring the mail?" asked one.

"I'm not a strike-breaker," replied the prime minister.

He chose liver and bacon in the cafeteria style mess hall and ate in lushly green 95-degree 85-ton trucks for a living snapped his picture. The whole mess crew surrounded him for a group photo after he congratulated the astounded cook.

The next stop was Clinton Creek, five miles from Alaska, where Cassiar Asbestos Corp. brought a mine into production May 1.

Steel worker Tony Castonguay, a Montrealer, gave him a string tie with an asbestos-in-the-rock design on behalf of Local 564 and the boys."

The two-hour tour of the lead-zinc mine, fragrant with a cedar, bright with firewood and alive with silver-tipped grizzlies, ended with the Trudeau plane heading north over the cement-colored Ogilvie Range, the great Eagle plain and into the Arctic.

Property Tax Increase Seen if Report Adopted

TORONTO (CP) — Taxes on residential property will rise by at least 10 per cent if the government follows recommendations of the Ontario committee on taxation, the Scarborough Council of Ratepayers Associations says in a brief.

The brief was to be presented today to the legislature's select committee studying the Smith report. The report recommends that the split mill rate, used by most municipalities, be abolished and a uniform rate used.

All properties would be assessed at their full "actual current value" and a single mill rate applied to all properties. Residential properties would be taxed 70 per cent of their assessment and commercial and industrial properties on 50 per cent, with the other 50 per cent subject to business tax.

Terence Osborne, chairman of the Scarborough council's tax committee, said municipalities with plenty of industrial or residential property could adjust their tax structure more evenly than if a single rate was uniform across the province.

Three MPPs Chary Of Bilingualism

TORONTO (CP) — The legislature gave unanimous support Monday to a resolution by Premier Robarts affirming the right of MPPs to use French in debates—but not before three members expressed anxiety that the door might be opened to "official bilingualism."

Mr. Robarts said in proposing the resolution that it only recognized a fact since members first used French under an Informal agreement "which might be called a typical Anglo-Saxon approach."

"It has always been assumed that any member can speak in either of the two official languages of Canada in this chamber," he said. But events in the last few months made him decide the time had come to give "formal recognition" to the existing right.

The events had included the Confederation of Tomorrow Conference here last November, the federal-provincial constitutional conference in Ottawa early this year and release of Ontario's Hall-Dennis report on the aims and objectives of education.

The premier gave the house details of current studies by four "task forces" into the use of French in the administration of justice, municipal affairs, the provincial civil service and within the legislature at its next sittings.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, who at the premier's invitation seconded the motion, called on the government to provide members with up-to-date translation services and expressed hope that in future Hansard would be able to provide quick translations of speeches made in French.

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald welcomed the resolution but warned that it would not be meaningful unless it inspired a "freer flow" of French in debates than has been the case. He said the house should have a simultaneous translation service and disagreed with those who said one would be too expensive.

Mr. MacDonald also suggested to Speaker Fred Edwards that he "make every effort to acquire a working knowledge of conversational French on his chair rulings or observations may be rendered in whichever language a member happened to be using at that time."

The first member to express reservations about the resolution was W. A. Downer (PC—Dufferin-Simcoe), who said he was not opposed to it but would like to know what other plans the government had on the matter.

Mr. Downer said a bilingual Ontario was certainly "something never envisioned by the Fathers of Confederation" and would cost the province many millions of dollars the government could ill afford.

Next to speak was Ron Knight (L—Port Arthur) who was concerned the government might "devalue" the status of French to the point where English-speaking civil servants and teachers would be discriminated against.

He said it appeared that English is in a big way to become being "phased out" in Quebec.

"While we're trying to make the French more comfortable in Ontario it seems that in Quebec everything is being done to make English-speaking people less comfortable."

Andrew Brunelle (PC—Carleton) objected to the terms of reference and initial report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, explored the "unrealistic demands of Premier Johnson and others in Quebec" and worried aloud that Ontario was being asked "to deny the French fact."

"This resolution will do little to placate Quebec or unite the country," said the 63 year-old Orangeman.

PC Urges Compensation Reform

TORONTO (CP) — John White (PC—London South) was opposition applause in the legislature Monday when he said the time has come to remedy some very obvious weaknesses" in Ontario's system of workmen's compensation.

Mr. White called for creation of "a form of ombudsman," entirely independent of the Workmen's Compensation Board, to hear appeals from workers whose claims for compensation have been denied or cut by the board.

He also asked the government to set up regional compensation board offices in the provinces and to provide regional treatment centres for injured workmen.

It was "unreasonable and unjust" to require injured workmen to come to Toronto to plead their cases and location of the board's only physiotherapy and treating centre here was "unwise and inconvenient."

Fred Burr (NDP—Sandwich-Riverside) complained that permanent disability awards made in the 1940s and 1950s have not increased to keep pace with changes in average income levels.

Clifford Pilkey (NDP—Essex) objected to compensation for temporary disability being related to the degree of disability rather than loss of income by the worker.

Elie Martel (NDP—Sudbury East) said the silicosis referral board set up under the Workmen's Compensation Act was regularly turning down applications for compensation despite diagnosis by up to seven doctors.

George Bukator (L—Niagara Falls) said the ministry's three-inch-thick file had had amassed over the years on the case of a woman who contended she has been unjustly denied compensation for a skin condition she blamed on her employment.

Shulman Wants 'Spontaneous' Answers

TORONTO (CP) — Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) told the legislature Monday night that two changes are needed in house procedure—spontaneous questions and answers in the daily question period and an end to "the farce" of private members' hour.

Questions now must be submitted to cabinet ministers in advance to permit them to prepare answers. Frequent response to Dr. Shulman's questions has been "taken on notice"—a further delay while a prepared answer is written.

Private members' bills are debated one hour a week. Dr. Shulman said, but never come to a vote.

He said there should be a free flow "good ideas from all sides of the house" to make backbenchers "feel like they are doing something worthwhile."

Dr. Shulman spoke for an hour and 30 minutes Monday night as he delivered his speech on the budget—a summary, with elaboration, of attacks he made on each government department in earlier debate.

71 Teachers Earn Under $3,000

TORONTO (CP) — The 1967 report of the department of education shows that 71 teachers, two of them women in high schools, earned less than $3,000 a year as late as Dec. 31.

The report was tabled in the legislature Monday.

There were 10,521 teachers in high schools, earning $5,000 or less.

Salaries of more than $20,000 were paid to 47 men and one woman in elementary schools and to 34 men and two women in secondary schools.

The medium salary for men in elementary schools was $6,782, for women $5,597; in high schools, male $9,157, women $7,356.

A comparative table on teacher-training schools in Ontario between 1958-59 and 1967-68 shows that enrolment in the nine years has gone up only to 6,853 from 4,688.

It has cost $953,423,000 to build or add to 7,325 elementary schools since 1958, and $918,697,670 for 1,285 secondary schools.

They have provided room for 855,017 additional elementary pupils and 341,961 secondary students.

In 1966-67, it cost Ontario $32,060,592 to transport 368,037 school pupils 356,961 miles on 9,173 routes.

Other tables showed that in September, 1967, there were 42,986 students in 236 Ontario private schools; 6,206 others in 104 schools for the mentally retarded; 257 pupils in the Ontario school for the blind, Brantford; 260 at the Ontario school for the deaf in Belleville and 458 at the Metion school.

Npeeteen French-speaking blind and deaf children were at- tending schools in Montreal with full tuition and residence costs paid, and two deaf-blind children were taking a correspondence training at a school for the blind in Watertown, Mass.

Liz Taylor 'Miserable' After Hysterectomy

LONDON (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor was reported "resting but miserable" Monday night after undergoing a partial hysterectomy. Her press secretary said there was "no suspicion of cancer."

"It was not a comfortable operation," the spokesman said, "but she is progressing satisfactorily."

Now 36, she is the mother of two sons—and a daughter and also has a deceased daughter. Her fifth husband, Richard Burton, has two daughters by a previous marriage.

The operation was performed at London's Fitzroy Nuffield Nursing Home by a team of doctors led by Gordon Bourne, a London gynaecologist.

The spokesman said the three-hour operation was "just like this side of a hysterectomy."

Burton was by her side during and following the surgery.

A hospital spokesman said she probably would remain in the nursing home for another two weeks.

MAKES OWN TREES

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Roy Thompson, 63, operates what he believes is the only candle-making firm in Canada that makes its own candle trees. Thornton, who makes the trees out of synthetic fibre, says "all the other manufacturers I know buy their trees from American companies."

Cleveland Race War Brings Death to Ten

Black Plot Seen

CLEVELAND (AP) — Snipers shooting from rooftops, windows and behind bushes launched a reign of terror at dusk Tuesday that left 10 persons dead in a predominantly Negro neighborhood on Cleveland's east side.

Four of those killed were white, three of them policemen.

Police said two of the victims were Negro snipers.

At least 18 others were hurt, two critically, in the three-hour gun battle with police that shattered the calm of a hot summer night. Scattered arson and looting followed the shooting.

Twenty-four persons were arrested, 17 on looting charges.

It ended, except for scattered gun shots, just before a heavy thundershower about midnight Tuesday night cooled off the steaming streets and dampened some blazes started by firebombs.

National guardsmen and police, armed with rifles, patrolled the area today.

The shooting began, witnesses said, when two Negro snipers "carrying rifles and . . . sacks of ammunition," ran out of an alley, crouched behind bushes and shot three white policemen, the first victims.

Later two snipers were killed. Bayonets, shotgun shells, gas

Judge Sees Progress In Postal Dispute

OTTAWA (CP)—Some progress was indicated early today in efforts to mediate the complicated issues in the national postal strike but a final settlement still appeared to be some way off.

Judge Rene Lippe, the federal mediator, met for nine hours Tuesday with the chief negotiators and finally called an adjournment at 12:15 a.m. EDT today.

"We're going along," he told reporters, but declined to speculate on when a settlement formula might be achieved.

"It will be as soon as possible," he said.

The day was spent discussing proposals by the Council of Postal Unions for revisions in working conditions, a major area of dispute.

Negotiators Douglas Love of the government's treasury board and Romeo Mathieu for the postal unions planned to hold separate sessions today with their negotiating teams. They are to return to Judge Lippe's 18th-floor hotel room at 7:30 tonight to resume direct mediation.

Private Delivery Services Busy But Not Prosperous

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Private mail delivery services which have sprung up across Canada since 24,000 postal workers paralyzed the country's regular mail system last Thursday are keeping busy, but they aren't making a fortune — not yet.

In Toronto several carrier services haul local mail throughout the city and foreign mail to the United States for porting.

Some of the surrogate postmen are breaking even on their ventures, but others agree with one exasperated novice mailman, who said:

"I wouldn't advise anyone to go into it."

Czechs Confident

Russians en Route to Parley

PRAGUE (AP) — Unconfirmed reports today said Leonid I. Brezhnev and the rest of the Soviet Communist party politburo were on their way to Czechoslovakia for a crucial meeting with Prague's new Communist leaders to discuss the Czech government's controversial democratic reforms.

Departure of the Soviet delegation for the previously announced meeting was reported by the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug from Moscow.

There was no official confirmation, but rumors of the departure circulated in Moscow.

The trip to Czechoslovakia is the first by the politburo—the steering committee of the Soviet steering committee of the Soviet party—outside Russia as a group.

The meeting is expected to be held today or Thursday in Slovakia, adjacent to the Soviet Union, but the time and location have not been announced.

Despite new Soviet army manoeuvres along its eastern frontier, Czechoslovak officials expressed confidence the Russians would never resort to armed intervention if the country stands united behind Alexander Dubcek's reformist regime.

"The Soviets would lose more than they would gain by a military intervention," one Communist party official said.

"Moscow will have to get used to what is going on here.

There can be no turning back the clock. We are not going to compromise and are determined to continue on the present course."

Party officials said they viewed the Soviet note this week demanding a strengthening of Czechoslovakia's border with West Germany, presumably by Red Army troops, as "just another step in the war of nerves."

In apparent rebuttal to the Soviet note, Maj-Gen. Jan Pepriy, commander of the frontier guard forces, said in a statement to the official news agency CTK:

"Fears regarding the safety of Czechoslovakia's borders are quite unfounded. The Czechoslovak Socialist Republic has enough strength to safely protect its state border with its capitalist neighbors."

The Soviet note is expected to be a chief topic of discussion at the meeting of the 11-member Soviet politburo and the 11-man presidium of the Czechoslovak party.

In Moscow, the Soviet defence ministry announced Tuesday that "military logistic exercises" are under way in the western Ukraine, which borders on Czechoslovakia. They are to continue until Aug. 10.

The announcement gave no hint that the manoeuvres were connected with Soviet pressure against Czechoslovakia's more liberal course. Nevertheless, there was some thinking in Moscow that the army exercises could provide a cover for any Soviet forces that might be preparing for an invasion of Czechoslovakia if the party talks failed to settle the crisis.

5,000 Are Driven from Homes By Deadly Chlorine Gas Leak

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A great grey cloud hung over this chemical-making centre today as thousands cautiously returned to the homes they evacuated because of a deadly chlorine gas leak.

A series of small explosions Tuesday ripped through the big FMC plant, rupturing a tank filled with the chlorine gas and sending a cloud of gas fumes over a 12-block area in the city of 20,000. Unofficial estimates of the number of evacuees ranged from 500 to 5,000.

Police sealed off the city from Charleston, the state capital across the Kanawha River. Residents sought higher ground to escape the fumes which produced smarting eyes, coughing and vomiting.

Dozens were treated in hospital, but none was considered serious.

Fire swept through a group of buildings at the chemical plant, which cuts through the heart of the city that calls itself "the chemical centre of the world."

FMC officials said the source of the chlorine leak had been located and sealed but warned that people should not return to their homes until the all clear sounded.

Atmospheric conditions added to the problem. There was little or no wind to disperse the cloud and officials said that the gas hovers close to the ground.

Canada Leads World In Peaceful A-Power Use

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada probably puts more nuclear power to peaceful uses than any other country, J. L. Gray, president of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., said Tuesday.

Mr. Gray said Canada is currently producing 2,000,000 watts of nuclear power and will double this output in the future.

Foreign demand for Canadian-produced nuclear reactors was high because of low cost of the fuel they require and the relatively small amounts of uranium they use, he said.

"When we got to 1,000-megawatt reactors, the cost per unit of power of the Canadian and, say, the American types will be approximately equal, and this will give the advantage to the lower fuel consumption of Canadian reactors."

Holiday Village Proposed

Miniature Disneyland Planned at Wooler

TRENTON (Staff) — A year-round vacation paradise, resembling to some extent a miniature Disneyland, will have tourists flocking to the Wooler area in Murray township within a year.

Construction of the new multi-million dollar "Universal Holiday Village," is already under way after being given the go-ahead by the Murray township planning board.

Head of the Holiday Village project is William A. Ryan, promotional director for Universal Travellers' Club.

Mr. Ryan, who was associated with the Disneyland for seven years, chose 100 acres of land on the Wooler-Frankford road as the site for the park. Property for the venture was purchased four years ago from long time Murray township farmer Bruce Plumton who sold part of his farm three miles east of Wooler.

The site is just north of a range of the Murray Hills and near the valley through which the well known Cold Creek trout stream runs.

Les Stephens, of Brighton, field supervisor for the Universal Holiday Village development, said the Plumton property was chosen because it was situated in a tourist district. The land is unsuitable for farming.

With 100 acres already purchased the organization is already planning to obtain another 400 acres in the same area.

Construction on the project commenced in serious vein today as a bulldozer moved in to excavate for a swimming pool. Already a well has been dug and the site surveyed and staked for chalets and other structures to be erected.

A residential - office structure will mark the entrance to the park from the Wooler - Frankford Road.

Visiting families to the park will be housed in chalets capable of accommodating about five people each. Twenty chalets are planned for immediate construction.

70 Properties Listed In Belleville Tax Sale

A total of 70 properties, most of them residential, are listed for the annual city land tax sale scheduled for September 16.

If tax arrears are not paid by that time the properties will be sold by the city to recover the amounts owing.

The list of properties up for tax sale shows the amounts owing to range all the way from less than $100 to a whopping $41,000.

This is the first time in two years that a property tax sale has been scheduled in the city. There was no sale last year.

As is usually the case, it is expected that a few days before the sale, the owners will redeem their properties by paying up their tax arrears along with penalty interest.

Why do some owners delay payment of city taxes to the extent that they are listed for tax sale?

City Manager J. R. Reynolds, doesn't recommend it, but he admits that in some instances it is simply a case of sound business practice.

The reason is that it costs them less to use city money than to borrow at the bank.

"I don't blame them," commented the city manager, "it is just good sound business.

Long Distance Calls Increase During Strike

Long distance calls going through the Bell Telephone exchange in Belleville have increased by about 30 per cent since the postal strike began.

"Our calls are up about 1,500 a day," R. W. Carleton of the telephone company said today.

Former operators now retired have been called back to help in the emergency, overtime has increased and regular operators are being asked to postpone their holidays until after the strike ends.

Several local industries, which are heavy long distance users, are now closed for vacations, and were they in operation we could have trouble coping with the situation," Mr. Carleton said.

"Our equipment is not designed to meet this heavy a load," he added.

Getting There Is Half the Fun!

Take a main highway link, join it to a cross-town artery like Bridge Street West (above), add peak summer tourist traffic, and tear up the thoroughfare. Important to remember is that obstacles should be on both sides of the roadway. Then watch as motorists simmer. However, recipe is not intentional and major street reconstruction project in Belleville is being hurried to conclusion.

Strikes Cause Problems at Loyalist

Labor disputes are causing problems at Loyalist College. The postal strike has sealed off the flow of student applications which now should be pecking in the mails.

And the Kingston-area electricians' strike has college officials watching September 30 deadline for completion of quarters to house students.

Most immediate administrative difficulty is hinged to the mail strike, college president's assistant, J. R. Fraser indicated today.

Normally, application should be coming in fairly heavily at this time," said Mr. Fraser.

He is anxious that all students seeking enrolment for the new term telephone Loyalist as soon as possible.

As for the electrician's strike — which has hit construction of temporary Loyalist building on Wallbridge Road — Mr. Fraser said it was impossible to predict the effects.

However, he was not unduly pessimistic that the labor dispute would not seriously hinder completion of the building.

The pre-engineered structure was originally scheduled for completion by early September, although no specific opening date for Loyalist's second year has yet been announced.

If the electricians are back at work in the near future, the project should not be unduly affected, said Mr. Fraser.

However, it "could hurt us if it goes on too long," he added.

Resort Area Construction Site

Converted school bus is temporary office quarters for the new Holiday Village resort area near Wooler. Bulldozer moved in today to excavate for swimming pool and overnight chalet foundations.

Dig That Well!

These big tiles will go into a well being dug at Universal Holiday Village east of Wooler. Construction on Holiday resort project in the Murray Hills got underway in earnest this week.

Miniature

This accommodation area will be separate from the entertainment and amusement centres.

Those looking for fun will find it at the archery ranges, miniature golf courses and, if enough nerve can be mustered, the roller coaster. Other entertainment will take the form of dancing to top bands along with the presentation of the best in movies. A live theatre will cater to both "Universal Travellers Village residents and the general public.

There will be rides for the youngsters, along with horses and a full staff on duty.

This village will be the first of ten to be built throughout Canada. Vacationers will be able to stay for a week for $75-$100 each for the use of all the facilities. For children the weekly price will be $35-$50 each. Daily visitors will be welcomed and are expected to come and enjoy the many rides and activities.

Total cost for the project is expected to be anywhere from two to five million dollars. It is hoped to complete the villages within one year but it will employ at least 100 local residents.

Money will come from local investors who became interested in the project some months ago and have since become members of the organization. Further capital will come from other investors from the U.S. and Canada.

And so today, clearing of the holiday area land began in earnest and with it started a big boost in the Trent area tourist industry.

Rollins Named To Committee

Premier Roberts yesterday announced the appointment of two 13-member select committees of he legislature to study reform of Ontario's election and company laws.

The two committees, the company law committee and the election law committee, will have eight Conservatives, three Liberals and two New Democrats.

Appointed to the company law committee was Russell Rowe, Conservative member for Northumberland.

Syl Apps, Conservative for Kingston and the Islands, and Clarke Rollins, Conservative for Hastings, were appointed to the electoral law committee.

Public Apathy Major Problem for Police: Chief Crosbie

PICTON (Staff) — Modern society may be placing an undue emphasis on personal freedom according to Belleville Chief of Police, Douglas Crosbie.

Chief Crosbie told Picton Rotarians, yesterday that individual apathy however is free of responsibilities to their community.

He said a major problem facing law enforcers was the apathy of most people. At the top of the scale he said, are those that work hard for law enforcement and the community, at the bottom are, the lawbreakers.

In the large mass in between he said, is the average citizen who does not become involved.

Crime today he said, is highly organized. Many criminals carefully work out all the details, before breaking the law. If these criminals are to be effectively combatted he noted, the help of the populace must be available.

He cited instances of citizens standing by watching crimes take place.

People must become involved he stressed saying that too many tend to be removed from their communities.

He asked if the Rotarians were aware of the magazines available in local bookstores.

"Obscenity and pornography can be picked off the shelf by any child," he stated.

"Pornography and obscenity make up a two billion dollar industry in North America," he said, challenging club members to 'take a look.'

Chief Crosbie went on to attack marijuana, saying although non-addictive, its use 'doesn't do any good.'

He claimed that the use of marijuana leads to the use of stronger drugs as 'the kick wears off.'

Chief Crosbie said that the crime picture was not all black, and that new methods would increase police efficiency.

Already he said, police Telex systems throughout the province are functioning within immediate communication with one another.

A huge crime index will be established in Toronto within the next few years. Computer operated, it will be fed particular information relating to unsolved crimes, unrecovered property and known criminals.

The computer will be in touch with all information systems in the United States, and will be able to keep tabs on criminals throughout the continent.

Students To Visit Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Six exchange students from Germany will visit Picton early in September.

They will be the guests of the Rotary Club here, Russell Brown is in charge of their itinerary.

He said that visits have been scheduled for Lakeland Lodge, a Provincial Park and an area canning factory.

The six students will be feted by other area clubs. They will visit Fort Hope, Cobourg, Colborne, Trenton and Belleville, all at the invitation of Rotary clubs in those communities.

Mishap Causes $1,900 Damage

A rear-end collision on Dundas St., East of Newberry is involving a Colonial Coach Lines bus and a Smith Transport truck sent one man to hospital with minor injuries this morning.

Bus driver Lorne Stanley Bland, Ottawa, pinned in his seat by the impact, was treated for leg bruises at Belleville General Hospital and released.

A bus was dispatched from the Belleville terminal to pick up the passengers and carry them through to Toronto.

The mishap occurred at 8.30 a.m. when Smith transport driver Keith Bailey of Picton, proceeding west on Dundas St. East, slowed to make a left hand turn into Newberry St. The bus following behind him struck the rear of the transport.

The pavement was wet from a light rain which had fallen earlier in the morning.

REMEMBERS FISHERMAN

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland says Generalissimo Franco of Spain is to present a statue to the province commemorating the Spanish fishermen who have fished in Newfoundland. The statue is to be placed in front of the capital building next to a statue of Gaspar Corte Real, 15th century Portuguese navigator.

Happy in His Work!

Fred Lester sets cheerily to work on yet another painting at his St. Charles Street home. The 75-year-old artist rediscovered a talent latent since his teens after illness confined him to wheelchair.

Fred Lester Rediscovers Talent After 60 Years--He's an Artist

At 75 — and suddenly confined indoors in a wheelchair — the world of Fred Lester is a series of warm, colorful scenes.

And it's happening daily at his St. Charles Street home where Fred — who lost both legs through illness — is busily applying a talent he accidentally rediscovered after 60 years.

Fred's vigorous optimism refused to surrender to a series of illnesses which kept him in and out of hospital in recent years and eventually lost him his legs.

He admits life in a wheelchair was becoming monotonous.

"I used to wonder what to do with myself," he says. "I was fed up looking out the window and watching television."

Then, returned to hospital last December, a relative gave him one of those pictures painted by numbers.

"I was tickled to death she gave it to me," he recalls. "That made me remember."

The memory was of himself as a teenager in St. Thomas hopefully taking painting lessons from one of Canada's leading artists.

But his memories go back further — to other talents at work in other places.

One of Fred's proudest possessions today is a mug presented him at the 1902 coronation of Edward VII — by the King himself.

Fred's father was conductor of a London brass band which that year had won the all-England music championship in its class.

Fred, a 10-year-old trombonist was probably the youngest musician at Buckingham Palace when the band was ordered to play for the monarch.

He remembers the king shaking hands with him but not 'particularly saying anything. He just patted me on the hand."

In 1904, the family moved to Canada where the elder Lester went thundering in Belleville.

Fred continued to play the trombone — in the 25th Regiment band and at various social functions around the city.

In 1910, the Lesters moved to Aylmer and then to St. Thomas.

It was here as a teenager that Fred decided to indulge artistic yearning and began taking lessons from leading artist Sir Thomas Smith.

He was expensive ("In those days a 10-cent piece was a 10-cent piece") and the studies lasted only a few months.

He went on with making a living as a musician.

But in professional music, the life was too restrictive for young men, he recalls.

"If you weren't playing, you were practicing. If you weren't practicing you were on the road. That wasn' the life for me."

He took up a trade and became a top electrician, working for years in Hamilton.

He returned to Belleville in the 1940s, as a wood craftsman in the car repair business.

With the advent of total steel frames, the craft went out.

Undeterred, he turned his hand to construction and built a canteen on the Canadian Road.

It's still in business — but under different management.

Fred sold out and retired in 1960. It was at that time he was stricken by the first illness. Lengthy treatment culminated in an operation.

But other physical problems also intervened, among them periodontis. Then he lost his left leg and had it replaced with an artificial limb. Last year, a similar condition cost him his other leg below the knee.

But his hospital experience with the number-painting marked a new departure.

He was dissatisfied with the completed article, he recalls.

"It looked all blocked off and I thought I could do better myself — without the numbers."

One mental process led to another — and eventually back to those early days in St. Thomas and the struggle to study art.

Out of hospital last January he set himself to work and his family constructed a desk used to facilitate movement from his wheelchair.

He's been at it ever since.

"I work steadily all day long — I never miss," says Fred. "I made a lot of mistakes when I started, but I'm gradually learning them and rectifying them."

One of his newest critics is his son Walter, now living in St. Thomas.

Walter has inherited his father's painting talent. (The other son, Donald at Elgin, has the musical inheritance. He's drum-major in the famed Elgin bugle band).

As for the artist in his own right, Walter claims his father's pair has much detailed work in his paintings, says the elder Lester.

"I told him I've got all the time in the world. If I just do it the way he says I'd have a thousand pictures hanging around here.

And that isn't the end of the story — not for a gentle talented individual like Fred Lester.

All those paintings need frames and suddenly, says Fred, he's discovered frames can be expensive.

So: "They wasted so damn much money for frames I decided to make my own."

Picton Strike to Continue For at Least A Week

The first round of strike negotiations between the Proctor Silex Company and the 100 striking members of International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers has drawn to a close.

While the negotiations seem to bring settlement closer to a reality, they also revealed that strikers will be out for at least another week.

George LeBlanc, president of Local 285, said the meeting today was peaceful, without heated or bitter words.

George Hutchens, International president spoke on behalf of the union interests, while Proctor Silex was represented by company lawyer Charles Sellick.

Hi was agreed that rather than debate new terms clause by clause, that the union present an overall package proposal outlining its needs to the company.

The proposal will be studied by company officials, and a counter proposal will be made at a meeting early next week.

Said Mr. LeBlanc, "The negotiators are talking in different terms now. They (the company) realize that we need what we are asking for."

More can be accomplished by looking at an overall picture, he added. 'We will be able to get down to the meat of the matter."

At that time, Mr. LeBlanc said there was little else that could be done. Twelve meetings had been held since the beginning of the year with company officials.

No progress was made at the meetings partially because company officials insisted that all non-monetary matters be settled before wage increases were discussed.

The negotiators ended up bickering over minor points said Mr. LeBlanc.

Timetable for Reality

Last week's sidewalk sale has been termed by the sponsoring downtown merchants as a "success." But what might be of equal importance in the long run is the fact the promotion suggests a new look to downtown may be more than just a dream.

With merchandise on the sidewalk and on the street in parking spots, it was a hint at what might lie ahead if a shopping mall for downtown Belleville ever becomes a reality.

And the Cafe de la Moira, snuggled away in the burned out area downtown. What a delightful way to pass an hour or two it would be if coffee shops or rest areas could be located in the now travelled portion of Front Street.

The participation of the merchants in the sale strongly suggests they are prepared to work together to promote the downtown core. It is a move which is to be commended, for few cities prosper if the downtown business section fails to remain the vibrant heart of the community.

With a shopping centre in the planning stages for North Front Street, it is imperative for the continued good health of the city that the main business section remain strong.

The success of this sale could be just the incentive the revitalized Downtown Businessmen's Association needs to throw unified support behind plans to redevelop the city's core.

The magic circle project — a Front Street mall fed by an arterial roadway around the main business section — has been promoted now for nearly a year.

Supporters are working to bring it into being. Perhaps now is the time for a concerted effort by businessmen, city council and the city's residents to set up a timetable for reality and ensure that initial target goals are reached.

Undoubtedly there are countless details which will have to be met. . . .

But it shouldn't be too soon to apply the same type of techniques to this project as the method utilized to enable Expo 67 to open on time.

All the problems that have to be overcome should be put down on paper. Then, working backwards from the eventual target date, a chronological roll call of deadlines could be fashioned to ensure that each plateau was reached on schedule.

Involved, of course, are urban renewal studies, city bylaws, Ontario Municipal Board approval, traffic studies, traffic flow, involvement by store owners, parking allocation and property acquisition.

Admittedly it is complicated, but a concerted effort now might be just enough to arrest the downtown decay and turn Belleville into one of the most exciting small cities in Canada.

A Needed Study

Premier John Robarts' announcement yesterday that a 13-man committee will study election practices in Ontario is a welcome one.

Specifically the election law committee, headed by Edward Dunlop, will "review election laws and related acts and regulations in the light of modern needs, practices and concepts for the proper representation of those qualified to vote."

To be sure, the committee will continue work begun by a select committee appointed during the last legislature, but it is encouraging that the study is to be completed.

Elections have become cumbersome, expensive and involved. Strangling the efforts of today's citizens to be informed are the regulations of a past era which fall miserably when applied to modern communication and today's society.

No doubt much of the emphasis placed by the committee will be on the problems of the urban dweller. But it is comforting to know that the rural point of view will be protected and represented by Hastings MP Clarke Rollins, one of the committee members.

Fire Hazard Climbs

If you like it hot the weather has been great.

But, as always there are two sides to every coin. One of the disadvantages of perfect vacation weather is that it pushes the forest fire hazard to the top of the scale.

District foresters at Tweed have cautioned that the hot dry spell is fodder for the careless camper. It is a warning that should be heeded by all who enjoy our natural resources.

Yea: of Extremes

More Than 500 Died In Sweltering Ontario In 1936

Fred J. Egan in
The Globe and Mail

Thirty years ago, in one torrid July week, stifling, unforgettable heat claimed the lives of more than 500 Ontario residents. Half of them died in Toronto.

Horse-drawn hearses that had been discarded a decade before were recalled to service. Extra gravediggers were hired from the plentiful ranks of the Depression unemployed and casual makers worked around the clock to satisfy the demand for their products.

On Wednesday, July 8, 1936, 104.5 degrees. Next day, the thermometer rose to 105 and Friday was little better with a reading of 104.9.

It almost seems as if nature had chosen 1936 to inflict its torturing worst on the unfortunate residents of Ontario.

In January, giant snowdrifts isolated the village of Port Franks on Lake Huron. Food and newspapers were dropped to its 60 inhabitants from the air. A 75-year-old Indian of the Kettle Point Reserve was found frozen to death nearby.

In March, the snow melted and the floods came. Bridges were washed out in Western Ontario and the newspapers printed the inevitable pictures of townhalls under two - parking signs.

Then, on May 8, summer overtook a tardy spring and the temperature reached 90 degrees.

But all this unusual weather was but a prelude to the July heat wave.

On Wednesday, it arrived: The temperature was 81 degrees at 7 a.m., 88 at 9 and 94 by 10. By noon the weather bureau's reading was 102.8, breaking the record of 102.2 set on August 13, 1918.

At mid-afternoon, the day's high of 104.9 was reached in Toronto. It was 104 at Woodstock, and 102 at Galt.

It should be remembered that few of the 1936 stores or theatres were air-conditioned at the time. Many businesses shut up shop before noon. Civil Workers went home, but found their houses even more unbearable than their offices. So they headed for the waterfront.

The result was a monumental traffic jam. The early arrivals found some degree of comfort but the late starters found themselves in bumper-to - bumper traffic on Lake Shore Blvd., a jam that wasn't cleared until 3 a.m.

The city used a recorded 116 million gallons of water. A few thousand gallons were used by firemen who flushed the hard-expended Cherry Street bridge for hours in order to open it for traffic to the beaches.

Between 9 and 10 a.m. on Thursday, the mercury rocketed from 86 to 94.9 degrees and a few hours later all new records, to record of 105. That was bad enough, but in Hamilton a high of 108 was recorded.

The use of all water hoses in Toronto and Hamilton was banned. Cars lined Bloor Street bridge of the Toronto waterfront all day and street cars to the Ferry docks were clogged in one long line up Bay Street.

The bylaw which required all bathers to wear tops was ignored as young men went to the beaches in trunks only. It was estimated that more than 10,000 slept that night on the Toronto waterfront.

Saturday, July 11, wasn't much better. The warmest Regatta Anniversary, parade of the Loyal Orange Order in history wended its soggy way, 10,000 strong, from Queen's Park to the Bathurst Grounds.

With the thermometer at 90 degrees, one of the events was belatedly declared: "Any attention must not interfere with the affirmation of Protestant principles."

Sunday, it was only 88 degrees, but 115 deaths were recorded during the weekend. On Monday, the high was 100, but the worst was over. Tuesday it dropped to 92 degrees in the daytime and to a merciful 68 at night.

During the seven days, 780 deaths were recorded in Toronto, 225 of them in Hamilton. Coroners attributed 227 Ontario and 91 Toronto deaths directly to the heat.

An Emergency Helps

How to Make Friends in Toronto

Bruce West in
The Globe and Mail

One way to get to know people in Toronto is to be riding home at midnight on the westbound Bloor-Danforth subway when someone pulls an emergency power switch and blacks out a large section of the line. You know how Torontonians sit in home, subway trains and street cars and just stare at each other blankly, as though they are trying to read some fine print hidden behind each other's head. They look through you but not at you.

Well, this whole manner changes when the subway train grinds to a halt at the Christie Street station and a uniformed TTC man starts mysteriously ordering everyone out of the cars to the platform. Suddenly everyone has something in common to wonder about and down goes the barriers as strangers begin chattering to each other. Has the subway caved in somewhere ahead? Has the Mad Bomber struck again? It doesn't do much good to ask the TTC men, who just look knowing and assure you that things will be all right soon.

Meanwhile, the trains keep coming in to the Christie Street station and disgorging more passengers on the platform, until it is jam-packed. All the passengers wear large question marks on their faces as they leave the train and join the mob on the platform. The power cutoff lasted only about 40 minutes, but by the time the later trains were arriving those on the scene had been standing on that platform for a few minutes soon began feeling like old-timers at the newcomers debarked.

This gave veterans of bewilderment a kind of superior feeling towards the later arrivals. We carefully explained to them, like tour guides, all the things we didn't know about what was holding us up on that platform. They seemed to be impressed with great respect, hanging on our every word. Those who were observed speaking to a TTC man were given particularly rapt attention when they came back to report what the TTC man had not told them. It is possible that never in the field of subway breakdowns have so many listened so carefully to so little.

Finally, some of us just sat down on the floor with our backs against the tile walls of the station. I found myself sitting between a Pakistani and a Spaniard. Anyone who doubts that Toronto has become a cosmopolitan city should ride the subway when there is a blackout on the line. You could have held a kind of United Nations meeting right on that platform.

What made the whole situation particularly puzzling was the fact that, after discharging their passengers, the subway trains continued on their western journey. We all kept wondering why they could keep running empty when they couldn't keep running fully.

Anyway, the TTC finally let us back on the trains and it wasn't until later in the morning that we discovered some rascal or rascals had merely pulled a switch — for which the penalty, by the way, is a $400 fine and-or five years in prison.

Ottawa Beaches Polluted

Ottawa Le Droit,

More than any speech or written tract the closing of Ottawa's municipal beaches will make the people aware of the terrible plague that is water pollution. Collectively we all are guilty of this crime. Individually, however, it is almost impossible for us to act against it. Each one of us can do his part by refraining from casting garbage in the waters of our beaches, but there is in this gesture more goodwill than actual good deeds. What is needed is the matter of water pollution is a truly countrywide purification program.

On the local level, it does absolutely nothing to assist in a region such as ours. The City of Ottawa could go ahead and build the most modern purification plants along the Rideau and Ottawa rivers, but they would work in vain if the nearby communities did not act in concert, and if their action was not supported and rounded out by the financial backing of the federal and provincial governments. . . .

In this matter, what is needed is a revolution in the attitude of the national and even the international level. . . . What we don't need is any tendency on the part of municipalities, provinces or countries jealously to protect their right to act alone on matters affecting their own territory. . . .

What Canada needs above all are steps toward classification of water, its purification and assurance of its protection by permanent laws. On this issue, stop-gap measures will do absolutely nothing.

Voting Clue

Edmonton Journal: The decision of the British cabinet to seek a lowering of the voting age from 21 to 18 should be a clue for Canadian politicians to begin thinking along the same lines. In reaching its decision, the British cabinet is simply acknowledging that young people today—with or without the vote —are having an influence on those who govern them, and that this influence might just as well be formally recognized.

He was going down for the third time when young Crozier, who had jumped into the water with his clothes on, reached him and brought him safely to land.

Mr. Goldberg's "Rest Cure"

Victoria Times

The Associated Press reports that Arthur Goldberg, bowing out as chief U.S. envoy at the United Nations, is setting up a busy future for himself as a lawyer, writer, lecturer, professor and government consultant. For most men, that would represent an exhausting schedule. For Mr. Goldberg, it may seem like a rest cure — relatively speaking.

At the UN, he engaged in 1,304 formal consultations with ambassador - 222 conferences with groups of ambassadors, attended 173 long meetings of the Security Council, delivered 215 policy speeches, was host at 255 receptions for 16,084 guests, attended 776 receptions and was called back by one crisis or another on each of 17 days during every vacation during his three years on the job. Which leaves the average reader wondering if Mr. Goldberg's selection for the UN post was an appointment or a sentence.

Laugh or Cry

Montreal Star: Should you laugh or should cry when a labor minister, expressly charged with the settlement of an industrial peace, almost boasts that a certain dispute will last maybe all summer? That is what Quebec's Labor Minister Bellemare did when talking last week about the Quebec Liquor Board strike. He seems much more interested in his long-term project to turn the liquor stores over to private enterprise than in the immediate task of forcing a settlement in the current dispute. Mr. Bellemare would be better advised, as acting premier, to put the proper pressure on the negotiators of the state-owned concern so that they make some motions towards an agreement with the union. . . .

Rockefeller In Uphill Battle

Kingston Whig - Standard

Most political observers in the United States agree that Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York is fighting an uphill struggle in his quest for the Republican Party presidential nomination. Despite the vast sums of money he is spending on his campaign Governor Rockefeller, it would appear, is not making a major impact on delegates to the nominating convention.

Mr. Rockefeller recently proposed a nation-wide opinion poll jibing former Vice-President Richard Nixon and himself into the probable Democratic nominees to see which Republican has the greater winning appeal. But Mr. Rockefeller's National Committee tersely rejected the idea. Mr. Rockefeller also proposed a debate with Mr. Nixon. This too was turned down. These are only two examples of the problems "Rocky" is having in his campaign.

Churches Praised

Toronto Star: The pews and pulpits of many churches may be occupied by rather docile congregations, content to let inflation, but that mentality does not pervade the World Council of Churches. It has condemned ..... called on both churches and governments to amend their attitudes and policies to foster a more just and humane society. This week, in Sweden, it took a courageous step by passing in substance a declaration that a citizen be allowed to withdraw from military service in any war he finds morally repugnant.

The Pleasures of Walking

In The Christian Science
Monitor
By Christa Castleton

Walking has been for me a life-long joy, and I gladly join the ranks of those who know its splendors and rewards. When I was a child, my family would take Sunday walks in MacCay Park in Portland, Ore., but my first initiation came in mysterious wise at Kingsley Invercargill, after overlooking Waikiki. I approached from the flank nearest the sea, from the back yard of a friend whose home rests at the base of that mighty headland. Looking up from her flowerbeds, I remarked that there didn't seem to be a path, but that I was ready to attempt to go west up mimbly as a goat, and so I was encouraged to try it.

I had not gone far standing on the rim of the crater, and a knife-edge rim it is, one side, 300 feet below, lay all of Waikiki, its buildings and hotels and palm trees dwarfed by the immense expanse of Waikiki Bight stretching from the tawny rim of famous sand all the way to the horizon.

On the inside of the crater a hundred-foot drop led to a flat craterbed of red earth, with a pond complete with pump, a few cattle grazing on it, and, as I got ranges, a couple of earthen tanks, grass and bushes.

Just as the early Hawaiians had no other motive when they set under their palm trees at the beach to enjoy the moonlight, so their walk, or "holo holo," was nothing more than an excuse to walk for the sake of walking.

My last "holo holo" was up the mountain many enough, part of a friend whose home rests at the base of that mighty headland. Looking up from her flowerbeds, I remarked that there didn't seem to be a path, but that I was ready to attempt to go west up mimbly as a goat, and so I was encouraged to try it.

Steelmen Favor Strike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United Steelworkers Union members have armed their negotiators with an overwhelming vote of confidence as they race against an Aug. 1 strike deadline.

Bargaining talks resume today.

"This will shake money loose," said one union district director as he reported his area better than 80 per cent in favor of a strike.

The vote, taken Tuesday in 600 union halls across the U.S., was the first of its kind for the third-largest union in the country.

Reports from 83 locals representing about 180,000 men showed that some 3,700, or only about two per cent, were opposed. Figures from a dozen that took secret paper ballots showed 11 per cent opposed.

There are about 125,000 union members in Canada but union spokesmen have said it was believed the Canadian industry would not be affected by any strike action because contracts there do not expire until next year.

Union leadership is under strong pressure to match the six per cent it won in the U.S. can and aluminum industries earlier this year, despite President Johnson's plea for wage restraint.

Steelworkers averaged $3.84 an hour in May, and the industry says fringe benefits added another $1.09.

Walking in the Rain

TUKTOYAKTUK, N.W.T. (CP) — Pierre Elliott Trudeau modelled a magnificent $300 sealskin parka made by the Eskimos of this Arctic settlement, then quipped:

"What the well-dressed prime minister is wearing."

"This will do more for the sealskin industry in the North than anything," said N.W.T. Commissioner Stuart Hodgson.

Adverse publicity about seal killing methods in the Gulf of St. Lawrence has hurt markets and in three years has cut the price for seal pelts in the North to $2 from $15.

The market drop hit as many Eskimo communities were building tiny industries from garments and souvenirs made from sealskin and furs.

Mr. Trudeau was shown through the co-operative here, where a dozen Eskimo men and women were cutting and sewing the dazzling parkas with fringes of wolverine fur.

masks and first-aid kits were found on the bodies.

One of 11 policemen wounded by gunfire said the shooting started when he and his partner drove a police tow truck into the area to "pick up a piece of junk."

"We were working a police tow truck and went to pick up a piece of junk at 122rd at Beulah Avenue. We just started to hook it up and somebody started shooting at me with a shotgun.

"He hit me about three times. I started to run around and hide behind the truck. They started shooting up the truck. I got in from all sides. There were two of them with shotguns and one with an automatic weapon."

McMillan said one man walked up to the truck and fired "point-blank into the truck."

"I didn't have a gun. My partner didn't have any either. Why send two truck men on the street without a gun?"

Another patrolman shot was Thomas Smith, 33. He was one of the first to arrive at the scene after the shooting started.

"I got up there and here was a lieutenant lying in the street and so was the sergeant. A couple of men were hurt. . . . I tried to help the lieutenant out. I pulled him back.

"I ran behind the car where the sergeant was hit and was lying down. I got to the sergeant and picked him up. That's when I got it in the back."

Waves of police, some using armored trucks, turned the neighborhood into an armed camp.

Tear gas and smoke bombs burst on the sidewalks and against buildings. Officers and some residents became ill from the fumes.

When the gunfire erupted, police radio calls came thick and fast and had a tone of desperation.

"Things are pretty bad down here," said one, "We're pinned down. The wounded men are lying in the street. We can't get to them. Get some armored cars."

Police reinforcements were rushed in—and some tried to chase small boys, attracted by the gunfire, off the streets.

A woman, declining identification, said she rushed to an upstairs room after seeing the shooting begin. She quoted one of the boys as telling the officers: "They're not after us, they're after you. They want you, not us."

Mayor Carl B. Stokes, a Negro who took office last November, appealed to all citizens to "stay home and co-operate with the police." Stokes described he situation as "bad" but at dawn said it was "controlled."

Ohio Adjutant-General Sylvester T. Del Corso, summoned from Akron to command the guardsmen, said he saw "some evidence of a plot" involving black nationalists.

Witnesses said the snipers appeared to have an organized battle plan. Some used automatic carbines. On the body of one dead sniper was a bandolier of shotgun shells, a gas mask by his side.

Mr. J. J. Trudeau, President of Trudeau Motors Limited is pleased to announce the appointment of Mr. Robert Poulin as Service Manager, in charge of the entire service operation of Trudeau Motors Limited.

Mr. Poulin comes to Trudeau's with many years of experience in the automobile business, including mechanical and collision repairs and is highly recommended for his new position. He is married with three children, all of school age.

Chilly Adventure

Pair Swim Strait to Russian Waters

SEATTLE (AP) — Two men said Tuesday night they swam to within a stone's throw of Soviet territory in the Bering Strait Sunday and brought back motion pictures of the chilly adventure.

Ben Schlossberg said he and Stephen Friedland, both from Jersey City, N.J., first swam 25 miles from Wales, Alaska, to Alaska's Little Diomede Island in about 15 hours.

Then, he said, they swam out, to the international dateline, which runs close to Russia's Big Diomede Island, 2.4 miles from Little Diomede.

"We got caught in a current that took us into Russian waters," Schlossberg said. "The launch that accompanied us turned back. It didn't go across the dateline and we didn't know what the heck we were going to do."

But the two fought clear of the current, he said, and swam back to the boat, which returned them to Little Diomede after they launched some colored balloons that drifted toward Big Diomede.

Schlossberg said he and Friedland, both 27, wore swim suits heated by water from the accompanying boat to protect them from the 37-degree sea water.

No nagging backache!

She used to be bothered by backaches that nagged. When she learned that irritation of the bladder and urinary frequency often go hand-in-hand with backache, she tried Doan's Kidney Pills. Smart girl. Doan's Pills relieve backache and bladder irritation the quick, easy way. If you are bothered by backache, Doan's Kidney Pills may help you. You can depend on Doan's. Now large size saves money.

Quiet Diplomacy Said Useless to Farmers

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP) — The president of the Ontario Farmers Union Tuesday carried to the Farmers Union of British Columbia his call for farmers to be given the right to collective bargaining.

Walter Miller said quiet diplomacy is worthless in solving farm problems in present society and it is time to apply trade union tactics within agricultural organizations.

However, he told the B.C. union's convention, farmers have been conditioned to shy away from collective action and don't realize they are at war with the industrial segments of the community.

Lessels – Brooker

MR. AND MRS. RONALD D. LESSELS

The Salvation Army Citadel, Belleville was the scene of a recent wedding when Judith May Brooker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Brooker of Trenton became the bride of Ronald David Lessels, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Stanley Lessels of Belleville.

Major James Tuckaberry assisted by Mrs. J. Tuckaberry and Captain June Dwyer performed the ceremony. Pianist for the ceremony was Miss Katherine Burnside of Madoc who accompanied the soloist Jack Hatfield of Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length A- line gown of white peau de soie featuring elbow length lace sleeves with scalloped edges and highlighted with a cathedral lace train also with scalloped edges. A matching headdress of peau de soie and lace adorned with seed pearls and crystals was caught to a two - tier veil and she carried a bouquet of white feathered carnations and gardenias.

The maid of honor Miss Joanne Brooker and the bridesmaids Miss Leona Tuckaberry of Scarborough and Miss Lynda Payton of Belleville were dressed alike in sleeveless A-line full length gowns in orange ice print nylon over yellow taffeta. Their headdresses were also yellow roses with short veils and the maid of honor carried a bouquet of white Shasta daisies and yellow roses, while the bridesmaids carried bouquets of white Shasta daisies. Miss Janie McKee was flower girl wearing a white peau de soie dress with lace yoke and sleeves with headband of yellow daisies and carried a matching bouquet of daisies.

For the reception in the Salvation Army Hall at Trenton, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing an A - line yellow nylon over taffeta dress, white accessories and a corsage of orange Talisman roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a teal blue sheath dress of silk chiffon over lace, white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses and white 'mums.

Leaving on the wedding trip to Central Ontario and Northern points the bride wore a two - piece dress of white lace over beige, beige accessories and a corsage of orange Delight roses with white baby 'mums.

On return the couple will reside at 10 Applewood Drive, Belleville.

Engagement Notice

Nancy A. Pigden — Kenneth C. Soden

The engagement is announced of Nancy A. Pigden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Pigden, to Kenneth C. Soden, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. J. Soden. The marriage will take place on Saturday, August 17, at 11:00 a.m. in St. Michael's Church, Belleville. Nancy is a recent graduate of Hotel Dieu Hospital, while "Casey" is a graduate of Toronto (B.A.) and University of Waterloo (M.A.).

Reid – Menzies

MR. AND MRS. KEITH S. REID

FRANKFORD — Recently in St. John's United Church, Campbellford, Lynda Diane Menzie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Menzies of Campbellford was united in marriage to Keith Spencer Reid, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Leocard Reid of Frankford.

Rev. C. Dugan of Unionville performed the double-ring ceremony. Wedding music was played by Mrs. Dorothy Thompson of Campbellford and Miss Kathy Reid, sister of the bridegroom was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor-length gown of dotted double tulle with appliques of Guipure lace flowers, long lily point sleeves, scooped neckline. A cathedral train matching her gown, featured a border of Paloma satin. She wore a flowered headpiece edged with pearls and Aurora Borealis with a four-tiered scalloped veil. She carried a cascade of red roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Carol Goltz of Bala, was maid of honor with Miss Florence Nuska of Batawa, as bridesmaid dressed identically in floor-length gowns of buttercup yellow sheer over taffeta featuring sheer capes. They wore headpieces of yellow daisies which held in place their shoulder-length veils, and carried bouquets of white shasta daisies.

Groomsman was Arthur Menzies of Brockville, brother of the bride and the usher was Jack Lawrence of Frankford.

The wedding reception was held at the Pines Motel, Trenton, where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a pink crepe sheath with a pink sheer cape, white accessories and a corsage of white baby 'mums. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore an eggshell crepe sheath, yellow accessories and a corsage of yellow baby 'mums.

For the honeymoon trip to Lake Placid, New York, the bride chose for travelling, a pink lace over taffeta dress with matching coat, white accessories and corsage of white baby 'mums.

On their return they will take up residence at 56 Main St., Frankford, Ont.

Friends Honor Bride-elect

FRANKFORD — A neighborhood miscellaneous shower was held in honor of July bride-to-be Miss Donna Adams at the home of Mrs. Leslie Frost.

The home was decorated with pink and white streamers and wedding bells while the guest chair was decorated with white ribbon.

The program consisted of several musical numbers by Mrs. Bill White and Mrs. Walter Morrow, Misses Cathy and Diane Moran. Contests were enjoyed by everyone and a colorful bridal hat was made from pompoms and placed on the head of the bride-elect.

Miss Adams opened her many lovely gifts and graciously thanked everyone. Refreshments were served by the hostess Mrs. Leslie Frost assisted by several ladies.

Girl Misses Friend So Much; Cries Herself to Sleep

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am 18. For 10 months I went around with a wonderful boy. Then one day my best girl friend phoned me and asked if I would mind her going out with him. I was shocked and hurt but in my normal voice I said, "No, not at all."

He only took her out once and that was the last we both heard from him. I started dating other guys. For the first little while I was having a good time but as time passed dating wasn't fun any more. The only one that mattered was the boy back home.

I finally moved back home and phoned him the day I arrived, but he wasn't there so I talked to his Mom for a while and she said that she would have him phone me. Weeks have passed and I am still waiting for his call.

Doris, I think of him constantly and often cry myself to sleep. My friends tell me that he is probably waiting for me to see him, and that I should go to see him or write and talk to him, but I feel that they are wrong. I don't want to be chasing him. — Depressed.

DORIS CLARK

Dear Depressed: Oh, no. Not at work. You'd only prejudice your case.

On the offchance that the phone message never reached him, buy a greeting card with a light-hearted friendly message on it (nothing gooey). In a short sentence or two say you'd love to see him to talk over old times and how's about dropping in next Tuesday night for coffee and his favorite doughnuts!

Then forget the subject. It's no good if the feelings are one-sided, anyway.

* * *

Dear Doris: As it is against our religion to dance, I am interested in the skits and games you have for a wedding reception.

This music and singing bit sounds wonderful. We thought of it for a wedding we put on but were afraid to go through with it. Now I know it would have gone over big.

Guess what I read first when the paper arrives? Your column, of course! — Bunny.

Dear Bunny: Here's a twist: Find a guitar player and bring the whole thing up to date by singing old folk songs. Or get a pianist with all the well-loved ballads at his finger tips. Might be an idea to circulate song sheets with the words on.

Then when a dance would ordinarily begin, put on one of the skits I am sending you. Games may or may not fit in, but if the young people want to circulate and be sociable, without dancing, there are ideas in my 16-cent Party Games sheet which would make for heaps of fun.

Let's know how this works and perhaps others will use the idea.

* * *

Confidential to Too Tense: At long last you have expressed it all on paper. Take a bigger step now; plunge into the subject with your doctor. It won't embarrass him.

Sex can be happy fulfilment; but some partners must first unlearn a lot of old attitudes which were imposed on them by puritanical parents. My 16-cent list of recommendations about literature on the subject is worth exploring too.

Citrus Rhubarb Pie Is Economical Dessert

By MARY MOORE

In the freezer section of the supermarket rhubarb in 10-pound bags was priced lower than any other pie fruit item.

When we made this pie we used fresh rhubarb given to us by our neighbor. So if you do not have rhubarb from your own or your neighbor's garden you can use fresh frozen. It is an economical pie.

CITRUS RHUBARB PIE

PASTRY:

2 cups sifted cake and pastry flour
1 tsp. salt
2-3 cup shortening
2 tbsps. hard butter
3 to 3½ tbsps. cold water

FILLING:

1¼ cups sugar
¼ cup corn starch
¼ tsp. salt
2 cups finely chopped (¼") rhubarb
2 tsps. freshly grated orange rind
1-3 cup orange juice
2 tbsps. butter (optional)

To make pastry cut shortening and butter into flour and salt with pastry blender until size of peas. Drizzle in water, 1 tbsp. at a time, tossing with fork until you can pack it between your palms. Divide in half and roll one half out on lightly flour-sprinkled board to fit deep 10" pie plate. Trim off excess pastry at edges with knife.

To mix Filling combine in large bowl the rhubarb, orange rind and juice then the mixed-together sugar, corn starch and salt and mix all well. Tip into pastry-lined pie plate and level it. If desired dot with butter.

Roll out remaining half of pastry and with long knife or pastry wheel cut into ¾" wide strips. Moisten edge of pastry in pie plate and apply pastry strips, lattice fashion, seeling to edge by pressing with fork tip. Brush strips with mixture of 1 tbsp. each sugar and milk to glaze. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 60 min.

Girl Changes Mind About Entering Convent

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LADERS: Six months ago my husband's sister Janet announced that her mind was made up — she was going into a convent. The family decided to give her a big going away shower. We all figured since we knew she wouldn't have to buy her a wedding present or baby gifts we'd go all out.

Two weeks ago Janet came out of the convent and decided to marry the boy she had been going with before she chose the religious life. They plan to marry in September. There are now plans for a big bridal shower. Then, of course, there will be the wedding gift, and naturally baby gifts will follow. Do you think this is fair? — MEAGRE BANK ACCOUNT.

DEAR MEAGRE: Do you feel Janet should stay single to save friends and relatives the price of a shower gift? I don't. Those in the family who don't wish to spend say more money on her can convey their best wishes and let it go at that.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Sometimes I think you take a stand you don't believe just to provoke controversy. I strongly suspect you did just that when you told the daughter whose father had been a selfish, no good bum all of his life that she should take care of him in his old age.

I have lived through the same hell as the person who wrote and I consider myself an authority on rotten fathers. Unless you have grown up with alcoholism, screaming, fighting, breaking of furniture and dishes, you can't imagine what it's like. I remember Mama taking me and my little brother next door — in the middle of the night, wrapped in a blanket. Father had been beating her with his fists and threatened to set the house on fire.

Mom died when I was 13. My brother and I went to live with an aunt. Father disappeared for 10 years and I am truthfully say nobody missed him. Now I am happily married and have two small children.

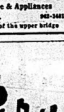
Father turned up six months ago. He lives in a shabby rooming house on the other end of town. He has criticized me to the family because I will not take him into our nice home and let him enjoy his grandchildren. I have him to dinner once in a while and it's all I can stand. My husband has nothing to say to him and my children fear him. He told me last time he was here that I should read the Bible more, especially the part that says, "Honor thy father and thy mother."

Please stop playing to the grandstand and answer me honestly. Is a married daughter obligated to take in an aged parent who has never done anything but cause misery and trouble? — WAITING TO HEAR.

DEAR WAITING: I have never recommended that a married daughter or son move an aged parent into the home when the relationship is poor. This can only lead to trouble. What I did say, however, is that a child has the moral obligation to see to it that parents do not go hungry or without shelter — and the advice stands.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My cousin who is always putting on airs got a fur stole for Mother's Day. She told everyone it was Siberian mink. The first time she wore it she got caught in the rain. It smelled musty — like skunk — every place. Can it be that her stole is actually not mink, but something a little less fancy? — SUSPICIOUS.



DEAR SUS: Mink is a member of the weasel family and so is the skunk, the muskrat and a few other less glamorous cousins. They all smell musty when rained on — even their Siberian relatives.

IS THE SKY FALLING IN?

Definitely not. So we don't need noisy little chickens running around screaming that it is. At Schneiders we've taken Chickens Little (also Chickens, Medium and Chickens Large), cooked them, seasoned them, and bagged them for your freezer. Just heat in your oven for 30 minutes and you've got barbecue-style Yakka-ka-zow tasty. Then you'll wonder why you ever bounced with the old way. If you didn't taste one today, buy one tomorrow. No one should miss a treat like this two days in a row.

The Experts Say

Best Place to Learn to Water Ski Is Dry Dock

TORONTO (CP) — If you're a yen to learn to turn across the waves on water skis, all limbs and athletic looking, the best place to start is in dry dock.

There, in safety, you can get the feel of the skis and harness, have some practice coming up from the correct starting position, and with someone tugging the other end, learn how the rope feels as it straightens out and pulls you up.

Philip Durnford, a past president of the Canadian Water Ski Association, says your starting position won't be quite the same in the dry dock as in the water. The fronts of the skis slant up to the surface in the water.

But the general idea is there. You sit on the backs of the ski with your wet feet in the wet harness and your hands in front of you hooking the tow bar so that your arms will straighten out smoothly and slowly as you are pulled up.

"Once you are up, keep your back straight, your arms as straight as possible, and your knees bent."

He says experts put a swimmer in the water to help the skier the first few times.

"He wears flippers and a life jacket and helps them get in position and make sure the rope is all right. He does a lot of anticipating for the skier to take the worry out of the first time or two. Once the skier gets the feel of things you can leave him on his own."

Then, he says, much depends on the good sense of the boat operator.

"You don't need a lot of speed while you're learning. The first time out the boat driver too often tries to dump the skier instead of pulling him steadily and safely in a straight line.

"The art of getting a person on skis is to a large extent the skill of the driver. He must get fast enough or slow enough at the right times. There's a lag of time before he should put the engine in gear. He must know what he's doing."

Durnford says a 2-horsepower motor is adequate to tow most people. Someone 220 pounds or over might need a stronger tow. He recommends talking to a marine dealer about the skis you buy. They vary with the skill and size of the skier.

"The normal length of the rope is 75 feet. It's usually 3-16-inch polyethylene braided line that has been stretched. You should have a towing nylon in the centre of the boat that's high enough to clear the top of the motor. If you use a running rail for the rope, the rope might foul the propellor if you have to stop suddenly or back up."

Safety regulations in all provinces now require two persons in the tow boat, one to drive, and a spotter to watch the skier. They also say skiers must wear life jackets. If you can't swim, you shouldn't ski.

There are a set of signals for water skiing, and Durnford says there are two in particular beginners should know.

"If you want to go back to the dock, you point to the shore. If you want the driver to cut the motor, you draw your hand across your throat.

"Another important safety rule is that at no time should a skier wrap a tow line around his hand, his arm or any part of his body."

You should also get only as known as your eyes from rocks or the shore, and away from other boats.

You should know government regulations governing skiing in your area, as well as making use of reliable experienced advice on how to go about the sport.

Durnford says Canadian Water Ski Association branches exist in British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia. The association has about 1,000 members and is, he says, headed toward competitive skiers.

Canadian Film Has Premiere

NEW YORK (CP)—Initial critical reaction is favorable to Isabel, the first English-language Canadian feature film to be released outside Canada in several years, which had its world premiere here Tuesday night.

Except for the financial backing, the film is an all-Canadian effort. It was written produced and directed by Paul Almond and stars his wife, Geneviève Bujold. Both are native Montrealers.

Filmed on Quebec's Gaspe Peninsula, Isabel's cast and production crew were Canadians.

Almond, one of Canada's leading television drama directors for the last 18 years, wrote the story in Paris two years ago for his bride-to-be.

Isabel is a brooding drama set in which a young Montreal woman returns to her childhood home, a creaking old wooden lighthouse on the stark, windswept Atlantic coast where the local inhabitants have their own inbred folklore and superstitions.

Nursing her aged uncle through the bleak winter, she becomes possessed by fear as he raises doubt that her brother—thought drowned at sea—is dead. A mysterious stranger appears who strongly resembles him, and there are hints of family secrets.

Quebec Rejects Invitation to UNESCO Parley on Education

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec has rejected a federal government offer to attend a UNESCO-sponsored education conference in Paris Aug. 14. Claude Morin, deputy minister of inter-governmental affairs, said Tuesday.

Mr. Morin said the province was invited to join the Canadian delegation, but Quebec still disagrees with Ottawa on the subject of Quebec participation in international conferences on education.

He said in an interview the decision also was taken to conform with the province's attitude to such conferences as shown to two overseas conference earlier in 1968.

Quebec had been asked by the federal government to attend the August conference after Ottawa had received an invitation from UNESCO.

Mr. Morin said negotiations now in progress between Ottawa and Quebec were aimed at settling the question of rights of provinces, notably Quebec, to participate in international conferences whose subjects fall under provincial jurisdiction.

In these circumstances, the Quebec government felt it was better to resolve the problem before taking part in other conferences such as UNESCO's.

If Quebec had accepted the federal invitation, Mr. Morin said, it could be interpreted to mean the province has agreed to Ottawa's viewpoint that Quebec cannot act independently in attending international meetings.

Quebec's attendance could also be construed to mean the province agrees with a recent white paper by External Affairs Minister Sharp that says only the federal government can authorize a province to participate in international conferences.

Quebec and Ottawa disagreed earlier this year over the province's attendances at education conferences in Paris April 28-30 and Libreville, Gabon, Feb. 5-10.

As a result of the first conference, Canada suspended diplomatic relations with the two French-speaking West African republic of Gabon.

The April conference in Paris was a confirmation of February's for the world's French-speaking education ministers.

Gabon had bypassed Ottawa and invited Quebec directly, but for the second session France did not invite Quebec. It merely sent a reminder that the session was being held in April.

New Tax Increases Forecast

TORONTO (CP) — Stanley Farquhar (L—Algoma-Manitoulin) predicted Tuesday the government will announce new tax increases at the next session the legislature.

Winding up the budget debate for the opposition, he said the budget "bent the knee in the direction of Bay Street and thumbed its nose at the average person."

He termed the budget "a double-talk document which sells the people of Ontario short."

Cleanup Time In City Schools

Story and Photos By Lenny Williamson

City students may be enjoying vacations, but summer is no holiday for the maintenance staff of Belleville schools.

General cleaning, repairing and renovating is going on now in all city schools, as caretakers prepare for the beginning of school in September.

At BCI, the oldest of city secondary schools, the home economics rooms are being renovated. More shelves are going in the library at Quinte, and construction on a new $18,000 greenhouse will begin there next month.

Bay of Quinte District High School Board has hired six students to assist the regular maintenance staff for the summer.

Belleville Public School Board is converting classrooms in five schools for library - resource centre use. Bayview, Prince Charles, Queen Alexandra, Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary schools will have libraries in September.

Alterations are underway at Harry J. Clarke school to improve the library. Only Sir Winston Churchill and Queen Victoria schools now have libraries.

The board has budgeted $45,000 for purchase of library books, and the first shipment is expected by September 1. About 10,000 new books will be added to the school libraries this year.

King George School will have three portable classrooms in use in September to handle increased enrolment. Last year, two were in use, and the third is now being moved from Hillcrest school.

The separate school board has additions totalling $265,000 under way at St. Joseph's and Holy Rosary schools.

Hugh Murray Ltd. is building a kindergarten, general purpose room with small stage, kitchen, and change rooms on the existing St. Joseph's School.

The same company is also putting up a general purpose room at Holy Rosary.

Tenders will soon be called for the new George Vanier School in Park Dale, designed by architects Nowak and Hovitch of Ottawa. This school is being designed for the ungraded school system and will have about nine classrooms.

Painters at Work

Queen Elizabeth School is being brightened by a paint job on roof trim. Workmen are busy cleaning and painting most city schools.

Summer 'Flower People' Flock to Boston--Curfew Imposed

BOSTON (AP) — eBating the curfew on Boston Common is the new bag for the city's hardcore hippies and students who are flower children for the summer only.

The midnight-to-7 a.m. curfew was imposed by the city after large groups of so-called hippies made the historic park in the heart of downtown Boston a place for all-night happenings.

Hippie spokesmen say the curfew is an "illegitimate and illegal act" and should be challenged.

They said the common is a public park and hippies have as much right there—24 hours a day—as the little old ladies from nearby Beacon Hill who walk their dogs there.

Boston health department officials say the hippie colony has made an open sewer out of Frog Pond—an ice skating rink in the winter and a place for children to sail their toy boats in the summer.

They note that the incidence of communicable diseases—especially the hepatitis and venereal diseases—has risen in Boston since the hippies arrived in large numbers.

After the curfew was imposed last month, some rock throwing and other incidents of minor violence were blamed by police on "kids, not hippies," but early Saturday police moved in to clear the park of a large group of young people who congregated there.

Each morning since, police have swept across the block-square park, arresting as many as 50 and scattering the remainder of the colony to friendly pads to spend the night.

Police arrested about 25 persons Tuesday. All appeared before Judge Elijah Adlow in municipal court on a variety of minor charges.

"You've made a disaster area out of what used to be the most beautiful part of Boston," Judge Adlow told 80 persons Monday when they came before him on charges of violating the curfew.

Adlow says the hippies are "all good kids by themselves, but as soon as they get in a crowd they are a menace to themselves and everyone else."

He hands out relatively light punishments to most.

Synthetic Marijuana New Fad

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for Toronto's Queen Street mental health centre said Tuesday two teen-agers have been admitted within the last 48 hours suffering from the effects of a synthetic marijuana.

He said a third youth was referred to Yorkville Western Hospital after taking the drug. Social workers in the Yorkville coffee-house district say use of the chemical substitute is spreading rapidly.

The substance was identified as a synthesis of tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), a synthetic form of marijuana developed recently by the United States national institute of health for animal research.

It can be taken by injection or as a pill. Researchers say each pill or gelatin capsule has the effect of about eight marijuana cigarettes.

The youths admitted to the Queen Street centre said the drug gave them a marked sensation of touch hallucination as opposed to visual hallucinations usually associated with marijuana.

"In other words, instead of seeing bugs, they can feel them," a social worker said.

Police Burn Field of 'Pot'

BRANTFORD (CP) — RCMP and Brantford police Tuesday burned two acres of marijuana they found growing on a nearby island in the Grand River.

Local firemen used boats to transport policemen and workmen to and from the island. A police spokesman said the marijuana was found during an investigation of reports of youths holding parties on the island.

In a raid last Thursday night, on a downtown city park, 12 persons were searched and two charged with possession of narcotics.

They-r-r-r at the Post...Sundays

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — A bill nearly lost in the closing shuffle of the legislature will send the thoroughbreds to the post Sunday at Fort Erie race track for the first time in Ontario.

Lt.-Gov. W. Ross Macdonald gave royal assent Tuesday to an amendment to the Lord's Day Act which allows municipal councils to approve Sunday racing.

Immediately after the assent, which was not even mentioned by the lieutenant-governor as he prorogued the house, The Jockey Club Ltd. announced the horses with pari-mutuel betting will be off this Sunday.

The bill received third reading in the house last month. Then Bertie Township, in which Fort Erie is situated, passed the Sunday racing bylaw two weeks ago by a vote of 3 to 2.

The Jockey Club will also hold a Sunday card Aug. 4 and hopes to extend Fort Erie's summer meeting beyond its Aug. 10 closing to include Sunday racing Aug. 11.

Plans are also in the works to include Sunday racing at the Jockey Club's other two tracks in Toronto—Woodbine and Greenwood. Metropolitan Toronto council must pass the necessary bylaw.

The Jockey Club decision, which it hopes will boost the economic position of the horse-racing industry in the province, makes Ontario the second province in Canada to conduct thoroughbred racing on Sundays. Quebec has had Sunday races for two years.

A spokesman said there are no immediate plans to inaugurate Sunday racing at the Jockey Club's three harness-racing plants—Garden City in St. Catharines, Mohawk in Campbellville and Greenwood Raceway in Toronto.

Commercial Forfeit

Throws Perfect Game Just for Fun

Ellis did the five-inning hurling against an eight-man Brants team that forfeited the game 6-0. They played the five innings as an exhibition game while waiting for the Black Diamond and City Hotel teams to arrive for the second game of the evening.

"That was a hell of a game to pitch like that," said a disgruntled Ellis who struck out eight of 15 batters. The win puts first-place Belvedere four points up on second-place Stinsons and leaves Brants in their familiar cellar spot.

In the game that counted, Black Diamond evened up their season mark at 9-9 with a 5-3 win over third-place City Hotel. The victory puts the Cheesemen within two points of third-place City who boast a 10-8 mark.

Donny Holoway did the pitching for the Cheesemen, allowing the Hotelmen three runs on four hits and three Black Diamond errors.

Bob Davenport did the honors for City for the first five innings, giving up five runs on seven hits.

Gerry Gerneaux took over in the sixth and kept Black Diamond hitless and off the score sheet.

Jack Francis, Cheesemen first baseman, led the winners with a homer in the first and a single in the fifth. Centrefielder Rick Denard collected a single in the second and fourth, and Gene Francis, Wayne McTaggart, Martin Walsh, and Donny Holoway accounted for the other Black Diamond hits.

Jack Hughes, Doug Murray, Tom Coolen, and "Moe" Hawkins collected the four City safeties.

All Commercial League teams have played their 18-game schedules to date.

Touch 'em All, "Hip"!

Carol First

Belleville's Carol Armstrong has taken the first step towards defending her Canadian women's archery title in Regina, heading yesterday's field in the initial 1,440-point target round.

A 1,013 score was below her best, but she and other competitors were shooting in 30-30 mile-an-hour winds and during a steady drizzle. Carol's closest rival Tuesday was British Columbia's Betty McIntosh, who totalled a 958 score.

The city bow-woman said she "had no jitters" entering today's second of four championship rounds, a shorter-range target shoot for which she holds the Canadian competitive record.

by Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

Belleville may not be represented in provincial softball playoffs above the minor-age level, but nobody else in the Quinte area may even notice.

Local O.A.S.A. convenor Jim Tehwerth says this year's Zone 4 entries for playoff competition number a record 80-plus, more than in any of the other five zones in the province.

(The overall list of O.A.S.A. affiliations — some 330 — also represents a record for entries in the 23 provincial playoff classifications).

Area softball fans disappointed by failure of Belleville's Senior Woods team to file with the O.A.S.A. have alternatives.

Each of the other three Trent Valley League clubs will be on the provincial playoff trail — Trenton Carm's Cleaners and Picton Kinsmen Intermediate "B", and Madoc in Intermediate "C."

The latter classification will see no less than 12 Quinte area clubs vie for the title, including Madoc, Brighton, and Campbellford.

Point Anne of the city Commercial League will likely meet Trenton opposition first in their attempt to bring home another junior title. The Cementmen are trying their hand in the "B" division this year and were 1966 winners of the all-Ontario "C" championship.

And Belleville?

Well, I guess it's up to you fellas — Associated Traveller Squirts, Belch Construction Peewees, and SACO Bantams — to bring home some of that provincial bacon.

Amateurs Pose Threat

EDMONTON (CP) — Professionals in the richer-than-ever Alberta open golf tournament will be facing their toughest amateur threat of the 1968 Canadian tour when they tee off Thursday.

Alexander won the 1967 Alberta Open with a four-stroke upset victory over professional Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont. Wylie, Alexander and Silverberg are riding high after wrapping up the top three spots in the provincial amateur 72 days ago.

Norman, $1,200 first-place finisher in the Saskatchewan Open Sunday, is battle-for another shot at the Alberta title he won in 1966.

The professional ranks also will include Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, third-place finisher in the Saskatchewan Open behind Len Harvey of Regina, and Billy Wakeham of Victoria and Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver who finished in the money in Saskatchewan.

Top professional in the Alberta competition will take home $1,200, $200 more than last year, and total prize money for the tournament has been boosted to $5,000 from $3,000 in 1967.

For both professionals and amateurs there is more at stake in the three-day competition than the immediate victory.

Joyces Here

Last Home Game Of Regular Schedule

The Belleville Fairgrounds doesn't have a curfew. That's at least one difference between tonight's meeting of the Belleville Junior EOBA Joyces and Oshawa and the earlier meeting of the teams in Oshawa.

In that contest, the Joyces were dropped 6-5 after five innings of play with the game called because of the Oshawa curfew.

The loss was one of the four for the Joyces who go into their last regularly scheduled home game of the season tonight with ten wins.

Although the curfew is a big difference in tonight's game, one thing will be the same as the previous contest: young Joe Hastings will be the starting pitcher for the locals.

And at this late date in the season, the most recent figures for individual performers in the EOBA reveal several other differences in the Joyces from the July 1 EOBA statistics.

One significant change finds Larry Mavety, who was second in league hitting July 1, dropped to sixth spot with 25 hits for 66 at bats for a .379 with two Joyce players taking second and fifth spots.

The Joyces have placed eight in the top 20 hitters in the league, including Mavety. Shortstop Gary Goyer passed the big catcher in plate performance and took fourth spot with .383 by hitting 23 of 60. Moe Hunter is a close fifth with a .381 by hitting 16 of 42.

Needs Ace to Card 90

The Quinte member, playing with Donald Moore and another partner, carded his first hole-in-one on the par-three thirteenth, taking a six-iron out of his bag to turn the trick on the 160 - yard hole.

McCovey Gets Treatment, Returns to Slam Four Hits at Cubs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willie McCovey found out Tuesday what is wrong with his knees and Chicago Cubs learned a few hours later that is isn't going to slow the San Francisco Giants' slugging down.

McCovey flew to Los Angeles for an examination of his ailing right knee and returned home in time to stroke four hits, including a two-out 10th-inning homer that gave the Giants and Juan Marichal a 4-3 triumph over the Cubs.

Marichal checked the Cubs on five singles before making his 12th victory in 22 decisions when McCovey unloaded home run No. 36.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati Reds slugged off a two-run ninth inning homer by Pittsburgh playmaker-coach Bill Mazeroski and the Pirates 7-6 in the 12th; first-place St. Louis Cardinals walloped Philadelphia Phillies 11-5, New York Mets edged Atlanta Braves 3-1 and Los Angeles Dodgers topped Houston Astros 3-1.

McCovey learned he has a bunch of arthritis in the knee, but the Cubs discovered there's nothing wrong with the towering first baseman's wrist action.

McCovey drove in one of the Giants' two first inning runs with the first of his three singles. His run-scoring single in the fifth gave Marichal a 2-1 lead, but the Cubs rallied for two runs in the seventh to knot it.

Jack Lamabe got past Don Hunt and Willie Mays in the 10th, but McCovey broke the deadlock with a blast into the belt-centre field seats.

Marichal applied an 0-for-3 collar to Glenn Beckert, snapping the Cub second baseman's season-high hitting streak at 27 games.

The Reds bunched the last four of their 20 hits in the 12th inning to break a 5-5 tie at Pittsburgh after 37-year-old Virdon, reactivated last week after a three-year absence from the majors, sent the game into overtime with his ninth-inning homer off relief ace Ted Abernathy.

Tony Perez' fifth hit, a run-scoring single, gave the Reds a 6-5 lead and Tommy Helms followed with another RBI single, offsetting a Pittsburgh run in the bottom of the 12th and returning Gardner's fifth straight victory.

Three runs by Ed Kranepool and Ron Swoboda and eight relief pitching by Cal Koonce carried the Mets past the Braves, who have dropped five in a row.

Kranepool hit his second homer of the game in the ninth inning and Swoboda crashed his first since June 10th in the sixth before Koonce rescued pitcher Tom Seaver in the eighth.

Two doubles by Roger Maris drove in four of St. Louis' 10 runs in the first three innings as the Cardinals stroked Philadelphia's hotting string to five with a 14-hit barrage.

Lou Brock and Mike Shannon delivered two runs apiece for the Cardinals, who lead the second place Braves by 12½ games.

Bob Bailey's leadoff homer in the ninth—the first hit off Mike Cuellar—and run-scoring daglio by Ted Savage and pitcher Claude Osteen brought the Dodgers from behind against Houston.

Osteen scattered seven hits in bringing his season mark to 5-14.

Pinch-hitting Pair Salvage Win For Tigers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two pinch hitters saved the day for Detroit Tigers Tuesday night.

Jim Price and Gates Brown provided the punch that gave the Tigers a 6-4 victory over Washington Senators and a six-game lead in the American League.

Meanwhile, Baltimore Orioles stopped Cleveland 4-0 to jump into a tie with the Indians for second place.

Elsewhere, New York Yankees downed Boston Red Sox 4-1 and California and Minnesota split a doubleheader by 3-1 scores, the Angels taking the opener and the Twins the nightcap. Chicago White Sox led Oakland Athletics 3-0 after 2½ innings before they were rained out.

Detroit trailed Washington 4-3 on the strength of Frank Howard's 29th homer in the second inning and a three-run outburst in the sixth. But Phil Ortega walked Al Kaline to open the eighth, Willie Horton sacrificed him to second and Bill Freehan also walked.

Price singled home the tying run against Barry Moore and, after Dave Baldwin got Norm Cash to foul out, Brown singled in the go-ahead run. The Tigers' scored an insurance run in the ninth on Jim Northrup's double and a single by Kaline.

Boog Powell's three-run homer and Dave Johnson's two-run triple powered Baltimore past Cleveland. Powell doubled home a run in the first inning and then scored on Brooks Robinson's homer. Jose Cardenal put the Indians ahead 4-3 with a fifth-inning homer.

But Powell unloaded his 19th homer in the bottom of the inning and Johnson's triple in the eighth offset a Cleveland run in the eighth and Joe Azcue's homer in the ninth.

The Yankees stifled a baseloaded walk to beat Boston. Juan Marrero walked Frank Fernandez with two out in the seventh inning to force home the tie-breaking run.

Tom Tresh homered in the fifth for their first run and they added two in the eighth. Stan Bahnsen went the route for the Yanks.

George Brunet scattered six hits and won his fifth straight game as California won the opener from Minnesota. The only damage was Ted Uhlaender's seventh homer.

Our Targets Get Share of Slugs

Veteran Gerry Ouellette of Windsor, Ont., racked up another win for the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association team and several teammates were in the top bracket of the 1,300 competitors.

Bob Barwise, a 41-year-old Charlottetown oil jobber, came third in the Elsingham Trophy event with a 138 score out of a possible 150 at 900 and 1,000 yards.

George Farquharson 53, of Kamloops, B.C., and Doug Fraser, 36, of Ottawa fired possible 50s in the Times Challenge Cup event at 300 yards Monday but results of a shoot-off announced Tuesday placed them ninth and 11th respectively.

Ouellette, 34-year-old teacher shooting here for the eighth time, was declared winner of the Stock Exchange Trophy made up of the aggregate for three events fired earlier.

By the end of Tuesday's shooting, THE DCRA team had chalked up four wins in four days of shooting.

Meanwhile, Bill Beatty of Ottawa and Mike Walker of Kingston led a group of eight Canadians into the second stage of the St. George's trophy.

Today, all the Bisley competitors were shooting in the first stage of the coveted Queens Prize, with 300 going into the second round. The eventual "Queens Hundred" will shoot off Saturday afternoon.

A Canadian Forces team finished fourth Tuesday in the inter-services short range match, 200 and 600 yards.

The squad registered 1,055 points out of a possible 1,200 compared with 1,075 for first-place Royal Navy.

Top man for the Canadian team was Sgt. Peter Layzell of Cochrane, Ont. He had 94 points.

Sgt. Fred Hirt of Sarnia scored 92, Cpl. Joe Moreau of Port Severn, Ont., 90, Cpl. Ron Cooper of Winnipeg 89, Cpl. Rosario Fleureux of Ville Vanier, Que., 88 and Sgt. Ernest Fenton of Belleville, 85.

Norsemen Pace Canucks

OSLO (Reuters) — Norway led Canada 60-46 after the first day's events Tuesday in the men's division of a two-day international track and field match here.

In the women's contest, Canada led 33-32.

The contest is the first of three meets for the Canadian team on his European tour. The team clashes with Sweden in Stockholm later this month and completes in an international track and field meet in London August 3 and 4.

Canada gained maximum points in only one event in the men's meet, Tuesday when Don Dassonville of Port Arthur, won the 400 metres in 46.9 seconds, with Ron McKenzie of Winnipeg second.

Arne Kvalheim, Norway's Olympic hopeful, was a bandy-legged 1,500 metres in 3:39.9, beating Dave Bailey of Toronto who, however, established a Canadian record of 3:41.1.

TRAVEMUENDE, Germany (AP) — S. A. Huey Long of New York, one of the world's most successful yachtsmen, has withdrawn his 73-foot ketch Ondine III from the Bermuda - Travemuende transatlantic regatta, the German naval tender Ruhr radioed today. Long gave no reasons for the withdrawal. However, he asked the West German escort vessel to take 12 of his crew aboard, Ruhr reported.

TORONTO (CP) — Harry Roman of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club won the fifth race Tuesday in the best-of-nine series in Olympic preliminary trials for 5.5-metre yachts. Jim Crang and Stan Leibel, both of RCYC, finished second and third. The race broke a tie between Crang and Leibel, both with two wins after the first four races. On the low-point scoring system, Crang leads with 11.7; Leibel has 14.4; Roman 22.7; Douglas Hopp 29.4 and Charles Hibbs 46. Hopp and Hibbs sail for Toronto's Queen City Yacht Club. The races are being held on Lake Ontario with RCYC as host.

NEW YORK (CP) — The eight-man 1968 all-American college golf team, with Ben Kern as the first Canadian ever named to the team, will be honored at a dinner here Aug. 13. Kern, from Clarkson, Ont., Canada's amateur of the year in 1968, attends New Mexico State University where he was No. 1 golfer this year, with a 16-1 match play record. In a sudden-death playoff for the next Mexico State invitation title, he beat Hal Underwood of Houston, Tex., who with Kern is this year's top choice for the all-American team. Kern was a member of the American's Cup Canadian team.

All the things you need in a tractor tire are yours in the Farm Hand, long wear, sure traction, flotation and above all, dependability. Quality makes the difference! High quality, high tenacity cord with a special "job-compounded" tread give you the tough, resilient, non-tearing qualities you most want in a tractor tire — your best insurance against costly "down time".

Your Farm Hand is guaranteed not only for workmanship and materials, but against accidents to the tire — proportioned over a four year period.

LOOK AT the rugged tread design — self-cleaning with scientifically spaced cleats to assure maximum bite and still provide rolling area for hard surface.

LOOK AT the wide tread, ample flotation, square shouldered cleats, buttressed deep into the sidewall. Notice the sharp gripping edges that dig in and hold — turn drawbar power into work power.

LOOK AT the depth of the tread. You can almost feel it grip. Here is tire after year of dependable field service, everything you want in a tractor tire.

See and examine the new Farm Hand, you'll like it.

CFL Great

Coleman Rumored on Shaky Cleats

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Despite reports that he had been placed on waivers, full-back Lovell Coleman still was on the Ottawa Rough Riders' roster Tuesday.

Reports circulating through Canadian Football League cities said Coleman, voted the outstanding football player in Canada for four years ago, has been placed on waivers.

They said Riders had placed him on waivers Friday, a move that meant any club which wanted him had 48 hours to pay the waiver price of $25. If there were no takers, Coleman could be cut loose.

The waiver rule, however, carries a 24-hour recall clause, a second-thoughts period during which the team can withdraw a player from the list.

Nobody would admit that Coleman ever was on waivers:

"I'm not going to comment on that," said Ottawa head coach Frank Clair. "He's still playing with us and we intend to use him in future games."

Reports persisted, however, that Coleman had been on the list, that Montreal Alouettes had bid and that Coleman had been withdrawn.

Montreal coach Kay Dalton wouldn't comment, saying it was a confidential league matter.

Jake Gaudaur, CFL commissioner, said he had no authorization to release any information on the case and suggested the Ottawa club was the proper source of any statement.

The Ottawa Citizen quoted Riders general manager Red O'Quinn as saying in Winnipeg that Coleman was placed on waivers, then withdrawn, adding "we have no intention of letting him go."

Ottawa picked up Coleman last April from Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference, trading away linebacker Mike Blum and halfback Dave Cranmer.

However, the big fullback who terrorized CFL defensive squads four and five years ago, reported to training camp with a left knee still not fully recovered from an off-season cartilage operation.

In practice, he pinched a nerve in the right knee and the dual difficulty kept both legs from responding to exercise.

Coleman's name is in the record books under such category headings as "most times a player carried 200 times," a feat he performed in 1963-64-65. He gained more than 1,000 yards each year. In a single game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Hamilton in 1964, Lovell Coleman gained 238 yards.

Nobody was surprised when Coleman reported to camp out of shape this season.

Earl Lunsford, the backfielder who went on to become general manager of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, said affectionately:

"During the off-season, Coleman wouldn't run across the street to catch a bus. But don't worry. He'll be in good shape when the season starts."

Yank Net Strength Showing; Top-Seeded Canadians Fall

VANCOUVER (CP) — There were several upsets of Canadian players Tuesday as the powerful California team began to show its strength in the second day of competition in the Canadian Junior open tennis championships.

Eighth seeded Canadian Murray Whittaker of Montreal lost to unranked Steve Stefanki of Los Altos Hills, Calif., 6-1, 6-3 in the boys under-18 event and second-seeded foreign player Bruce Kellock of Richmond, Calif., dispatched eight-seeded under-18 Canadian Rehaz Genois of Lorraineville, Que., 6-1, 6-0.

Other seeded Canadian players managed to hold their own. Top-seeded domestic player Jim Boyce of Toronto defeated unranked Attilo Rosetti of Los Angeles 6-2, 3-6, 7-5 while top foreign seed Bill Washauer of Seattle beat Hollywood's Randy Schneider 6-2, 6-3.

Alberta Rita and Pedro Ferraras of Barcelona, seeded fifth and sixth, respectively, in the boys under-18 event, both won their matches. Rita defeated unseeded Jim Healey of Telcoms, Wash., 6-2, 6-0 and Ferraras beat Dan Beyette, also of Tacoma, 6-1, 6-1. Rita and Ferraras are the under-18 tennis champions of Spain.

The first-ranked foreign seed in the under-18 boys' division, Chip Fisher of Palo Alto, Calif., beat unseeded Mike McCullough of Edmonton 6-0, 6-0 and moves up to play unranked John Newberry of La Jolla, Calif., in the semi finals today.

Vancouver's Les Dellow lost 6-2, 6-4 to Pat Gamey of Toronto, the top under-16 boys Canadian seed. His female counterpart, Karen Will of Clarkton, Ont., defeated unseeded Ann Romano of Seattle 6-0, 6-0.

Seattle's Scott Tebor, top-ranked foreign player in the boys under-14 class, easily defeated Vancouver's Bill Fedlar 6-0, 6-2 as top-ranked Canadian Kostie Kilias of Vancouver defeated 11-year-old Ralph Dinkis of Toronto 6-2, 6-4.

Andrea Barnes of San Francisco, the top-seeded foreign player in the girls under-14 division, took a 6-0, 6-2 win from unranked Andrea Molnar of Vancouver. Kathy Morton of Galt, Ont., top-ranked Canadian in the girls under-14 event, didn't show up for her match with unseeded Linnea Mann of Vancouver and was thus knocked out of the competition. Second seeded Janet Hall of Vancouver is now the Canadian favorite.

With no foreign seedings in the girls under-18 event, and no matches Tuesday, top-seeded Jan Tindle of Vancouver plays unranked Shirley Gamlin, also of Vancouver in second round play today.

In doubles competition, the top-ranked under-18 team of Chip Fisher of Palo Alto, Calif., and Eustis Kellock of Richmond, Calif., plays in unranked Canadian team today consisting of Alan Lewry and Ian Robinson, both of Vancouver.

The top girls under-18 doubles pair, of Cecily Waycott of Los Angeles and Jane Richardson of North Hollywood, Calif., plays Canadians Jane Saunders of Grand Falls, Nfld., and Lesley Harris of Montreal.

The combination of top-ranked American under-14 Andrea Barnes of San Francisco and her Canadian counterpart Kathy Morton of Galt, Ont., seems unbeatable. They will not play until the semi-finals Thursday.

Minor Baseball

Sine's Slug Out Win

Anyone in the lineups of Sine's Shell and Mead Johnson pewees who didn't get a hit last night must have felt mighty lonesome.

The two city minor baseball loop teams hammered away at each other to the tune of 26 hits, with Sine's eventually emerging as 16-10 winners.

G. Cunningham and T. Coughlin shared the mound for the winners, while R. Guest, G. Forster and R. Moore took the Meadmen's loss.

M. Yott led the way at the plate for Sine's, collecting four singles on the night, followed closely by P. Crawford's three-safety performance.

Coughlin showed his batting form in clouting a homer and a pair of singles.

P. Weeks, a tyke all-star player, showed his peewee prowess with a double and two singles for Mead Johnson. R. Vanderwater added a double and single, and G. Forster contributed three safeties.

In all, 13 players on both teams collected hits.

But Doug Reid's Cleaners weren't in a slugging frame of mind in the minor baseball circuit's tyke game, going down 14-3 before three-hit pitching by I.B.E.W. hurlers R. Soddard and R. Cunningham.

P. Hall struck out 12 in a losing cause for Reid's.

Top I.B.E.W. sticker was B. O'Sullivan, with three singles. Pairs of safeties were contributed by M. Kirby, L. Taylor and R. Kruger, while S. Holoway added a double and two singles.

S. Desrochers' triple, and doubles by C. O'Hara and Hall accounted for all the hitting by the losers.

Quinte Lacrosse

Locals Drop Two

The Belleville entry in the Quinte Minor Lacrosse Association took their second loss of the week Tuesday night — this one at the hands of Campbellford 19-8.

On Monday night, the locals had played host to a Trenton stick crew that outscored them 8-4.

In the Tuesday night game, Parrington led the Belleville attack, collecting three of the six local goals. Bob Riddell collected two other Belleville tallies while Dennis Lane scored the sixth.

In the Monday contest, the score at the end of the first period was 1-1 with Belleville collecting their tally from Parrington assisted by Brian Meir. Trenton scored through Mike Surina assisted by Pete Thompson.

In the second period, Belleville collected scores by Ron Hutchison from Parrington and on a penalty shot by Parrington. Trenton goals were by Tim MouHon and Mike Surina.

Belleville meets Picton Thursday night at 8 p.m.

Hints Made at Commercials on BBC

LONDON (CP) — Statements made Tuesday by Postmaster-General John Stonehouse have sparked new speculation about possible introduction of commercials on BBC radio.

The publicly-owned broadcasting corporation has never allowed advertising on its radio or television networks.

Lord Hill, chairman of the BBC's board of governors, is said to have given the service's director-general, Mr. Hugh Greene, absolute assurance that advertising would never be countenanced on BBC radio.

But statements made Tuesday by Stonehouse in the Commons are widely construed as hints that commercials—which would be a lucrative source of extra BBC revenue—are being considered for possible introduction on the corporation's pop music network.

Stonehouse made his remarks after announcing increases in the cost of licences. Britons must have for use of television sets. The TV licence include authorization of radio sets.

From Jan. 1, 1969, the fee will be $15.00 annually, compared with the current $13.

Residents having only radios will continue paying at the current rate of $3.15 a year. But the rate for color TV will rise to $28.00 from $26.

Conservatives in the Commons raised loud protests over the fee increases. One of the opposition MPs suggested that extra BBC revenue could have come through introduction of advertising on the pop music network known as Radio 1.

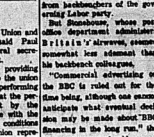
"Commercial advertising on the BBC is ruled out for the time being, although one cannot anticipate what eventual decision may be made about BBC financing in the long run," the postmaster-general said.

TV Union Backs French Performers

TORONTO (CP) — The 3,200-member Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists announced Tuesday it is supporting Union des Artistes in its negotiations for an agreement with the CBC.

An ACTRA statement said it had been advised negotiations between the CBC and the 1,200-member UDA have broken off because the CBC has refused to provide copies of contracts for French-speaking performers engaged by the CBC.



The CBC now provides copies of contracts for performing artists engaged by the corporation to the Musicians' Union and the ACTRA, which represents CBC English network performers.

"We see no valid reason why the corporation should refuse the Union des Artistes a practice that has already been established on a national basis between the Musicians' Union and the corporation," said Fred Sirett, ACTRA general secretary, in the statement.

"The purpose of providing copies of contracts to the union representing the performing artists is to verify that the performer's engagement by the CBC is in accordance with the minimum terms and conditions negotiated by the union representing the performing artists."

Turks Protest Presence of U.S. Troops

ISTANBUL (Reuters) — The central Anatolian city of Konya was reported in a state of siege today following bitter riots Tuesday night over the presence of United States forces in Turkey.

During the height of the riots, a minor series of earth tremors drove thousands of people into the city's streets, adding to the state of panic and confusion.

Trouble was reported to have started late Tuesday afternoon when 400 right-wing demonstrators attacked the headquarters of the Turkish Labor party.

They were protesting a demonstration scheduled for today by the Turkish Teacher's Federation against U.S. forces in Turkey.

The earth tremors then struck the city and thousands more people poured into the streets.

The earthquake cut all electricity supplies and at midnight thousands of people were still reported roaming Konya's main streets.

The U.S. carrier Independence and four destroyers sailed out of Istanbul Tuesday after a week's visit marked by almost daily anti-American incidents.

Pollution Rule Shuts Factory

BRANTFORD (CP) — Canada Glue Co. Ltd. told union representatives Tuesday it will start laying off 70 production workers Aug. 18 rather than spend between $400,000 and $500,000 to improve waste water treatment.

The company said last week it will not comply with an order from the Ontario Water Resources Commission to stop dumping pollutants created by the production of animal extract glue into the Grand River. The commission set an Aug. 31 deadline.

Richard Sywyk, plant chairman for Local 397 of the United Auto Workers union, said the company told him it will employ only 13 men by fall by blend and store synthetic and animal extract glue shipped from the parent company in Gowanda, N.Y.

Mr. Sywyk said about 50 men will be laid off Aug. 16 and another 20 will be phased out gradually over a three-month period.

He said he did not blame the company for refusing to make the improvements, but he described the commission's action as "arbitrary."

"The commission is doing its job, but I don't think it should be so hard on them (the company)," he said.

He said more than half the men to be laid off are over 45. Earlier, Resources Minister John Simonett told the legislature the men should register with Canada Manpower for new jobs.

Algerian Rebels Get Amnesty

PARIS (Reuters) — The French National Assembly Tuesday night approved a bill granting total amnesty to everyone convicted or wanted in connection with the Algerian uprising between 1954 and 1962.

Only Communist members voted against the bill, being given its first reading.

Under the new law, all convictions would be erased from police files and men still on the run or living abroad will be able to return without risking arrest.

Into this category fell such men as Jacques Soustelle, a former close associate of President Charles de Gaulle who broke with him over Algerian policies.

About 2,000 persons were convicted of offences during the Algerian uprising. Four men were executed.

One Code Advocated

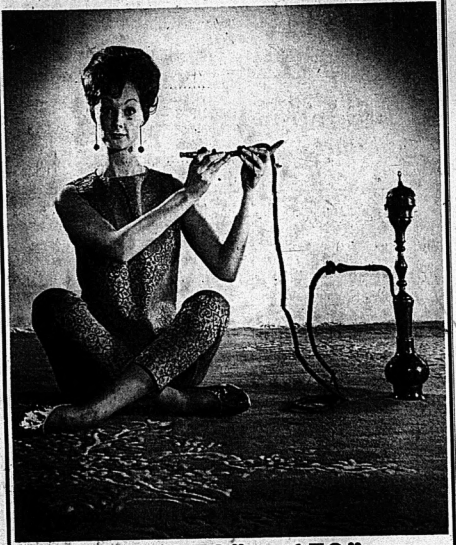
TORONTO (CP) — The blame for a Canadian housing crisis lies directly on federal, provincial and municipal governments, with the greatest burden at the provincial level, a Conservative member of the Ontario legislature said Tuesday.

Gordon Carton, a lawyer from Toronto-Armourdale, said in a budget speech debate that the people are tired of governments "passing the buck" and blaming one another.

The provision of adequate funds is a federal responsibility, he said, with the weight of all other responsibilities on the province.

His first responsibility is to cut the "soaring costs" of construction by preparing and applying a "practical building code" in place of the "multiplicity" of municipal codes now in effect.

LONG SEPARATION ENDS



WINKLER, Man. (CP) — When George Savatsky wanted his wife to come home he wrote to the prime minister of Canada and the premier of Russia. In June—after 24 years of separation and 13 years of red tape—the couple were reunited. They were separated when he was in the Russian Army during the Second World War. A daughter is a student at the University of Novosibirsk.

One Out of Four Over 65 Working

OTTAWA (CP) — Retirement at 65 has rapidly become the norm for industrial workers in Canada, but one in four Canadian men 65 or over were still in the labor force last year.

Being in the labor force meant they had jobs or were looking for jobs with no thought of retiring.

The government's labor force statistics cover all civilians aged 14 and over who were employed or unemployed during the weeks that the monthly survey is taken by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, usually the third week of each month.

Being employed means that they did some work for pay or profit, some work contributing to the running of a farm or business operated by a related member of the household, or had a job but were not at work because of bad weather, illness, industrial dispute, vacation or taking time off for other reasons.

The labor force surveys last year counted an average of 13,873,000 Canadians in the 14-and-over age group, of whom 7,494,000 were in the labor force.

An analysis of the monthly reports by officials, just completed, this month, showed that a post-war high was reached last year in the proportion of the population actively engaged in the labor force—55.5 per cent.

While this figure has been growing, the proportion of men and women has been gradually changing. Women last year represented more than one-third of the labor force—33.8 per cent, the highest figure on record.

The number of men in Canada 65 years and older has grown about 60 per cent in the past 20 years. But the number of them in the labor force has declined steadily since 1947.

Last year, 24.7 per cent of the men and 5.9 per cent of the women who were 65 and over were still in the labor force.

Another feature established in the analysis is a reversal of a long-term trend towards young people staying out of the labor force, presumably to continue in school.

Between 1946 and 1964, the number of 14- to 19-year-olds who were in the labor force declined steadily from 49.1 per cent to 34.2. Last year, the participation rate was 37.5 per cent.

For boys, the long-term trend was pronounced, dropping from 60.5 per cent in 1946 to 38.3 per cent in 1964. Last year it rose to 39.4 per cent.

Marmora

A large crowd of between 300 to 400 enjoyed the 'old tyme' fiddle contest and entertainment supplied by the Cross Country Jamboree and guest entertainers sponsored by Marmora Agricultural Society held on Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Shannon and their daughters Denise, four and Michele, one, left this month for Lahr, West Germany where Mr. Shannon will teach English at the Lahr Secondary School. Sponsored by the Stratford Board of Education Mr. Shannon was appointed to the Lahr post by the Department of National Defence which assumes responsibility for the schooling of children of Canadian Military personnel of NATO air base in Lahr.

The Shannon family spent a few days at the home of Mr. Shannon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Shannon before they left from Trenton Air Base. Mrs. Shannon's parents are in Lahr where her father Col. W. Norman Hoye C.D. is a senior officer of the air division headquarters.

ENROLMENT UP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Enrolment for University of British Columbia summer courses is up about 13 per cent from 1967 with more than 6,000 students registered. The school director said the increase is partly because of a scarcity of summer jobs and because many students went to Expo 67 last year.

New School For Deaf Is Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's next school for the deaf and hard-of-hearing will be built in the London area, W. K. Clarke, administrator of schools for the blind and deaf, said investigation has shown a need for such a school in southwestern Ontario.

In Politics for Reform Say Ministers

OTTAWA (CP) — The three youngest members of the Trudeau cabinet said Tuesday night they are in politics because they want to participate in major Canadian reforms.

Lawyers Ronald Basford, 36, of Vancouver, Otto Lang, 36, of Saskatoon, and Jean Chretien, 34, of Shawinigan Falls, Que., were interviewed on the nationally-televised program The Summer Way.

Mr. Basford, who entered the cabinet following the June 25 election as minister of consumer and corporate affairs, described politics as "the most fascinating profession there is."

He said that nothing else gives him the same sense of involvement.

As the watchdog of the consumer's interest he said: "I hope on occasion I will be severe"; individuals who must be put in their place.

Mr. Lang resigned as dean of law at the University of Saskatchewan when Prime Minister Trudeau named him a minister without portfolio earlier this month. He said he has been interested in politics for years because he wanted to do something about power in society and power groups that exercise too much influence.

Mr. Lang is a constitutional expert and he said he believes the constitution must be kept as amendable and as flexible as possible.

Mr. Chretien was first a minister without portfolio and later revenue minister before his appointment this month as minister of Indian affairs and northern development. He said he came to Ottawa in 1963 because the federal government needed good people from Quebec, but he described his rapid rise as "a question of timing and a bit of luck."

He said Canada has embarked on a new style of politics. The people will not be fooled anymore. Politicians must be more direct "... and that's the difference in government right now."

THE PICK OF Punch

Legislature's Session Ends

TORONTO (CP) — The first session of Ontario's 28th legislature was prorogued Tuesday by Lieutenant-Governor W. Ross Macdonald, ending a near-record 102 days and a record 565 hours of debate.

The Lieutenant-governor, who succeeded W. Earl Rowe in the post earlier this month, read an eight-page outline of the session's legislative accomplishments which concluded with a notion that the affairs of the government "are in excellent order."

Prorogation of the house at 3:30 p.m. EDT followed conclusion of the annual budget debate by Provincial Secretary Robert Welch who was a last-minute substitute for Premier John Robarts.

The premier left during the morning by plane for Gander, Nfld., where he was to join Newfoundland Premier Joseph Smallwood for a fishing trip arranged last February. With him was his son Robin, 12.

The prorogation speech, written by the government, described the session as "one of the most productive in years."

"Those legislative proposals which you have approved will ensure the further strength and stability of the people of Ontario to meet their responsibilities to our province and to our country," the lieutenant-governor said.

"I command the honorable

Andras Will Learn Of Indian Problems

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Andras, minister without portfolio, starts to learn first-hand this week about the problems he is expected to help solve.

Mr. Andras, Member of Parliament for Port Arthur, was assigned to the Indian affairs department with instructions from Prime Minister Trudeau to work out new policies on Indians.

He flies today to Yellowknife, where Indians from all points in the Mackenzie district of the Northwest Territories will be asked by an Indian affairs team for their suggestions on how the Indian Act should be changed.

'Seagull' Delights Critics But Not Audience

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — The Stratford Festival's production of Anton Chekhov's "The Seagull" brought more enthusiasm from critics than Tuesday opening night audience which gave the cast little more than polite applause.

The first of two plays to be presented at the Avon Theatre during the festival's 16th season, The Seagull is a tragic drama, set in late 19th century Russia, depicting its characters and tragedy the breaking of the human spirit.

Herb Whittaker of the Toronto Globe and Mail called The Seagull "a masterwork" and praised director Jean Gascon's for "a performance notable for its subtlety and delicate attention to minute detail."

Ralph Hicklin of the Toronto Telegram was another critic to proclaim Hutt as "the centre of the play."

Mr. Hicklin, however, faulted both Denise Pelletier, in the role of Arkadina, and Dalnard Mann as declared tournament winner.

"I'm not going to lose any more sleep over it," Miss Smith said.

Then, she turned her attention to her wardrobe and asked her caddy, Chris Kayer, to wear a matching outfit.

"Get a yellow golf shirt and I'll buy it for your birthday," she told the caddy. "Wear it with white pants and I'll wear my yellow top and white skirt that day."

The rattily-dressed Miss Smith will be one of 45 women pro golfers to compete in the $4-hole tournament starting Thursday. A purse of $20,000—in U.S. funds—is at stake.

The tournament has attracted a strong field including the obvious sentimental favorite, Sandra Post of Oakville.

George Knudson of Toronto, a successful player on the men's tour, said Tuesday that Miss Post will be under unbelievable pressure as Canada's first female playing pro.

"Sandy's emotions will be higher than she's ever known," Knudson said.

Knudson said the pressure will cause Miss Post's play to go to an extreme—either very good or very bad.

"People rarely play average golf in a situation like that," he said.

Other well-known pros who will compete in the tournament include Susie Maxwell Berning, Miss Mann, Patty Berg, Marlene Hagge and Althea Gibson Darben.

A $1,000 pro-am event was scheduled for today. Some of the Canadian amateurs who will participate are Marlene Streit of Foothill, Ont., Gayle Hitchens Borthwick of Hamilton, Joceline Bourassa of Three Rivers, Que., and Kay Cartwright of Toronto.

Pelletier's performance "is little more than a series of theatrical poses accompanied by a delivery which sometimes tends to the flat-footed of a fishwife."

Stewart Brown of the Hamilton Spectator criticized "Gascon's extremely muted production" for stirring "the head but not the heart."

The final production of the 1968 festival, Samuel Beckett's Waiting For Godot, will open Aug. 13.

The festival, which began June 10, concludes Oct. 12.

Pony Play

Top Horse-Trader Doesn't Shy at Price

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Fifteen months ago, W. F. Rasco decided to get into thoroughbred racing so he claimed a horse for $10,000, about average in the sport of kings.

Since then, he has claimed nine more at a cost of $5,800 to $15,000 range. Tuesday night, he bought his first horse at auction —paying a weekly record $405,000.

"I was prepared to go until I heard the horse," the owner of 43 Virginia open air markets said after he won a bidding duel with International financier Charles W. Engelhard of New York, N.J.

The object of the bidding was a chestnut filly by the European classic stinger Sea Bird out of Ribera, dam of Ribocco and Ribero, winners of the Irish Sweeps Derby the past two years.

Engelhard bought both Ribocco and Ribero here and said he wanted the filly offered for sale by Mrs. Julian G. Rogers of Lexington, who also bred the two European racing stars.

The record bid—$135,000 higher than any in yearlings sales history—was the big splash in a financial flood as $7,600,000 changed hands during two days of auctions at the Keeneland summer sale.

Engelhard lost out in another bidding duel for a son of Ribocco, the sire of Ribero and Ribero, when James Cox Brady of New York took the colt for $200,000.

Stirling Personals

STIRLING — The newly elected officers of the Stirling Rotary club for the year, Jim Boughner, vice-president, Stuart Cooke; secretary, Robert Hubin; treasurer, C. R. West.

Mrs. Kenneth Ray with Mrs. Robert Cooke as co-hostess, sponsored a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Nancy Finkle, bride-to-be. Mrs. Bill Bailey of Belleville opened.

Mr. Miro Trofina has been appointed plant manager at Stirling Furniture Ltd., Stirling, and Ken McCaughan has been appointed comptroller. John Svoboda, president, recently announced the appointments.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth and Kathryn Ann of Carrick have been holidaying with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Tompkins and other relatives.

Frets Over Wardrobe

TORONTO (CP) — The most important thing on Marilynn Smith's mind Tuesday was selecting her wardrobe for this week's Ladies Professional Golfers Association tournament here.

The 39-year-old veteran of the pro tour apparently had calmed down about a two-stroke penalty imposed on her by tour director Leonie Wirz at Cincinnati Sunday for slow play.

The penalty was given at the scoring table after Miss Smith had finished one shot ahead of Carol Mann in the Buckeye tournament. As a result, Miss

Industry in Doldrums

Canadian Progress May Be Last Ship Built at Port Weller

PORT WELLER, Ont. (CP) — When Upper Lakes Shipping Ltd. christens its bulk carrier Canadian Progress this week-end it may be the last ship off the line for Port Weller Dry Docks Ltd., company officials say.

Since it started in business 22 years ago the company has sent 47 hulls down the slip, ranging from Newfoundland fishing trawlers to some of the largest ore carriers on the Great Lakes.

Today it is afflicted with the illnesses which are spreading through Canadian shipyards—shrinking orders due to rising costs, declining government aid and stiff foreign competition.

"If Canada wants a shipbuilding industry it's absolutely necessary for shipbuilders to have more protection," says George Black, manager of Port Weller Dry Docks.

Otherwise Canadian yards will run out of orders quickly and be reduced to ship-repair work. They won't be able to exist on this alone."

Last year Port Weller Dry Docks, a subsidiary of Upper Lakes Shipping, finished a 730-foot bulk carrier and built two fishing trawlers.

This year it has launched a research ship and a trawler and is putting the finishing touches to the $13,500,000 Canadian Progress, expected to be in service by September.

Its work volume, $13,000,000 last year, will drop to $2,000,000 in 1959 unless new orders materialize, the company says.

At peak periods the company has kept about 800 workers busy. Today the work force is down to 450. About 300 of these and 30 of the 86-member salaried staff are to be laid off in August.

Business has not completely dried up, however. Port Weller has a $300,000 order for a fence-sharing work with the United States Navy, building masts, mooring equipment and steel sections for vessels.

Company officials say some of this work can be done economically in Canada because wages here are about 80 cents an hour less than in the U.S., and Canadian yards can guarantee faster delivery than their American counterparts.

Port Weller is building a dock gate, worth about $200,000, for an Erie, Pa., shipyard. It also has a contract to do drawings for another new U.S. shipyard, and a second contract to make sections for a $250 sandwich for Erie, Pa., shipyard. It also has a contract to do drawings for another new U.S. shipyard, and a second contract to make sections for a $250 sandwich for Canadian Industries Inc. of Erie.

"The Zuro contract could be worth anywhere from $1,000 to $5,000,000," says Mr. Black. "It depends on Zuro's ability to sell. So far we've made two dryers and sold them to ourselves for about $250 each."

Such diversification may be one answer for Canada's troubled shipbuilding industry, which has few orders and where employment has been cut almost in half this year, to about 8,000.

Some large Canadian yards already have industrial divisions. Others, like Canadian Vickers Ltd., are part of a diversified company, able to be maintained for a time at a loss.

Canadian yards say they are becoming increasingly strapped in competitive bidding on new ships.

One reason is wages. A Canadian shipyard worker makes an average $2.70 an hour. In Britain the rate is $1.30 an hour; in Japan, 75 cents.

Devaluation of the British pound last year, enabling British yards to lower their Canadian dollar bids, and reduction of the Canadian government subsidy on large carriers to 23 per cent next year from 25, have further crimped Canadian yards.

Shipbuilders are also irked at having to pay duty on imported ship components, while British ships are not liable when bought by Canadians for service in Canada.

Cripple's Bunions Need Treatment

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I started getting bunions several months ago an dwould like to know what to do to prevent them from perhaps getting larger.

I do not think I can go to a foot doctor as I am already a cripple and cannot get around too much.

I also would like to know what I can do for my hard corns and callums — that is, hard corns. — A. L.

A hard corn and a callus are not necessarily the same —although corns of all types are, like a callus, a result of too much pressure or friction on a given spot, so the skin thickens. Generally speaking, a corn is such thickening of the skin in one small spot; a callus is thickening over a larger area.

A bunion also is the result of pressure, but in that case, a pressure which throws the big toe out of proper alignment. The joint capsule swells and is damaged, and a bunion is, in fact, a form of bursitis. Once the joint is damaged, merely straightening the toe will not correct the bunion.

Thus the basic necessity in correcting corns and bunions is to switch to footwear that does not exert pressure on the critical areas — but removing the corns or correcting the bunions usually requires treatment in addition to getting proper shoes.

You do not tell me, A.L., the nature of the problem which has crippled you. It may or may not have a bearing on your foot troubles.

It is my opinion, on the basis of what you tell me, that you need the help of an orthopedist or a podiatrist (foot specialist) to make or get headway in preventing your foot troubles from becoming worse.

While you may be limited in your ability to get around, you live in a city which has excellent medical facilities, and I feel sure that you can find out (from your medical society or similar source) the critical areas — and removing the corns or correcting the bunions usually requires treatment in addition to getting proper shoes.

As to corns and calluses — aside from the need for shoes which will not cause pressure and thus create new corns—the accepted treatment is a 10 percent solution of salicylic acid in an ointment or collodion mixture which is applied nightly.

Or you can of the standard corn-removal packets.

But I repeat: your condition sounds to me to be one which requires expert evaluation of the problem and some sound advice as to what you should do and how to be more comfortable and prevent the trouble from starting all over again.

Dear Dr. Molner: Has there ever been a human liver transplant attempted? Successful or unsuccessful? — R. A.

I have read of two that were attempted. Both patients have succumbed within a month because of the body's "rejection" of the transplanted tissues.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it detrimental for children aged 3, 4 and 5 to wear cowboy-type boots for extended periods, day after day, week after week? — H. H.

No, not if they fit the feet properly.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that if a woman and her physician control pills long enough she will soon resemble a male? My friend's doctor told her that. — Mrs. J. M. E.

No, it is not true. The birth control pills are a female hormone, not a male hormone, hence have no masculinizing effect. I doubt that any physician could have told your friend any such thing, and some drastic misunderstanding must be involved.)

Self-service Liquor Stores Are to Be Tested at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Three self-service liquor stores will be established in Metropolitan Toronto as an experiment while a cabinet committee this summer reviews the government's policies on the supply and sale of liquor.

Provincial Secretary Robert Welch, delivering the government's wind-up speech in the legislature budget debate, said all Ontario liquor laws will be reviewed by the committee.

He did not name its members.

The three self-service stores in Toronto will experiment with changes in "merchandising policies" governing the sale of liquor, he said.

"It may be time to have another look at the government's approach to personal behavior and social customs," Mr. Welch said in announcing the committee review.

"Policy is about to undergo a (through) review."

Mr. Welch gave a spirited defence of Ontario's young people, which may indicate considering of lowering the legal drinking age of 21.

Strictly Personal

An Honest Propaganda Board

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In Ceylon, which is the world's largest exporter of tea, there is a group called the "Tea Propaganda Board." This is surely one of the few honest names remaining in the promotion and publicity field.

The Tea Propaganda Board spreads propaganda about tea—such as the recent announcem by scientists at the Bio-Chemical Division of the University of California that, after 14 years of research, they have found that tea drinking actually reduces the incidence of cerebral coronary thrombosis.

Of course, if scientists elsewhere reported that tea drinking increas.d the incidence of some other ailment, we would not expect the Tea Propaganda Board to pass along that bit of information. It is frankly and openly a biased agency not pretending to be anything but.

The word "propaganda" has fallen into disrepute this century, and propagandists call themselves by a dozen different names — information specialists, promotion experts, public relations counselors, and so on. Yet, the origin of the word "propaganda" is not only innocent, it is positively wreathed in piety.

More than 300 years ago, in 1622, Pope Gregory XV established a "college" consisting of a committee of Cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church having the care and oversight of foreign missions. This was known as Congregatio de propaganda fide — college for propagating the faith.

To "propagate" simply means to spread the faith, to disseminate the creed of Catholicism among the heathen, by preaching and writing. There was no imputation of gross bias or half-truths.

But as religious enmities grew more fierce, and as arguments became more intense "propaganda" came to mean any piece of verbal ammunition that one side might throw at another. The word gradually became discredited, until today it is impossible to use it in its original sense. All "propaganda" is bad in our eyes.

It is refreshing that such a backwater of the English language as Ceylon, however, should continue to use the word in its proud and non-derogatory sense. The Tea Propaganda Board is spreading the creed of tea drinking to those infidels who prefer other beverages. It disdains calling itself by some softer, more euphemistic, name. If it ever becomes the "Tea Promotion Board," we will know that the coffee people have it on the run.

AID REFUGEES

The Malaysian embassy has given $20,000 worth of relief supplies to South Vietnam to aid refugees forced to flee their homes during the Viet Cong's Tet offensive.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For July 25

Your birthday today: You are due for a bright new outlook. The first month or so involves resolution of some temporary hindrance or social obligation. The remainder of the year promises improved initiative guided by vivid intuitive glimpses. Earning could expand: Don't be petty; it does not pay this year. Today's natives have a rare ability to see through complicated matters.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Look for Cupid's arrows today; they are flying all about you. Get the routines done, as the later hours lend themselves to either pleasure-seeking or laziness.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your attention is on your home today. Plan improvements or at least repairs. Family discussions are favored to plan for the summer and early fall. Put time in on your hobby this evening.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your letter writing is way behind so get caught up this morning. Then catch up with neighbors. Put in your share of the group effort. Entertain friends tonight.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): The temptation today is to waste the morning over emotional problems or pursuing pleasures. Discipline yourself, then try romantic interests in the evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Tend your health care this morning. Line up your personal affairs. Enjoy good fellowship tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Under your serene surface, happiness grows. Hidden matters thrive, day and night. If you have earned a raise, this is the moment to ask.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Today the urge for romance and pleasure is strong. If you focus attention on the job, the result will be financial benefits and more.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): This should be a good, normal day with people ready to co-operate. Push public affairs jobs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): If you have inventive talents, now is the time. This is fair weather for inventors. Influential backing is indicated.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The early hours are more productive. Take a break at noon. Do not be surprised to find the ribbon is actually blue; today will deserve celebration.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Teamwork is very important. Put in your share this morning. The affairs of older people are in need of improvement.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): This promises to be a happy day with nothing to do but follow simple orders. Count the cost of losing your initiative against the pleasant drift.

Algonquin Park Head Defends New Road

TORONTO (CP) — William Hueston, superintendent of Algonquin Park, denied Tuesday that a new logging road through the park rips through bush and that the park is being stripped of its forest resources.

Mr. Hueston was replying to charges by an official of the Algonquin Wildlands League that the road has been built through the busiest canoe trail in the park.

The road, between Big Trout and Big Otterslide lakes, was reported by Jim Coakley, a counsellor at Camp Pathfinder.

"The rape of Algonquin Park is as despite meaningless platitudes issued by the lands and forests minister (Rene Brunelle)," Jeff Miller, league director, said in an interview Tuesday.

Eddie Sargent, Liberal member of the legislature for Grey — Bruce, demanded an immediate investigation. He said in an interview the road had better be closed "or there would be a real stink."

Mr. Hueston said after the trees are cut, the road will be closed and the area will return to its natural state.

To get to the trees the company had to have a road. It was built to cause the least interference with persons on canoe trips, Mr. Hueston said.

Mr. Miller said the new road "rips through a portage on the busiest canoe route in the park."

"It even has stop signs so the logging trucks won't run over too many canoeists," he said.

Mr. Brunelle had said earlier that logging operations were carefully controlled, but the wildlands league charged that 1,400 miles of lumber roads exist in the park.

The league was set up as a conservation group last spring.

Wirtz Asked to Explain His Stand About Banks

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator Paul Fannin has asked Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz to explain his role in the U.S. refusal to extradite Harold C. Banks, former boss of the Canadian district of the Seafarers International Union.

Ontario had sought Banks' extradition to face a charge of perjury before a royal commission investigating Great Lakes violence in 1963.

State Secretary Dean Rusk, responsible for such final decisions, in March refused to approve an extradition order.

In a letter to Wirtz on Monday —it was made public Tuesday —Fannin, an Arizona Republican, asked the secretary to make available his memorandum to Rusk on the case.

An aide to Wirtz confirmed last Friday a report in the Wall Street Journal that the secretary had "put in a good word for Banks" in the memorandum, which he wrote to acquaint Rusk with the history of maritime violence involving Banks.

Fannin said he is "particularly alarmed" about published reports of sizable SIU contributions to Democratic party election campaign organizations following Rusk's ruling.

The SIU was reported to have donated $100,000 to the Democrats shortly after Rusk's refusal. Rusk has denied any political pressure had been brought to bear on him in the case.

Banks now is at liberty in the United States. He was convicted in Montreal in 1964 of conspiracy in the 1957 beating of Capt. Frank Walsh, a rival maritime union leader, and was sentenced to five years' imprisonment. Banks appealed the conviction but, while free on $25,000 bail, fled to the United States. jibe conspiracy sentence was upheld. However, under the U.S.-Canada extradition agreement, he can't be returned to Canada on that charge.

Los Angeles Hopes to Hit Oil By Drilling Beneath City Hall

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a search for new revenue, Los Angeles plans to drill for oil and gas beneath the 28-storey city hall.

The board of public works approved a proposal Wednesday to drill oil and gas below 46.7 acres of city-owned land in the Civic Centre area, including the spot over which city councilmen are trying so hard to find revenue.

"We don't know exactly how much oil it does there," said city oil administrator Arthur O. Spaulding. "It probably won't be anything outstanding, but it should be profitable."

Spaulding said chances there would be oil and gas below the city office building were "pretty good" — about 50-50."

The idea was proposed last March by the Standard Oil Co. after it discovered oil last fall at First and Carey Streets, a half mile southeast of city hall.

Bids for the drilling will be opened Nov. 20.

All Police Are Black

CLEVELAND (AP)—Negro peacemakers strolling the teeming streets of the East Side maintained a measure of calm Wednesday night among crowds still restless over Tuesday's savage gun battle that left 11 dead.

Only minor incidents of looting and burning occurred during the night as 2,000 National Guard troops were restricted to duty along the troubled area's perimeter and all white persons were banned from the predominantly-Negro neighborhood of Glenville.

The only police in the area were Negroes.

Mayor Carl Stokes said today that his gamble on the Negro community leaders paid off: "We had no shooting and we had no deaths."

Stokes, first Negro mayor of a major U.S. city, said it was too early to consider releasing the guardsmen.

The plan to use "black community leadership" came in response to a challenge by Stokes who met with 150 Negro leaders Wednesday.

"I challenged them as to what the Negro community itself would do about the problem," he said. There were some 300 Negro leaders and about 100 Negro police in Glenville Wednesday night, urging residents to go home and curtailing minor outbreaks of looting.

Three white policemen and eight Negro civilians were killed in Tuesday night's exchange of gunfire.

West German Seeks Facts On Canada's Military Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — Future plans for Canada's military forces in Europe were expected to be a main point today in talks between Gerhard Schroeder, West German defence minister, and Canadian officials.

There has been high German interest in statements by Prime Minister Trudeau that Canada should concentrate more on continental defence and less on maintaining troops on the spot in Europe.

Mr. Schroeder is expected to sound out government thinking on this point extensively in a meeting today with Defence Minister Cadieux.

Hopes Grow for Accord To End Postal Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — The national postal strike began its second week today amid optimism that a settlement on working conditions may be not far off. The key wage issue still has not come up in the prolonged negotiation effort.

Government negotiators spent all day Wednesday studying a long list of proposals by the Council of Postal Unions on amendments to a conciliation board report setting out recommended provisions for working rules.

Another session with the mediator, Judge Rene Lippe of Montreal, had been scheduled Wednesday night but was called off when the government team asked for more time to prepare its reply to the union document, and the council team wanted more time to consider proposals advanced so far.

Judge Lippe said he was not surprised at the request, in view of the long list of items involved and rescheduled the session for 10 a.m. EDT today. Earlier in the day Roger Decarie, co-chairman of the 24,000-member union council, said he expected the mediation talks would reach a crucial point today on the complicated dispute over working conditions.

"I think we'll have good news," he added.

Later, other union officials said they were encouraged by the request of the government's treasury board team for more time to study the union proposals. They felt this indicated the government was taking the matter seriously.

"They need the time," Mr. Decarie said of the request. "We worked a whole day on the proposals. It's a 43-page document and we wrote on nearly every page of it."

The document he referred to was the 10,000-word unanimous report of the conciliation board.

It was accepted by the government but rejected by the unions as not going far enough towards their demands for better working rules.

Informants said government concessions on working rules could lead the union council to back down from its wage demand of a 75-cent hourly increase, plus 25 cents extra for low-paid categories, in a 14-month contract.

The government last week offered 15 cents in two stages.

Necessary Needling

Little Ian Steedman was one of nearly 200 Belleville public school students who underwent tuberculosis tests yesterday in a mass drive after disease was confirmed in woman supply teacher. Health officials, like nurse Eleanor Burnham, must test all persons known to have made contact with the teacher. (See Page 3.)

Kosygin Home, Czech Talks Start Monday

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin received Foreign Trade Minister Vaclav Vales of Czechoslovakia in the Kremlin today, contradicting reports that the entire 11-man politburo of the Soviet Communist party had already left for Prague.

The Yugoslav correspondent in Warsaw reported today that First Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev and members of the politburo have arrived in Czechoslovakia and made their first contacts with Czechoslovak leaders somewhere in Slovakia.

One East European Communist source in Belgrade had said earlier that Soviet officials would confer with Polish and East German leaders before going on to Prague. The Poles, East Germans and Russians are the most militant opponents of the new Czechoslovak leadership's liberal course.

The expectation in Prague was that the talks between the Soviet politburo and the presidium of the Czechoslovak Communist party would begin next Monday.

The Soviet propaganda campaign against liberalism in Prague continued unabated, with Pravda lumping all Communists who resist the Kremlin together with China's Mao Tse-tung.

By bringing in Mao, regarded here as a traitor to true communism, Pravda apparently was attempting to further blacken the Czech leadership. Earlier attempts to do this have been widely interpreted as a possible preparation for Soviet intervention.

Pigeon Express Used in Calgary

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The message went on the wing Wednesday with inauguration of a new airmail service to beat the mail strike—pigeon express.

In Calgary, a homing pigeon delivered a copy of a document from Cereal, Alta., 180 miles to the north, to mark the opening of a new Pioneer Grain Co. elevator.

Art Poile, owner of the birds, said in an interview he will provide pigeons to deliver notes in the province during the strike by 24,000 postal workers that began last Thursday.

He said his birds can cover 160 miles in about three hours, one hour faster than by bus.

Meanwhile, picketing workers were joined by sympathetic politicians and labor leaders Wednesday in front of post offices as telegrams streamed into Ottawa asking the government to intervene and end the strike.

Picket line-guests in Winnipeg included three New Democrats—provincial Leader Russ Paulley, MP David Orlikow from Winnipeg North and Peter Fox, provincial member for Kildonan.

Art Coulter, secretary of the Manitoba Federation of Labor, also attended.

Dief Plans To Attack Obscenity

LONDON (CP) — John Diefenbaker will launch a crusade in Canada's new parliament against obscenity.

The former Progressive Conservative prime minister said today he plans to draft a bill to eliminate "license" from publications and broadcasts and hopes the government will allow it to go before a parliamentary committee for study.

Hanoi Reduces Its Stress On Future Role of Viet Cong

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam has apparently enlarged its room for manoeuvre in peace negotiations by downgrading slightly the Viet Cong's program for South Vietnam's future.

A lessening of the importance Hanoi has attached to the National Liberation Front could contribute to progress toward ending the war at some later stage of the peace talks. But it leaves the deadlock over stopping the bombing of the North and de-escalating the conflict in the South.

On the bombing issue, the North Vietnamese are holding to their demand that President Johnson end all attacks on their territory without any cut in their military operations in return.

The United States has been equally insistent that North Vietnam must show some military restraint.

U.S. officials came here in early May believing that North Vietnam would eventually shift its position on the bombing. Now they are beginning to reassess their judgment.

Some of President Johnson's advisers are known to advocate that he stop all remaining attacks on the North in return for minimum reciprocity.

Ambassador Xuan Thuy reiterated in the 14th session of the Paris talks Wednesday that no other subjects could be discussed until all attacks on North Vietnam cease. Nevertheless, other subjects were discussed.

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman told Thuy that if he ever wants to make any progress toward a peaceful settlement, North Vietnam will have to accept the government of South Vietnam in a peace-making role.

Thuy said last week his government would never negotiate with the Saigon regime.

However, when Harriman asked Thuy whether Hanoi is shifting its policy on the peace-making role of the Liberation Front, he received a response which suggested to U.S. officials that Hanoi's policy has altered slightly to provide negotiating flexibility.

They told Harriman, that the front's program constituted a "correct political line" corresponding to the "legitimate desires" of the South Vietnamese people.

The program is a lengthy plan for reorganizing South Vietnam under a new government in which the front would hold major power. For years, North Vietnam has said in its own peace program that the future settlement in the South must be made in accordance with the NLF program—a point which the United States always rejected.

Israel Likely To Rap Arabs

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Israeli government talked softly today about its hijacked airliner despite growing belief abroad that it would retaliate with some action against one of its Arab neighbors.

Algeria, where the plane was forced to land Tuesday by three members of an Arab terrorist organization, also seemed to be moving cautiously.

The Algerian delegate to the United Nations, Tewfik Boustiours, told UN Undersecretary-General Ralph Bunche his government is still investigating the hijacking and has not decided what to do with the Boeing 707 jet, its 10 crew members from El Al, the Israeli airline, and the 12 Israeli passengers. The Algerians released 23 non-Israeli passengers Thursday including two Canadians.

"We have to give the Algerians a chance," an Israeli government spokesman said. "How long we are prepared to wait, nobody is able to say."

Starving Biafrans Await Food

Biafran tribal people sit in the market place at Enugu, Biafra, awaiting the arrival of food supplies. The year-old war between the federal state and breakaway Biafra has cut off most of the normal food supply. Most victims are children, mothers who have recently given birth and the aged.

Agreement Reached on Corridor For Flying Food to Biafra

NIAMEY, Niger (AP) — Agreement has been reached on establishing a mercy corridor through federal Nigerian lines to fly desperately-needed food supplies to starving Biafran secessionists.

The agreement was reached here Wednesday night between a negotiating committee comprising Nigerians and Biafrans. It has to be ratified by the full delegations.

Informed sources reported the accord called for a 10-mile wide, demilitarized corridor running from Enugu to Ogoja, some 90 miles long. The corridor will be supervised by civilians of six member countries of the Organization of African Unity.

It was understood that Biafra also was pressuring for the addition of observers from the Ivory Coast, Gabon, Zambia and Tanzania to the OAU supervisory group. These four countries have given diplomatic recognition to Biafra.

The Biafrans were expected to ask that the airport at Enugu be demilitarized.

Both these demands were to be taken up at a meeting of the full delegations.

The six OAU countries are members of the organization's consultative committee which arranged the meeting between Nigerian and Biafran negotiators. They are Niger, The Congo, Ethiopia, Liberia, Ghana and Cameroon.

Trustees Must Be Informed: Smith

"Education must always be sensitive to the changing personal needs of society." That is the form of philosophical thinking that erupts from Macdonald Smith, chairman of the Belleville Public School Board.

"For a trustees to do his job he must be informed. Once he is informed he must decide on the direction and the change of direction of the educational program."

"This must be interpreted to the people in the community."

Macdonald (Mac) Smith has been chairman of the Belleville Public School Board four times. He has been on the board for 25 years.

At one time he served as a trustees on the Bay of Quinte High School Board for one year.

Education has occupied a good deal of his time. For the last couple of years he has been director of the Ontario School Trustees and Municipal Councillors Association and more recently has been elected to the post of director of the Ontario Public School Trustees Association.

He has even taught Sunday school.

Mr. Smith is active in the church. He is on the executive council of St. Thomas' Anglican Church and is on the executive of the Synod.

He was also harbor master of Belleville for six years, from 1958 until 1964. As well, he is a member of the Belleville Rotary Club and has been for four years. Eureka Lodge No. 253 has known his presence for 20 years.

Mr. Smith was born in Belleville in 1923 and has left its borders only once in his life, when he fought overseas for four and a half years during the war.

President of Harry Smith Fuels Ltd., he is a family man with a wife, Stella, and four children, three boys and a girl between the ages of 15 and 19.

Mr. Smith finds enjoyment by sponsoring a pee wee all-star hockey team. It has won the Ontario championships two years running.

"I get a lot of pleasure out of that," he said.

Civilian Employees Get Pay by Truck

TRENTON — A spokesman for CFB Trenton said today there will be no airlift of government paychecks for federal employees in this area.

"We have talked to officials in Ottawa and as far as we know there are no plans for any such lift," said the spokesman.

Service personnel have their checks made up at the base so the mail strike will pose no problem for them. Civilians who do their work at the base will have their cheques transported by truck.

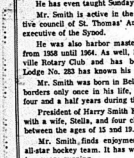
The truck service has always been in existance for such emergencies," replied the spokesman, "but this is used only for service mail."

He added that service mail was a matter of national security and as such could not be terminated.

But what about the other government employees in Trenton?

The Department of Manpower says its branch has a special courier service for the delivering of government cheques from Ottawa.

"We have made special arrangements and I suppose other departments have also," said a manpower employee.



If the government is finding a way of temporary survival during the strike the same cannot be said of some private commercial businesses.

A major problem, especially for the small business, is the payment of bills by clients. If an emergency delivery service is not developed the result could be a forced closing for the duration of the strike in certain cases.

For vital companies in the area emergency mail service has been provided.

A courier service has been set up between the Trenton and Toronto stock exchanges. Some firms, such as Whitley Insurance, find it necessary to deliver mail by hand.

In the case of the Insurance agency it is necessary to deliver policy renewals by this method to customers.

Changes Made in Outdoor Display Area at Fair

Directors of Belleville Fair will have visitors' feet in mind during this year's exhibition. — now less than three weeks away.

Instead of outdoor displays being scattered all over the grounds, as in the past, they will be concentrated in one specific area.

The end result will be that the mileage walked by fair - goers will be considerably reduced and the exhibitors will be happier that their displays will be situated in a heavy traffic area.

The outdoor display area will be concentrated immediately to the west of the new brick display building which replaces the dry-sawing Commodores' and Manufacturers' buildings which were torn down after last year's fair.

The site of the two former display buildings will be graded and marked out for outdoor display areas. There will be 18 such spaces, each 2,500 square feet in area, available for rental.

Fair secretary manager Everett Gowsell reported today that booth space in the new exhibition building is selling well and expects all space will be completely sold out before the fair opens on Aug. 13.

With the new exhibition building to be ready for the fair opening, fair directors are wearing bigger smiles than only a couple of months ago, when the possibility of having to cancel manufacturer's exhibits for this year's fair was being considered.

The reason for the rather glum picture a few months ago was that the old manufacturers and commodores buildings were gone and there seemed little assurance that a new building would be ready in time for the fair.

The use of tents as temporary display space had been ruled out as unsatisfactory.

But with the new 100 by 125 foot exhibition building ready for the fair the picture is entirely changed and fair directors have gone ahead with plans for concentration of exhibits in heavy traffic areas.

Under the new arrangement, fair-goers will be able to enter the grounds at the east gates, visit the new exhibition building, see the outdoor display area, the midway and the curling club building exhibits all in one sweep.

All the livestock exhibits — horses, cattle, poultry, sheep and swine — will be at the east and north of the track, also concentrated in one specific area.

"It will improve the grounds immensely," stated the fair secretary.

Business Increases for Communications Link

Telephone service has become the vital link between communities across the country and overseas since the postal strike began. Manning the Belleville exchange during the day are 39 operators, including several trainees. When lower night-time rates go into effect at 6 p.m., more operators are called in to cope with the increased traffic. Long distance calls are up about 20 per cent in Belleville because of the strike.

The bearers were Donald File, James Logue, Alvin McKenzie, Bernard Kukel, Claude Carter and Nick Sero.

Monday evening a memorial service was held at the chapel under the auspices of LOL No. 242, Shannonville. Taking part in the service were Worshipful Master Reg. Galbraith, Eugene Pascoe and Tom Hinchey.

Belleville Man Injured in Mishap

A 25-year-old Belleville man is in fair condition with head injuries after his automobile crashed off Highway 14 south of Mountain View last night and hit a bridge.

Jerome Ablarde suffered head injuries when, on the provincial police, his car veered out of control on a curve and hit a protective bridge abutment at Fearsall's bridge.

The 1962 automobile was a writeoff.

IN MEMORIAM

REID — In loving memory of my beloved son, William Gerald Reid who died July 24, 1963.
As quickly passing season's bring
The day of sorrow back to me
Dear Lord, be near
Each pearl that leaves the broken string.
He is set in Heaven's crown above
As devoted son to the heavenly Father
The circle widens in the sky.
Dear are the loved ones who remain,
Loved and remembered, those on high.
A light remembered by Mother and Dad.

MACMILLAN — In loving memory of my dear husband Hugh Macmillan who passed away July 25, 1967.
No morning dawn, no night remains,
But that we think of you,
Those little children are very good,
But none replaces you.
Your memory is all we have, dear,
When we are all alone,
The one we loved so very much,
To one so dear, from your own.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Clarissa Macmillan, Brandon, Ont.

MACMILLAN — In loving memory of a dear husband Hugh Macmillan who passed away July 25, 1967.
Though his smile is gone forever,
And his hand we cannot touch,
We still have so many memories,
Of the one we love so much.
His memory is our keepsake,
With which we'll never part,
God has him in His keeping,
We have him in our hearts.
—Sadly missed by daughter Ann, Esther, Erma and Gerrie.

MACMILLAN — In loving memory of father Hugh Macmillan who passed away July 25, 1967, and brother William Macmillan who passed away July 25, 1968.
God has their dear ones waiting,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So he closed their weary eyelids,
And whispered, "Peace to rest."
Always on the beautiful shore of God,
Where we shall meet on that golden morning,
When,
We will meet our loved ones there.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by sister Clarissa, Brandon, Man.

YORK — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Ellen who passed away July 25, 1963.
No hand so tender, no heart so true,
As the one we loved so dearly,
No sorrow like sorrow losing us,
To equal losing you.
—Sadly missed by daughter Edith and son Cal.

sons were either wounded by gunfire or injured in the stoning, burning and looting that caused an estimated $1,500,000 in damages in the Glenville neighborhood.

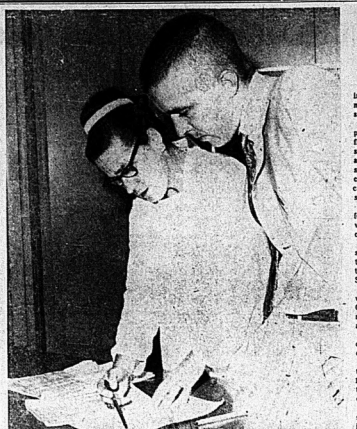
Police investigated the background of the Negro militants who Mayor Stokes said were responsible for the killings.

Ahmed Fred Evans, a black nationalist, was being held for the second day without charge. Evans surrendered to police Tuesday and was quoted by officers as saying he led 17 men in the bloody attack.

Evans was told by police that two snipers were believed dead.

"They did for a worthy cause," Evans was quoted as saying.

Police said Evans surrendered and told them: "If my carbine hadn't jammed, I would have killed you. You police have bothered us too long."



Evans, an astrologer who favors African garb, has conferred with Stokes on several occasions. The mayor described him as having a "black nationalist viewpoint."

In May, 1967, Evans predicted an uprising of Negroes in Cleveland. It did not happen.

Stokes said that the building which the snipers used had been under surveillance by a police. He also said that the FBI warned him that black nationalists planned co-ordinated violent demonstrations in Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit, and Pittsburgh.

Police Chief Michael Blackwell said that he had no knowledge of plotted violence and that Tuesday's ambush was "a total surprise and shock to us."

Lengthy List

Close to 200 names of public school children were assembled for TB testing clinic in Belleville. Dr. William Waddell checks out list at Harry J. Clarke School with Mrs. Lois Hughes, Hastings and Prince Edward County Public Health Unit.

Health Officials Are Running TB Checks for 300 Students

The Quinte district is receiving a clinical closeup of how a modern society hopefully strives to eradicate disease.

Despite its urgency, it's a painstaking chore. Health officials are seeking possible signs of tuberculosis germs in about 300 children and adults suspected of having recent contact with an identified carrier of the disease, a woman supply teacher.

The first phase of the hunt for the microscopic fugitives was launched by health authorities.

Close to 200 public school students were processed at testing clinics at Queen Victoria and Harry J. Clarke Schools.

Tomorrow morning the scene will be repeated at Cassilhom Corbyville public school. Later night clinics will be held for adult contacts.

The carrier, now in a sanatorium, was interviewed July 17 by Dr. William Waddell, of the Ontario government chest clinic in Belleville.

The fact she was not only a school teacher, but on supply, immediately broadened the problem. It meant contact had been made at several schools where the woman had substituted for regular staff members.

Then there was the problem of communicating with the contacts.

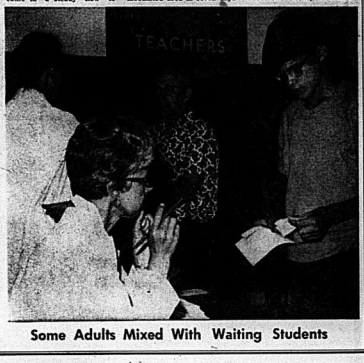
Schools are on vacation — and the postal strike ruled out mailing any form of general notice.

Nurses and secretaries at the Belleville head offices of the Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit came to the rescue, says Dr. Waddell.

With hastily-supplied registration lists from school authorities, the health unit staff mounted a telephone-calling service, contacting every household involved.

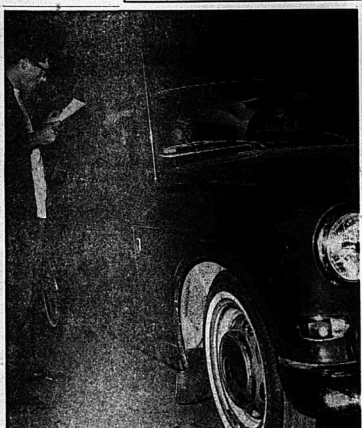
Yesterday, the response came in a steady flow of youngsters into both schools.

Inside — with their parents' signed consent — they were given the test — simplicity of which contrasted with the urgent implications of the situation.



A tuberculin inoculation is given on the arm, the injection made by a six-point Stern needle.

Any reaction around the tiny inoculated area in seven days should be reported to health authorities.



It took more than three hours to conduct the Belleville tests yesterday.

The pattern will be repeated at 9:30 a.m. at the Cassilhom-Corbyville school tomorrow, where, says Dr. Waddell, about 75 children are involved.

Clinics for adult contacts of the teacher will be ready in about two weeks, he added.

Getting Set for the Rally

Trenton Rally Group Heads for Back Roads

TRENTON — There's a group in Trenton that believes the shortest distance between two points is full of bumps, curves and hidden sidereads. And they have made a successful sport out of this test of driving skill.

The Tri - County Motorsport Club has been in existence for only nine weeks but in this short time has collected 20 dedicated members.

The club holds various auto sport events for its members. Foremost among these is the demanding task of rallying.

To win a rally all you have to do is follow a map from point A to point B and complete the course in a certain amount of time. But as anyone who has competed in a rally will tell you it isn't all that easy.

Maps are deceiving and the route not all that easy to follow. Many a competitor has misunderstood a direction and ended up in a farmer's field.

The Tri - Country club does its best to prevent this by holding a rally school at some of the regular bi - monthly meetings. Here the new are initiated to rally techniques while the experienced brush up on old methods.

Members said they formed the club because "it gives us a chance to meet people and everybody here has fun."

Acting secretary Robert Bell said two rallies have been held since the club has been in existence and described the response as "excellent by everyone who took part."

Mr. Bell emphasized that anyone with any type of motor vehicle can join the club.

There are still a few people who think rallying is an expensive sport but this is incorrect," continued Mr. Bell.

To be competitive in a rally all that is needed is a map, slide rule, watch, divider, flashlight, pencil and paper . . . a modest investment for the action and thrills involved.

Aside from regular rallies the club holds rally petites which follow a meeting. These are usually of the simple variety but the fact that they are held at night makes them just as difficult as the bigger ones.

Members of the club have attested to the fact that drivers with the minimum of equipment have defeated cars equipped with the more erotic brands of navigational equipment.

Robert Bell said the club places the "accent on enjoyment" but noted that some members are top notch and have competed successfully elsewhere.

So if you like inexpensive fun and competition in the car field this club could be what you're looking for. The membership fee is $5 for students, while single individuals pay $7.50 and married couples $10.

"Anyone 16 years of age or over can join," said Mr. Bell, "as long as their cars or motorbikes meet requirements set by law."

These include registration and insurance. So if you're driving legally now, you are eligible.

Why are you sitting there straining your eyes when you could be pleasing your tummy with a Schneiders barbecue-style chicken. They come fully cooked and fully seasoned. Just heat for 20 minutes then dig in.

Hotel Owners to Plea Aug. 7

PICTON — The owners of Picton's two raided hotels will make their court plea August 7 on Liquor Licence Act charges laid during the recent beer strike.

Both men appeared yesterday in magistrate's court here as the hearing was adjourned for two weeks by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Arthur Black, owner of the Globe Hotel, and Norman March, of the Rickarton Castle were charged July 15 after police raids on both premises.

The Quinte area as a vacation mecca?

Many have talked about the possibility and, indeed, individuals have taken steps to contribute to the idea.

One of the more positive steps along this line was announced yesterday when Universal Travellers Club started construction on its holiday village near Wooler. Spokesmen for the project speak of an investment ranging from two to five million dollars.

Encompassing a Disneyland motif along with vacation facilities, the project is designed not only to bring people into the area for holiday periods but also to appeal to the tourist travelling along Highway 401.

It is a wonder that such a project has taken as long as it has to materialise. The Quinte area has been on the verge of a vacation home boom for years and this might be enough to kick it off.

Thousands of residents from Canada's heavily populated Metro Toronto stream into the Kawarthas, Lake Simcoe-Muskoka and Georgian Bay areas each weekend and on vacations.

Up until now, the Quinte area — just as easy to reach by road as any of these — has not experienced the homegrown tourist boom. Prince Edward county is a natural. The Highlands of Hastings are yet to be really "discovered." The eastern end of the Pine Ridge area has only been tapped.

The Quinte area has everything. Beautiful sand beaches in Prince Edward, along with waterfront properties and inland lakes.

In Hastings county there are literally dozens of lakes which have not as yet been opened up for summer camp living as well as hundreds of other lakes which have not been developed to the maximum.

There is no doubt the area can easily stand a summertime influx of thousands.

Brace yourself — it is coming.

Welcome Back

The opening of the Sun Luck Gardens marked the return of Michael Tom to the restaurant business in Belleville.

It was only a few weeks ago that his father also became active again in the same field with the opening of his downtown restaurant.

Diners in the Belleville area have missed both gentlemen. Many have been looking forward with anticipation for the opening of Michael Tom's impressive-looking building on North Front Street.

This area is unfortunately not overburdened by first line dining establishments. It makes the Sun Luck debut doubly welcome.

Let's Not Panic

Dear, oh dear!

The hub of the Quinte area is about to have its "friendly city" slogan tarnished across Canada.

In a news article this week, one angry young man slashed the city's image by charging Belleville is "the most mini-skirtless city in Canada."

And just when the industrial commission, chamber of commerce and city council were beginning to think their friendly city image was beginning to bear fruit.

Years ago, when a crisis faced a community the cry would go out: "To Arms! To Arms!"

Girls, there is no use in us asking you to raise your arms in defence of our fair city but you might try raising those hemlines.

No Place Like Home

Quinte area residents are often chided on their conservative mode of living. But it is a built-in characteristic which has just as many advantages as disadvantages.

It was encouraging to read Tuesday that local realtor B. G. Foster feels strongly enough about his links with the past to build his new home at Plainfield out of logs.

Admittedly Mr. Foster will include innovations which have made our way of life much easier than our pioneer forefathers. But a look at the Foster homestead every now and again should remind us that our past is important just as is our future.

Trudeau Makes It Clear He Is The Man In Charge

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There is one big advantage in having a tough-guy prime minister ruling his cabinet kingdom with an iron fist.

It makes for togetherness.

Call it fear, or respect, or a little of both, but it produces something that, for the first time in six years and two successive governments, resembles a team.

And what a switch is this!

In the year of his decline and fall as the leader of the Conservative minority government, former Prime Minister Diefenbaker had anything but a team.

Too many of the players were trying to do him in the back with the dagger of revolt.

And while former Prime Minister Pearson, in all his five troubled years of minority power, never had to contend with any cabinet power poleches, he captained nothing that ever looked like a team.

None of his players had to conspire against him to get their own way—they just went ahead and did whatever they wanted to do anyway, and to heck with the prime minister.

Too bad for him some of them turned out to be tigers.

And too bad for him, too that all but a few of them acted like classroom cut-ups.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau is wildly different.

It could, conceivably, turn out to be a disaster.

For if he is to be the sole decision-maker and his 28 ministers mere order-taking ciphers meekly rubber-stamping the edicts-from-on-high, there may be calamity ahead.

Unless, of course, "The Man" is confirmed by events as the wise-and-all knowing superstatesman for whom the Trudeaumaniacs flipped their electoral wigs.

The catch just might be that many — precisely 15 of the 29 members of the so-suddenly tightly - disciplined Trudeau team are graduates from Lester Pearson's unruly cabinet classroom.

And what a shock for them!

Out from under the kindly eye of schoolmarm Pearson and in under the calloused thumb of Tough-guy Trudeau.

"What is it like?" one of the old Pearson hands was asked the other day as he strode, almost like a condemned man, across Parliament Hill from his Centre Block offices to the East Block cabinet conference chamber.

"Migawd," was all he managed to mutter as he turned a bleakly pleading eye on the enquirer.

Pleading, because hasn't the prime minister promised to cut the tongues out of any and all cabinet blabbermouths?

Keeping the old lip buttoned is not going to be easy for them. Popping off gets to be so habit-forming.

How they all must pine for the lazy, hazy, crazy days of dear old Mike.

He was always so understanding.

Nothing ever was so outrageous that he could not accommodate to it, accommodation being his way of political living.

Often, it seemed suspiciously like every member of the cabinet was his own prime minister.

And they seldom failed to surprise him.

Sometimes he would seem to cringe at the pedantic and unfailingly accurate speaking arrangements of Finance Minister Sharp.

Now it is a whole new era, with Mr. T. (for tough) tolerating nothing.

Canadian Diplomat Prepared Groundwork for Peace Talks Between Warring Nigerians

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

African neighbors directing renewed attempts to settle Nigeria's civil war are building on foundations put together by Canadian diplomat Arnold Smith and his staff at the Commonwealth secretariat in London.

A six country committee of the Organization of African Unity stepped in with sponsor of peace talks between federal Nigeria and the breakaway region of Biafra as Smith had persuaded both sides to have another go at agreement.

The OAU committee—Ethiopia, Liberia, Ghana, The Congo and Nigeria's next-door neighbors, Cameroon and Niger—had been charged by the OAU last fall to arrange peace in Nigeria. They were unable to make much yardage until last week.

Smith, Commonwealth secretary-general, had been working since before fighting broke out more than a year ago to get the two factions together. Several times he was on the point of success, only to have one side or the other back away.

Finally, in May, federal and Biafran negotiators met under Smith's chairmanship at Kampala, Uganda. The Biafrans walked out in the ninth day, May 31, but Smith declined to acknowledge a breakdown.

Three weeks ago, after another private appeal to Biafran leader Odumegwu Ojukwu to resume peace talks, Smith left London for a vacation in France. Smith was informed July 15 that a letter from Ojukwu agreeing to resume talks had arrived that day in his London office. The secretary-general prepared to return.

Meantime, however, the OAU consultative committee meeting up the Niger River from Biafra at Niamey, capital of Niger, jumped in and persuaded first the federal Nigerian leader, Yakubu Gowon, and then Ojukwu, to visit them.

A British informant in touch with the Nigerian situation privately credited Smith with creating the atmosphere that gave the OAU that chance it needed by being almost on the spot at the ripe moment.

Also helping the OAU effort was increasing pressure on Ojukwu to seek a peaceful settlement.

In June, popular sympathy in parts of Africa, throughout Europe and elsewhere swung behind beleaguered Biafra and the reported starvation of refugees there. Lately, Ojukwu has antagonized potential helpers by balking at any proposals to aid to his people when the plans involve co-operation from hated federal authorities.

The Quinte Scene

When it comes time for colorful special events, most programs in the Quinte district take second-place to those on the Tyendinaga Mohawk Reserve. Reserve residents, like this veteran, are a focal point of personal attention, as they break out their buckskins and warbonnets, symbols of a proud heritage predating our recorded history.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 25, 1948.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jose, and Betty, with Mr. and Mrs. Claude Dafoe, and Billy, spent the past weekend in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sansouse of Montreal and Mrs. J. T. Warren, of this city, have been recent guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Maidens and Mrs. C. Waring, in Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kenny and family, of Superior, Wis., have returned home after being guests of the former's mother, Mrs. David Kenny and sister, grace, Charlotte St.

Belleville Guides of Company 2 and Company 7 have returned from the annual camp held at "Kiwanis Kamp", in Amelisburg. The camp was for the Hastings Division, and Guides were present from Trenton, Batawa, Campbellford and Belleville.

30 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. James Cook of this city, who are summering at Twelve O'Clock Point, invited a number of the members of the John Street Presbyterian Church to spend the day with them at their cottage. A most enjoyable time was spent and the cool breezes were much appreciated.

C. E. Bishop is spending a vacation in the northern part of the county.

Mrs. J. B. Armstrong and daughter of Winnipeg are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Archibald, George St.

Mrs. B. F. Butler of this city is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. T. Cook, in Stirling.

A Big City's Provincialism

Letter to The Globe and Mail

I have often wondered why "Canada's national newspaper" has never dropped the terribly provincial habit of publishing jokes on its front page. And yet, for over two years, I have been a faithful and regular reader of Your Morning Smile, for a reason which could be described as straightforward masochism. And I have been smiling first thing in the morning for all that time, too. Only not at the jokes.

After all, there is enough humor in the following pages to sell any paper in the world. The comics are very funny. Richard J. Needham is occasionally witty, albeit repetitive. Also funny is George Bain, at times. So is Scott Young when he is not talking about himself. And so, last but not least, are your editorials themselves, particularly when they deal with such topics as General Charles de Gaulle or the situation in Quebec. Some of them are pieces worthy of any good anthology of humor.

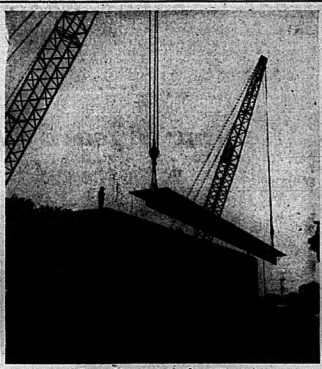
Walking Arsenal

Letter to The Hamilton Spectator

Will somebody please clarify what exactly is meant by "possession of an offensive weapon"? Of all the ridiculous statements I've ever heard of or read, this is the best. Every day in various papers I see this same pitiful excuse used to cause people penalties. Granted, some people pursue trouble but what of the completely innocent?

I myself possess a vast number of potentially offensive weapons. First of all, an automobile. What is or can be more destructive?

Next, a shotgun, which is never used as there is too much red tape involved to bother with.



Further on we find lots of assorted knives, empty bottles, hatchets, axes in the bathroom, rat poison under the sink, razor blades, heavy work boots, endless odds and ends of everyday living. All of these are potentially offensive weapons.

The trunk of my auto is loaded with them — a hatchet, a knife, tire iron, jack handle, heavy wrenches, parts and pieces of junk and a rubber hose.

On the Way Up

Easy Now – to the West

Almost in Place – Eleven to Go

The Weight Goes on... Beams Moved Into Place at Fairground

That new $110,000 recreational and exhibition building at the Belleville Fairgrounds is going to carry a lot of weight.

The weight reference is with respect to the tonnage of the concrete slab roof now being swung into place by two 100-ton capacity Wilson Concrete cranes.

The first of the 30-ton beams was lifted into place yesterday and the schedule calls for all 15 of the eight foot wide, single T-slabs, to be in place by tonight.

The mammoth beams for the fairgrounds building are about the largest and longest roof slabs ever produced at Wilsons.

The beams measure 86 feet, seven inches in length. They are eight feet in width and weigh 600 pounds per lineal foot, or close to 30 tons each.

The 15 beams weigh a total of 450 tons and under full load each beam will exert a 30,000 pound pressure on their supporting columns.

The roof beams have an upward bow of approximately two inches, which under full load of roof tar and gravel, along with winter snow, will be reduced to zero.

Even while the roof slabs are going on, trucks are hauling in fill to bring the inside foundation area up to level, preperatory to pouring the concrete floor.

The Rollins Construction Ltd. contract price for the new fairground building being erected by the city parks board is approximately $95,000. Landscaping and other incidentals will bring to cost price up to approximately $110,000, all provided for in this year's city tax budget.

Ontario Provincial Committee Air Cadet representative Charles Convalinka receives well wishes from OPC representative Ronald Nevin as he prepares for his first glider flight at Air Cadet Summer Camp, CFB Trenton. Cpl. John Allott and Sgt. L. Baldovin and instructor Leroy Wood watch the action.

Air Cadets Take to Glider

TRENTON — Soaring 1,400 feet above the ground without the throbbing of an airplane engine can be quite an experience.

Visiting air cadets at CFB Trenton are finding this out as "Operation Glider" recently got underway.

With preliminary ceremonies completed last weekend the cadets will start to take some serious gliding today.

The winch rotates, the rope becomes taut and the glider catapultes into the air at a 75 degree angle.

Average altitude is 1,400 feet and flights may last anywhere from 10 to 17 minutes.

The glider which is presently in use was purchased for the cadets by the Ontario Provincial Committee, Air Cadet League of Canada and the Air Cadet Squadrons of Ontario.

Besides flying in the glider the air cadets make up the launch and retrieve team.

The initial reaction of the cadets is one of a thrilling experience and most cadets are extremely interested in future flights.

Douglas Whitley of Trenton, president of the Ontario Provincial Commitee, had his first flight on Sunday, July 21.

"I'm sold on gliding now", said Mr. Whitley, "it's a marvelous wonderful exfperience."

Potter Gets Action On Pollution Problem

Ontario Water Resources Commission officials are due Aug. 1 to make an on-the-spot survey of pollution problems in the Bay of Quinte.

Arrival of the experts was confirmed today by Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP Quinte, who last week in the Legislature called for stricter government anti-pollution measures.

The survey will be carried out by OWRC vice chairman John Roote and his chief engineer.

Dr. Potter said he plans to take both officials to known problem areas in Belleville and Trenton.

The MPP says he will contact organizations and individuals interested in the problem in the coming week.

Interest of the experts follows a meeting July 16 between Dr. Potter and Energy and Resources Minister J. R. Simonett.

At that time Dr. Potter said he had been promised a "concerted effort" to clean up pollution troubles which have become almost a Bay of Quinte tradition.

The meeting with the minister in turn followed criticism from Dr. Potter in the Legislature in which he called on Mr. Simonett to "get cracking" on pollution problems in Ontario.

Driver Sought Following Mishap

MADOC — Provincial police are seeking the driver of a car after an accident at highways 7 and 37 yesterday that caused $1,200 damage.

Provincial police say Robert Elwood Grass, 20, of Toronto, was driving onto Highway 37 when an oncoming automobile made a sudden turn in his path.

Mr. Grass swerved, and his car bowled over a concrete light standard at the intersection.

The second car did not stop.

TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW

NOTICE RE : NOXIOUS WEEDS

Notice is hereby given to all persons in possession of land, in accordance with The Weed Control Act of Ontario, (R.S.O. 1960), Chapter 427, Section 3 and 13, that unless noxious weeds growing on their lands within the Municipality of the Township of Thurlow are destroyed, and throughout the season as often as it is necessary to prevent the ripening of their seeds, the Municipality may enter upon the said lands and have the weeds destroyed, charging the costs against the land in taxes, as set out in the Act.

Also, under Chapter 427, Section 19, the said Act, provides that every person who contravenes any of the provisions of this Act or of the regulations, or of any order made under this Act, is guilty of an offence and on summary conviction is liable for a first offence of a fine of not more than $25.00 and for a second subsequent offence to a fine of not less than $25.00 and not more than $100.00.

Clerk-Treasurer.

Around the "Cat"

A trebles rink from the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club of Nora Kyle, Lil Mascaro with Millie Smith as skip won the Beryl Van Tassel Memorial Trophy in the tournament staged on Tuesday.

Luella Chouinard of Trenton with her rink also won three games in the tourney. The two-game high score was won by a local rink of Vera McIntosh, Thelma Fitzgibbon, with Betty Vince as skip. The one-game high was won by a rink skipped by Theo Acton of Kingston.

There were 17 rinks in play from Stirling, Trenton, Cobourg, Brighton, Kingston and Belleville.

The tea hostesses on Thursday last were Lil. Hermon, Lea McCready, Luella Brickman, Eadie Elliott and Vi Aitken. There were seven tables of bridge in play.

Montreal Unhappy About Its Losses on Expo

MONTREAL (CP) — The city of Montreal, unhappy about its failure to break even on its financial investment in Expo 67, will hold "further discussions" of its 12½-per-cent share of the world's fair costs with the federal and provincial governments.

Lucien Saulnier, chairman of the council's executive committee, did not say Wednesday when the talks will be held.

The city's 1967-68 financial report, presented to the committee Wednesday, says the city did not recoup the more than $70,000,000 it contributed to building Expo but, instead saw its share of the provincial sales tax returns fall $1,000,087 short of the forecast amount.

The report says the provincial government made "inaccurate" estimates of the sales tax revenue.

The city expected to receive $42,000,000 in sales tax returns but took in only $32,925,913.72, 41 per cent less than expected.

"Of the three participating governments, . . . the city of Montreal is the only one which has not seen its revenue increased as a result of the exhibition," the report says.

"The balance of international payments of the federal government shows an improvement of close to $740,000,000.

"Account must be taken of sure revenues from the 11-per-cent tax on building materials, the customs and excise duties . . . and the income tax on private individuals and corporations who worked or carried out contracts for the Expo corporation.

"As for the province, it has undoubtedly collected its share of the revenues from the taxes on corporations and individuals.

"And in addition it has taken in close to $10,000,000 in increased taxes on liquor and $18,000,000 more on meals."

However, the report says, the city's share of the sales tax returns "has decreased without any equivalent compensation from the only other tax which could have been influenced by the exhibition — amusement tax."

The cost-sharing agreement placed 50 per cent of the burden of the loss on the federal government, 37½ per cent on the provincial government and 12½ per cent on Montreal.

Montreal has eight years to pay $30,000,000, its share of the loss, but has not paid the first $4,500,000 annual instalment.

Mr. Saulnier told the committee.

The total deficit for the world's fair project has been set at $282,600,000 by the federal government.

Bears Roam Algonquin

ALGONQUIN PARK, Ont. (CP) — Park officials said Wednesday that bears are roaming Algonquin Provincial Park in such large numbers that rangers are using guns to keep them from public camping areas.

Park superintendent William Hueston said all eight of the parks camping areas have been invaded by bears. The animals became accustomed to humans after being fed by motorists.

The latest shooting occurred Tuesday night when a bear broke through the side of a tent and began eating groceries at the Lake of Two Rivers campsite.

Reform Urged By Dr. Ramsey

CANTERBURY (AP) — Opening the 10th and biggest Lambeth Conference of the Anglican Church, the Archbishop of Canterbury today urged the achievement of Christian unity through reform and renewal. He cited the Vatican council as an example.

Addressing Anglican bishops assembled in the great medieval cathedral here, the archbishop said in a prepared sermon:

"Christendom has begun to learn that unity comes not by combining this church with that church much as they are now, but by the radical altering of church in reformation and renewal."

And he added:

"It is here that the Vatican council has had an influence far beyond the boundaries of the Roman Catholic Church."

Dr. Michael Ramsey, England's 63-year-old primate, was preaching in St. Augustine's Cathedral at Canterbury, ancient shrine of the Anglican world.

As Archbishop of Canterbury he speaks with no authority over the 462 archbishops and bishops before him. But, as primus inter pares (first among equals), he has a special position of honor in the Anglican communion and presides the month-long conference of its 19 member churches.

Speaking of church unity, he said Christendom was feeling the first tremors of a shaking which would have seemed incredible a few years back.

"What has been shaken?" the archbishop asked.

He answered: "Much of the old complacency, much of the old contentment with our divided condition, much of the sheer ignorance of one another in theology and in practice, and above all much of the self-consciousness which gave absurdity to the dealings of Christians with Christians.

Now, as the work of unity advances, "there will come into existence united churches not describably Anglican but in communion with us and sharing with us what we hold to be the unshaken essence of Catholicity.

"What then of the future boundaries of our Anglican communion? We shall face that question without fear, without anxiety, because of our faith in the things which are not shaken. Perhaps the Anglican role in Christendom may come to be less like a separate encampment and more like a color in the spectrum of a rainbow, a color bright and unselfconscious."

Some 462 Anglican bishops made the pilgrimage to Canterbury for the conference opening.

With the bishops and their theological advisers, 50 observers from other Christian denominations were invited into St. Augustine's Cathedral, hallowed shrine of the Anglican world. These included Roman Catholics from the Vatican Curia, Orthodox churchmen, Protestants ranging from Lutherans to Pentecostals, Presbyterians to Salvation Army.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has described these as consultant-observers.

Many City and Area Couples Take Vows in Mid-summer Wedding Ceremonies

MR. AND MRS. JAMES R. WALLACE

Wallace – Mitchell

Rev. George A. Puttenham officiated at the wedding ceremony in Trinity United Church, Roslin, on Saturday, July 20, at 2 p.m., when Elaine Ruth Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl F. Mitchell, Hallowey, R.R. 1, was united in marriage to James Richard Wallace, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Wallace of Stirling, R.R. 2. Miss Mary Tummon rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Mrs. Kenneth Cranston.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the bride wore a full-length A-line gown of Angelo silk crepe enhanced with a Sabrina neckline on the Empire bodice, and elbow-length sleeves of imported Venetian lace. Her Mantilla type veil with delicately embroidered edges was caught with a tiny pearl-encrusted comb. She carried a bouquet of white 'mums and pale pink roses.

The maid of honor Miss Barbara Johnson wore a floor-length gown of small pink flocked taffeta with a bodice with round-necked and sleeves edged with Guipure lace. The A-line skirt was highlighted with a full back caught with tiny bows at the bodice. She wore a matching rose headdress with four-tier veil. The bridesmaid Miss Janet Donnan and the junior bridesmaid Miss Karen Milligan were attired identically to the maid of honor.

Allan Wallace, brother of the bridegroom was the best man, while ushers were Guy Mitchell, brother of the bride and David McMaster.

At the reception in the Masonic Temple, the mother of the bride received the guests in an abstract print chiffon dress in grey tones with cowl neckline, with white accessories and a solitaire white orchid corsage. The bride-groom's mother who assisted wore a turquoise lace dress with a corsage of white cymbidium orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace will reside at Stirling, R.R. 2.

Locklin – Adams

FRANKFORD — The summer wedding was solemnized in Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle on Saturday, July 20th at 11 a.m. when Rev. James Dunlop united in marriage Donna Lee Adams, daughter of Mr. Lloyd Adams and the late Mrs. Adams and Clinton Elwood Locklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Locklin, R.R. 1, Frankford in a double-ring ceremony.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Lonnie Reilly. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length bridal gown of white lace over satin with matching train and shoulder-length veil. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Wilbert Prince of Glen Miller, sister of the bride who wore a street-length dress of pale yellow and white summer flowers.

Groomsman was Byron Locklin of R.R. 1, Frankford, brother of the bridegroom.

For the wedding trip to points in western Ontario, the bride wore a two-piece brown and white dress with beige accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

On their return they will take up residence in Batawa.

MR. AND MRS. GERALD B. SILLS

Sills – Butler

Canon D. B. Wright officiated at the wedding ceremony in Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday, July 20 at 2 p.m., when Joy Eleanor Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivor Butler, Belleville, was united in marriage to Gerald Bruce Sills, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshal Sills of Campbellford. Church organist John Withers played traditional wedding music and accompanied the six choir boys in appropriate nuptial selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length bridal gown featuring an Empire bodice of beaded French peik point lace with scalloped neckline and long lily-point sleeves. The A-line skirt was complemented with an insert of matching skirt and flowing-at back from the shoulders was a chapel train outlined with lace appliques. A petal headdress studded with pearls was caught to a four-tier scalloped silk illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

The maid of honor Miss Rose Marie Haight of Belleville and the bridesmaids Mrs. Robert Reynolds of Lindsay, Miss Joy Smith, Belleville, both nieces of the bride and junior bridesmaid Miss Linda Ferrill of Bowmanville were identically attired. All wore mint green A-line gowns of taffeta with overskirts of lace organza with small trains flowing from the Empire waists accented by large bows. They carried nosegays of white Shasta daisies centred with yellow 'mums. The flower girl Miss Monica Butler, Belleville, niece of the bride was similarly attired to the other attendants, but in yellow and carried a basket of yellow 'mums and white daisies.

At the reception in College Hill United Church the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a berry pink crepe dress with sleeves, neck line and side panel of matching georgette with matching hat, white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias. Assisting, the bridegroom's mother wore a sheath style dress of blue crepe with a lace coat, matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Leaving on a wedding trip to points in Northern Ontario and on to the United States, the bride donned a sheath style dress of blue brocade with matching coat and hat, black patent accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Sills will reside on Queen Street, Belleville.

Willis – Brown

On July 20 the marriage was solemnized at 851 Ossington Avenue, Toronto, when Anthony J. Bellfiglio united in marriage Catheren Grant Brown, daughter of Mrs. Robert Hunter Brown of Downsview, Ontario, to Terry Alfred Willis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Willis of Belleville.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by organist Valeri Skelton and the soloist was Pam Fisken.

The bride, given in marriage by Robert Hunter Brown, wore a satin and organza A-line gown which was trimmed with rose lace down the front, around the bottom, and on the bell sleeves. The bouffant veil was attached to a crown of Cluny lace. She bride carried a bouquet of white roses.

Maid of honor. Miss Irene Brown. wore an A-line lilac colored dress of protege with a bow headdress and matching flowers. The Misses Rose Willis, Carol Willis and Mary Brown. all wore A-line dresses of protege, each in different colors — pink, yellow and blue respectively. The girls carried posies matching their dresses and headdresses.

Attending the bridegroom was Clifford Scott, and the ushers were Stuart Finnigan, David Brown and Vince Micallef.

The reception was held in Ossington Chapel, Toronto, where the mother of the bride received the guests attired in an A-line turquoise dress with three-quarter length sleeves and matching flowers. The mother of the bridegroom wore a light blue A-line ensemble maternal featuring gatherings at the sides, with matching flowers and white accessories.

For her travelling costume, the bride chose a green check two-piece suit, with complementing flowers and white accessories. The couple will reside at 2050 Keele St., in Toronto.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM D. ANGOVE

Angove – Finkle

Rev. W. H. V. Walker, assisted by Marvin Mountney officiated at the July double-ring wedding ceremony at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, when Nancy Joy Finkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Finkle, Stirling, was united in marriage to William Donald Angove, son of Mrs. Phyllis Angove, of Belleville.

Mrs. Harold West rendered the traditional wedding music and the soloists were Miss Judy Patterson and Miss Sue Ann Bastedo.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a bridal gown in crystal crepe with an empire waistline effect crested by an over-lay of crepe edged with fine Guipure lace forming a capelet over the short sleeve effect. The gown featured a scoop neckline and a detachable train falling from below the back capelet; and the train was appliqued with lace matching that of the gown. The bridal headpiece was a Juliette cap with overall lace and seed pearls. The cap was attached to a three-tiered nylon illusion shoulder-length veil.

The matron of honor, Miss Jacqueline Finkle, sister of the bride, and bridesmaid Miss Sandra Angove, sister of the bridegroom, and flower girl, Miss Kathryn Finkle, sister of the bride, were all identically gowned. They wore matching floor - length empire - waist gowns of mint green chiffon over taffets, and carried nosegays of white shasta's.

Attending the bridegroom was Robert Kiser; and the ushers were Guy Spence and Eugene Bristow.

The wedding reception was held at the reception room of the church parlor, where the mother of the bride received the guests in a blue linen dress with matching blue lace long sleeves and trim. Pink and white accessories were complemented by a corsage of pink roses and white 'mums.

The mother of the bridegroom chose a pink linen dress with a pink lace overcoat and pink and white accessories, completed by a corsage of pink roses and white 'mums.

For the wedding trip to points west, the bride donned a yellow lace linen sleeveless dress with matching hat and patent leather accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid. Upon their return, the couple will reside at 112 Bridge Street West in Belleville.

May Eliminate Rh. Babies

VANCOUVER (CP) — A preventive program under way in British Columbia hospitals may eliminate Rh. babies in 15 years, says Dr. Terence Stout, medical director of the Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service here. He said about 300 babies a year are born in B.C. with Rh. disease — a blood incompatibility.

Since the 1940s treatment for the babies has been blood transfusions immediately after birth.

Now, Rh. gamma globulin is injected in women who, because of the blood factor, may give birth to a child with the disease.

The Western Canada Rh. gamma globulin program was organized in 1966, but Dr. Stout said B.C. and Manitoba are the only provinces to offer this service free.

No women in a Vancouver test group receiving the new injections developed Rh. antibodies, Dr. Stout said. However, about 12 per cent of untreated women in another group developed the antibodies.

About 25 Vancouver women with Rh. anti-bodies — they have all had babies with severe Rh. disease — provide a pool for the needed plasma.

Couple Never Legally Wed

ROME (AP) — An Italian criminal court Wednesday cleared actress Sophia Loren and her husband, producer Carlo Ponti, of bigamy charges, finally ending a case that has been against the movie couple 11 years ago.

The court issued a decision absolving the couple completely, stating they were never legally married in Mexico in 1957 as charged.

The action followed a decision handed down by a civil court of appeals April 27, 1967, which ruled that the proxy papers for the Mexican marriage lacked required signatures and therefore a legal marriage did not take place.

SOCIAL And PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mrs. Clara Jamieson of Belleville announces the engagement of her daughter Carolyn May to Guardsman Roland Earl Roach, son of Mr and Mrs. Robert Roach of Kirkwood, New York. The wedding will take place in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, on Saturday, August 24, 1968 at 2.30 p.m.

Previous to the marriage, of Mrs. D. Wallace (nee Elaine Mitchell) the bride was honored by the staff of the S. H. Connor School at a shower held at the home of Mrs. Don Bateman with Miss Barbara Johnson as co-hostess. A kitchen shower was given by Mrs. D. Cranston with Mrs. G. Tummon and Mrs. D. Sills assisting. A rehearsal party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace.

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. William D. Angove (nee Nancy Joy Finkle) was entertained at several showers. A miscellaneous shower was held by the nurses of the operating room at the home of Mrs. Frank Hall, Trenton; and a crystal shower was held at the home of Mrs. Ken Ray with Mrs. Robert Cooke as co-hostess. A pantry shower was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Duby, of Belleville; and a miscellaneous shower was held at the Stirling Legion Hall a the hostesses Mrs. M. Armstrong, Mrs. B. Bastedo and Mrs. D. Patterson.

Successful Living

Young Woman Has Unbelievable Fear of Men

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I must apologize to you — I always thought that your column was for dramatic children and the lovelorn, but after reading it steadily for a while I found that many readers and more mature people also write to you for advice and help. That makes it somewhat easier for me to do so because my problem makes me feel like a 15-year-old babe!

When I was younger I had a bit of a reputation as a flirt, and I'll never forget the days after school that I would sneak down to the corner store to meet my little boy friends. Those were the days before I learned about things like rape, sex crimes and the type of people that misuse sex and make it horrid and dirty...

Now, even though I have never been harmed myself, I have a fear of dating that is unbelievable. I do not like being alone with any boy or man and consequently have very few dates.

It just isn't fair that we who have such an abundance of love to give should be left to suffer because some foolish person filled our heads with "beware!" and warnings. — All Dressed Up and No Place To Go.

Dear All Dressed Up: Somebody must have scared you out of your wits. Certainly there are folk who commit crimes against trusting members of the opposite sex. There are also people who have violent tempers and lose them when they become angry.

But by and large we learn control of our passions, thank Heaven. Physical expression of love is a God-given privilege. You would not have been born if there had not been two people in love who expressed that love through intimate relations with each other.

The bewares and warnings have started you off on the wrong foot. You can and must begin again. My list of recommended books on Sex and Dating can steer you to helpful reading.

• • • •

Dear Doris: We are two sisters who have always been very close, and now are seriously considering sharing our wedding as well.

We realize that there have been many successful double weddings, and feel that it should not pose too many problems. But one thing concerns us — how can we arrange for our father to give away both daughters? Obviously three of us can't proceed down the aisle at the same time. So what should we do? — Sister.

Dear Sisters: You're right. A bride on each arm would just be too much for Dear Old Dad.

Behind her come the bridesmaids of Sister Number Two, her maid of honor, then the second bride herself on the arm of a brother or other male relative, who gives her away.

Confidential to Jitters On My Feet: Join the club. Once I had a humdinger of a Sunday School teacher who told me she never stood up in front of the class to teach a lesson without perspiring all over and clutching her hands together.

If your teasing pals were to admit it, they aren't so self-fired nonchalant on their feet either.

Don't run away; meet life head on. When it comes to public speaking, this means knowing well what you plan to say; speaking your piece out loud at home, in front of a mirror (or your mother); reading aloud and in clear tones. Mastering this art will give you self-confidence.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

NAPANEE — Waupoos Girl Guide Camp really came into its own recently, when 75 Girl Guides in one camp, and 18 Brownies in another made good use of every minute to have a thoroughly good time, and added to their skills while doing so. The 75 Guides were divided into 15 patrols, five Guides to each of the 15 units.

Leader was Miss Kay Camp of Picton, camp adviser for that area. Assisting her were Mrs. J. A. Morden, Ranger Leader and camp adviser for Lennox and Addington and Mrs. James Aikenbrack, leader of the Third Napanee Guides, and Mrs. Helena Martin of Napanee.

Junior assistants, all of them Rangers, were Mary Shields, Roxanne Reid, Charlene Newman, Gwen Broadley and Patricia Evans, all from Prince Edward; and Sania Paiste from Wesleyville. Many of the Rangers from the Napanee area were away on holidays, or have summer employment.

Talent, however, was given a fair chance. So was swimming. Girls did craft work and learned to make such things as paper flowers and plaques. There were three swiming periods a day, one after each meal, with a rest period in between. Most of the girls worked on swimming or hiking badge work, or both.

A number of awards were presented. Betsy Aikenbrack was judged to be best patrol leader, and Cheryl Scott and Faye Brooks to be the patrol leaders with the best tents. Green campers, namely, Elizabeth Davis, Barbara Perry and Marilyn Roffey were considered worthy of awards. Vicki Rolston and Maureen Cassidy were judged to be the Guides who had shown the most improvement as campers since last year.

Most patient camper was Kathleen Murphy; happiest camper, Debbie Smith; the "grubbiest" camper was Patricia Pearce, (chiefly because she was so deeply tanned). Carol Sinclair and Nora Poole shared the honor of campers who had contributed the most to the camp, with Bonnie Hutchison receiving honorable mention. Miss Juniper Junction, 1968, was Marguerite Rolston, who had charmed everyone with her sweet songs.

Irate Reader Airs Number-one Gripe

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I air my number-one gripe as others have? I don't expect you to print it but I'll feel better if I get it off my chest.

ANN LANDERS

Dentists are, in my opinion, the most backward of all professionals. If Benjamin Franklin had not invented false teeth, people would be walking around toothless today.

I have been reading articles on tooth transplants since I was a child. They have been "experimenting" for the last 20 years. I have written to authors of the articles to learn which dentists perform the procedure.

The replies were vague. I never did find a dentist who could transplant a tooth.

All they know is drilling and pulling and dentures and partial plates. They are too busy raking in the money to learn anything new. Today when kidneys, the heart, human hair and even the heart can be successfully transplanted, is it too much to ask that the dentists get busy and join the Twentieth Century? — NERVE.

DEAR NERVE: There are hundreds of dentists who transplant teeth. Where have you been looking? Transplanting teeth began in the 18th Century. Your reference to Benjamin Franklin is interesting. The agony produced by his handmade teeth (fashioned out of hippopotamus ivory, wood, gold plate, rivets, screws, human incisor teeth and steel springs) started dentists experimenting with tooth transplants.

Tooth donors, principally poor people, were secured through newspaper ads. A New York paper in 1778 carried the following notice. "Teeth — any person willing to dispose of his front teeth apply to Number 28 Maiden Lane. A generous price will be given. N.B. Four guineas (about $80 in today's currency) will be paid for every tooth."

The practice of transplanting was ultimately abandoned for several reasons. First, it failed to meet the needs of the masses. Second, many diseases were transmitted from donor to recipient. Most notably syphilis. Thirdly, the medical world learned of the rejection phenomenon. After a few months, transplanted teeth loosened and fell out.

A hundred years later, however, dentists began experimenting once again with transplanted teeth and the techniques have been vastly improved. Today a transplanted tooth tooth will last for four to five years.

The knowledge gained by dentists in their transplant procedures has helped lay the theoretical groundwork which made possible the kidney and liver transplants, and now the heart. Now, aren't you ashamed?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am living with a man I love very much. We are not married because his selfish, money-hungry wife will not give him a divorce. Some people know the score, others do not. I could not care less about the talk.

Yesterday was my birthday. I received an anonymous gift — a set of pillowcases on which was embroidered "Mr." and "Mrs." I'm sure this was a dig by one of the cats who works with me in this office. I also think I know which girl sent the gift. Shall I play dumb or let her have it — right in the chops? — NOT SENSITIVE, JUST MAD.

DEAR NOT: If this is the worst dig you get, consider yourself lucky, Petunia. A girl who goes in for playing house with a married man can ill afford the luxury of blooping anyone in the chops. Play dumb. And for you it should be a cinch.

Boiled Beef Dinner Minus Onions

By MARY MOORE

Just about 20 years ago my friend Garny visited me and made home-made noodles, drying them overnight over a broom handle like our Germans and Italian friends do. When these beautiful noodles were cooked we served them with boiled chicken in a VIP. The meal was so delicious it has stayed in my memory ever since.

I decided to make the meal again when a reader wrote saying her family did not like onions. Neither does Garny. The flavoring in this boiled beef dinner is simply bay leaf, Oxo cube, salt and pepper. I used packaged noodles this time because the majority of you will too.

BOILED SHIN OR SHANK BEEF WITH FLORENTINE NOODLES (Serves 4)

1-3 lbs. shank or shin stewing beef
1-3 cup flour
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. paprika
1 bay leaf
1 Oxo cube
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
2 cups boiling water
2 cups (approx.) wide noodles
One 10-oz. pkge. spinach
2 tbsp. of butter
Salt

Nutmeg

About 1 cup buttered bread crumbs

The piece of shank or shin beef should be chunky — twice as big as "bite-sized" pieces. In a strong paper bag combine flour, salt, pepper and paprika. Dredge meat them in heavy saucepan (or pressure cooker) melt butter or margarine and brown meat pieces in it on all sides. Add bay leaf, Oxo cube, and boiling water, stir well, cover and bring to boil then simmer three hours (or if pressure cooker, one hour at 10 lbs.)

One-half hour before serving time cook noodles in large amount boiling water with 1 tsp. salt until tender — about 15 min. Drain through colander.

Cook spinach covered in water which clings to leaves after washing, turning and chopping as it cooks. Drain well through sieve. Chop fine. Add to noodles with butter, salt and nutmeg using two forks to combine them uniformly. Reserve over low heat. Arrange in border on large preheated platter. Sprinkle top with butter and crumbs. Pour meat in centre.

NOTE: Be sure to use the Noodles Florentine with other stewed meat dishes for it is an attractive flavorful combination.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

SUNDAY

(Guests)

Boiled Shin Beef with Florentine Noodles (see Thurs.); Fried Crumbed Tomatoes; Sliced Cucumbers and Mild Onions in Sour Cream Dressing; Chilled Cantaloupe with Rich Vanilla Ice Cream; Tea.

Points for Parents

By MARY BETSON

Child: "We saw this good movie — all about the Civil War. I'll tell you about it."

Mother: "Was it 'Gone With the Wind?' I saw it years ago and you don't need to tell me about it."

Take time to listen to the things a child wants to discuss if you hope to keep the lines of communication open.

Charge Boy Made to Run Before Car

OTTAWA (CP) — Charges have been laid against two officers of the Ottawa Youth Service Bureau alleging they inflicted harsh disciplinary action against a nine-year-old ward of the bureau.

The men were accused by Gloucester Township police of unlawfully, by means of threats of violence, making Robert Deschamps walk or run in front of a motor vehicle as a means of disciplinary action.

Police say that because the youngster had run away from the Riverside Drive Youth Hostel, he was forced in 86-degree weather Monday to run for almost two hours in front of a car in Gloucester Township. Indignant residents of the area phoned the police.

The two men were ordered to appear in county magistrate's court Aug. 6.

Fog Prevents Trudeau Visiting Alert

RESOLUTE, N.W.T. (CP) — Arctic fog Wednesday prevented Prime Minister Trudeau from landing at Alert, the most northerly habitation in the world, but he got a first-hand look at the icy halls of the Canadian North.

An air force Hercules carrying the prime minister swept over mountainous, Ellesmere Island Wednesday during Mr. Trudeau's week-long northern tour. He had hoped to visit Alert, 500 miles from the north pole.

The Hercules landed at Eureka, N.W.T., several hundred miles northwest of the United States Air Force base at Thule, Greenland.

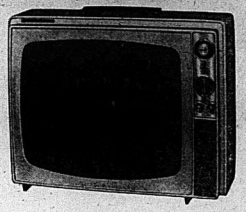
Tuesday, Mr. Trudeau had hitch-hiked a ride in the crews' quarters of a Pacific Western Airline Hercules to visit the Panarctic Exploration site on Melville Island.

The Panarctic program is a co-operative venture between the federal government and several private resources companies.

En route to the Panarctic site, he passed over a herd of muskoxen, primitive shaggy northern beasts the size of cattle but related to goats.

They performed like troopers going into their characteristic circular defensive stance as the aircraft passed overhead.

It was sunny when he arrived at midnight in Resolute, the central Arctic staging airfield in Frozen Barrow Strait. He rose early Wednesday to see federally-financed houses being built by and for Eskimos.



The prime minister, reading a history of polar exploration as he travels, was to spend Wednesday night at glacier-fringed Grise Fiord on Ellesmere Island, the most northerly Eskimo settlement and about 1,800 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Shall I build now or wait? At this time I am strongly advising readers to build now.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm a home owner who owns a lot. It is my intention to sell my home and build a new house. My problem is this: With rising construction costs and increasing interest rates, is it better for me to build now and assume a larger mortgage, or wait a couple of years and save up some more money to be faced at that time by possibly even much higher building costs? — Mr. G. R.

ANSWER: Our correspondent's question is now being asked by thousands of people. My advice is: Build now and don't worry about the high interest rate or size of mortgage. The reason is that construction costs have been rising so fast that those who have waited to build have learned, to their regret, that the price is always much higher at a later date. I predict that in the future they will rise even faster.

I know of one person who has been waiting since 1946 for construction costs to come down so he can build his house. The last estimate he got was 160 per cent higher and he is still waiting. I would not like to see too many of our readers join him in his thinking. Construction costs will fall only if there is a severe depression (and there is even doubt about this).

The high mortgage interest rates should not be the factor stopping construction at this time. If mortgage interest rates decline in the future (and they probably will) the rate can always be adjusted downward by refinancing. In order to take advantage of a lower interest rate in a future market, make sure the mortgage allows prepayment and that the penalty for prepayment is not too severe.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm following your advice. An attorney will examine all papers before I sign them. I feel somewhat uneasy, however, because my attorney is also the attorney for the builder from whom I'm buying the house. He claims this should make no difference. Do you think it will make a difference? — ANSWER: I know of many cases where attorneys, after disclosure, have represented both sides and have done a good job. I know of some where they have not. An attorney may be trying to do a conscientious job but when he must decide between the best interests of two clients, it can become a difficult decision — and the answer sometimes may not be in your favor.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Whenever I open the bathroom sink faucet there is a loud high-pitched squealing noise. I'm so embarrassed — a gossipy neighbor has started a rumor that it is my husband beating me. My husband has tried to eliminate this squeal, but he doesn't know how to get rid of this noise. Save my reputation by telling him what to do. — Mrs. A.

ANSWER: The most common cause of a squealing faucet is a loose or badly worn washer, or the screw that holds the washer in place may have worked loose.

If the squeal is not due to the above reasons, then it is probably due to badly worn threads on the faucet spindle. If this be true, a new faucet is required to permanently eliminate the noise.

* * *

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Mill Seeks Smutter —

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's reconstruction of an early 19th-century rural Canadian village puts its grain mill into operation this week—minus a smutter.

The Black Creek Pioneer Village spent $250,000 and five years assembling the 120-year-old mill. The mill once stood in southern Ontario's Prince Edward County and was run by distant relatives of former Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin.

Russ Cooper, the armchair history buff who is the director of the village in northwestern Toronto, said Wednesday in an interview that "someone may own a smutter and not even know it."

A smutter is a cylindrical, narrow, barrel-like contraption that removes smut—a dry black mold-from milled grain.

"A smutter cleans the wheat and takes out the moldy particles," Cooper explained. "I've been in 93 mills in Ontario and Pennsylvania, and I haven't found one yet."

It would be in the attic or basement of an old mill if there's one around," he said.

Left Wing Sees Plot By Brown

LONDON (CP) — Angry opposition is reported among left-wing members of the Labor party following the surprise choice of Harry Nicholas as the organization's new general secretary.

The suspicion is said to focus on such men as George Brown, whose carefully-organized support for Nicholas is considered part of a campaign to topple Harold Wilson from leadership of the governing party.

Dief Sees Politics In Hal Banks Case

LONDON (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said Wednesday that "even the least suspicious" are bound to see politics at work in the extradition case of Harold C. Banks.

Now on a European holiday, Mr. Diefenbaker drew comment-ing on a published report linking the case to $100,000 in election campaign contributions made by the Seafarers International Union to Democratic party organizations in the United States.

He spoke after arriving in London from Switzerland, where he and his wife spent several days touring the country by car.

"Switzerland showed me just what could be done through development," he said. "The agricultural areas are unbelievable."

Scotland, he said, has a lesson to teach Canada in the matter of preserving historic centres.

"They have made history live," he added.

He had spent part of this month touring the Scottish home country of his maternal ancestors as well as dedicating memorials to Sir John A. Macdonald and his own great-grandfather, George Bannerman.

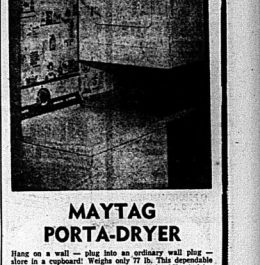
"It was just as though the prodigal son had returned," he said of the welcome given him by the Scots.

Pathologist Warned By Chief Coroner

TORONTO (CP) — An assistant pathologist at Toronto Western Hospital was criticized Wednesday at an inquest in connection with an autopsy performed on Carol Ann Waterman, a 22-year-old pharmacist.

Dr. H. B. Colnam, Ontario's supervising coroner, warned Dr. Michael Lips, a pathologist at Western since 1967, to change his routine or face charges under the Ontario Coroners Act.

The inquest was told Dr. Michael Tan, a junior intern, failed to find any evidence indicating a cause of death.



The body was buried and the essential organs burned before the coroner's office was notified 17 days later that the woman's death was a mystery.

Still Tops!

Belleville's Carol Armstrong made it two for two in Regina Wednesday, capturing her second of the target events in defence of her National Women's Archery crown.

Scoring 944 of a possible 1200 points, the local bowwoman broke her own 930 Canadian women's mark for the short-range target competition, and gave her a 77-point cushion over her nearest rival in the overall tally for the two of four events shot to date.

Capturing the target class of this week's Regina meet also meant a berth for Carol on Canada's Ambassador Cup team. She will be joined by two other women and three bowmen to represent Canada against the top six United States archers in a Labor Day meet.

Lions Use 3 Throwers in Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coach Jim Champion of British Columbia Lions has a problem, but he isn't going to get much sympathy from other coaches in the Canadian Football League.

Champion must pick his regular quarterback from among Pete Ohler, Paul Brothers and Hank Schichtle, and the decision may be a tough one.

All three quarterbacks threw at least one touchdown pass Wednesday night as the Lions mauled the visiting Toronto Argonauts 46-7 in a CFL exhibition game watched by 31,905 fans.

In Regina, Saskatchewan Roughriders defeated Ottawa Rough Riders 28-13 in a pre-season game watched by 13,622.

Ohler, a Vancouver native, threw two touchdown passes in his bid to replace the retired Bernie Faloney. Brothers, cut by the Lions last season and sent to Eugene Roochers of the Continental Football League, also connected on two touchdown passes.

It was the highest scoring spree in two seasons for the Lions and their first victory in four pre-season encounters.

Halfback Jim Young, once Argonaut property, caught two touchdown passes for the Lions, as did Lach Heeva. Other B.C. touchdowns came on a 30-yard run by Jim Evenson and a pass to Leroy Sledge. Ted Gerela kicked five converts, two singles and a 35-yard field goal.

An 18-yard pass to Bobby Taylor from Wally Gabler early in the fourth quarter produced the only Argo touchdown. Dave Mann converted.

The loss was second in a row for the Argos after two exhibition game victories.

Fullback Bill Goode played a major role in Saskatchewan's triumph, scoring a touchdown and kicking three converts.

Lancaster also hit Jason Francis with a 34-yard touchdown pass and Goode scored on a 35-yard pass from Bill Cline. Silas McKinnis gained the other touchdown on a 40-yard run, and Saskatchewan picked up a safety touch.

Senior Vengeance

Joyces Blank Oshawa to Close Home Schedule

There wasn't any curfew last night at the Fairgrounds, but the Oshawa BOBA nine wishes there had been.

The Belleville Joyces last night blasted away with a 9-0 vengeance against the team that gave them their first loss of the season, in a curfewed five-inning Oshawa game.

Harry Soden started the game for the Joyces. The newly-returned pitcher hasn't seen action with a Belleville team in two years, but this didn't seem to handicap him. He held Oshawa hitless and scoreless for two innings, fanning two and walking one.

Then Rodger Hunter got his chance. The young pitcher took over in the third to collect the win with five innings of one-hit ball. The visitors collected their only hit of seven innings in the third when pitcher Dave Lemble copped a single.

Hunter struck out five and walked five while allowing one hit. Bruno took over for the Joyces in the eighth and allowed Oshawa two more hits in that inning, then ended the contest by sending Oshawa to the showers one-two-three in the ninth.

The Joyces took their nine tallies on three RBI's by Pat Asselstine, two by shortstop Gary Goyer, and one each by Ralph Plane, catcher Larry Mavety, John McKibbon, and fielder Doug Dafoe.

Goyer led the Joyce batters with four singles, McKibbon had the only extra base hit, a double, for the locals. Other hitters were Plane, Asselstine, Mavety, Moe Hunter, Rodger Hunter, Larry Soule, and Dafoe, all with one safety apiece.

PAT ASSELSTINE

by Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

Belleville's own national champion, Carol Armstrong, is getting to try all the tricks in her quiver during this week's defence of her Canadian Women's archery title in Regina.

As if jitters and strange surroundings didn't poke enough of a jest for her, Carol ran into a downright unsympathetic bout of weather Tuesday, the first of four days of competition.

Winds gusting in all directions at 20-30 miles an hour, and a steady drizzle would be handicaps for any outdoor competitor, let alone one whose performance hinges on judgment, concentration, and then accuracy.

Fortunately, those vying for her title ran into the same competitive climate as Carol, and she took the lead on her first day's shooting despite what, for her, was a sub-par performance.

If you want to put yourself in a champ's shoes for an afternoon, get yourself a bow, stand 200 feet from a four-foot-diameter target, and try to put three-quarters of your arrows within six inches of centre.

That's just for openers.

In windy conditions like she faced in her Regina debut this week, Carol says she may have in shoot the width of the target wide to assure a bit of any kind.

Commercial Play

Hotelmen Cement Lead With 6-0 Win Over Pt. Anne

Wayne McConnell pitched Belvedere Hotel to a six-point league lead in Commercial softball standings Wednesday night, hurling a 6-0 win over fifth-place Point Anne.

The win put the Hotelmen at 14-5 for the season and the loss dropped Point Anne to a 7-12 mark.

In the Wednesday night contest, McConnell took the win from Point Anne's Ted Waite. The lanky Belvedere chucker went the distance allowing three hits for no runs while walking two and fanning 12.

Waite pitched seven frames and allowed the six runs on seven hits while walking one and striking out two.

The three hits for Point Anne were all singles, going to Larry Fraser, Gerry Maher and Tom MacDonald.

Belvedere collected their six runs from the bats of Don Smith with two safeties, Paul Goodfellow with a double, and McConnell, Rusty Garvin, Cliff Hineman, and Bob Lloyd, with singles.

Fight On

Nino in Hogtown

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — World middleweight boxing champion Nino Benvenuti of Italy said today that his previously cancelled non-title fight against American Art Hernandez will be held in Toronto Sept. 9.

The Benvenuti - Hernandez fight, previously scheduled for Aug. 29, had been cancelled after the Italian suffered a thumb fracture during an exhibition bout.

Benvenuti denied that Canadian organizers asked a heavy penalty from him because of the cancelled fight.

"I will have the plaster removed in the first week of August," the champion said. "Then I will start training at once for the fight against Hernandez."

Departmental Tilt

Pinch-Hitter Gets Press Rolling

A two - run, pinch - hit single by utility man Bill Cooney gave The Intelligencer Departmental League softball entry the momentum they needed for a 16-7 win over the Electric Motors last night.

The defending league champion Motormen held a 7-6 edge going into the fifth inning, when Cooney's blow started an eight - run rally by the Printers. The game was called after the disastrous stanza.

Ron Culloden threw a five - hitter at the losers, and got strong plate support from mates Garry Wood and Terry Hiddleston, who smashed grand - slam home runs.

Merv Thompson added a homer and single for the Intell, while Steve Ling contributed a double and single. Maurice Switzer added a double, with singles going to Cooney and Don Wood.

Rick Rosebush took the loss for the Motors, giving up the 14 Intell runs on nine hits, while walking eight.

He stroked a double in his own cause, while first - sacker Ralph Davis smashed a triple and single for Electric Motors. Bill MacCormack and Vajda added single safeties for the Motormen.

Last night's win left the league - leading Printers with an 11-2 won-lost record in the Departmental League standings.

Carol Wows 'em With Booming Drives

TORONTO (CP) — "Wow! How does she hit it so far?"

A wide-eyed spectator expressed the amazement as Carol Mann, the six-foot-three woman professional, sent her drive sizzling down the fairway.

The drive was indicative of the way Miss Mann, a native of Buffalo, N.Y., has fought a chronic disc problem in her back with pain killers and beating pads for more than a year.

She won the sportiest open golf championship—only Canadian event on the women's professional circuit—last year while suffering from the injury and carded a four-under-par 69 Wednesday in the pro-am section of this year's tournament.

There are 45 professionals and 19 amateurs entered in the event for $20,000 in prize money.

Meanwhile, teams led by Joanne Kuhn of Denton, Tex., and Sharron Moran of Chicago led their amateur teams to first place in the best-ball play.

The Moran team of Al Kerr and Ken Munroe, both of Toronto, and Steve Manley of London, Ont., won the event in a playoff after carding a best-ball score of 13-under 61.

Sandra Palmer of Fort Worth, Tex., carded the low round of the day—a 68—and collected $50 for her five birdies.

Our Marksmen Advance to Finals

BISLEY, England (CP) — All three branches of Canada's contingent at the Commonwealth shoot moved into the final stage of the St. George's Challenge Vase competition Wednesday. The competition is second in prestige only to the Queen's Prize for individual marksmanship.

Dr. Mike Walker of Kingston, a member of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association team, led the Canadians with 141 out of 150 at 300 and 600 yards. The results, posted Wednesday, were from Tuesday's shooting.

Sgt. Fred Hirt of Sarnia, a member of the services team, was placed next at 140 with two DCRA men, Bob Walker of Victoria and Arne Sorensen of Calgary.

Lieut Emerich Papp of Montreal, shooting with the cadet team, and DCRA shot Mike Susick of Summerside, P.E.I., followed at 138. Two DCRA men—Bill Beatty of Ottawa and George Farquharson of Kamloops—rounded out the Canadian qualifiers in the 100 finalists with scores of 136. The final will be shot Friday.

Two Canadians were well-placed Wednesday in the short-range aggregate competition, the over-all tally of two matches at 200 yards and two at 300 yards.

Junior Tennis Titles

Unranked Netters Still Giant-killing Top-seeded Players

VANCOUVER (CP) — As the leaders emerged in the Canadian open junior tennis championships Wednesday, three of the top contenders were submerged by unranked players.

Top-ranked American Bill Washauer was upset 6-2, 6-2 by unranked Steve Stefanki of Los Altos Hills, Calif., in their under 18 quarter-final.

A pair of unranked Canadians knocked over top seeds in the boys under 14 bracket and in the corresponding division for girls, top-seeded American Andrea Barnes of San Francisco lost to a third-seeded U.S. entry.

Jim Boyce of Toronto, winner of the under 16 event in 1967, emerged as the favored Canadian n the boys under 18 event. H meets fifth-graded Canadian Kevin Page of Montreal in a semi-final today.

In the girls under 18 competition, top-seeded Canadian Jane O'Hara of Toronto and first-ranked visitor Pat Bostrom of Seattle, both 17 and both five-star players, earned berths in semi-finals today.

In the boys under 14 quarter finals, Roddy Wark of Vancouver upset leading foreigner Scot Tobor of San Diego 6-1, 6-4 and Mark Walker of Sarnia, Ont., eliminated first-seeded Canadian Kenzie Killas of Vancouver, 6-4, 6-4.

Miss Barnes lost 6-2, 6-4 to Gloria Thomas of San Diego in girls under 14 play and Miss Thomas repeated by upsetting second-ranked Canadian Taffy Savard of Vancouver 6-2, 6-0 in under-16 quarter final play.

Boyce remained alive by edging unranked Pedro Ferras of Barcelona, Spain, 6-3, 6-2. Page put down fourth-seeded visitor Todd Overgard of Sunnyvale, Calif., 6-4, 6-4.

Washauer's defeat left Chip Fisher of Palo Alto Calif., the leading visitor. Fisher bounced Roger Skillings of Victoria 6-2, 8-6 and meets Alberto Riba of Barcelona in semi-final competition today.

Riba eliminated the Canadian second seed, Quebec champion Jim Ebbitt of Montreal, 6-2, 6-1. Paul Jacoby of Regina defeated second-graded Bruce Kollock of Richmond, Calif., 6-2, 6-1.

In the girls 18-year bracket, Miss O'Hara passed unranked Donna McCallum of Pointe Claire, Que., 6-4, 6-3 and Miss Bostrom ousted Cailly Peterson of La Jolla, Calif., 6-4, 6-3.

In semi-finals, Miss O'Hara today meets Judy Kahle of San Diego, who defeated Miss Savard 6-4, 6-4, and Miss Bostrom tackles Karen Will of Clarkson, Ont., who beat Jill Boornazian of Berkeley, Calif., 6-1, 6-2.

Top-ranked Canadian Pat Gamey defeated Randy Schneider of Hollywood, Calif., 6-1, 3-6, 6-3 to secure a berth in the boys under 16 competition.

Race Classic

Dozen Entries in for Trot

TORONTO (CP) — Twelve select standardbreds, including Fresh Yankee, owned by the Dewn Eert Farms of Sydney, N.S., will line up behind the gate Saturday night at Greenwood Raceway for the $32,800 Maple Leaf trotting classic.

Other entries in the field, which carries a record purse for a standardbred race in Ontario, are Flamboyant, Real Speed, Earl Laird, Governor Armbro, Murray Mir, Camper, Splendid Joe, Amastar, Stereo Hanover, Le Chant and Silver Nib Lee.

"It's a great field," said John Hayes owner of Spindletop Joe. Favorites include Fresh Yankee, winner of the Canadian championship at Monfreal, Governor Armbro, owned by the Armstrong Brothers of Brampton, and Flamboyant, trained by Billy Haughton.

Fresh Yankee, a $900 yearling purchase for Dick Logue and Duncan MacDonald, has piled up $139,340 in earnings during her career. She was third July 13 in the $100,000 International trot at Roosevelt.

Governor Armbro had a banner year in 1967, earning $120,831 in 27 starts. The five-year-old was third in a $15,000 event in New York last weekend. He will be handled Saturday by Joe O'Brien, native of Alberton, P.E.I.

Flamboyant has racked up $131,962 in earnings this year from five wins in 10 starts. The four-year-old mare has lifetime earnings of $409,765.

Two Top Teams Within One Point

Shannonville downed Read 8-1 Wednesday night to come within one point of South Hastings Baseball League leaders Planes Concrete with the two leaders scheduled to meet Sunday in the last game of the season.

Shannonville and Planes have been almost neck-and-neck throughout the year and Wednesday night's victory gives the second-place team a chance to clinch the league pennant and move into the playoffs with a win Sunday.

The final game is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at Shannonville. The game was scheduled for Saturday night, but without lights, there was a possibility of the game being called for darkness. "We want this to be the full nine innings go-for-broke, the most-runs-wins type game," said Planes coach Harold Griffin. So the game is Sunday afternoon.

In the Wednesday night contest, Larry Lewis took the win for Shannonville, giving up one run on seven hits while fanning nine and walking two. Ted Abrams was on the mound for the losers. He gave up five runs on ten hits while walking three and striking out six.

One Bad Pitch Beats Drysdale 1-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only three of Los Angeles' four hits against Don Wilson showed up on the Dodgers' side of the box score. The one that didn't show hurt Don Drysdale a lot more than Wilson and Houston Astros.

Dodger ace Drysdale forced in a fifth inning run Wednesday night by nicking Wilson with a pitch and the Houston right-hander made it stand up for a 1-0 victory over Los Angeles.

Wilson yielded three early singles, then retired the last 16 batters he faced—striking out the side in the ninth inning—to win the nod in a brilliant struggle with Drysdale.

In other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals trimmed Philadelphia Phillies 3-1; Atlanta Braves stopped New York Mets 3-2 in 10 innings and Chicago Cubs blanked San Francisco Giants 7-0. Cincinnati and Pittsburgh were rained out.

Denis Menke and Bob Aspromonte touched Drysdale for singles in the fifth inning and Ron Brand was hit by a pitch, filling the bases. Woody Woodward then plunked Wilson with a pitch, Menke trotted home with the game's only run.

Drysdale also hit Rusty Staub with a pitch in the eighth inning for a career total of 151 hit batmen, one short of the National League record held by Joe Medwick.

Wilson, 8-11, stopped the Dodgers cold after Bob Bailey's fourth-inning single. Drysdale, 12-7, yielded four hits before going out for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

Curt Flood's two-run single climaxed a three-run third inning burst that carried St. Louis right-hander Ray Washburn, 9-7, to his sixth straight triumph. Dick Schofield singled home the first run off Larry Jackson, tying the game 1-1, before Flood delivered the deciding hit.

The Cards' third straight victory over Philadelphia kept them atop the league by 12½ games.

Second place Atlanta spotted the Mets a run in the top of the 10th, then snapped a five-game losing streak on Deron Johnson's two-out pinch single. Mike Lum's triple and a game-winning single by Bob Johnson.

Ed Charles' pinch homer in the eighth lifted the Mets into a 1-1 tie and they scored the go-a head run in the 10th on Jerry Buchek's double, a sacrifice bunt and Bud Harrelson's two-out infield hit.

Ron Santo's two-run ninth inning homer off the Giants' Gaylord Perry broke up a scoreless duel and gave southpaw Ken Holtzman his sixth victory in 13 decisions.

Wilhelm Works... Sets Appearance Mark

Baltimore Orioles and Oakland Athletics really know how to hurt a guy. The Orioles beat one fellow at his own game and the Athletics beat another at his 908th game.

Giving Tiant a taste of his own medicine, the Orioles blanked the American League's shutout leader 1-0 Wednesday night behind Dave McNally, and took second place by a full game.

Oakland watched peaceably while Wilhelm broke the major league record for pitching appearances, but when the ageless reliever tried an encore, the Athletics knocked him out with two swings for a 1-0, 2-1 doubleheader sweep-over the Sox.

Tiant's loss particularly hurt because it enabled the Orioles, instead of the Indians, to pick up another game on Detroit Tigers.

The Tigers dropped a 6-3 decision to Washington Senators and find their 9½ game lead of 13 days ago cut to five over Baltimore, with Cleveland another game back.

Tiant, 16-6, aiming for his ninth shutout, lost it in the first inning when Don Buford opened with a triple and two outs later Boog Powell doubled. The Indians' right-hander stopped the Orioles from then on until the eighth when he left for a pinch hitter after allowing five hits, but the damage was done.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series are in the market for a new coach following the resignation of John (Peanuts) O'Flaherty. Team president Fred Muller said Wednesday that O'Flaherty resigned after accepting a sales position with a Toronto company. O'Flaherty, a 10-year veteran of the American Hockey League, replaced Chirp Brenchley mid-way through the 1965-66 season.

Backer Quits Montreal Entry

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's new baseball entry in the National League experienced more growing pains Wednesday with the announced withdrawal of a second backer—multi-millionaire J. Louis Levesque.

The announcement of Levesque's departure left the infant team without two wealthy supporters, but Charles Bronfman, vice-chairman of the original board of seven backers, told a news conference he is not discouraged.

Levesque, a financier, had advised Mayor Jean Drapeau and board members of his decision Tuesday, the day funeral director Marc Bourgie announced he was pulling out because "things just haven't worked out the way I thought they would."

Bronfman said Levesque had entered the project as a matter of civic pride.

"Mr. Levesque was never a strong tiger in the group," Bronfman said. "He told us: 'If you can't find anyone else, I'll come in.'"

Bronfman was "personally very sorry to see Louis leave us."

Replacements for Levesque and Bourgie were being sought by Bronfman and the other backers—John Newman, Sidney Maislin and Lorne Webster of Montreal and Robert Isnay of Chicago.

The two new backers will need to put up a total of $2,400,000 to bring the franchise fee to the required $10,000,000 cash figure.

Bronfman said they are working with Mayor Drapeau in an effort to get new board members.

Bronfman did not rule out the possibility of obtaining Lou Perini, former owner of the Braves in Boston and Milwauke and currently a director of the National League's Atlanta Braves.

As long as the "control of the situation remains in Canada," said Bronfman, "we are interested in inviting everyone one."

He wanted people "who will contribute other than money, people who have a genuine interest in the game."

'Earthshaking Reform' of China's Administration Demanded

PEKING (AFP) — The official press says the time has come for a great "earthshaking and historic" reform in Chinese administration, cultural industry and art.

The July 21 edition of the Shanghai newspaper Wen Hui Pao, received here Wednesday, carries an editorial headed "Major Criticism, Major Reform" that can be interpreted as the "cultural revolution's" program for the months to come.

"There must now be a 100-per-cent accomplishment of the basic task of the cultural revolution indicated by (Communist party chairman) Mao Tse-tung and a radical reform of all structures and systems throughout the country," the paper says.

"We can see a great revolutionary tempest of reforms approaching in which things will be achieved that dead foreigners and all our predecessors never even dared think of."

The editorial refers to "the decision on the great proletarian cultural revolution worked out by the central committee under the direction of Mao Tse-tung."

The Aug. 8, 1966, text of what is known as "The 16-point decision" says: "Our objective is the reformation of all superstructures that do not conform with the economic Socialist base in order to consolidate and develop the Socialist system."

Observers here say the administrative reforms are probably aimed at making the revolutionary committees simplified administrative organs with unified power and therefore faithful relays for top-level directives.

In the cultural field, the paper says students will from now on only be workers and peasants who will leave their factories and communes for two- or three-year study courses and then go back to their units.

Trudeaumania Muffles Echo of de Gaulle's 'Quebec Libre'

MONTREAL (CP) — The echo of French President de Gaulle's "Vive le Quebec libre" uproar has faded in the national unity upsurge of Trudeaumania and serious splits among Quebec separatists.

Use by the president of the separatist slogan in a speech at Montreal's city hall a year ago today gave a solid boost to minority groups advocating that the province separate from the remainder of Canada and establish an independent or quasi-independent state.

But that boost appears to have peaked.

In its rippling wake, widespread reaction at all political levels seems to be pulling the rug out from under the separatists whose membership in three major groups is said to be about 23,000.

Separatist movements sprang to life in the 1960s amid demands by French-Canadians for better treatment under the Canadian constitution. There are about 4,300,000 French-Canadians living in Quebec, more than 80 per cent of the provincial population and about 30 per cent of Canada's French-language population.

Election of a majority Liberal government last month under Prime Minister Trudeau, a French-Canadian and staunch advocate of "one-Canada" federalism, has shifted the focus of attention to Ottawa.

The Liberal federalism sweep, coupled with apparent public anger over riots by separatist elements at Montreal's St. Jean Baptiste Day parade on the eve of the June 25 election, is causing some shakeup among separatists themselves.

St. Jean Baptiste is Quebec province's patron saint. Those demonstrating at the annual parade said they were protesting Mr. Trudeau's presence as guest of honor on the reviewing stand. They called him a traitor to their pro-Quebec cause.

A political high point in the post-de Gaulle separatist enthusiasm was the resignation of influential Rene Levesque from the Quebec Liberal party, which last October went on record as "against separatism in all its forms."

Mr. Levesque, a provincial cabinet minister during the days of the quiet revolution, founded the Mouvement Souverainiste-Association to press for an independent Quebec linked in an economic union with the rest of Canada and to work for unity of all Quebec separatist groups.

But after the St. Jean Baptiste Day violence he denounced the riots and suspended merger negotiations with the province's largest separatist party, the 13,000-member Rassemblement pour l'independance nationale.

Pierre Bourgault, RIN leader, said last week he is pessimistic about the chances of unifying separatist forces soon and added that without such unity there is little hope for an independent Quebec.

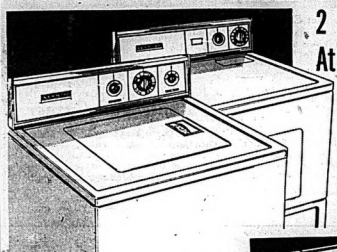
Quebec Strikers Hard Up

MONTREAL (CP) — The walkout of Quebec Liquor Board employees five weeks ago has meant doing without a friendly nip for most Quebecers, but for Real Huard, father of six, it means making do on $20 a week.

Mr. Huard, 41, a general worker for the liquor board for six years, temporarily lost his $81.65-a-week salary when he went on strike. Now he gets only $20 a week for picketing.



"It's difficult now and it's going to get harder if the strike lasts long," says Mrs. Huard.

"But we're not going to give up. Even if the strike lasts a year, we'll wait, we'll survive."

Her husband added: "It's the only way—I just have to earn more money."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials and western oils, were fractionally lower in active mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The rest of the market was steady.

Avco Corp. dropped 4¼ to 49, Feed Elder 2 to 29, Thomson Newspapers 1 to 42, Canadian Tire A ¾ to 49¾, B.C. Forest ½ to 16¾ and MacMillan Bloedel ¼ to 23.

Leigh Instruments gained 1¾ to 47, Canada Bread ¾ to 16 and Falconbridge ¼ to 12.

Among the most active stocks, Kaps Transport rose 1 to 9¾ and Seaway Hotels ¼ to 16¼. Zenith Electric lost 40 cents to $2.50 and Algoma Steel ¼ to 17¼.

Trans-Canada Pipe Lines fell 1 to 32¼. The U.S. Federal Power Commission has raised the possibility of ordering a halt in the construction of the 1000-mile pipeline which will carry Alberta natural gas to central Canada through Northern Ontario. Trans-Canada is a joint-owner of the project.

Newfoundland Teleflex Inc. of Pennsylvania traded at 36¼ on 100 shares. The company primarily makes and sells remote-control systems for aircraft and space vehicles.

In base metals, Patino jumped 2½ to 32, United Asbestos 25 cents to $2.00 and PCE Explorations 8 cents to $2.40. Canadian Superior Oil dropped 1 to 41 and Hudson's Bay Oil ¼ to 40¾.

On index, industrials fell 7.21 to 205.45, golds rose 1.18 and base metals .21 to 104.96.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 908,000 shares compared with 785,000 at the same time Wednesday.

The market closed with a small loss Wednesday after trading at lower levels earlier in the day. Volume was the lightest for more than a week.

Brokers said there was no positive news to interrupt the decline which set in Monday. With New York closed for the day, however, they thought a clearer trend would develop later on.

Losses outran gains 235 to 212. Golds and western oils were steady.

In industrials, Leigh Instruments fell 2 to 45¼, Neon Products 1¼ to 31¾, Mohawk 2 1¼ to 26, Ontario Store Fixture 1¼ to 34½, Bell to 44 and Columbia Cellulose 35 cents to $4.15.

They are headed towards Belleville and will appear here Saturday, August 3 when the big show spreads its magic tented encampment for performances at two and eight p.m. The circus will be under the sponsorship of the Belleville Jaycees.

Rub-A-Glug-Glug

It was rub-a-glug-glug, three men in a tub for 32 hours and 45 minutes for the shortest entry in the annual Nanaimo-to-Vancouver bathtub race. The final entry, a home-made paddlewheel tub, straggled into Vancouver Monday night after the longest crossing on record for the Georgia Strait. The tub was manned by Barry Clark (waving to camera) and Bobby Orr, of Nanaimo and Peter Kent of Vancouver. The men were accompanied by a boat and took turns paddling. (CP Photo)

Tweed District News

James W. Lockwood, 68, land use planning analyst for the department of lands and forests, has been appointed regional director of northeastern Ontario. He succeeds Arthur Herridge, new chief of the department's timber branch.

Graduating from the University of New Brunswick in 1940, Mr. Lockwood joined the department and was sent to Pembroke, (Ontario) district.

Two years later he was promoted to timber supervisor. In 1954 he was transferred to White River to serve as assistant district forester and forest protection supervisor. He was appointed district forester, subsequently acquiring the same post in Sault Ste Marie and Lake Erie.

Major Edward J. Gaines has assumed command of CFS Foymount from Major R. E. (Bob) Fletcher, who is retiring from the Canadian Forces after twenty-eight years service. The Foymount Air Defence Command unit is a part of the U.S. Canadian Force charged with the defence of the North American continent.

A native of Roblin, Manitoba, Major Fletcher enlisted in the RCAF in September 1940. He graduated from 2 Air Navigation School at Pennfield Ridge, New Brunswick as an observer in December 1941, and was posted overseas in early 1943. He flew with 142 RAF and 424 RCAF Squadrons in Yorkshire and was then assigned as officer-in-charge of Navigation Training at RAF Station Wethelpham, Worts, England.

Following the war, he completed his education at the University of Toronto, graduating with a B. A. in electrical engineering in 1949. Subsequent RCAF postings have taken him from British Columbia to Maine, U.S.A. serving in staff positions in the telecommunications field prior to taking over as commanding officer of Foymount in September 1967. The Fletchers will be moving to Tweed, Ontario, where he will teach High School Math and Physics beginning this fall.

At Tamworth, Sheffield Township firemen will be host to the ninth annual Firemen's Jamboree, August 30th, 1968. The day-long program will feature a parade of district fire departments at noon, afternoon and evening country music shows and dances in the evening.

Fire Chief G. F. (Fred) Thompson said 21 entertainers are expected to take part in the country and western show at the township arena. A special guest star is Floyd Lloyd, a popular Oshawa recording star who gained his early musical experience in the Northbrook area.

Games and rides for young-sters and teens are also planned by the volunteer firemen of the township. The day's program includes a supper in the fire hall and dance for teen-agers in the arena at night. The Legion Hall will be the site for an evening dance for adults only.

Earlier this month, a reception was held in the Actinolite Township Hall honoring Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lockwood on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. Friends and relatives attended from Toronto, Pembroke, Kingston, Renfrew, Peterborough, Belleville and surrounding district.

A gift of money was presented from those attending a light fixture from their children, and other gifts. Dancing was enjoyed and lunch was served.

The Hastings County Rotarian Twilight meeting is a public event for dairy producers in the county. It is arranged by joint sponsorship between Hastings County Holstein Club and the Hastings County Milk Commission.

In 1968 the event will be held Friday, August 2nd, at the Burrell Bateman farm, R.R. 1, Eldorado. This is lot 18, concession 4 of Madoc Township. It is easily reached from highway 62. There will likely be a sign on the highway. The evening program commences at 7.30 p.m. with judging classes.

They are arranged for all who wish to participate. Following this there will a more formal part of the program and the guest speaker will be Dr. E. G. Burnside, Animal Science Department, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the program. This is an invitation to come and bring your family and enjoy the evening. A special invitation has been issued to 4-H Calf Club members in Hastings County.

Great West Sales Up 18 Per Cent

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Great West Life Assurance Co. reported Wednesday life insurance and annuity sales increased 18 per cent during the first six months of this year over 1967, Chairman Frank Kilgour said.

Sales of individual life insurance totalled $243,903,000 compared with $213,307,000 during the first six months of 1967. Group life insurance sales increased to $288,200,000 from $184,055,000 and annuities to $6,965,000 from $48,003,000 during the same period last year. Total sales were $532,798,000.

Total assets at the end of June this year were $1,351,000,000, an increase of about $40,000,000 since the start of the year, Mr. Kilgour said.

Sheathing Glued to Frame Helps Speed Instant Housing

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former test pilot is using an aircraft construction technique to carve out a $3,000,000-a-year share of the expanding "instant housing" business in Canada.

W. G. Anglin of North Vancouver introduced "monocoque" design in his factory-assembled buildings, eliminating struts and supports.

Instead, stress is absorbed by the layer of finishing material over a light shell. In the case of Anglin, this is done by glueing wall sheathing on a frame of two-by-fours.

"We weren't the first to discover this idea but we are the first to adapt it to building construction. It makes our buildings both lighter and stronger," said Mr. Anglin.

His company, Fabco Manufacturing Ltd., has provided work camp housing at lumber mills, overnight stations for railway work gangs, school buildings and even an instant city hall for Gold River, B.C.

"When the units leave here they are fully equipped," said Mr. Anglin, an engineer trained at the Boeing School of Aeronautics, who incorporated Fabco in 1965.

"They have stoves, furnaces, refrigerators, air conditioning, bookcases, beds made up with linen and blankets, kitchens complete with utensils—everything the owner wants."

His biggest competitor is Atco Industries Ltd. of Calgary, which has been operating since the Second World War and had sales last year of $36,000,000. Atco is Canada's biggest manufacturer of such buildings.

Fabco developed from the West Coast Trailer group of companies in which Mr. Anglin had an interest. It has a 44,000-square-foot plant on five acres and now sells, instead of leasing, its units.

Cost for 13 overnight railway stations for Canadian Pacific Railway workers was $1,200,000. They contained 421 bedrooms and kitchen facilities and were used from British Columbia to Ontario.

The fully-equipped units are heavily loaded during shipment but, says Mr. Anglin, the monocoque construction absorbs the stress. The units also have been lifted by helicopter into remote areas.

The floors are conventional—built on two-by-six joists. But the walls are attached to a light frame of two-by-threes instead of the usual two-by-fours and are glued, not nailed.

This distributes the stress to the wall itself instead of just the frame. For insulation and soundproofing, the three-inch space between inner and outer walls is filled with glass fibres.

"We can come up with 1,300 different combinations of accommodation from the units we are producing now," said Mr. Anglin.

Zenith of Career

Dave Curran says being the Red Knight, the Canadian Forces solo aerobatic pilot, is the zenith of his flying career. Capt. Curran, shown in the cockpit of his CL-41 Tutor, practices daily for three two-week cross-Canada tours which start record Aug. 9. There is no extra pay for the Red Knight, a four-month job for which a different pilot volunteers each year. (CP Photo)

Lowney Trading Probed

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec justice department has begun an investigation into the trading activity of Walter M. Lowney Co. Ltd. shares prior to its acceptance of a takeover bid by Standard Brands Ltd., it was learned Wednesday.

Denis Dionne, Quebec's assistant deputy minister of justice in charge of criminal affairs said his department had requested a provincial police fraud squad investigation into "certain circumstances with reference to the market" in Lowney shares.

It was a "strictly preliminary investigation" and no charges had been filed against Lowney's officers or directors.

Lowney has headquarters in Sherbrooke, Que.

The Quebec and Ontario securities commissions are conducting their own investigations into trading activity involving Lowney, he added.

Lowney is listed on the Canadian and Toronto stock exchanges.

Star Trek Found A Star But He's Still Bit Puzzled

Reports—inaccurate, as it turned out—of the impending cancellation of NBC's science-fiction series, "Star Trek" earlier this year resulted in a record-breaking flood of viewer mail, plus some demonstrations outside network headquarters, in the eye of the storm was Bill Shatner, the Montreal-born actor who has been hearing that being a television star in a popular series isn't all its cracked up to be. He tells about it in the following story.

By BILL SHATNER

HOLLYWOOD (A P)—As a professional actor with 15 years experience I have enjoyed some success among the fans and my fellow actors, but never have I experienced such acclaim as my role in Star Trek has brought me.

The mere fact that I am an actor would indicate that I enjoy this, and naturally I do, but it's a funny thing the way the sudden public recognition changes how you are treated not only by the fans, but by your fellow actors, directors, producers and even your family.

For example, before I was in this series going to a movie was no big thing. I'd just get in my car, drive to the theatre and buy a ticket. Now if I stand in line to buy a ticket people ask for autographs, stare, yell and other and ask, "What's he doing standing in line?" I usually just come a kind of uncomfortable.

So as a result now I call the theatre and say I want to come and see the picture, but that I don't want to stand in the box office line impeding the orderly sale of tickets. Usually they say just come right to the door and we'll collect your money there.

Things changed after the first year of the series. Now nobody on the set comes up and says, "Hi, Bill. How are you?" I find that I have to walk up to them, and say hello first. It's all a little silly, but there is a definite change in the way people treat anyone who begins to be lucky enough to be in a hit series.

Even directors have declined now to suggest rather than tell you how they want a scene

Producers seem to be effected in the same way.

I never had my trouble at all with people not wanting to rip my necktie or even jacket off prior to Star Trek. Waiters, bus boys and cashiers are another whole bog. I used to go out for dinner and sip a respectable $3 per meal. Now, this is the attention they lavish on me that isn't repaid by at least 20 to 25 per cent, I get the distinct feeling they think I'm a young Jack Benny.

Still another, and more shocking change in attitude is within my own family. Not my immediate family, but with cousins, aunts and uncles with whom I grew up. Last year I was in Montreal for a large family gathering.

I'm not Jilly to them anymore. Some of them even asked me for autographs for their children. That is ridiculous. I'm the same kid that used to steal apples from the trees and let air out of tires and all the mischievous things all kids do as they grow. I've been playing these people all my life and suddenly now there is a distance between us that was never there before.

Half-baked Goal, A Cyclone, and Poker

By GEO. H. CARVER

Half-a-goal! — It happened here in a Belleville rink during the late twenties. An attacking forward blasted a shot goalward, the puck striking a post. The puck split cleanly in two, one half rolling into the net, the other skidding out front. The referee ruled no goal since only the puck must cross the goalline. It has never happened since.

* * *

What's in a Name? — Years ago city hockey fans were dazzled by the performance of a player of a visiting team whose skating ability had never been duplicated here. Nobody could recall the name on the scorecard. How could they. It was a phony. The player was the famous Cyclone Taylor an NHL star who could skate faster backwards than most players could skate forward. Cyclone was brought here under an assumed name, he admitted to me at a sports celebrities dinner, years later.

* * *

It Happened Here — Claude Ruel, the new coach of the Montreal Canadiens lost the sight of an eye during a game played here for the Belleville McFarlands and the Habitants junior club then playing in an Eastern Ontario Senior League.

Russ Kowalshuk "The Mad Russian" who incidentally later won the Allan Cup for the Mets, used a rather wild stick-swinging style. Russ checked Ruel during a Montreal attack, his stick striking up that of the Hab player and striking him in the eye.

* * *

The Change Did Him Good — Ron Church, Picton clown prince of baseball was a good a catcher as he was when on the mound. One of his gimmicks when catching was to borrow a quarter or half - dollar from the nearest sports writer and secrete it in his glove.

Crouched behind the plate, he would show the coin to the batter and murmur "That much says you won't get to first base". Church claimed his coin psychology was fifty per cent effective.

Hockey "poker" - Hockey greybeards hereabouts tell me that during the "good old days" when the Turnbull Street Arena was a going concern, the "boards" were plentifully freckled with knotholes. Some of the wise guys thought it a good idea to take broomsticks to the arena, and push them through the knotholes to trip opposing players.

He Liked To Light Up - In the rip-roarin swash buckling days of the old twenties Prince Edward Hockey League, the Milford team had a husky defenceman named Bill Dainard. Bill was a heavy smoker and-no durned hockey game was going to stop him.

On game nights he wore a sweater six sizes too large which he rolled up six or seven times to fit. On one side he tucked away a half dozen or more matches - on the other an equal number of cigarette butts.

When his team was on the offensive Bill would skate to the boards, calmly light a butt and wait until the play returned.

Hither and Yon - One of Canada's most famous sports columnists the late Lou Marsh of the Toronto Star was also rated one of the best referees in the OHA. Lou was sent to Belleville to officiate and a half hour after the game was visited by the local limbs of the law for certain reasons.

In Lou's column the next day came the little quip - "To the hicks and the sticks in two and one - half hours - from the rink to the clink in fifteen minutes."

Locals Drop Two In EOBA Minors

Belleville posted two losses in EOBA Minor action Wednesday. The Ellis Midgets and Booth Radio and TV Tykes went down to their Cobourg counterparts 2-1 and 11-7, respectively.

Ellis took the loss behind Midge McTaggart who allowed two runs on three hits and no walks while fanning 15.

Cobourg pitcher J. Harold allowed one run on three hits and one walk while striking out four.

Brian Coughlin led the Ellis hitters with a double and Rick Graham and Ed Christopher collected singles.

Cobourg hitters included B. Davis with a homer and R. Bassinger and Ted Harp with -safeties.

In the Tyke game, Booth's pitchers R. Hughes and B. Balyx allowed 11 runs on 15 hits and five walks while fanning six.

P. Kraiter of Cobourg allowed seven tallies on 12 hits and walked three while striking out seven.

Top Belleville hitters in that contest were G. Male and Whalen with a double and two singles each. M. Burke had a double and a single.

Cobourg Tyke hitters included Kraiter and M. Kernaghan with a triple and a single apiece, J. Robbins with a double and two singles, and D. Beer with a double and a single.

Local Kickers Lose 1-0 Under Protest

The Belleville Juniors took a 1-0 loss in a protested game Wednesday night at Zwick's Island. The Bay of Quinte Junior team took the defeat at the hands of the Trenton Travellers, but quickly filed a protest of an official's decision with the league.

With tempers up and official control and the score down, the roughly contested match ended in a 0-0 tie at the first half. Belleville's Gary Lovett was helped from the field with an ankle injury in the first period as a result of the rough tackling.

The situation didn't improve much in the final frame. The officially protested decision came in the middle of the second half when a referee stopped a goalward drive of the Juniors with a call which resulted in a penalty kick for the locals.

After a debate with the Trenton players, the official reversed the call and play continued with Trenton collecting the winning goal in the final portion of the second half.

Minor Softball

Action Wednesday night in the Minor Softball League saw the Spirits down the Athletics 7-2, Cory Grill cook the Giants 8-3, Western Tire rolled over Woodland Cleaners 23-17, Barrett Furniture topped Booths 29-10, and the ANAF Dukes downed Senators 9-0.

Handguns

The first official shoot of the Quinte Marksmen Club on its new range was held Tuesday.

The high scores were: Joe Heimbach 255, Doc Parks 248, Tim Boisvert 245, Ray Read 241, and Cliff Smith 227.

Fountain Park Tops Barriage

Fountain Park deluged Barriage 23-7 Tuesday night in a Minor Baseball Association tilt.

Fountain Park used three pitchers in the tilt: R. Sweet, R. McTaggert, and D. McTaggert. The three combined to allow seven runs on seven hits and four walks while fanning 11.

Barriage's Molaski and Ricketts allowed 22 runs on 13 hits and 16 walks while striking out five.

Fountain Park's top hitters were S. Hitchon with a triple and a single, T. Ray with three singles, and T. Madden with a double and a single.

Barriage hitters included D. Menard with a homer, Ricketts with two singles, and McKinney and Molaski with safeties.

Exercises Can Straighten Shoulders

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 23 and round shoulders. If I stand straight now, can I correct this or am I too old? Are there any exercises you can recommend? I also find it very hard to remember to maintain good posture all the time, but I am trying. — Mrs. E. W.

Assuming no skeletal deformity, you can still do a lot to straighten up. I gather from your letter that you can stand straight if you think of it.

Simple exercises will help: pushups, arm exercises of almost any type that involves shoulder movement, ordinary back-bending exercises.

Perhaps if you set up a schedule of doing five minutes of such exercises several times a day, you will find it easier to remember to stand straight after each exercise period.

Good habits, like bad ones, develop gradually, so keep at it.

• • •

If you don't straighten your posture now, as the years pass your upper spine can curve into a fixed "humped" position which cannot be corrected.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Our apartment complex has a s a u n a bath that I use once in a while but I cannot see any benefit from it. I do know I feel weak after I have finished my 15-minute stay. Can you tell what benefits are derived from a sauna bath, if any? I think they are of no value, or if any, very little. — S. D.

Well, if you don't think they help you in any way it seems to me that you are foolish to take the b a t h. Whether it's sauna baths, tripe, limburger cheese, or ketchup on your potatoes, it's "for use by them as likes it."

The sauna seems a medical device. They will stimulate surface circulation. They will also (if you like them) relax your muscles and your nerves.

They will not help you lose some additional moisture out of your system, which you will promptly replace by whatever fluids you take. The sauna will not, as some people mistakenly suppose, reduce weight.

Taking saunas is a matter of preference, not of "doing something that is good for you."

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Where the lady is concerned about her daughter's family having perfect bowel movements with diarrhea: If she uses a lot of soap or detergent on her dishes and doesn't rinse them thoroughly, it is possible that "juicy" dishes, such as boiled vegetables, stews and others will pick up enough soap to cause trouble, especially in infants.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I ate at a certain restaurant and I found out later from one of the help that they were careless about rinsing. — C. T. B.

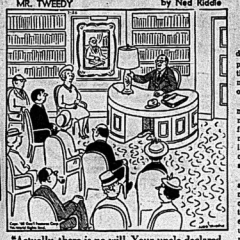
Perfectly true. Thorough rinsing is a necessity, and failure to get rid of all soap or detergent remnants can, indeed, be a cause of diarrhea.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: If a person is a bleeder, is it dangerous to have any kind of operation or dental work? — P. T.

Yes; the physician or dentist should be informed in advance so precautions can be taken. Many hospitals consider it proper to take routine tests on youngsters before having tonsil removal — that's usually the first operation for a child — to see whether they are bleeders.

In dental work, anything requiring cutting of tissues can cause serious bleeding. That is why we apply to such procedures as fillings or cleaning.



Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Finance Firms Get Guidelines

OTTAWA (CP) — The finance department believes it has plugged the last hole by which the United States' dollar drain might flow through Canada to other parts of the world.

Finance Minister Benson announced Wednesday in a statement a set of guidelines to be followed by insurance, trust and mortgage loan, sales finance, investment, and small loan companies, mutual funds, pension funds, and the like.

While asking for voluntary adherence, the minister's announcement amounts to an order that those non-bank institutions should, like the banks, ensure that they are not being used as an escape from the U.S. restraints on U.S. dollar movements abroad.

The chartered banks have been under such guidelines since May 3, and the finance department gets regular reports from them on their performance. It is asking "a couple of hundred" of the non-bank institutions to start reporting in similar fashion.

The finance department does not know exactly how much money is involved. Its statistics on the non-bank institutions are sketchy—so limited that they are not made public because they may be inaccurate.

The story of the Canadian guidelines dates from Jan. 1, this year, when President Johnson announced strict controls to stop the flow of U.S. funds abroad and bring home U.S. corporation profits from overseas.

To gain an exception from those controls, Ottawa promised Washington to ensure that Canadian financial institutions are not used as an escape-hatch from them.

The chartered banks were the first to be covered. If they wished, they could transfer funds in hundreds of millions of dollars in a few hours. But they agreed not to do so. And the inspector-general of banks, along with the Bank of Canada, did ways to check their performance.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For JULY 26, 1968

Your birthday today: The coming year involves both good results, taking on more responsibility. Any reasonably consistent approach could improve earnings. Romantic attachments need patience and understanding. Today's natives are usually cautious but determined to achieve their rather original goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Keep your eye on the details while your enthusiasm rises. Creative projects tend to draw heavier support. Pursue romantic interests this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): This is not the day to go into speculative activities. Live within your budgets. Then take a break and meditate, just for perspective.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The temptation today is to loaf. Your friends are apt to help in your ventures — more than you had bargained for. Put together a small party tonight.

CANCER (June 21 — July 23): There are more people involved in your dealings than most people suspect. Play down signs of concern, and all goes well. Impatience doesn't help today. Follow romantic impulses tonight.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 23): Do as little with money today as you can. Concentrate more on expanding social activities. New people are indicated. There is no point in spending to keep up with the Joneses.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Expect to spend money today rather than squirrel it away. Most things will fail your expectations temporarily. Complaints are premature.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Do a thorough job of shopping today and get everything you will need only before your next shopping tour. Hold some cash for emergencies. Call backers on a few friends this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Keep your money plans secret. Be thrifty. You will need a build-up in your accounts before long. So begin now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Today you may be unsure of even well-tested relationships. Assume that ties exist even though you may not see them clearly at the moment. Be prepared to cope with sudden changes. Not fight any drastic reductions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Follow the instructions literally. Pay close attention to details. This leads to safer working conditions. Don't rely and d ate tend to romantic enterprises.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): You are tempted to take a gamble based on theory rather than actual odds. Impulsive spending leads to crowd out rational planning. Use the evening for quiet companionship.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Make sure your mate knows where the money is. There is a danger of missing cues so that both of you overspend. Firmness on this point has to have a sound emotional as well as logical basis.

Thoughts at Large:

People are fond of saying that "the past is dead," but it is actually the future that is dead — and we make it come alive only by applying what we have learned from the living past to the present.

• • •

Of the tripartite French slogan, "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity," what the modern world has yet to learn is that the most important of the three is Fraternity — for without it, Liberty is bound to trample the idea of Equality, or Equality will inevitably repress Liberty.

• • •

Sometimes the best, and only effective way to kill an idea is to put it into practice.

It is perhaps the most universal delusion that everyone supposes he deserves more happiness than he has, as if happiness were a natural right or resource to which all are entitled; it is looked upon as a "commodity" which everyone ought to be able to consume without the necessity for producing it.

• • •

The most mordant comment on ordinary "repentance" was made long ago by Josh Billings, when he remarked "it is much easier to repent of sins that we have committed than to repent of those we intend to commit."

• • •

A man will perpetrate the most unspeakable crimes and horrors "for my country," thus justifying, or at least neutralizing, their basic immorality; but how can any government or institution be "good" when it requires men to be evil in order to sustain it?

• • •

Why do the rich continue to work hard at amassing wealth beyond all reasonable needs? For the same reason that the libertine continues to work hard at amassing amorous conquests — he is pursuing not a goal, but an image of himself that he can never quite catch up with.

• • •

The same dog that crawls close enough to lick you is also close enough to bite you; this is why men of sense trust sycophants even less than they trust their avowed enemies.

• • •

Many people marry largely because they are afraid of loneliness; unaware that the loneliness within an ill-considered marriage is the most bleak and solitary of all.

• • •

If one's domestics speak well about one in private to their own friends — that is the ultimate criterion of one's good character.

• • •

Intolerance is the most socially acceptable form of egotism, for it permits us to assume superiority without personal boasting.

• • •

Most of us really want to be half understood: not to be understood at all is frustrating; to be wholly understood is humiliating.

Guns Used to Kill Policemen Bought With Federal Youth Grants

CLEVELAND (CP) — Mayor Carl Stokes, first Negro to take over the administration of a major U.S. city, faced mounting criticism today for his handling of racial disorders that left 10 dead and 23 wounded after three consecutive nights of looting and burning.

The most damaging charge — described by city politicians as potentially a slow fuse that could destroy the mayor's political future—was the disclosure by city officials that $10,000 of federal funds earmarked for the city's major redevelopment program was given to Fred Ahmed Evans, alleged leader of the guerrilla gang, as part of a summer youth program.

Police said Evans admitted using the money to buy the guns and ammunition in Tuesday night's battle by the gang who called themselves "The astrologist nationalists."

A city hall official said: "The disclosure that the gang got hold of some of those funds and used them for murder and rebellion will cause an explosion in congress and certainly won't help Cleveland's attempt to rebuild itself."

The Cleveland mayor's struggle to regain control of the ghetto merged into a fight to restore his slipping political image.

Political leaders—both Democratic and Republican—attacked him on two main fronts.

They said that Stokes' decision Wednesday to withdraw the National Guard and white police from the troubled ghetto the night after the gun battle was a mistaken concession to black militants which produced further disorders, widespread looting and arson.

Black Control Fails to Work

CLEVELAND (AP) — National Guard troops and white police returned to Cleveland's Negro slums to enforce a dusk-to-dawn curfew today, imposed by Mayor Carl Stokes.

There were 30 arrests Thursday night. Two persons were seized looting one was arrested on a charge of arson and 27 were curfew violators.

Several small fires broke out on the East Side where 10 persons were killed in shootings Tuesday.

Merchants and police differed on the protection supplied to shops in the troubled area.

Benjamin Weiss, owner of a furniture store, said looters broke into his store while two Negro policemen watched.

"I asked the Negro policemen why they didn't stop the looters and they said there were too many in the mob," Weiss said.

Some Negro policemen said that merchants allowed gangs to loot their stores so they could collect insurance.

They said the shopowners would ask for protection while they removed valuable items from the stores.

"Then after they got everything of value on the truck," a policeman said, "they'll tell the gang outside—go ahead, it's all yours."

Wednesday, Stokes chose to let black community leaders try to control the race disorders. He reversed that stand Thursday.

He apparently had no choice. Several members of the mayor's committee told reporters they would not act as peacemakers Thursday night because they had seen evidence of professional looters coming in from out of town and they feared they could not control these elements.

They said if widespread looting began, the young people of the community might join in and, if a situation got out of control, the black leaders would shoulder the blame.

Czech Solidity Cracks, Russia May Get Its Way

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Fears of Soviet occupation swept Prague today following unconfirmed reports of a major concession and a split in the Communist party presidium which threatened to tip the balance against First Secretary Alexander Dubcek.

Meanwhile, Soviet troops still in Czechoslovakia following joint manoeuvres were being kept as a security ring around Kremlin leaders when they arrive for the talks, possibly next Wednesday, informed sources said.

The troops, in the Zilinia region of eastern Czechoslovakia, were part of security arrangements requested by the Soviet presidium, the sources said.

But reliable sources also said Dubcek again made it plain to Russia that any breach of sovereignty—such as a stationing Russian troops in his country—was totally unacceptable.

One Communist source said a snap vote on the crucial policy issue of opposing Soviet demands went against the progressive wing of the party presidium by six votes to five.

A central committee spokesman said later he did not believe reports Dubcek was outvoted. But he added he could not be sure as he left before the end of the meeting.

The unconfirmed reports of a serious reversal for Dubcek could throw the entire timetable for proposed Prague-Moscow talks out of order.

Top Communist officials here expect the Russians to repeat an offer of military aid—between three and five troops divisions—to protect the Czechoslovak western flank with West Germany.

If this was rejected without any political compromise some form of occupation could not be excluded, one prominent party specialist predicted.

The report that Dubcek was outvoted followed a party presidium communique that appeared to indicate a major concession to Russia over the political command of the Czechoslovak army.

The Czechoslovak party presidium ordered Lt.-Gen. Vaclac Prchlik back to army service and abolished the political department of the party which he headed. It controlled the army, security police and judiciary.

Prchlik July 15 told a news conference there should be a revision of the Warsaw pact to give the other members an equal voice with the Soviets. The Soviet leadership was also angered because he openly criticized the delay in the withdrawal of Russian troops from Czechoslovakia after the Warsaw pact manoeuvres in June.

The Associated Press said unconfirmed reports in Prague said Moscow demanded Prchlik's removal in a secret note charging that Czechoslovakia had become a weak link in the Warsaw Pact chain.

Prchlik played a key role in the ouster of old guard party chief Antonin Novotny last January by tipping off Dubcek to an old guard plot to use the army on Novotny's behalf.

Democratic Socialism Assailed by Pravda

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia today maintained its verbal assaults against reformist Czechoslovakia with a charge that prominent figures there, including Communist party members, were propagating the hated concept of "democratic socialism."

A 1,500-word article in the main Communist party newspaper Pravda by top commentator Yuri Zhukov also called Czechoslovakia's reverred first president, Tomas Masaryk, "the founder and chief ideologist of Bourgeois Czechoslovakia."

But the Soviet press was silent on Prague reports that progressive Communist party leader Alexander Dubcek was defeated by a 65 majority in the ruling party presidium last night.

If true, the reports would be regarded here as the first major success of the massive psychological campaign the Kremlin launched against Prague during the past 10 days to force a reversal in its liberalization policies.

Canadians Will Stay In Europe

MONTREAL (CP) — Defence Minister Leo Cliticux said Thursday that Canada has no intention of withdrawing its troops from Europe and intends to honor its commitments with West Germany.

Mr. Cadieux said there should be a review of Canadian defence commitments around the world, but there is no question of returning troops stationed in Germany at this time."

Rockefeller Wants Dialogue With China

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller says as president he would work toward international cessation of "a new world order" based on East-West co-operation instead of conflict.

The Republican presidential contender said he would begin a dialogue with China, if elected, to "improve the possibilities of accommodation" with that country as well as the Soviet Union.

Rockefeller said in a speech he would work to end the arms race and said the U.S. and Russia must co-operate to prevent small wars in areas such as the Middle East from mushrooming into big ones.

Chicago Negroes Loot, Riot

CHICAGO (AP) — More than a dozen persons were injured Thursday night when Negro youths looted a food store on Chicago's North Side.

In suburban Maywood another crowd smashed store windows after police used tear gas to disperse demonstrators at the village hall.

Twenty-five persons were arrested in Maywood. Three were held on disorderly conduct charges after the Chicago disturbance.

In Maywood, trouble started after a meeting of a local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Discussions at the meeting centred on the lack of a swimming pool.

Negro youths marched a mile to the Maywood village hall where the village board was meeting.

Officials refused to permit the entire group to enter the meeting. After they refused and became boisterous police hurled tear-gas cannisters at them.

Most of the youths headed for the nearby downtown section and smashed store windows, overturned park benches and hurled objects at passing vehicles, injuring 10 persons, none seriously.

A dusk-to-dawn curfew was quickly imposed. Reinforcements from surrounding communities, some wielding submachine-guns, moved in.

Supervision Of Relief Route Under Dispute

LAGOS (Reuters) — Federal Nigeria and Biafra agree on a "relief corridor" into the breakaway state, but still disagree on its supervision, Radio Biafra said in a broadcast monitored here today.

This was the first official indication that Biafra accepted a route, which the radio said would cover the 50-mile stretch from Enugu to Awgu and on to Okugwu.

Chamber of Commerce Urges Those Polluting Bay Be Named

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Nothing succeeds like disgrace — and shame may even help clean up Bay of Quinte pollution.

At least, the Belleville Chamber of Commerce thinks so.

Chamber directors have called for public disclosure by the Ontario government of all persons known to be contributing pollution to the Bay.

The proposal has been made in a letter from Chamber directors to Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP Quinte, who recently called for government anti-pollution. Ontario Water Resources Commission experts are due to survey the Bay of Quinte Aug. 1.

The letter says it "would be realistic" for the government to publish a "complete list of known contributors to pollution in the Bay of Quinte.

"The Chamber feels the public is entitled to know the ones who are selfishly depriving them of the use of their local water resources," the directors state. "In this way, pressure can be brought to bear where it should be."

Protection of "natural environmental assets" is vital to local economy and is a provincial government responsibility, the letter states.

The directors urged Dr. Potter "to continue to make every effort" and stimulate positive government action "on the many reports and surveys which they must surely have" on Bay of Quinte pollution.

Mailmen Reach Agreement on Delivery of Their Cheques

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Striking Belleville postal workers reached an agreement this morning with postmaster Jack Smith for delivery of their pay cheques Monday morning.

James Campbell, president of Belleville local 45 of the Letter Carriers' Union met with the postmaster this morning to work out details.

Following the meeting he said the postmaster was "most co-operative," and agreed to deliver the cheques to strike leaders Monday morning on the street outside the post office.

Striking workers here were advised this morning by telegram from Ottawa headquarters not to cross their own picket lines to collect pay cheques.

Following delivery of the cheques to strike leaders, they will be held at strike headquarters, 268 Pinnacle St. opposite the A and P parking lot, for pick-up by the striking workers.

Mr. Campbell said employees on holiday, workmen's compensation and sick leave will be notified by telephone from strike headquarters when their cheques are in.

The strike leader said postal workers have two day's pay coming to them for work on July 16 and 17. Some men, who worked the early shift July 19, before the strike was called at 5 a.m., are entitled to an additional half day's pay.

Eight Belleville postal employees will receive full half-month's pay. These are men who were on holiday, workmen's compensation or sick leave before the strike began.

In Toronto, Robert McGarry, local strike director for the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said: "I don't feel our guys should break ranks and cross the picket lines to get the cheques.

"They're not worth crossing the lines for after the end-of-the-month deductions come out."

In Ottawa, Mr. Fern Lachance said his men won't collect their cheques either.

"They're trying to make us look like a bunch of fools."

The post office earlier directed Vancouver area officials to make the pay cheques available at each postal station, but unions have replied that this would involve crossing picket lines and termed it a pressure move.

Jim McCall, spokesman for the council, said the union suggested other sites as cheque distribution centres such as government buildings not being picketed.

"They refused on all points and we regard this as an adamant attitude in view of our co-operation during the strike in which we have allowed medical and other supplies through our picket lines, and in rushing pensioners' and other cheques before the strike started," he said.

...Pensioners to Get Paid

Canadian National Railway announced this morning it has made special arrangements to deliver cheques to pensioners in the Belleville area.

Pensioners with Belleville mailing addresses (including rural routes) can pick up their cheques after 1 p.m. today in the main reception area of the Administration Building.

Joe Hunter of the CN pensioners association will distribute the cheques to pensioners calling for them.

In outlying districts, the cheques will be available by Monday at CN agencies. The agents will contact all pensioners on their lists to tell them where their cheques can be picked up.

Pensioners living in communities with no CN agency will be asked to collect their cheques at the office of the agent closest to their homes.

Railway officials hope to deliver cheques to 23,000 pensioners across Canada by the end of the month.

Electricians' Talks Resume Tomorrow

KINGSTON (CP)—Talks between builders and union officials will resume Saturday in an attempt to halt a 32-day strike by Local 115 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Negotiators for the union and the Kingston Builders Exchange broke off discussions July 18 after the union rejected an offer which included an increase of $1.55 over three years.

The union has not revealed its wage demands but is making several contract demands. The electricians' basic rate now is $4.01 an hour.

The strike has affected 403 electricians from Trenton to Cornwall and has endangered the progress of many construction jobs in the area.

Several carpenters are reported to have been laid off and the jobs of some bricklayers are apparently in jeopardy.

Papers Get Delivered ...Even During Strike

TWEED — The postal strike may be big news, but it has yet to stop the presses here.

At least, it hasn't interfered with Clyde Bell's deadlines. He's still meeting them as usual.

The publisher of the Tweed News —biggest weekly paper in Hastings County — still gets his paper out every Thursday, although delivery poses some problems.

In Canada, the rural press relies heavily on the post office for keeping its circulation rolling among widely-scattered readership.

The News is read by 2,700 people — most of them across the three counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac. It circulates into places with little-known names like Ompah.

However, Mr. Bell makes light of the problems. So much so, he even spoofed the strike. Veteran news staffer Goldie Godfrey mounted a horse recently to deliver several copies of the paper.

In reality, getting out the news is a little more complicated. It involves much mileage for the publisher.

Papers are delivered to various rural mail carriers who in turn distribute them along their routes.

Man Killed Near Napanee

NAPANEE (CP) — One man was killed and another was seriously injured Thursday in a single-car accident on the Macdonald-Cartier Highway two miles west of here.

Joss Expects Cheese Exports Will Increase

Cheddar cheese — an economic Quinte store staple — may soon sell in greater quantities in the United States.

Brighter export prospects were predicted today by Donald G. Joss, Black Diamond Cheese chairman as he returned from U.S. tariff board hearings in Washington.

Mr. Joss' company has been one of the industry's leaders in the fight for lighter U.S. import restrictions against Canadian cheddar.

At the latest tariff hearings, Black Diamond and its U.S. distributors were the only Canadian operators represented.

The U.S. agriculture department is "very sympathetic" to the Canadian cheese industry's problems, said Mr. Joss.

"Previous difficulties as far as the American market is concerned have invariably been caused by European exports of surplus dairy products," he added.

The Black Diamond chairman was hopeful new regulations would be announced in the U.S. to "successfully stop the dumping of surplus products" on the American market "in all countries."

Such a move would make the market available to high-quality cheese which Canada can supply, said Mr. Joss.

One Light Flashes-- It's Not A Mistake

It's not a mistake that Belleville traffic lights continue to function all night in the same manner as during daylight hours.

Only one light in the city changes from a stop-go arrangement to a flashing amber and red set-up at night. The corner of Farley and Victoria streets has its light change at 10 o'clock every night. The change lasts from 10 until 6 a.m. the next day.

The remainder of the traffic lights in the city merely receive a shorter cycle between changes of green and red.

According to Wilbur Purcell, city engineer, traffic during the night warrants leaving the lights stop and go.

On the other hand, traffic at Farley and Victoria is "extremely light," he says.

Obituaries

MRS. PHILISTINE GILBEY

The funeral of Mrs. Philistine Gilbey was held Thursday morning from the O'Brien Funeral Residence to St. Carthagh's Catholic Church in Tweed where Mass was conducted by Very Rev. C. E. Baker. Interment was in St. Carthagh's Church Cemetery.

The bearers were Charles Sager, Paul Meraw, Daniel Nash, George Clement, Joseph Gannon and Ronald Winstanley.

MRS. EDA MAY ALLAN (Trenton)

Funeral service was held Wednesday at Frankford for Mrs. Eda May Allan, 133 Spring Street, Trenton, who died suddenly July 21 at Peterborough Civic Hospital.

Mrs. Allan was in her 79th year.

She was born in Sidney township, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Munn. A member of King Street United Church, Trenton, she was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, 113, Trenton.

Mrs. Allan was predeceased in January this year by her husband, William J. Allan.

She leaves a brother, Arthur Munn, of Frankford.

Service in the Rowe Funeral Home was conducted by Rev. John Weese and interment was in Frankford Cemetery.

Bearers were Harold Dowden, Douglas McMaster, Thomas Bedford, Walter Richards, George Leeman and Leonard Coward.

Old Mill In Action

TORONTO (CP) — A 126-year-old flour mill rebuilt brick by brick at Black Creek Pioneer Village was opened in ceremonies Thursday at the reconstructed 19th century settlement.

J. R. Simonett, the Ontario minister of energy and resources management, opened a sluice gate to allow water to pour over the mill's water wheel.

Two-pound bags of stone-ground flour from the mill were given to the 400 guests.

The mill originally stood near Belleville, in Prince Edward County.

Flour from the mill will be used to make bread at the museum-village cafe.

Small Potatoes For Thief

Someone could be enjoying an illicit potato or two today.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Lawrence of West Moira Street returned home last night to discover that their house had been broken into. Further investigation by Mrs. Lawrence revealed that an estimated 12 potatoes had been taken from a 25 pound bag in the home.

Nothing else was taken.

Entrance was gained by removing a window in the rear of the home.

City police are investigating the incident.

Belleville Water Witcher Says He Strikes Paydirt In Eight Out of Ten Attempts -- Uses Twisted Wire

You never know what you can do until you try it!

That is the philosophy of Florn Donaldson, junior member of a father and son water witching, well-drilling combination which has been operating in the Belleville area for the past 12 years.

Thirty-four - year - old Florn Donaldson, took to water witching when "professionals" hired by his father "witched" dry wells a trifle too often.

"I strike water about 80 per cent of the time," said Mr. Donaldson. "Some claim close to 100 per cent but maybe they haven't been in the business long enough, or haven't witched enough wells."

Florn is the son of Thomas Donaldson, who, until he turned to drilling wells, was building maintenance superintendent at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

The elder Donaldson, now 64, turned to drilling wells when his doctor advised him to get out into the outdoors.

He and his son operate in a radius of about 50 miles from Belleville and drill an average of 75 wells a year.

The average well goes down about 60 feet and costs approximately $350 — with casing.

The burgeoning rural and suburban housing development together with the summer cottage trade, make well drilling a busy job for the Donaldsons.

"We usually have from seven to eight wells ahead of us all the time," the elder Donaldson said.

But back to the age old knack of water witching.

As noted above Florn started "witching" about 10 years ago when he found that he could come up with a slightly greater degree of success than the "professionals."

The only difference is that he uses a twisted length of wire which he says does equally as well as the forked crotch of a willow or plum tree branch.

"A crowbar would do just as well," he says.

"But it doesn't work for me," the elder Donaldson confessed.

Neither can he feel the "pull" of the water witchers stick when invited to hold the hands of the man doing the witching.

But at the same time he feels he understands the principle of the old age custom of finding water with the use of a forked stick.

"It's based on the principle of electricity," he says. "You have to have a negative charge in your blood, or you can't be a water witcher."

At the rate of several cycles per minute, the stein is hoisted by the cable and allowed to drop into the ground. The half ton bit-pointed stein pounds its way down through sand, gravel and rock until water is reached.

An iron tubular casing six inches or more in diameter goes down as far as the rock to prevent the drill hole from filling in.

If all goes well the machine can drill from 35 to 40 feet per day.

Hard boulders are one of the well driller's greatest problems. When the drill bit strikes a boulder a slanted hole is almost inevitable.

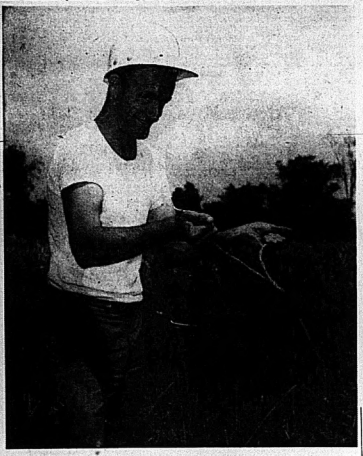
"When that happens you might just as well pull up and start all over again," Mr. Donaldson says.

For this reason well drillers using the cable tool prefer drilling through solid rock.

But even in sand or clay, drill bits have to be sharpened. Mr. Donaldson is his own drill sharpener and has several bits ready to install when one gets dull. Normally a bit will drill about 100 feet before resharpening.

What's the deepest well the Donaldsons have drilled?

"We went down 400 feet over at Fenwood Gardens a few years ago and only got about two gallons of water per minute," says Mr. Donaldson.



"Then we moved about 500 feet to a marsh, went down only 30 feet and got 60 gallons per minute of good water."

The Belleville Donaldsons are not the only family of that name in the well drilling business in the Belleville area.

Manse Donaldson, of Foxboro, another son of the Belleville man, has his own drilling rig.

All three Donaldsons worked together until 1960, when Manse branched out on his own.

"But we're not actually in competition," the elder Donaldson says. "There is enough well drilling for both of us."

Dowser-Driller

Florn Donaldson uses twisted wire as witching stick to locate underground water. With this technique he locates water in about eight out of ten tries.

Good for Another 50 Feet

Thomas Donaldson (kneeling) and son Florn inspect condition of drill bit. The Donaldsons sharpen their own bits which are good for about 100 feet of drilling before requiring resharpening.

Drilling Team

The Donaldson father and son well drilling team check well drilling rig and derrick equipment. The Donaldsons drill about 75 wells a year.

The Police Dilemma

Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie should have set many minds to thinking this week after his address to the Picton Rotary Club.

Like many of his associates in police work, Chief Crosbie said public apathy was the major problem facing law enforcement.

It is a situation that most of us realize exists but are quite prepared to ignore if it does not strike close to home. We are all familiar with the stories emanating from metropolitan communities where the public has stood aside and failed to assist the police in the discharge of their duties.

That Chief Crosbie would comment in this fashion is food for thought. Up until now it would be our understanding that the problem was not as serious a one in the Quinte area as it is in larger cities.

If this is the case, then we should be ready to accept that we are indeed among the more favored ones and be prepared to work side by side with the police forces of this area to see that the rapport does not deteriorate.

Police departments today find themselves in the position of walking a tightrope between the demands for personal freedom, which our present society values so highly, and the exercise of their responsibilities as law enforcement agencies.

We complain if we get traffic violation tickets yet look for instant service if we are involved in a traffic mishap. Part of the police problem is that the officer who served us the ticket might be the one who is called upon to investigate the accident.

Chief Crosbie has called upon citizens to get involved and realize they cannot be free of their responsibilities to their community.

By the same token, police departments can improve their image if their members also become involved in community life outside their enforcement duties.

It is only human nature for people to be more tolerant, sympathetic and in agreement with those people with whom they feel a bond of communication. This is readily apparent with the general public's empathy with sports figures, politicians, civic leaders, teachers and others who have broken down, at least partially, the barriers of communication.

Police departments are finding that they must embark upon the same philosophical course.

In Belleville we are fortunate that a competent articulate officer such as Douglas Crosbie accepts that such a role is part of his duties as police chief.

Catching Up

Did you notice that little news item which slipped into print on the last day the provincial house was sitting at Queen's Park?

Provincial secretary Robert Welch told members of the house that the province was going to experiment in three Toronto liquor stores by allowing customers to purchase their supplies on a self-service basis.

The understanding is, of course, that our tight liquor control regulations might be due for some changes.

It is hardly a thought that hasn't struck almost every purchaser who has spent time in lineups to pay for his purchases and then must await his turn at the counter.

So, a hip, hip hooray. We may yet catch up with civilization.

A Matter of Pride

One of the highlights of the summer season locally has always been the Belleville Fair. So it is with great relief this week that it was disclosed that the new recreation building being constructed at the fair grounds is to be ready in time for the opening of the fair on Aug. 13.

Replacing the two condemned buildings which were torn down over the past year, the new concrete block and brick building should prove not only a welcome addition to augment the fair board's facilities but an asset to the community throughout the year.

It is also a mark of pride that the building was completely fabricated by local craftsmen. Rollins Construction was the prime contractor, the sub trades were local and the huge concrete roof beams are the product of Wilson Concrete.

So all that is left now is for Belleville and area residents to enjoy the fruits of local labor.

Support for Prague

Czechs Confident Won't Have to Change Course

By HANNS NEUERBOURG

PRAGUE (AP) — The apparent isolation of the Kremlin and its hard-line allies in the dispute with the new reformist leaders of Czechoslovakia's Communist party is one of the chief reasons why the men in Prague are confident that they won't have to change course.

With the Communist world congress scheduled in Moscow for November—a congress that the Soviets have manoeuvred for several years to arrange—the Czechoslovak leaders think the men in Moscow are not likely to get too tough with them.

In addition to Romania and Yugoslavia, virtually all West European Communist parties are sticking with Prague. The West German party is believed to be the sole exception, but this counts for little since it is controlled by the East Germans.

Even the Spanish Communists, who are heavily dependent on Moscow's support, have reminded the Russians of Lenin's dictum that Socialist revolutions must not necessarily all follow one pattern. And the Hungarians, although they signed the Warsaw letter denouncing Prague's liberalization drive, are known to be only lukewarm in their opposition.

The Russians have measured themselves into a "disastrous plight," one source commented. They are bound to lose face, no matter what they do. But the Czechoslovak leaders are anything but gleeful about this.

"The most important task we face right now is to pave the way for the Russians to get out of this," one Czechoslovak party analyst said.

The fact that the Soviet politburo agreed to meet the Czechoslovak leadership, and in Czechoslovakia, is seen here as a shift in Moscow's tactics that may signal a change in strategy, too.

In contrast to the Warsaw meeting of the orthodox parties, the Czechoslovak party is no longer an accused facing condemnation in absentia.

No one in Prague expects swift understanding in the Soviet-Czechoslovak talks, which are expected to begin early next week. But it believed the meeting may produce more than a restating of positions.

Soviet concern that the changes in Czechoslovakia might weaken a decisive link in the Warsaw pact system are most likely to be the central issue in the discussions.

The fear that Czechoslovakia's border with West Germany is not sufficiently protected was expressed in a Soviet note preceding the agreement to meet. But initial reports published in the West that the Russians demanded stationing of a certain number of troops in Czechoslovakia have been largely discounted.

One high official familiar with the note commented that its tone was "a striking improvement" on the Warsaw letter.

Prague leaders are hopeful that these Russian fears can be allayed. They can point to a Soviet-edited report on last month's Warsaw pact manoeuvres which praised highly the combat readiness of the Czechoslovak army.

But even if the meeting ends in a deadlock, the Czechoslovaks seem confident that the situation will not worsen. One reason is that more bilateral meetings are planned, with the other signers of the Warsaw letter and with Romania and Yugoslavia.

After that, the Czechoslovak party congress comes in September. It will undoubtedly further cement the domestic position of the reformist leadership.

It Is People Who Need Aid

Victoria Colonist: When Prime Minister Trudeau begins his promised re-assessment of Canada's foreign aid program he would be wise to recall former World Bank President George Wood's criticism of the type of assistance now being given to backward nations. Wealthier countries, Mr. Wood said, tended to distort assistance in favor of things rather than people. "They have," he said, "favored big constructions which has required sales of big items of heavy equipment; they have delayed the attack on the fundamental problems of agriculture, of population growth and education." Certainly most Canadians would feel better if their tax dollars were spent on teaching backward people to farm rather than training them to fly warplanes as we are now doing in Tanzania.

Public Not Impersonal Citrus Fruit

Halifax Mail-Star: If the wave of strikes and threatened strikes now afflicting the Canadian economic fabric achieves nothing else, at least it will have been responsible for the most striking political metaphor coined in recent months—Prime Minister Trudeau's likening of the public as a lemon which some unions believe has only to be squeezed to produce the required "juice," in the shape of higher wages.

"The juice," he said, "must come from my pocket," Mr. Trudeau said a few days before the postal strike added, "not from the public."

Nor is it the unions alone who fall into the error of regarding the government, or government departments and public corporations that are financed by the government, as some huge, impersonal citrus fruit that can be squeezed with impunity.

Partly, this may be governments's own fault. When governments, whether federal or provincial, and government departments and the agencies appear by their actions to be all-powerful and remote, to ordinary citizens as well as labor unions and other bodies, such bodies soon acquire the impression "them," and the rest of the country "us."

Basford Still Retains Vigor

Toronto Globe and Mail: It is encouraging to observe signs that the vigor and determination which were at work in Ronald Basford as co-chairman of the Senate-Commons committee on consumer credit and prices has not deserted him now the emphasis has passed from inquiry to remedial action.

Mr. Basford, now the minister of consumer affairs, has given notice of forthcoming legislation on a number of items of interest to consumers. Some will be a particularly warm response among housewives to news that a bill will be brought in to standardize retail packaging; to regulate it so that more packages contain the magic ingredient of honesty.

The Intelligencer still invites letters to the editor, despite the postal strike. Letters dropped in the mail slot at the front of the building or delivered to the news room will be given the usual consideration.

Letter to the Editor

Belleville Doesn't Do Enough for Teenagers

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Having a child who will one day be a "Terrible Teenager" I would like to make a few comments on said age group.

At Zwick's Island last Sunday evening we had the immense pleasure of listening to a group of young people from Trenton and district sing at the Band Shell. The teenagers were sponsored, I understand, by Trenton Air Station. How wonderful.

These children were not only good singers but so full of bounce and their happy faces were a pleasure to behold. They looked so nice — girls in jumpers and boys in trousers and vests.

At the close of their program they all ran down into crowds of people and shook hands and spoke to everyone. Such nice young people.

Now, Mr. Scott, mayor of Belleville, why don't you suggest we sponsor our children in more ways rather than wasting thousands of dollars bringing a caboose to Zwick's Island, which is of no use at all. You mention such items as tourist attractions — well I'm sure tourists that are interested in railroading wouldn't object to driving to the CNR to investigate our engines, station, caboose or cattle cars. In fact the majority of people can remain in their own towns or cities and look at their own railroading items. So, Mr. Scott, how about a larger and deeper swimming pool at Zwick's.

Oh yes, Mr. Scott we have the YMCA for swimming at the most distant eastern area possible. To take my child there on a real hot day would require waiting for two different buses, there and back — or perhaps go to Tops in the far north end of the city.

I've only one child but what of other women who have no car and perhaps three or four small ones. The suggestion awhile ago of building that elaborate recreation centre way out by highway 401 was completely ridiculous. Thank goodness that money was saved.

I'm sure, Mr. Scott you will find we folks of Belleville and district not only grateful, but willing to support centres for children, provided they're built in different areas throughout the city where we mothers can go.

Belleville has much property that needs beautifying so this could be used.

Also lower prices on teen dances. As it is at $1.50 per night how can a man clearing $75 a week afford to send two or three teenagers to the dance every week? It's so unfair. And with little employment for teeners in the city where does the money have to come from but dad.

We could also have bingos, and concerts with profits tailver collected) being used for winner roasts and dances, etc. for teeners. I'm sure all Belleville folks would be happy to take an interest then.

I am Belleville born and after a 15 year absence returned here five years ago and I have been so disgusted and disappointed in the city. No wonder our teachers and university graduates in all fields are relocating elsewhere. What is there here for anyone, really?

Please Mr. Scott and councilmen bring in all and every industry which desire to come here, enrich our city and help it. Yes, we need to interest tourist but in order to have them like us as people we need to me a happy, prosperous and up-to-date city.

Mrs. M. B.

Missile Talks Stalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations for starting U.S.-Soviet talks on curbing the superpower missile race apparently have been stalled by the Kremlin's preoccupation with Czechoslovakia.

This is the explanation widely advanced in Washington as to why the two major atomic powers have yet to announce the long-expected opening of discussions about restraining their own arms competition.

It now is four weeks to the day since Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko officially signalled Soviet readiness to begin the talks, for which Washington had been pressing for 18 months.

"Agreement has been reached between the governments of the U.S.S.R. and the United States to enter in the nearest future into discussions on the limitation and reduction of both offensive strategic nuclear weapons delivery systems and systems of defence against ballistic missiles."

U.S. authorities said at the time that U.S.-Soviet diplomatic exchanges would be necessary to settle the subject matter of the talks and agree on what categories of persons should be assigned to the negotiating teams, since the atomic missiles question goes to the heart of the military might of the two great powers.

But these U.S. officials had generally expected that an accord on a time and place to begin the talks would be virtually wrapped up by the time the 17-nation Geneva disarmament conference opened for its summer session July 15.

Instead, "the nearest future" that Johnson spoke of is lengthening by the day and administration sources now shy away from predictions on when the discussions may start.

In the absence of any official word from Moscow explaining the delay in a Soviet response, U.S. strategists now are inclined to attribute it mainly to the priority Soviet leaders are giving to their campaign to keep upstart Czechoslovakia in line.

Launched in Montreal

Pay Cash and Save Plan Starts in Answer to Credit Buying

MONTREAL (CP)—A pay-cash-and-save program being whipped up by two young Montreal marketing experts is expected to hit Toronto within six months.

It was launched here recently by Ronald Wall and David Kramer at a time when banks were moving into the credit car business to get a bigger share of the lucrative consumer lending trade.

Mr. Wall, president of Savers Services Inc., said Thursday plans were being made to launch the program—in which consumers receive discounts for cash purchases—in Toronto.

The enterprise was established by Mr. Wall, a 26-year-old marketing consultant from Britain, and David Kramer, 25, associate professor of finance at Sir George Williams University, after "considerable research into purchasing habits and consumer patterns."

"We concluded there was a definite need for some vehicle whereby consumers could benefit without changing their spending habits," said Mr. Wall.

Membership in Savers, at $12 a year, entitles the consumer to a "courtesy card" which opens the way for discounts averaging 10 per cent at more than 400 stores and businesses in the Montreal area.

Among the firms that have already agreed to honor the courtesy cards are a theatre chain, a rent-a-car agency, hotels, a number of restaurants, sporting goods stores, ladies' and men's wear stores, about a dozen gasoline service stations, hairdressers and others.

One large Quebec supermarket chain partially entered the program by offering a $3 discount on groceries to each member a year—$1 at a time with purchases of more than $15.

Although the aim of the program is to give cash-purchasers a break, said Mr. Wall, service stations which have their own credit cards will honor the courtesy cards, giving discounts ranging from one to two cents a gallon on gasoline and up to 10 per cent on service and parts even when a customer pays by credit card.

The reason is that the cost of running the credit card system is borne by oil companies and does not come out of the pockets of individual service station operators. Thus the latest system amounts to discount selling.

Several stores and businesses were hostile to the Savers plan, considering it as just another nuisance, said Mr. Wall. Those that reacted favorably did so because normally it costs them six to eight per cent when regular credit cards are used.

Some airlines were considering offering one-month courtesy cards to visitors from abroad, at something like $1 or so apiece. The cards would entitle tourists to make discount purchases while in Montreal.

"We hope to be in Toronto within six months if everything continues to work out the way it has so far," Mr. Wall said, adding that Montreal has a potential membership of 50,000. He would not disclose the size of the present membership.

Other cities across Canada would be considered later.

The idea behind the enterprise is an old-fashioned one—merchants have always been willing to lower prices to increase the volume of business.

Lots of Hard Work

Maintenance and Clean-up on City Buses Is Organized Affair

Shower Power Stronger Than Dirt

Hugh Kerr adds the human hand to a power cleaning unit which cuts time when washing Belleville Transit Commission buses. The unit sprays the vehicles with 600 pounds pressure.

The gleaming bus which travels city streets day after day is the product of lots of hard work. It's all taken care of by a group of men at the Belleville Transit Commission bus headquarters on Bleecker Avenue.

The general set - up of maintenance and clean - up of the 13 buses belonging to the commission is an organized affair.

All are checked every 2,000 miles to see if everything is in working order. If something goes wrong before that they are brought in earlier.

Four men, including the manager of the commission, Lewis McMullen, are licenced mechanics. Mr. McMullen, however, is generally the overseer of operations.

According to Hugh Kerr, head man of the three mechanics, when the buses are brought in for repairs they "usually find something else wrong with them."

Many of the parts of the vehicles are replaced or checked at routine intervals. For example, spark plugs are replaced at least every 12,000 miles.

On top of this, records are kept for the express purpose of knowing the cost of operation for each bus.

The mechanics outline the work done on a vehicle for a certain period of time, listing the cost. That way management knows which vehicle costs the most to operate. Gas mileage figures are kept for the same purpose.

The periodic checks and the records help to keep the well-travelled buses under the watchful eye of management. One of the commission's vehicles has clocked 214,000 miles.

The garage has almost all the facilities necessary to conduct repairs on the buses. The only thing lacking is a machine shop. If machine work is needed the buses are sent elsewhere in the city where they are "healed".

As far as parts are concerned, only the bare necessities are kept on hand at the Bleecker Avenue garage. Other parts are ordered if needed.

In the winter a "night man" is on duty to wash and clean the buses. But, during vacation months he drives a bus himself and the mechanics have to handle the cleanup.

The insides of the vehicles are cleaned during the summer when the mechanics get a break from maintenance duties. There is a thorough cleaning at least every two months.

During vacation months the drivers help out by cleaning the buses at the end of the day when the windows are washed and the floors swept out.

Outsides are cleaned when the vehicles need it. In the winter the need occurs almost every day.

After a rain the buses are brought in off the routes one by one. Six spare ones make this possible as there are only seven buses on the routes during regular operation.

A new power cleaner has lessened the degree of time involved in cleaning the exterior surfaces of the vehicles.

The unit sprays the buses at 600 pounds pressure while soaping and rinsing them. One bus takes 17 minutes with the new unit as opposed to an hour previously.

The product of all this work is an efficient and clean city bus.

Canadian Curtiss-Wright Fails to Fulfill Promise

TORONTO (CP) — A year ago, Canadian Curtiss-Wright Ltd., a small subsidiary of Curtiss-Wright Corp., the U.S. engine manufacturer, was being touted by brokers as a comer.

The stock appeared to bear out the optimism.

From a low of 50 cents a share in January, 1967, it moved by year-end to $2.80 a share. Trading, which hovered around 33,000 shares a month earlier in the year, reached 295,000 shares for December.

Then, earlier this year, a $1,300,000 deal fell through, and John McKenzie McLean, newly-appointed president, resigned over policy disagreements with the U.S. parent.

The Canadian company is currently being operated by a group of senior employees headed by assistant Peter Mancher, the company's finance director.

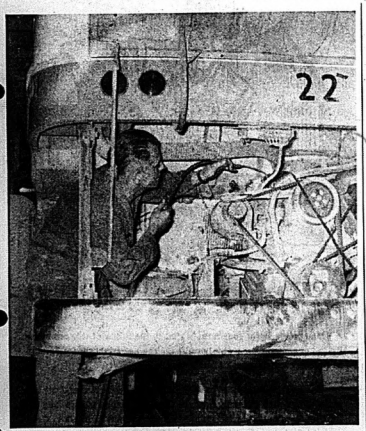
Carl Sherman, a Curtiss-Wright vice-president in Woodridge, N.J., has been named executive vice-president of the Canadian company, but still lives in Woodridge.

Canadian Curtiss-Wright stock slipped Thursday from a January high of $3.60 a share to $2.15 on the Toronto Stock Exchange. It reached a low of $1.85 for the year at the time of Mr. McLean's resignation in May.

The hiring of Mr. McLean a dynamic, 44-year-old graduate of the London School of Economics, was the apparent reason for the stock's surge last year.

Mr. McLean had held several top positions with other companies before going to Canadian Curtiss-Wright. After experience with Canadian Industries Ltd. in Montreal, Carrier Engineering, Philips Electronics Ltd., General Instrument Co. of Waterloo, and International Telephone and Telegraph, he bought a small foundry in Branford from where he came to Canadian Curtiss-Wright.

During 1967 Canadian Curtiss-Wright bought the Design Team Leasing group of companies, expanding its operations to supplying temporary technical help to industries from the manufacture of industrial products and sales of Curtiss-Wright engines.



The Canadian company's 1967 annual report showed 1967 earnings of $428,400 or 10 cents a share. This was almost four times the 1966 figure of $128,300 or three cents a share, and considerably more than at any time in the last six years.

The company announced in April, 1968, that it was buying S and K International Ltd., a group of Toronto companies which produces small machinery and electrogalvanizing equipment. The purchase price was to be about $1,300,000 and about 318,000 Canadian Curtiss-Wright common shares. About 70 per cent of the Canadian company's stock is owned by its U.S. parent, but the annual meeting in March had authorized an increase in share capital.

Mr. J. J. Trudeau, President of Trudeau Motors Limited is pleased to announce the appointment of Mr. Robert Poulin as Service Manager, in charge of the entire service operation of Trudeau Motors Limited.

Mr. Poulin comes to Trudeau's with many years of experience in the automobile business, including mechanical and collision repairs and is highly recommended for his new position. He is married with three children, all of school age.

Wife of Agriculture Minister Says "Real People" Are in Agriculture

OTTAWA (CP) — As a farmer's daughter and a rancher's wife, nobody could be more interested in her husband's important portfolio than Mrs. H. A. Bud Olson, wife of the new agriculture minister.

Lucille Olson, 42, is a slim, quiet woman with light brown hair and a pleasant, natural manner.

"You meet real people when you meet people in agriculture," she says. "There's nothing superficial about them.

"I think the most interesting people I've ever met are old ranchers. They have such wonderful theories and such candid way of looking at everything. Country life really does give you time to think things out. You have time to see the beauty of a flower or a rock."

Born at Red Deer, Alta., Mrs. Olson grew up near Medicine Hat where she and her husband have lived for a number of years.

"My father was always active in politics," Mrs. Olson said, "and we as children were always involved, putting up posters and things.

"There was never a political meeting of any party we didn't attend. I can't remember ever finding them dull."

Mrs. Olson started teaching during the Second World War as soon as she graduated from high school. For two years she taught in a school on a large ranch north of Jenner, Alta., where her classes ranged from Grades 1 to 9.

"When school was over I stayed on and cooked for the ranch hands and I enjoyed it far more than teaching. I guess it just shows I like being domestic.

"I prefer gardening and cooking although teen - age kids are my hobby now. I think," she said, referring to her four children, three of whom are in their teens.

Mr. Olson, who took time out from a busy day at his office in the agriculture building to join his wife for sandwiches during the interview, recalled their courting days.

"I used to have to ride a saddle horse 35 miles to see her," he said. "There are some hair - raising anecdotes about those days, especially when the river I had to cross was high. The Red Deer is a treacherous river.

"I tried to cross one day when the ice was honeycombed — very thin spots — and my horse was very, very nervous. I got off and led him but I stepped on a thin spot myself and went down to my shoulders."

The Olsons were married in January, 1947, and lived in the village of Schuler, 70 miles north of Medicine Hat.

"Bud operated a store there as well as his farm in the area," Mrs. Olson said. "Then we let the store go and just ranched.

"We moved off the ranch and into the city when he won his first seat in 1957 and we've lived there ever since except for a year in Ottawa in 1963."

Three of the Olson's children — Andrea, 18, Juanita, 16, and Bud, Jr., 14, — will come to Ottawa with their parents before the September session of Parliament. Sharon Lee, 20, is training in Edmonton to be a nurse.

Aside from her home and children, Mrs. Olson's main interests have been working for her church and the Girl Guides and gardening.

"I even like mowing lawns," she says with a smile. "In fact, the only reason I'm a little sorry about moving to Ottawa is that I just planted a lot around the ranch and if you're not there to watch them, they don't get the care.

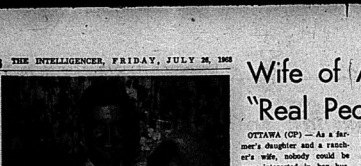
"However, it really is a wonderful opportunity for Bud to do. I'm really grateful be- to do all the things he wants cause I know he can do such a good job."

MR. AND MRS. JAMES LESLIE ROSS

Ross – Bools

Father P. Canty officiated at the wedding ceremony in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel on Saturday, July 20, 1963 at 4 p.m. when Belle Lynn Bools, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bools, Belleville became the bride of James Leslie Ross, son of Mr. J. T. Ross, Belleville and the late Mrs. J. T. Ross. Miss Dorothy Grant provided traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Robert Burke.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length A-line gown of white silk sata-peau with elbow-length bell sleeves trimmed with re-embroidered lace. The cathedral length train attached at the shoulders by two tiny bows was also trimmed with matching lace. Her head dress was a four-tiered silk illusion elbow-length bouffant veil held by a cluster of flowers adorned with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet consisting of a solitaire white orchid encircled with miniature peach tinted carnations.



As matron of honor Mrs. Larry Mavety, sister of the bridegroom, wore a full-length floral A-line gown of silk georgette over taffeta in soft hues of green and peach. Her floral picture hat was trimmed with a band and bow in peach shade to match her shoes. She carried a basket of peach tipped miniature carnations. Miss Susan Bools, sister of the bride and Miss Karen Belsey were identically attired to the matron of honor.

Larry Mavety of Belleville attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Frank Edwards of Kingston and Terry Beddison of Port Hope.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the newly opened Sun Luck Gardens, Belleville. The bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a powder blue ribbed silk staron coat and dress ensemble with bead trim, white accessories and a corsage of red roses. A sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. F. A. Edwards assisted wearing a pastel pink coat ensemble of ayon souffle fabric with matching accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Leaving on the wedding trip to New York City, the bride donned a black and white print coat and dress ensemble, white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross will be living at the Park Villa Apts., Wellington Street, Port Hope.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM L. McMASTER

McMaster – Hocking

The wedding of Shelagh Jean Hocking, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Hocking of Chalk River, R.R. 1 to William Lee McMaster, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. McMaster of Bradford was solemnized in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville recently. Rev. W. J. Lamb officiated, assisted by W. Lee of Alliston, grandfather of the bridegroom. L. E. Lee of King City played traditional wedding music and accompanied the vocal soloist, Miss Beth Bird of Sault Ste. Marie and the trumpet soloist, Miss Sylvia Smith of Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white lace and charm bark with lace appliqué beginning above the yoke and neckline and continuing down the bodice to the front panel of the full skirt. A three-tier elbow-length veil of white tulle was taught to matching material. rosebuds with white flowerettes and tiny seed pearls. She carried a lace fan created with red roses and white stephanotis.

Mrs. Gerry Allan of Deep River, as matron of honor, wore a floor-length gown in teal blue peau de charme with an Empire line ribbon complementing the square neckline and falling softly down the front of the flared skirt. Her headdress was tiered bows in matching color and she carried yellow roses and yellow 'mums. The bridesmaids Miss Ann Gilmore of Weston and the Misses Beth Ann and Mary Ellen McMaster, sisters of the bridegroom were similarly attired to the matron of honor but in lee blue. The flower girl Miss Marie Quesnel of Islington who wore a short white nylon dress trimmed with lace and a headband of teal blue peau de charme. She carried similar bouquet to the other attendants but with the addition of cornflowers.

Peter McMaster was his brother's attendant and the ushers were Bryan Hocking, brother of the bride, Michael Roberts, Belleville and Garry Akin of Deep River. The ringbearer was Richard Page, Oshawa.

At the reception held at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a dress of sky blue crepe with matching lace coat, white pillbox hat, white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a silk dress of variegated colors with pink nylon overlay with matching three-quarter length coat, pink hat, beige accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For the honeymoon trip to the St. Lawrence Seaway and on to the Adirondack Mountains, the bride chose an A-line dress of yellow crimpled crepe with matching coat, a hat of yellow daisies, white accessories and a mauve orchid corsage.

The couple will reside in Belleville.

Rolled Turkey Roasts For Summer Menus

In recent weeks Dorothy Batchelder, Home Economist for the Poultry Products Institute, says she has had a number of consumer enquiries about rolled turkey roasts or, as they are commercially called, Turkey Rolls. These are available now in many communities across the country.

Turkey rolls are roasts of boned turkey meat. Usually they are made up of the breast and/or thigh meat rolled and tied. They are naturally more expensive than the whole turkey since they are solid meat with no wastage.

Rolls vary in size from 2½ pounds up. The 2½ to 3 pound rolls will cook at 325 degrees in 2½ to 3 hours if thawed. Heavier ones will take longer.

If a meat thermometer is available it should be used to remove guesswork in telling when roll is cooked. Insert it through centre of the thawed roll to within 1 inch of bottom and cook roast until thermometer registers 190 degrees F. Withdraw thermometer slowly if temperature drops below 185 degrees F. at any point, put back in oven for a few minutes. If testing meat without a thermometer, roll should be fork tender and juice should be colorless when meat is cut.

To prepare a turkey roll is easy, points out the Poultry Products Institute. Rub outside with plain butter or salad oil or seasoned with a generous pinch of crumbled rosemary, ginger, thyme and marjoram, a little onion or garlic powder or juice or a good dash of Worcestershire sauce may be added if desired. Wrap loosely in aluminum foil (dull side out), place on a rack in a shallow pan and roast as directed above. For brown skin, open foil for last 45 to 60 minutes. Baste once or twice if surface looks dry.

If dressing is desired, make as usual and bake for 45 to 60 minutes (until thoroughly heated) in a closely covered casserole or aluminum foil package.

If preferred, rolls may be marinated in (refrigerator) for an hour or longer in liquid salad dressing (French, etc.) or a mixture of pineapple juice concentrated frozen orange juice and a little Soya sauce. Turn once or twice to flavor evenly. Other marinades (the liquid the roll is allowed to stand in) include apple juice seasoned with a pinch of ginger or white or red wine.

Legal and Medical Pathologist Termed "Expert on Death"

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Fred Jaffe is an expert on death.

As Ontario's only full-time legal and medical pathologist he finds out how, where and when a person died.

The 47-year-old medical director of the attorney general's centre of forensic science has been appointed to a Canadian Medical Association's committee which has been given the task of defining life and death.

"Heart transplants have lit a fire under the need for a definition," he says.

"We used to say a person was dead when his heart had been stopped for half an hour."

But a stopped heart is useless for a heart transplant and now doctors look to the brain for a dying person to tell them when life is ended.

He says the definition must suit not only medical and legal grounds but religious ones too. And he is well aware how difficult it is to be certain a person is dead even when no heart transplant is involved.

Twice in the city morgue, bodies have been brought in declared dead by experienced coroners but turning out to be still alive.

The reason a coroner can make such a mistake is that drugs such as barbiturates or morphine cause body reactions that can fool the most experienced coroner.

"In a case of morphine poisoning the person may breathe only three times a minute." Normally an adult breathes 14 to 20 times a minute.

At the Toronto morgue, Dr. Jaffe and the eight part-time pathologists in the city perform 700 autopsies a year. Autopsies must be performed whenever a person dies suddenly without medical attention.

Dr. Jaffe is called in on all "frank homicides" and in many cases where the body cannot be identified. It may be merely a skeleton. He picks up a skull just shipped to him from Northern Ontario and looks at the teeth.

"An Indian, more than 100 years old," he says promptly.

Jamboree Has Expo Theme

TWEED — One of the major attractions of the 1st Ontario Jamboree, in the Kelso Conservation area, Milton, August 17-24, will be "Youth and His World", an Expo approach to the interests of youth.

Thousands of Scouts from Ontario and their guests from all the provinces of Canada, the United States and Caribbean countries will be able to explore their many interests and concerns.

Several pavilions will provide visual interpretations of the many aspects of youth.

The Department of Education and the Community Division have co-operated to present a look to the future in leisure time vocations. Failing is this category of "Youth and His Ambitions" will be "Youth Finds a Place to Stand," which will feature the Oscar winning film, "A Place to Stand." The field of education will be presented in the "Youth and His Dreams," and the "Brotherhood of Man" centre will allow the Scout to explore his faith and give him the opportunity to mix with some of Canada's interesting ethnic citizens.

The action corner will be the popular "Youth and His Music," with pop groups in search for talent and a "listen in." More than 3,000 Scouts will participate in the 1st Ontario Jamboree. The general public is invited to attend any day from 2 p.m. to 9.30 p.m.

The Conservation Authority charges $1 admission to the Recreation Area, and no additional charge at the Jamboree.

MR. AND MRS. GERNOT GLEIBS

Gleibs – Graves

The Protestant Chapel at C.F.B. Trenton was the scene of the wedding on Saturday, July 20, 1963 when Beverly Jean Graves, daughter of Lt.-Col. H. G. Graves and Mrs. Graves, Belleville was united in marriage to Gernot Gleibs, Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Gleibs of Trenton. Rev. Hedley-Smith officiated at the ceremony, while Mrs. Smith presided at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line gown of Peau de Soie with white, ribbed silk featuring an Empire wast and elbow-length bell sleeves and a scalloped neckline. Double rose appliques enhanced the sleeves, skirt and waist of the floor-length train. A finger tip veil of silk illusion was caught to a satine rose with lily-of-the-valley sprays. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and gladioli centred with a graduated pink shades of Sweetheart roses. The two bridesmaids Miss Kathy Gist of Belleville and Miss Lois McEachern of Oshawa were attired identically to the maid of honor but one was in medium pink, while the other wore pale pink. Their headdresses of satin shades with bouffant gowns and all carried matching bouquets.

Ross Metcalf of Hampton attended the bridegroom and the ushers were Wallace Pitt of Oshawa and Fritz Marcinkowski of Kitchener.

The reception was held in the Officers' Mess at C.F.B. Trenton where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a two-piece dress of white, gold and beige lace with matching hat, bone colored accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. In the receiving line also, the bridegroom's mother was attired in an aqua lace sheath dress with matching lace coat, bonnet hat, black accessories and a corsage of pink tea roses.

For departure on the honeymoon to points west, the the bride chose a white cotton A-line dress with three-fifth length bell sleeves, white accessories and a corsage of roses — in three graduated shades of pink.

Mr. and Mrs. Gleibs will reside in Oshawa.

The prosperity of your farm is vital to the future of this community . . . one more reason why Loyalist College has established programs in Agrology and Livestock Management.

The program is intended to be of value to the young men and women who will be active on family farms or those who might wish to take up farming. It will also provide training for employment in A.R.D.A., Government Departments of Agriculture, and industries serving agriculture.

The course will provide instructions in Agrology subjects and those of a more practical nature such as welding, farm mechanics, economics, accounting, etc. The graduates will be conversant with all phases of farm operations such as growing of crops and animals, operation and repair of machinery and effective marketing practices.

Successful Living

Woman Depressed Over Physical Handicap

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am 48. If the future holds no more in store for me than the past, then an overdose of sleeping pills would be the best answer. An acquaintance told that Evelyn Munroe took a cowardly way out. Anyone who has suffered for months knows it takes courage to end it all or I wouldn't be here.

My problem started way back — because of the way my body weight is distributed my legs bowed — a horrible feeling runt through my body even when I write it on paper. I don't need a psychiatrist. I need someone to help me get a pair of legs that I am not ashamed to walk down the street with. I sought medical aid years ago and was informed that nothing could be done. Can they do anything yet?

I have given up all association with my fellow human beings except in cases of emergency. I am moody, frustrated and unhappy so naturally my family suffers. — Brainless Weakling.

Dear Weakling: How bitter can one get? My news for you is that you handicap yourself! Not through your physical deformity but in the way you feel about it.

Have you any idea how much you depress your girls with your bitterness? Can you even guess at the number of married women who would give anything — even straight, unbowed legs — to have daughters to raise?

The right should face you need would practically amount to a revolution. The doctor is the one who can bring you up to date about medical things; but I am sending you the name of a counsellor to talk to about what is really wrong.

* * *

Dear Doris: I qualified as a secondary school teacher but never enjoyed it. Then I married and took 20 years off to raise a family.

My problem is that I am now 42. Am I too old to be accepted for kindergarten training? I feel that pre-schoolers are so much more fun to work with than teenagers. Frankly, I do not understand the latter group at all. — Young At Heart.

Dear Young: Who does understand the teens? They even make a poor job of it themselves.

No, you are by no means too old to take more training. Probably wouldn't need more than a night course or two in primary work, since you have kept in touch by doing substitute work.

With the present scarcity of teachers I'm guessing you'll be snatched up. Talk to your local board about your ideas.

* * *

Dear Doris: Is it necessary for a master of ceremonies to see that guests are entertained as they gather for the wedding banquet and during the interval between banquet and dance? —M.C. Elect.

Dear M.C. Elect: No. His job starts when dinner is just about over, toasting beverages have been passed, and guests are ready for a little togetherness. He makes a few welcoming remarks, announces messages, conducts toasting program; makes announcements about what is to follow.

If the bride asks him to serve as a co-host he may at so help as you suggest.

Ann Landers

Mom Upset Over Son's Physical Condition

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several weeks ago I attended a discussion group on malnutrition in the U.S. I left the place depressed and determined to do something for the disadvantaged children in this country. When I arrived home there was a note from the school nurse saying our youngest boy should be taken to a physician for a checkup and put on a nourishing diet. The note said he is seven pounds underweight, has too many dental cavities, was absent from school an excessive number of days, and he needs to eat less junk and more wholesome food.

I was furious and assumed the nurse must have a grudge against our son or she would not have written such an insulting note. After all, we are an upper-middle-class family, not slum dwellers.

I took the boy to the doctor the following day and learned our boy was in appalling physical condition — anemic, underweight, the works. The doctor lectured me about mothers who allow their children to develop poor eating habits. He pointed out that many children from well-to-do families are in the same boat and sent me home with literature on nutrition and the balanced diet.

Please print this letter, Ann, and alert mothers everywhere to the danger of letting their children eat only what they want to eat. It was a shock to discover that our son was in the same pathetic physical condition as the little boys who live in shacks in Mississippi. — EXECUTIVE'S WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: Here's an open letter to mothers everywhere. What's your children eat yesterday? And what did they eat today? A word to the wise is sufficient and to the foolish, a million words are useless. Take inventory.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife has a mania for giving away, throwing out or "misplacing" other people's property. Mainly, mine. I have begged, pleaded and asked her in as nice a way as I know how, to please keep her hands off my things. She doesn't seem to hear me. Maggie insists on "straightening" my desk and "sweetening" things. The next thing I know, valuable papers are missing.

When I reach for a back issue of a newspaper or magazine which I set aside for reference, she tells me she burned it two months ago. Last night I searched high and low for my bedroom slippers. When I asked Maggie if she had seen them, she said they were worn to shreds and she couldn't look at them anymore so she threw them out. I realize they were rather shabby, Ann, but it took me a month to get them really comfortable, and I was pretty upset about it. I admit I'm a bit of a hoarder but shouldn't a wife respect her husband's rights in the house? — MINNEAPOLIS CUT.

DEAR MINN: When a pack rat marries a beaver-outer, then there's bound to be trouble. You can't cure her but you can protect yourself by putting your papers and magazines away — out of sight. Most wives cut other things because they are cluttering up a room. (Some women report their husbands' dress are fire hazards.)

As for the bedroom slippers, that was a rotten trick. Ask Maggie how she'd like it if you threw away her old beat-up girdle. I'll bet she'll understand your feelings a lot better after that question.

Cold Plates Prepared in A Hurry

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: When we are at the cottage, everybody wants to stay in the water or on the beach as long as the sun shines then suddenly when "What's for supper Mum?" They expect supper to be on the table by the time they are dried and dressed. Could you give me some menus that I could assemble in short time? I am sure your other readers would like them too. — A. G. (Mother - of - Six - Adorable-Monsters)

ANSWER: Thanks for asking. I know your problem all too well. You might have to do some preparation in the morning (see below).

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Haddock in Parsley Cream Sauce; Corn on the Cob; Baked Potato Croquettes; Tomatoes Stuffed with Celery Salad; Summer Applesauce; Bran Muffins; Tea.

COLD PLATES
"ON THE DOUBLE"
NUMBER ONE: Sliced Chilled Extra Lean Corned Beef; Mustard Pickles; Cottage Cheese with Mayonnaise on Lettuce; Macaroni and Green Pepper Salad (see note) Blueberries and Cream, Sliced Canned Fruit Bread.

NOTE: Cook macaroni shells or elbows in the morning until tender, rinse under cold water in colander and chill until assembling time.

NUMBER TWO: Tuna Salad on Lettuce; Sliced Tomatoes; Sliced Goods or Edam Cheese; Marinated Bean Salad (see note); Ice Cream with Canned Chocolate Sauce.

NOTE: Bean Salad should be made in advance in double quantity for it improves with refrigerator storage.

NUMBER THREE: Sliced; Hard-Cooked Eggs on Lettuce with Thousand Island Dressing Drained Canned Baby Peas and Carrot Dice Marinated in French Dressing (see note) Garlic Buttered French Stick; Instant Chocolate Pudding.

NOTE: Canned Peas and Canned Diced Carrots are excellent supplies for tuna-fix. The French ice peas as a cold salad ingredient marinated with French dressing. I have added the canned diced carrots for their color contrast and nutrition.

NUMBER FOUR: Cold Fried Chicken (see note); Potato Salad (see note); Fourteen-Day Cole Slaw; Canned Peaches; Bakery Bran Muffins.

NOTE: Fry the chicken before washing the breakfast dishes. Cool, then refrigerate. Boil the scrubbed potatoes in their jackets, peel, dice and marinate in a little French dressing. Hard-cook a couple of eggs. Store both in refrigerator until mealtime.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Who wrote on the wall with my lipstick? Wait until I get the switch!"

Child: "I didn't do it."

Mother: "Don't lie to me. That makes it twice as bad!"

Parents should not ask questions likely to provoke defensive lies from a small child, who may already feel overwhelmed by the evidence of his guilt.

Mother: "It was very naughty to get ink on things, and you spoiled our wall as well. You must stay in your room until dinner so you will remember not to do anything like this again."

"Sophistication" Is Patou

PARIS (AP) — Jean Patou introduced a youthful, useful line Wednesday on the fourth day of the fall and winter high-fashion showings.

Gonn, Pgiou's designer, gives the young woman black sophistication, rather making her naive and demure.

His new smock coat is somewhat fuller than his belted and tailored Canadian types. It is done in black satin or white for evening, and light colors for day.

Goma's daytime suits are three-quarter jackets, tightly figured and belted. Satin skirts of form-fitted dresses go with them, often with raised waistlines. They are often in black wool or silk.

Daytime tunics are sometimes trimmed in a double row of fringe at the hemline.

Patou, or rather-Goma, has his fun with plunging V necklines, uncovering at least half of each breast.

The sexiest model ever shown by Patou is an ostrich jumpsuit, mounted on black chiffon worn over nothing. Several see-through ideas concentrated on mademoiselle's bosom were suggestive and seductive — the designer's objective.

The bridal gown is classic and beautiful. The model wore a white ostrich-feather bonnet, and carried a white feather bouquet instead of flowers.

A Russian influence runs through the sports scene. High Russian fur toques are worn with everything, and an evening coat in white wool is a Russian cadet's uniform.

WEDDING

MARKLE — DOUGHERTY

Christ Church, Belleville was the scene of the recent wedding ceremony when Barbara Lynne Dougherty, daughter of Mrs. Matilda Dougherty, Belleville and the late Mr. Dougherty was united in marriage to John Isaac Markle, son of Mrs. Laura Markle, Belleville and the late Mr. Frank Markle. Canon R. B. DeBlois Wright officiated at the ceremony and the organist was John C. Wright.

Given in marriage by her uncle Alfred Gaddard, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie with the lace bodice featuring a scalloped neckline and scalloped bell sleeves. Her crown headdress of aurora borealis sequins was caught to a three-tier veil of tulle. She carried a bouquet of white 'mums and baby red roses.

Aunt of the bride, Mrs. Ronald Goddard as matron of honor, chose a street-length gown of light blue sparkle crepe with matching headdress and shoulder-length veil, with a corsage of pink carnations. The younger sister of the bride, Miss Marilyn Dougherty as bridesmaid chose a yellow satin flowered brocade dress with nylon flower headdress, white accessories and a corsage of white and blue carnations.

Ian Kuzak, a brother-in-law attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Ronald Goddard, uncle of the bride and Ronald Galpin, nephew of the bridegroom.

For the reception at Club Canara, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a a street-length dress of rose lace over taffeta with white accessories and a corsage of white 'mums. Assisting was the mother of the groom who wore a mauve crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of white baby 'mums.

Leaving on the honeymoon trip to Toronto and points west, the bride chose a two-piece suit of turquoise silk knit with white accessories and a corsage of white baby 'mums.

On return the couple will reside in Belleville.

TOURS TOILETS

BUDAPEST (AP) — Imre Szkala, manager of the city's 116 public pay-toilets, said office routine bored him so he began making frequent inspection tours of the facilities. Police accused him of embezzling $45,000 in toilet fees during five years making the rounds.

VACATION TIME EXERCISES—Vacationers are advised to exercise while on holiday and here actress Willi Koopman illustrates a series of calisthenics which may be performed outdoors at such accessible items as tree, pole or dock piling.

Holiday Exercising Can Be Fun

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

Don't take an exercise "holiday" while on vacation. Continue practicing simple routines to keep body agile and weight under control. The assignment can be fun. As actress Willi Koopman illustrates, perform calisthenics outdoors and utilize such accessible items as a tree, pole or dock piling. Clasp the sturdy support, contract abdomen and lean back. Hold peak tenseness for 10 seconds, then relax and return to upright stance. The to-and-from movement of arms streamlines them, the press-release action of the stomach muscles flattens it into swimsuit condition.

Repeat four times in the cool of the day.

To put more zing in your workouts, keep this schedule in mind. Exercise one hour before or one hour after that picnic or swim; never perform on a full stomach. Also, stay slowly: wake-up sluggish muscles with a conditioning warm-up. For instance, a top-to-toe tingler that chases those summer doldrums begins by grasping a pole or support with the right hand; arch the left one overhead. Now in a cross-over movement, swing left leg and arm to the right. The further your reach, the greater the lateral extension. For maximum stretch, check elevated arm is held behind ear. Rehearse night times; alternate sides.

Many vacation time gymnasts find it stimulating working outdoors. They enjoy the clearness of the air and the exhilaration of deep breathing exercises. For instance, Willi takes a cue from her Universal flim "Don't Just Stand There"" and gets going with a new version of an exhalation drill. Designed to dispel stale air from the lungs, routine begins by inhaling through the nose, with arms swing arms back and raising left leg. Now, bend forward, press chest against elevated leg and slowly exude through mouth. The exhalation is made as one continuous breath. Practice four times, alternate sides, and, if necessary, use a support for balance.

P.S. Those new belted fashions have made girls figure-conscious! If you'd like to lose inches around the waist, hips, or thighs, or just firm the torso, send for our brand new, progress exercise drill. It's a handy fact sheet you can take on your vacation or to the office.

Paris Fashions Beautiful

PARIS (AP) — Jeanne Lanvin's winter collection is beautifully styled, featuring new fabrics with rich, glitzering embroidery reminiscent of the Italian and French Renaissance.

His new silhouette concentrates on the Japanese judo tunic which is treated for day in Paris black and for evening in plain or novelty fabrics.

Jules Francois Crahay, Lanvin's designer, resorts to variations of the tunics as styled wrap around sheaths. Most are fringed and there is a wide choice of fringes in cocktail and evening clothes.

Many of these simple, clinging sheaths show a Persian influence and are decorated in Korean embroideries.

Nearly all models for after five wear are cluttered with multiple, jewel chains, some reaching almost to the floor-length hemlines.

Daytime hemlines clear the kneecaps and are often two or three inches above.

Marie Christine, Lanvin's 15-year-old Mannequin, showed no stage fright in her first public appearance. Hair stylist Alexander made her bridal headdress a fantasy dedicated to the glory of Venice.

New Canadian Breakthrough In Films Producer Claims

MONTREAL (CP) — Producer Paul Almond, delighted with the success of his all-Canadian film Isabel released this week in New York, describes it as Canada's breakthrough for feature-length films.

Success comes doubly sweet for the writer-producer-director because his wife, Montrealer Geneviève Bujold, is being called "a great actress" for her title role in the film.

Isabel, written by Mr. Almond, is filmed on the picturesque Gaspe Peninsula with an all-Canada crew, actors and equipment.

"It has had 15 rave reviews in New York," Mr. Almond said. "It shows that a film that is Canadian from top to toe can be successful. The next Canadian that goes with a script to New York . . . ."

The film, begun within weeks of his marriage to Miss Bujold in March, 1967, was written for the young actress.

"But I have no control over the writer-producer-director who because his wife, Montrealer Geneviève Bujold, is being called "a great actress" for her title role in the film.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, JULY 26, 1968

CITY COUNCIL will be faced with six possible crossings of the CN tracks in the city's northeast end at its next meetings. With the decision being made to replace the existing grade crossing on Highway 37, planning staff and traffic engineers are recommending route 1. Planning board members, after turning down first four routes in map above, have suggested route on far right which would have its southern junction at the Hambly-Emily intersection.

CN Crossing Dilemma

Planning Board and Staff Differ on Rerouting; City Council Faced With Arterial Road Decision

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

City council at its next meeting will be faced with a decision on the location of an overpass over the CN tracks to eliminate the present Cannifton Rd. grade crossing.

Complicating the question is the proper location of an north-south arterial road to serve the expanding north-east industrial park.

Proposals for the overpass-arterial road have been before the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board for two months.

Closing of Cannifton Rd. and construction of an alternate route over the CNR tracks has been advised by traffic engineers because of the CN's intention of putting high-speed turbo-jets on its main line next year.

Increased traffic on both the railway and city streets will lead to the eventual elimination of all grade crossings in the city.

In June Planning board and its staff disagreed on the location of the overpass.

The staff recommended a Dumas and Smith proposal of May 31, 1967, using Herchimer Ave. as a main freder route into the 700-acre industrial park in the north-east section of the city, with the road swinging west and crossing the CN tracks at Byron St.

The board members rejected this plan, and sent the staff back to the drawing board to prepare a plan to members' specifications.

It called for straightening of the Cannifton Rd. curve by swinging it to the east, and relocating the southern end of the road near the intersection of Emily, Albion and Station streets.

Board members called for a traffic artery funnelling vehicles from north of the city to the downtown area.

Last night, two plans were presented by assistant planning director Frank Stokmkins.

The one favored by most members diverted Cannifton Road east to eliminate the curve between McFarland and Byron streets.

From the overpass, traffic would be fed into Hambly street and emerge as the intersection of Hambly and Emily. Traffic going east would proceed down Emily to Bleecker Ave. Traffic going west or south would turn right on Emily and proceed to the intersection of Emily and Station streets.

Cost to the city would be $115,000. The CN, Canada Transport, and Ontario department of highways would pay the major part of the $693,000 total cost.

The city's share of the Herchimer Ave. route favored by planning staff would be $300,000.

Ald. E. A. Orr said the new proposal met board members' objections. It moved traffic into the dowotown area and was considerably cheaper than previous proposals.

Replied planning director P. J. Beavis: "You are going to get just what you pay for — a second rate traffic pattern."

"We are not primarily interested in moving 200 people living in Cannifton to the downtown area of Belleville", he added.

"We are trying to get about 12,000 people from the south-east section of the city to work in the north-east industrial park area".

"If the remainder of the city is provided with proper traffic patterns, there will be at least six ways of moving traffic downtown".

The planning staff's proposed road patterns are based on an expected city population of 82,000 in 1980. Of these, 19,000 will live in the south-east quadrant of the city, 4,000 in north-east, 9,000 in the north-west and 20,000 in the south-west.

Before it began its deliberations on the proposed road, the board heard J. B. Corke, speaking for the Downtown Business men's Association, ask that "the vital necessity of maintaining a busy and vital downtown area" be considered.

The board finally agreed to hand over all the proposed Cannifton Rd. over-pass schemes to city council, with the recommendation that the Hambly St. scheme be chosen and pre-engineering studies be prepared.

Official Opening Delayed

TRENTON — An official opening date for Trenton's MacDonald bridge still remains unknown.

Mayor James MacDonald said today that "no move has yet been made for an official opening."

The bridge has been in operation since June 14. At that time various dignitaries were unavailable to assist in the ceremonies.

However an official opening, hopefully involving the Minister of Transport, will be forthcoming.

"We will soon be taking future action for such an opening," added Mayor MacDonald.

Being in operation for over a month the bridge has proved to be a much needed asset to the town.

There are no longer traffic tie ups at the old bridge. These were previously caused when the bridge swung to let oncoming boats pass.

Situated near the bridge is the Trenton Fire Department who find that the new bridge gives them immediate access to any part of town.

Police Investigate Breaks

Belleville City Police are investigating a series of house break-ins which occurred last night or early this morning.

A home owned by Peter Zamanis at 26 Green Street was broken into last night sometime prior to 2.20 a.m.

Police say that entrance was gained through a side door after a milk box was broken to enable the thieves to get their hands inside to undo the lock.

Nothing was taken from the home.

A second break - in occurred last night at 13 Lee Street it the home of William Argue. Time of the offence has not been established.

Thieves got away with a purse, cash and a bond valued collectively at $100.

Entrance was gained by sliding a screen and window back in the kitchen.

Come On, Let's Go

Enthusiastic spectators put their all into cheering on their teams. This young fellow cheers for his particular recreation park, one of six in Picton that entered teams for the track and field meet here.

It Looks Like Fun But It's for Real

PICTON (Staff) — Surely no athlete competes with the same intensity as children.

Without any prizes, not even ribbons, but merely the honor of their playground to defend, they'll run their hearts out.

They jump up and down, they scream, they even cry, all in support of their team.

That was the situation here yesterday. Some 500 children, mostly under 12, took part in the third annual recreation and parks track and field day.

The event had been postponed from the day before, because of poor weather. That may have helped heighten the intensity of the competition.

A whole day is a long time, when you are only seven and you're waiting for your chance to prove yourself.

In any case the weather yesterday was perfect, track and field climate, hot and muggy. It didn't seem to bother the kids. Organizers may have found themselves heading for the shade, but boy oh boy, when that old cinder track is awaiking, and there's a finish line up ahead . . .

Organizer of the event, John Hardon, said he was amazed at the enthusiasm of the children.

The event was the first of its kind in Picton. In the past explained Mr. Hardon, children competed in three legged races, box rakes and similar events. This year, the event was styled on high school track and field meets.

There's an incredible amount of potential athletic talent in this county, he said. "We want to interest the children in athletics as soon as possible."

Winners of the meet will not be compiled until sometime later today. The top three winners in each event however will go on to compete with teams from Belleville and Trenton.

The first of the three meets will be held in Picton, July 29.

And oh yes, the playground the ice cream it can eat, with the top score, gets all

There's supposed to be a race around here somewhere, but young Ruth Gilinlski wasn't just too sure where it was. She was one of 500 children yesterday that turned out for the track and field meet in Picton.

Als Claw Cup-Holding Ti-Cats

MONTREAL (CP) — Sophomore quarterback Carrell Williams masterminded a balanced running and passing attack Thursday night as Montreal Alouettes beat Hamilton Ticats, defending Grey Cup champions 34-15 before fewer than 15,000 fans.

Williams was in the pivot spot for four of Als' five touchdowns, while backup Ed Buzzell directed the fifth.

Montreal held the Ticats scoreless in the first half, although, 14 points in the third quarter and held them to one point in the fourth quarter.

Halfback Ed Tomlin sent Als ahead in the first quarter with two short touchdown runs of one and two yards on handoffs from Williams.

Mike Gray, usually used in a defensive halfback capacity, turned to offence against the Cats and caught a pair of aerials, one in the third from Williams and one in the fourth from Buzzell for touchdowns.

Tight end Fritz Greenlee scored the other Montreal touchdown, on a 30-yard pass from Williams.

Hamilton inserted Bill Redell at quarterback to replace Joe Zuger and the move paid off in the third quarter.

Redell sent halfback Tyrone Anthony over from 11 yards out on a draw play and then fired a second pass to veteran end Tommy Joe Coffey. Zuger added a 35-yard single with less than a minute remaining in the game.

Both Hamilton touchdowns were converted by Yugoslavia-born Bronco Belchesky, a soccer-type kicker who boots the ball with his bare right foot.

He had never played football before reporting to the Ticats Tuesday.

The Als had 27 first down to 21 for Hamilton, and travelled 153 yards on the ground and 248 in the air. The losers had 342 yards rushing and a slim 197 in the pass department.

The only time Hamilton threatened in the first half was when quarterback Bill Redell pitched out to halfback Dave Fleming on his own 10-yard line late in the second quarter.

CFL overseer Jake Gaudaur has taken action against what must be a bug-bear to coaches, if not players.

The football commissioner has undertaken a bench control program, to prevent incidents like one in last week's CFL tilt between Toronto and Hamilton.

When a play swerved off the field close to the Tiger-Cat bench, players not in the game became involved in a shoving and swinging duel, and matters almost got out of hand.

Gaudaur says players all too close to the field in some league stadiums, and that unauthorized persons are often allowed to stray into the bench area.

It brings to mind the Grey Cup game a few years back when a goal-line-bound back was tripped up along the sidelines by an anonymous spectator, one of hundreds lining the field.

But the bench proviso should also be heeded by coaches in all sports who are frequently guilty of letting their charges carry on random conversations with spectators.

Besides that, from the stands, it just doesn't look good.

COMMERCIAL LEAGUE play last night saw City Hotel overcome a six-run deficit and post a 9-6 win over Brant's. Here, City infielders Harry Green and "Pug" Kellar wait for ball as Brants' Steve Ling slides into second.

Cheeseman Foiled In Bid for No-Hitter

By JERRY HOFF
Staff Sportswriter

Stinson catcher Lyle Thompson poked an infield hit in the sixth inning to rob Black Diamond Cheese pitcher Sonny Holoway of a Commercial League no-hitter last night.

Thompson's hit may have hurt Sonny's pride, but it did little to further the Builders' cause. The Cheesemen took a 3-0 win to keep Stinsons in sight in the six-team standings.

Stinsons stands at 22 points, as does City Hotel while Black Diamond is only one game back at 20 points.

City Hotel got their share of second spot in last night's other game, overcoming a 6-0 lead in the first to down the Bodymen 9-6.

Black Diamond collected two of their winning tallies in the first on a solo homer by catcher Don Wood and an outfield error which sent Jack Francis around all four. Bob Neal, right fielder, drove in the final tally in the seventh.

Stinson's hurler Scotty Reid gave the Black Diamond batters three hits, but that was enough as Black Diamond took their third win of four Stinsons - Cheesemen contests this year.

CITY HOTEL 9 BRANTS 6

In the Brants contest, City Hotel got the surprise of their lives as cellar-dwelling Brants slammed six runs home in the initial frame and sent a frustrated Gerry Genereaux off the slab.

Bob Davenport came in for City to overcome the five-hit six-run inning and held Brants scoreless with one hit for the final six.

Mark Sheridan, Brants' hurler, saw his insurance dwindle away as City slowly accumulated their winning nine runs on six hits and five Brants errors.

Key blows in the big Brant first frame were a three-run homer by centrefielder Rod Bidley and a two-run fourgagger by catcher Ted Drumm.

Doug Dafoe and Tom Coolin copped doubles to lead City Hotel at the plate.

Today Tells Tale!

Nursing a whopping 110-point overall lead as she entered today's fourth and final archery event of the week in Regina, Belleville's Carol Armstrong looked an almost sure bet to retain her Canadian Women's Archery crown.

In Thursday's 30-target "field" round, the city bow-woman scored 516 out of a possible 600 points ,creasing her own 497 mark for the event. The feat was Carol's second record-breaking performance in the three rounds shot up to today's final "hunter's" competition.

And she's optimistic — Carol herself holds a 354 Canadian competitive record for the 900-point hunter shoot, in which the first arrow at each of 30 targets counts the archer's score.

Carol has now won each of the three events she has shot, and has a 2,473 point-total. Her closest rival is top British Columbia archer Betty McIntosh, who has a 2,363 overall score.

Gibson Wins Again; No Losses Since May 28

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Patience finally paid off for Jim Northrup and Joe Torre but against Bob Gibson it appeared almost useless.

National League hitters have been waiting in vain since May 28 for Gibson, St. Louis Cardinals' hard-tiring right hander, to lose.

The veteran hurler blanked Philadelphia Phillies 3-0 Thursday night on five hits for his 11th consecutive victory and eighth shutout of the season.

Now 14-5, Gibson has yielded more than three runs only once in those 19 decisions. In his last 22 innings he has allowed only two runs.

So the wait goes on against Gibson, but for Northrup and Torre, it was finally ended.

Northrup waited since July 4 and Torre since June 20 to break a home run slump.

Northrup had two homers, driving in three runs, as Detroit Tigers posted a 4-1 rain-abortened victory over Washington Senators in the only American League contest.

Torre unloaded a three-run shot in Atlanta Braves' 4-2 triumph over New York Mets.

In the only other game in the National League, Cincinnati Reds scored a 2-0 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Cardinals touched Chris Short, 9-10, for two runs in the fourth inning on Johnny Edwards' single. Two more scored in the fifth on Orlando Cepeda's double and Mike Shannon's hit, and Gibson doubled in the final run in the eighth as the Cardinals swept the four-game series, extending Philadelphia's losing streak to seven games.

Detroit, wrapped up a 6-9 slump since the All-Star break, raised its American League lead to 5½ games over idle Baltimore entering a three-game weekend series against the Orioles.

Northrup brought the Tigers in with a two-run shot in the first inning and a leadoff hit in the third, giving him 15 for the season and 59 runs batted in.

The homers made it easy for Joe Sparma, 8-9, who walked six men but allowed only a single by Paul Casanova before rain ended the contest after 6½ innings.

Atlanta had its troubles against the Mets' Dick Selma, who was coasting behind a one-hitter in a scoreless duel against Phil Niekro until his defense let him down.

With two out in the sixth inning, Felipe Alou tripled and third baseman Ed Charles booted a ground ball to break the tie. Hank Aaron's infield hit followed and then Torre unloaded his eighth homer.

Niekro raised his record to 10-7 with a six-hitter who'll Selma fell to 8-6.

George Culver, who pitched six innings to bring his record to 8-8, and Clay Carroll allowed Pittsburgh 13 hits, but stranded 11 runners.

The Reds won their sixth straight game with two out in the fourth inning against Bob Veale, 8-10, on consecutive singles by Johnny Bench, Tommy Helms and Don Pavletich and a double by Leo Cardenas.

TORONTO (CP) — Head coach Leo Cahill of Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference said Thursday reports of a beer-bottle bash in a Vancouver hotel involving his team were exaggerated, Vancouver police said empty beer bottles were tossed into the street early Thursday from a fifth-floor room registered to an Argo player. Cahill, in an interview after his players returned from Vancouver, said he suspended the team's normal 1 a.m. curfew Wednesday night because he thought the players were overdue for relaxation.

The Argonauts had just dropped a 46-7 decision to British Columbia Lions in a Canadian Football League game.

TORONTO (CP) — Jim Chang of Toronto's Royal Canadian Yacht Club took the lead in the Canadian Olympic 5.5-metre yachting trials Thursday when he won the seventh race of the nine-race series. Sandings after seven races: Chang, in first place with six points; Leibel, nine; Roman, 11.7; Hopp, 21.7 and Millen, 46. Scoring is under the Olympic system, with entrants permitted to disregard their two worst races.

Expansion?

"Not Dead Yet!"— Montreal Entry Backers

MONTREAL (CP) — Reacting to reports that a Buffalo, N.Y., group is ready to step in should Montreal not be able to participate in the expanded National League of baseball, sponsors of this city's newly-acquired franchise said Thursday night it still is too early to count Montreal out.

Doubts that Montreal will be fielding a team in 1969 were first raised Wednesday when a second member of the original seven-man syndicate backing the new baseball entry withdrew his investment.

He was Montreal financier J. Louis Levesque, and his pullout came only a day after another backer, Marc Bougie, a wealthy funeral director, withdrew his sponsorship.

Buffalo, one of the unsuccessful bidders for a franchise when Montreal and San Diego were added to the expanded 12-team league last May 27, responded to these developments by putting in a new bid in the event that Montreal interests default.

Bob Swados, a lawyer for Major League for Buffalo, Inc., advised the National League Expansion Committee and league president Warren Giles that Buffalo "can come forward immediately with all the funds, all the facilities and the organization required."

But Charles Bronfman, chairman of the board for the embryo Montreal team, said:

"Everybody is working hard and we'll be there when the time comes."

Lorne Webster, another of the remaining five backers, said he has been optimistic from the beginning and that "new business always have trouble."

Bronfman said he is not discouraged by the withdrawal of sponsorship by the two men, who represent an investment of $2,500,000 in an estimated $10,000,000 original franchise fee expected to increase to $14,000,000.

He and Webster and the other sponsors still behind the new baseball entry—John Newman and Sidney Mailin of Montreal and Robert Isray of Chicago—were working with Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal to replace the pair.

One of the names frequently being mentioned in this context is that of Lou Perini, a Boston construction magnate who was former owner of the Braves in Boston and Milwaukee and currently is a director of the National League's Atlanta Braves.

Bronfman said as long as "the control of the situation remains in Canada, we are interested in inviting everyone in."

Perini has not publicly acknowledged interest in the venture.

Giles said in New York he expected Montreal would be able to go through with its commitment. He had been in close touch with the situation and was prepared to go to Montreal in case of a crisis.

But he did not expect a crisis since the league had "anticipated these withdrawals."

"We had 10 backers of the franchise originally," Giles said. "Two never got that drops out, another member seems ready to take up the slack."

Dallas Always Available

DALLAS (AP) — Dick Butler, vice-president of Dallas-Fort Worth Sports, said Thursday night Dallas still would accept a National League baseball franchise if Montreal can't make the grade.

"At the National League expansion meeting at Chicago, when we were bypassed, Tommy Mercer co-owner of the Spurs made it plain that we would still be available at any time," Butler said.

"At the All-Star game in Houston, I talked to several owners and told them the same thing.

"I doubt that Montreal will really toss in the towel, certainly only as a last resort. It is mandatory for the National League to see that this doesn't happen if it can be avoided—to save face if nothing else."

Butler was asked if he felt Judge Roy Hofheinz of Houston Astros still would insist that Dallas-Fort Worth be excluded if Montreal folded.

He said: "Not necessarily. There was certainly more opposition to Buffalo and Milwaukee than there was to us at Chicago."

Major League for Buffalo, Inc., is ready to accept a franchise if Montreal interests default, a lawyer for the group said earlier Thursday.

But Charles Bronfman, chairman of the board for the embryo Montreal team said: "Everyone is working hard and we'll be there when the time comes."

Maybe Even Peking

NEW YORK (AP) — Imagine, if you can, a baseball series between the Tokyo Giants and the Peking Reds with Los Angeles Dodgers waiting in the wings to take on the winner.

A pipe dream? A fantasy?

Not at all, baseball commissioner William D. Eckert said today in his close friend, Toru Shoriki, president of the Yomiuri Giants, perennial Japanese baseball champions.

"My aim is to see that baseball goes global, that it's played by every country in the world," Eckert added. "Only last night I was telling Ted Sorenson (adviser to the late president John Kennedy) that it's my aim to see baseball taken behind the Bamboo Curtain into Communist China.

"With supersonic travel in the offing, I see baseball going to every corner of the world, including Communist countries. It would do much to solve world tensions."

Shoriki, prominent Tokyo publisher and sportsman, paid a courtesy call on the commissioner, who was Japan's guest on a visit of the Los Angeles Dodgers two years ago.

Six-foot Blonde Leads Open

TORONTO (CP) — Carol Mann played under unusual strain but finished as the first round leader Thursday in the $20,000 women's open golf championship.

"The pressure was really on because I felt I won the tournament last Sunday the wrong way and I had to prove some thing," the six-foot-three blonde said after carding a four-under-par 68.

Miss Mann was declared the winner of the Cincinnati Open last weekend after Marilynn Smith, the actual winner, was assessed a two-stroke penalty for slow play.

Sandra Post, the only Canadian on the U.S. women's professional circuit, and Sharon Miller of Battle Creek, Mich., blamed slow play warnings for their disappointing showings Thursday.

Miss Post was 10 strokes behind the leader with 78 and Miss Miller, who had a three-under par 70 in the pro-am test Wednesday, finished with 77.

Miss Mann received a similar warning but praised the officiating and the course.

Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto, one of the 18 Canadian amateurs playing in the 54-hole medal-play tournament, tied for second place with Pam Barnett and Sandra Spuzich, both of the U.S. at two-under 71.

Only two other golfers—Australians Patty Berg and Clifford Ann Creed—managed to break par over the 6,448-yard Bayview Golf and Country Club course. Each had a 72.

Amateur Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan Falls, Que., Americans Jo Ann Prentice, Gloria Ehret, Sandra Palmer, Sharon Miller and Sybil Griffins and Gerda Whalen of West Germany all finished at par 73.

Using the customary three-wood off the tees, Miss Post appeared to have trouble with her drive and hooked and sprayed frequently.

"I've just never played like that before," said Miss Post, tears in her eyes.

Canada's first U.S. women's pro golf titlist, upset over slow play warnings issued to her and her partners, blamed her poor showing on the rush of the play.

"We were almost running out there," she said.

The 20-year-old Oakville, Ont., shotmaker, who won the LPGA title five weeks ago, was making her pro debut before a gallery of some 300 Toronto and hometown fans, a good crowd for women's golf.

"I've just never played like that before," she said in an interview. "I didn't take a practice swing... I didn't even get a chance to read putts. I just stepped up and hit them."

Tournament supervisor Len Wirtz said several groups were warned.

"The amateur in that (Sandra's) group took 89 shots and was in the trees on the eighth where the first back-up occurred," said Wirtz.

"But we took that into consideration. In another case, on the 10th hole, Alice Gwinner had to walk all the way back to the tee to hit a second shot after losing the first one in the woods. But they hurried and caught up."

However, Miss Mann had nothing but praise for the officiating.

Five Under

Homenuik Leading On Tough Edmonton Course

EDMONTON (CP) — The tough Edmonton Country Club course yielded only four sub-par rounds Thursday in the first round of the Alberta open golf championship.

Wilf Homenuik took a commanding lead in the tournament with a five-under-par 66, three strokes ahead of Herb Holzscheiter of Toronto.

Vaughn Trapp of Victoria and Robert Young of Toronto were tied for third at 70.

Homenuik, playing a precise game, missed only two greens and scored a three-under-par 32 on the front nine followed by a two-under-par 33 on the back nine.

Homenuik said the course was the best conditioned he had played on in Canada and "if you get a good shot you get credit for it."

Club professional Brian Copp, who Thursday shot a 76, said the course would receive additional toughening before today's round.

The tees would be moved back and the pins given tougher placements from their relatively easy positions Thursday.

Three amateurs, including Alberta junior champion Roger Klatt of Edmonton, were among six golfers tied for fifth place at 71.

With Klatt, who won the junior championship last week in Edmonton, are Mike Mooney of Red Deer and Norm Gray of Calgary.

Professionals Len Harvey of Regina, Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver and Frank Fowler of Calgary were also at 71.

Nine golfers, including Moe Nayman of Toronto, were bunched at 72 in a tie for 19th place.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were sharply off in mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Volume was well below average. Golds, oils and rediscs, however, did not share in the downturn as construction stocks were steady.

International Nickel fell 1¼ to 50, Falconbridge ¾ to 100, Simpsons ½ to 37, CPR ¼ to 50¼, Steloco ¼ to 43¼ and Bell ¼ to 43¼.

Among the most active stocks, Inco and Canadian Imperial Bank lost ¼ each to 42 and 16¾ and Massey-Ferguson ¼ to 18. Seaway Hotels added ¼ to 17¾.

Argus Corp. was up ¼ to 16¾. Kaps Transport ¼ to 25¾ and Harvey's Fopaco ¼ to 25¾.

Noranda fell ¼ to 49. Half-yearly profits increased 6.3 per cent. Hudson Bay Mining was off ¼ to 15¼. Six-month earnings dropped to 60 cents a share compared with $1.04 last year.

Newly-listed Gulf Malleable Iron Ltd. of Galt, Ont., traded at 10 on 200 shares. The company manufactures malleable iron castings and truck, camping, marine and plumbing accessories.

Great West Life lost ¼ to 63¼. Half-yearly sales were up. Power Corp. slipped ¼ to 9¾. The company has acquired over 80 per cent of the common shares of Trans-Canada Corp. Fund.

In oils, Dome Pete fell 1 to 25. Husky ¼ to 25¼ and Pacific Pete ¼ to 6¾. Central Del. rose 2 to 36¼. Patino Mining dropped 2¼ to 28¼ and Gunnar Mining rose ¼ to 3.90.

Nietzsche's Advice on Keeping Peace

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The most thoughtful and relevant words I can find for our time were written by Nietzsche in 1880, in which this great (and much misunderstood) thinker came to grips with the basic problem afflicting the human race:

"The means to real peace: No government admits that it keeps an army to satisfy occasionally the desire for conquest. Rather, the army is supposed to serve for defense, and one invokes the morality that approves of self-defence.

"But this implies one's own morality and the neighbor's immorality; for the neighbor must be thought of as eager to attack and conquer if our state must think of means of self-defence.

"Moreover, the reasons we give for requiring an army imply that our neighbor, who denies the desire for conquest just as much as does our own state, is a hypocrite and a cunning criminal who would like nothing better than to overpower a harmless and awkward victim without any fight.

"Thus, all states are now ranged against each other; they presuppose their neighbor's bad disposition and their own good disposition. This presupposition, however, is inhumane, as bad as war and worse. At bottom, indeed, it is itself the challenge and the cause of wars . . . We must abjure the doctrine of the army as a means of self - defence just as completely as the desire for conquests.

"And perhaps the great day will come when a people, distinguished by wars and victories and by the highest development of a military order, and accustomed to make the heaviest sacrifices for these things, will exclaim of its own free will, "We break the sword,' and will smash its entire military establishment to its foundations.

"Rendering oneself unarmed when one had been the best armed out of a height of feeling — that is the means to real peace.. which must always rest on a peace of mind; whereas the so-called armed peace, as it exists now in all countries, is the absence of peace of mind. One trusts neither oneself nor one's neighbor and, half from hatred, half from fear, does not lay down arms.

"Rather perish than hate and fear, and twice rather perish than make one set hated and feared — this must some day become the highest maxim for every single commonwealth, too . . . They work in vain when they work for 'a gradual decrease of the military burden.' The tree of warglory can only be destroyed all at once, by a stroke of lightning."

These are harsh and terrible words, almost too frightening to contemplate. Yet there have been a hundred big and little wars since Nietzsche wrote them, and the biggest is yet to come. Is it barely possible that nothing less than his drastic recommendation may save us?

Sunday School Lesson

The Fourth Freedom

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Last winter, a group of Christian clergy and laymen met in Washington, D.C. to protest the Vietnam war. In connection with their protest, a group of the leaders planned to meet for prayer in the government-owned Arlington Cemetery. They were denied permission to do this. In response to this refusal, the leaders met in the cemetery for an early morning silent vigil without any audible prayers being uttered.

Does a civil government have the right to tell any person when, where, or if he may pray? Does any government have the right to enforce or deny religious attitudes? This issue was faced early in the U.S. when Roger Williams insisted that the Massachusetts authorities had no right to enforce the "first table," or strictly religious precepts of the ten commandments. For his stand, he was sentenced to be sent back to England, but he fled from the colony, and sought sanctuary through the winter in an Indian village. Later he secured permission from the king of England to establish a colony of Providence where he began the "lively experiment" of separation of church and state.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for July 28: "Daniel Prays For His People," Daniel 9:1-23.

There are still countries that seek to deny the right of worship to certain religious groups. Communist countries profess to permit freedom of worship, but drastically limit all religious activities. The United States, on the other hand, has sought zealously to safeguard the right of all religious groups to worship and evangelize so long as they do not actually disturb the peace.

The first amendment of the constitution guarantees this right, and prevents the government from interfering to help or hinder any specific religious group.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt announced freedom of worship as one of the four basic freedoms, the other three being freedom of speech, freedom from want, and freedom from fear. Freedom of religion has led to a harmonious relationship between the various religious groups, and has prevented the ugly stain of religious persecution from soiling the record of the United States.

The Hebrew youth, Daniel, faced this problem in his day. Daniel was reared to be a man of prayer, and though he was in exile forced to serve in the palace of a foreign king, he maintained his custom of praying to the God of Israel. (Daniel 2:20-23)

Knowing Daniel to be a man of prayer, his enemies plotted his downfall by persuading the king to proclaim an edict forbidding all prayer or petition except to the king, for a period of 30 days under penalty of death. Daniel felt that the ruling powers had no right to interfere with his religious life, therefore he practiced civil disobedience by continuing to pray facing Jerusalem every day. (Daniel 6:10) For this offence, he was reported to the king who regretfully ordered Daniel's death. But Daniel's life was miraculously spared, and he lived to continue his prayers to God for the welfare of his people. (Daniel 9:3-19)

There are some rights the state has no right to take from a person, because the state did not grant them in the first place. Every person should have the right to worship according to the dictates of his own conscience because he is a child of God, and as such, he has the right to talk to his heavenly Father. And yet what tragic suffering has been caused because both church and state have often tried to dictate how a person may, or may not, worship.

While it is a tragedy to be denied the right of worship it is equally tragic to have that freedom, and fail to use it. In Russia many people are still jailed for their religious activities. In the United States all men have the right to worship and support the church of their choice, yet many make no effort to use this freedom. Many decry the communists' denial of God, and their emphasis on atheism, yet they are guilty of practical atheism in their own lives in that they never turn to God in prayer and worship.

It took courage for Daniel to be a man of prayer. As homeone has said, he could not pray near his window without sticking his neck out. He almost paid for the right to pray with his life. Many have given their lives to earn the freedom of religion for others.

Auction Urged for Milk Sold Cheese Plants

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Milk sales to cheese factories should be handled through auction, a committee studying the Ontario cheese industry was told Thursday.

J. D. Rossiter of J. M. Schneider Ltd. in Kitchener told a committee meeting the auction system would make it easier for factories to control the volume of milk needed for cheese production.

The five-man committee, set up May 1 by the Ontario government, hopes to have a report on the problems within the cheese industry ready for Agriculture Minister William Stewart by October.

The committee has asked cheese buyers, producers and salesmen to prepare briefs on the industry and present them to the committee for study.

Dr. D. M. Irvine of the University of Guelph's diary science department, representing Ontario specialty cheese producers, agreed with Mr. Rossiter and said the Ontario milk marketing board had too much control over the supply of milk to cheese factories.

He said too much money was spent by the provincial and federal governments on promoting the export sales of cheddar cheeses while specialty cheese got no promotion.

Dr. Irvine said high tariffs protect Canadian cheddar cheese but Canadian specialty cheeses have no protection from foreign competition.

R. G. Gault, representing western Ontario cheese producers, said smaller cheese factories should shut down during the winter months because of an overproduction from November to March.

He said the smaller factories would like to co-operate on this proposal but feel they would encounter difficulties beginning production again in the spring.

Ross Raylor of Belton, also representing the western Ontario producers, urged that one central Canadian body be organized to decide prices, advertising and marketing procedures for all provinces.

Trudeau Has Fun in Arctic

By GERRY McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"My name is Philip Ouale, and I am the oldest man in Grise Fiord," the Eskimo, his knees knocking and his big hands shaking, said. "This boy beside me is Paul Asee."

"We are very glad to see you with our own eyes. We are very thankful that for the first time a prime minister has come to Grise Fiord."

Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the first prime minister to venture into the high Arctic, set before the old man and the boy in a tiny hall at Grise, where the whole Eskimo community of 94 had gathered.

Grise Fiord is the most northerly Canadian Eskimo habitation in the world. It sits on a tiny lip of rock beneath the ponderous cliffs and glaciers at the foot of Ellesmere Island, about 1,200 miles from the North Pole.

The twin-Otter that brought Mr. Trudeau to the settlement curved through cold, thin mist over frozen Jones Sound, and landed on a short, mushy sand strip.

The prime minister, who also flies, looked at bush pilot Weldom Phipps with admiration after the landing.

Once off the plane, Mr. Trudeau shook hands with the women in their beautiful embroidered parkas, their fresh-faced children and the tough, gentle men, who live by hunting whales and seals.

Then they all trapsed a grassy mile to the village—there are no passenger vehicles in Grise Fiord—where the Eskimos held a square-dance in honor the visitor.

For the Eskimos in Grise Fiord, as in other places where the prime minister has stopped this week, the reality of a Canadian "relief" has a British leader has become apparent in Mr. Trudeau.

Wearing a tan parka, a sweater, ascot tie, slacks and loafers, he is charming the North and being disarmed by its people—not only the Eskimos but the whites who love him, too.

The Trudeau tour has been as casual in style as the prime minister himself.

At Longstaff Bluff he climbed into the back of a pickup truck for the five-mile drive from the airfield to the base.

Part way there, a twin-engine plane came roaring in from icy Foxe Basin and playfully buzzed the truck, passing only yards over it.

"Did you get his number?" the prime minister asked secretary Marc Lalonde.

The pilot, told later who he had teased, nearly fainted. But by then, Mr. Trudeau was wheeling a Japanese motorbike about the airfield with boyish glee.

"Hey, this is fun," he said. "Where's the brake?"

Earlier this week, he took the controls of an Air Force Hercules, one of the biggest aircraft in Canada, for 30 minutes en route to Alert.

Manitoba Town Admits Exclusion of Indians

MACGREGOR, Man. (CP) — Yes, townspeople say, it is true they and their elected leaders blocked the sale of two houses because relief-roll Indian families would have been the new occupants. And yes, they leaned on the owners with the considerable pressure of small town public opinion.

Their case is that while they have no objections to the principle of Indians moving into white communities—a migration which has the endorsement of the Manitoba government—the provincial welfare department was planning to foist on them members of a clan of shiftless, house-wrecking troublemakers.

Town and municipal officials took reporters on a tour Wednesday which included a stop at a house they identified as one the welfare department wanted to vacate in favor of a town dwelling.

Tables were overturned; flies were everywhere. Almost the entire floor of one bedroom was littered with debris from drawers and cupboards. Three abandoned automobiles, one upside down, littered the yard.

NDP Seeking Delay In Trespassing Cases

TORONTO (CP) — Donald MacDonald, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, Thursday urged the provincial government to seek an adjournment of trespassing charges laid by owners of Lake Erie beach properties which are scheduled to come before the courts Aug. 6.

Mr. MacDonald said he adjournment should be sought to permit the government to clarify public policy on future use of the beaches, which now were largely held by Americans.

The first in a series of demonstrations against exclusion of the public from the Lake Erie waterfront is scheduled for 2 p. m. EDT Sunday, July 28, at Wildwood Beach in Humberstone Township.

Mr. MacDonald said the private owners, "most of whom are American forbidden by law from acquiring such beach property on their own side of Lake Erie," are pressing the trespassing charges against local residents who have challenged their rights to exclusive use of the waterfront.

Drapeau Spears de Gaulle With Lesson in History

'We Survived By Ourselves'

MONTREAL (CP) — In a stirring statement of faith in a bilingual Canada, Mayor Jean Drapeau publicly rebuked French President de Gaulle's pro-separatist speeches Wednesday.

At a civic luncheon for the president shortly before his abrupt departure for France, the Montreal mayor said most French - Canadians are deeply attached to Canada.

"We have learned to survive for two centuries, by ourselves."

He said that until recently France had paid no attention to French-Canadians who had preserved and developed their culture against heavy odds without any help from their mother country.

"We are not here to make short-term gains, but to export our culture and serve Canada better. . . . We are attached to this immense country."

President de Gaulle fidgeted nervously and looked peeved as Mayor Drapeau subtly speared him for 25 minutes in an off-the-cuff speech in French before 400 invited guests.

In a brief reply, the president said the mayor's words would "reach very far," but he again urged Quebec to become "its own master."

He made only a brief reference to the fact that his invitation to Canada had been offered by the prime minister.

In proposing a toast to the mayor, the president stressed that he was mainly toasting the population of Montreal and that he could not endorse the mayor's remarks completely.

Micheners Dine Well

OTTAWA (CP)—Since French President de Gaulle did not show up for dinner, Governor-General and Mrs. Michener were left to dine alone on Arctic char that had been prepared for their expected guest.

Included in the menu were consomme trianon, veal, artichoke hearts, souffle glace and petits fours.

"Vive de Gaulle,
Vive de Gaulle,
Vive de Gaulle . . ."

Ottawa Nervous

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal officials awaited with some apprehension today the inevitable repercussions from l'affaire de Gaulle.

Concern was expressed that the French president's abrupt departure from Montreal Tuesday might seriously harm Franco-Canadian relations.

There was also anxiety that relations between Quebec and Ottawa may be headed into another period of ennui.

Regret, touched with sadness, beyonded the reaction here both to Gen. de Gaulle's unprecedented early exit and the whole, emotion - charged affair that gave rise to it.

Some officials prophesied that relations between France and Canada will sink into a deep-freeze period following Gen. de Gaulle's Ottawa - snubbing departure.

There was speculation that the French government might temporarily close its embassy here, on the general's instructions, or that ambassador Francois Leduc might be called home, leaving the embassy under the temporary jurisdiction of a charge d'affaires.

General Has Departed But Confusion Remains

MONTREAL (CP)— The sudden departure of President de Gaulle left confusion in its wake.

The only gainers appeared to be the minority separatist groups whose most prominent spokesman, if less than a week, switched from complete indifference regarding the de Gaulle visit to hand - wagon acclaim.

Otherwise, French - speaking Quebecers generally appeared to feel dismay.

Although the French-speaking public was enthusiastic, the tour in many ways got off on the wrong foot.

Details of his reception were the object of interminable and infuriating low - level wrangling among protocol representatives of federal and Quebec government representatives.

Seasoned reporters got a cynic impression of some aspects of the visit that, without doubt, the people of Quebec wished to be an adult and genuine reclaim for a hero of France and world figure. They wanted it without political collision and its unhappy conclusion.

The results of the visit revived many questions that have to be solved in Canada and casts shadows over some accomplishments.

Aside from the major matter of Ottawa - Quebec relations, points of concern are:

1. Effects of the controversy on Expo 67.

2. Effect of world - wide interpretation of de Gaulle's remarks and speeches in Quebec on the difficult and delicate field of financial credit available to the province.

3. Responsibility for events that may be attributed to Premier Daniel Johnson who was President de Gaulle's aide during many of his public appearances in Quebec.

4. Effects on Montreal.

5. Effects on the everyday relationships of French-speaking and English - speaking Canadians, which in recent years have been difficult.

In general French - language newspaper editorials deplored the turn of events and questioned what advisers may have told President de Gaulle about the touchy aspects of Canadian Confederation in its 101st year.

Claude Ryan, publisher and respected editorial writer of Montreal Le Devoir, said Wednesday that underneath issues aroused by the president's visit remains the "fundamental reality" that in Canada there are "two views of liberty, two communities which, without being opposed, are sharply distinct one from the other."

Pearson, Free Us

MONTREAL (CP) — About 20 persons, identifying themselves as coming from Brittany in northern France, staged a demonstration in midtown Place Ville Marie Wednesday in favor of what they called greater rights for their area of France.

Seven of the demonstrators were taken into custody by police but later were released.

"Mr. de Gaulle, charity begins at home," said one placard carried by the demonstrators.

Another read: "Lester B. Pearson, please free us."

"It was quite amusing for us, here in Montreal, to hear de Gaulle encourage Quebec separatists when at home there are 3,500,000 Bretons who aren't allowed even to speak their own language."

Mr. Morlde said a Breton family wasn't baptize a child with a native name. He must be given a French name."

Bretons wanted a change in the French constitution giving them official recognition.

Parting of Ways

Beneath Montreal subway sign, President Charles de Gaulle seems to ponder his next move. Before his departure from Canada he took a subtle lecture from Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau.

Whitey Hit 'In Money'

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 100 Negro teen-agers, hitting the white man "in the money," ran wild on Fifth Avenue early today, smashing windows and looting stores along one of the most fashionable shopping streets in the world.

Policemen, ordered "to stand fast and shoot if necessary," raced into the area in 40 patrol cars and arrested 20 looters. A shop owner said they had stolen $15,000 in merchandise from his men's store.

At Columbus Circle, another Negro mob was reported to have attacked a young married couple and stripped the 24-year-old woman nude.

Kosygin Ready To Risk Break

TOKYO (AP) — The Yomiuri Shimbun, a major Tokyo newspaper, reported Wednesday Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin has said his country is ready to bring peace to Vietnam even at the risk of breaking ties with China.

The paper said in a dispatch from Warsaw that Kosygin made this known to Japanese Foreign Minister Takeo Miki when they met in Moscow last Saturday.

News Briefs

LONDON (AP) — The Cunard Line said Wednesday night it has agreed in principle to sell the aging transatlantic liner Queen Mary to the City of Long Beach, Calif., for use as a maritime museum and hotel.

SAIGON (CP)—The Viet Cong today launched a mortar and rocket attack that killed 11 U.S. soldiers and wounded 43 defending an airstrip 56 miles northeast of Saigon.

Le Grand Charles Gives Final Slap

MONTREAL (CP)—The state visit of Charles de Gaulle ended abruptly Wednesday, leaving Franco-Canada relations in severe strain and the domestic political pot boiling over.

After shouting separatist slogans across Quebec for four days and speech under international fire, the French president cancelled an Ottawa visit without explanation and flew back to Paris.

"Le grand Charles" administered a final slap to Ottawa from somewhere over the Atlantic when he cabled his thanks for a "magnificent reception" to Premier Johnson of Quebec, whom he addressed as "his excellency."

This title is reserved for the Governor-General, who invited Gen. de Gaulle and scores of other heads of state to visit Canada during centennial celebrations and to whom such messages normally are addressed.

Violence Spreads

Mobs Run Amok in 10 Cities

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Staff Writer

The fury of mob violence continued to sear U.S. cities today with at least 10 communities hit by fresh disturbances overnight. Texas its moderate Negro leaders for peace went unheeded.

Phoenix police fought gangs of Negro youths for four hours before a rigidly enforced curfew coupled with systematic patrols and arrests combined to restore calm early today.

Sniper fire rang through the streets for the second night as vandals looted stores without regard for their ownership. Ten youths were arrested when they broke the window of a Negro-owned liquor store.

National guard troops rolled into South Bend, Ind., after bands of youthful Negroes staged a second night of rock throwing.

Police in San Francisco said several gasoline bombs were hurled in a supermarket in the city's Negro district and reported one youth wounded by a market guard.

"O say can you see,
By the dawn's early light . . ."

Dawn Peaceful in Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—Day came peacefully today over Detroit, hit by the costliest racial explosion in United States history.

Soldiers afoot and in tanks, armored cars and helicopters enforced strict military control of the disheveled city after several hours of siege on stubborn, last-ditch nests of snipers.

In the showery darkness before dawn, helicopters gave troops guidance as their searchlights shone on rooftops to betray hidden gunmen.

The last four hours before sunup passed with only two reports of snipers.

Arrests, mostly for curfew violation, mounted to 3,100, but between midnight and 6 a.m.

Today's Chuckle

The first thing for a man to do after he finds he's been born equal, is to try to outgrow it.

they increased by only 190, small by comparison with other periods since the riot erupted.

"With the exception of pockets of snipers, we have the city under control," said Lt.-Gen. Throckmorton, military commander in this city of 1,700,000, after four agonizing days of terror.

The death toll reached 36 during the night.

Among the latest casualties was a white man trying to break into a store outside the main Negro-populated riot area that centres on 12th Street.

The appalling count of death and destruction in Detroit exceeded even that of the 1965 Watts riot in Los Angeles. More than 1,000 were injured here. Damage was assessed at $500,000,000 and expected to mount.

Food was scarce in the 82-block west side area, where the riot began along 12th Street, a main artery.

Rooftop gunmen unleashed treacherous fire Wednesday afternoon. It was the worst daylight sniping of the riot.

A force of 225 policemen was brought in Wednesday from Fort Riley, Kans. They were unarmed, their use as improvised bombers considered but rejected by the military.

At Grand Boulevard and 12th, scene of a furious gun battle earlier in the week, soldiers set up a checkpoint. They stopped all cars, searching for weapons.

Nearby, a volley of fire from two tanks flushed three suspected snipers uninjured from a house.

Detroit was divided into two distinct battle zones. U.S. paratroops held strong control of the east side. Beleaguered and weary national guardsmen were assigned to the west side.

There are 4,800 paratroops in the city and 6,000 guardsmen. Detroit's 4,300-man police force was beefed up with 600 Michigan state troopers.

Victims of the Riot

De Gaulle Faces Reckoning at Home

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle's abortive Canadian venture will put to a trying test the loyalties of his cabinet and his tissue - thin majority in the French National Assembly.

An accident of the calendar—it is vacation time in France—may save the 76-year-old president from an immediate political confrontation.

But when the assembly goes back to work in early October, the sparks may begin to fly.

The Canadian affair, which grew out of what appeared to be a deliberately charted effort by de Gaulle to boost Quebec separatism, stunned opinion in France. But so far there has been no concerted riposte by de Gaulle's political opposition.

Newspapers on the left of the few sounding boards at this time of the year. Almost unanimously with the marked exception of the Communist party's Humanite — they have sharply rebuked de Gaulle for his behavior in Canada.

Ordinary Frenchmen, including many Gaullists de Gaulle's camp, can make no sense out of his trumpeting the Quebec separatist rallying cry of "Long live free Quebec."

There is some speculation that de Gaulle was trying to take a cut at both British and the United States by encouraging Quebec to go its own way.

Despite the president's 4 a.m. arrival hour today, he seemed not the least perturbed by the critical fallout as he stepped from the plane with a broad smile and heartily shook hands with the welcomers.

City Petitioned

Hillcrest Residents May Get Water Service

Construction of the new watermain to serve the industrial area in the northeast section of the city has created an unexpected demand for city water service by Herman Ave. residents in the Hillcrest district.

In all probability, these residents would have wanted city water in any event but their request for service has been speeded up by the fact that at least five wells along the street have gone dry. Residents claim the problem is caused by excavations for watermain installation along the next street.

Area residents have petitioned city hall for water service and this will be provided as soon as possible by the public utilities commission.

Utilities manager E. L. Burnham said the Herman Street petition was properly signed and the required main would be installed as soon as possible.

First however, the project would have to be approved by the Ontario municipal board and the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Mr. Burnham admitted it was quite possible that blasting or excavation for the "big inch" watermain along Centre Street, may have interfered with wells in the area.

He said the commission was aware of the complaints but added Herman Street residents were being very reasonable about it all.

"Most of them want city water service," he said.

Construction of the "big inch" watermain is now completed through the Hillcrest area as far as Adam Street and the contractor is now blasting to complete the installation to the new Superior Electric plant.

The new main is 24 inch along East College Street to Centre Street dropping to a 16 inch pipe for the run along Centre Street to Superior Electric.

Most of the residents along Centre Street have either installed city water service or are making preparations for installation.

Here residents are paying frontage charges only for a 6 inch main, the balance of the cost for the 16-inch pipe being paid for out of the general city rate.

Residents along East College Street are in the unique position that although a 24-inch watermain passes in front of their properties they will have to run the pipe to obtain city water service.

The reason for this is that the 24-inch pipe is what is known as a "force" main and it is not good practice to have any services into such mains. If this were done any break in a private service line would mean the entire main would have to be shut down to allow for repairs.

But East College Street residents can still obtain city water service by having a service main installed.

Residents here are not being charged for any part of the 24 inch main already installed, but would pay on a local improvement basis for the service main.

"We are prepared to put in the service main when the request is made," said Mr. Burnham.

Installation of the city water main along Centre Street has created a considerable problem for one resident.

When Hull Robitaille built his new house he acquired a city hall and was told there were no plans for water service in the area for possibly another ten years.

He couldn't get water by drilling a well so he went ahead and constructed a 5900 cistern under his driveway to be assured of water supply.

"Now only a year later city water is available and I have no more use for the cistern," he said.

But the Hillcrest resident was looking ahead and the cistern is not going to be a complete loss.

When the cistern was constructed special concrete of the type used in swimming pools was used for its construction.

The intention now is to enlarge the "cistern" and use it as a swimming pool.

Plans Are Progressing To Send Youngsters On Trip to Expo Site

First private contribution to Expo A go go, a project to send 350 Belleville youngsters to Expo, was made just 24 hours after the appeal to individuals was launched Tuesday.

It came in the form of a $2 bill from Mrs. C., an 81 year old woman whose only income is the old age pension.

"Giving youngsters the thrill of th's trip is so worthwhile I just had to have a little part in it," she told organizers.

Two of the youngsters, lads of 12 and 13, are making their own contribution to the excursion. They have joined volunteers at the United Community Service office on John St., to help work out the logistics of the operation, their responsibility is the sorting and filing of lists of names and supplies.

Some idea of the scope of the operation was given by Mrs. Selma Bochenek, chief organizer of the Belleville to Montreal shuttle, in 15 minutes before the Expoliner leaves the CN station, 50 volunteers must match each of the 350 youngsters with his name tag and Expo passport.

Plotting strategy for the smooth operation of Expo A go go has turned the United Community Service office into something resembling Allied headquarters in the weeks before D Day.

Canadian National Railways has invested $2,600 worth of transportation in the project. Five railway cars will be hooked to the regular Expoliner for the trip to Montreal. There is no regular service from Montreal to Belleville on Saturday night so the company will run a special train to return the Belleville party.

Flutter-boarding Can Be Fun...

During swimming classes in Picton in the last month many youngsters learned to use the flutter-board. Here one of the instructors, Judy Sharpe tells vchildren how to keep afloat by using the board. Courses continue throughout the summer months.

Swim Program Successful

PICTON — The second swimming group have started their training at Sandbank's Cove Beach. Highly successful last year, and proceeding well again this year, is the youth swimming training program conducted by the Picton recreation committee.

Instructor Judy Sharpe and her four instructing assistants have already graduated one group this summer and are now on the second. 210 children are in the group.

The students start off with familiarization exercises in the water-putting their heads under; from there to the dead man's float and then to the actual arm movements.

Prior to entering the water the children are given 15 minutes of water safety procedures the balance of the hour is actually spent in the water.

Styrofoam flutterboards are also used in the training program to assist the children in developing leg movements. The children are bussed to the swimming beach in East Lake every day from Benson Park in Picton.

This is the second year that the recreation committee for the town of Picton has conducted the classes. Last year but Picton and area children graduated. This year the number is expected to exceed this figure and about 800 or more are expected to pass their swimming tests.

The Rural Scene

Preparation Night - A 4-H preparation night for the Fairs will be held on Thursday, August 3rd. Judging of several classes is beneficial to all 4-H members interested.

Peterborough Junior Day - 4-H members interested in attending the Peterborough Junior Day are reminded that application forms are due before August 1st in Peterborough.

If bus transportation is required, please return the form at the bottom of the letter you received a few days ago to Peterborough Fair.

Quinte District Judging Competition - August 2 is the deadline for entries in the Judging Competition. This is an all-day event meeting for all calf and field crop clubs. Applications should be forwarded to the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food, Box 470, Picton.

Check hay for heating-If your hay went into the barn a little tough this year it would be wise to check it at least twice a week for the next month, to ensure that it is not heating. Fire from spontaneous combustion usually occurs during the first two months after storage.

An easy way to check the temperature is to use a ten foot length of half inch electrical conduit or tubing. Rivet a sharpened hardwood point to the bottom end and drill six holes of three-eights inch diameter within the bottom six inches of the pipe.

Lower a thermometer on a twelve foot cord to the bottom of the completed hay probe and you're ready to take the temperature of your hay. A piece of sponge rubber may be used below the thermometer to act as a cushion and prevent breakage.

Push the probe well down into the hay and leave for ten minutes. Pull out the thermometer and note the temperature.

150 deg F. - Entering the danger zone. Make temperature observations daily.

160 deg. F. - Danger! Inspect every four hours to see if temperature is rising.

175 deg. F. - Fire pretests may be anticipated. Call the Fire Department pumper and wet down the hay.

185 Deg. F. — Remove the hay. The pumper should be made available since flames will develop when air comes in contact with the hay.

210 Deg. F. — Critical! Hay is almost sure to ignite.

Workmen should not enter the mow alone, or without rope tied to their waists, since fire pockets may have developed and there is danger of the men falling into them.

Father, Daughter Drown In Swimming Accident

NAPANEE — Provincial police here late this morning reported the drowning deaths of a Cataraqui man and his daughter who drowned while swimming in Lake Ontario at Millhaven, last night.

Leon Johnson, 37, died in a vain attempt to save his 12-year-old daughter Deborah, after she slipped from an inner tube about 30 feet from shore.

Mr. Johnson's oldest son, Mark, 13, almost drowned trying to save his sister but managed to scramble ashore.

The bodies were found after provincial police from Belleville today despatched a boat to join dragging operations at the scene.

At Least 100 Dead In Turkish Quakes

ISTANBUL (CP) — Two violent earthquakes ripped across two eastern Turkish provinces Wednesday night and early today, leaving at least 100 dead, first reports said.

One quake hit the provinces of Erzincan and Tunceli Wednesday night and the other early today.

A government spokesman at Tunceli said the official death toll there was 70 but reporters in the area said they saw more than 100 dead.

Inhabitants of the little village of Kargagil said 32 persons died there. Another village, Targan, reported 25 dead.

Between 2,000 and 3,000 houses and buildings were feared destroyed.

Communications with many of the small communities in the area were cut off.

The quake Wednesday night was Turkey's second such disaster in six days. On Saturday in Western Turkey nearly 100 persons were killed at Adapazari.

King Blames Congress

CHICAGO (AP)—Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. Wednesday laid part of the blame for massive Negro rioting on "a very insensitive, irresponsible Congress."

King, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, made the charge at a press conference called to announce an adult education project in Chicago, financed by the U.S. office of education, to find jobs for the unemployed.

Antique Cars on the Way...

Two groups of antique cars will arrive in the Quinte area Sunday afternoon. The Canadian centennial Antique car tour passes through Belleville while the Canadian Tire Tour arrives in Trenton. Hundreds of local residents are expected to be on hand to greet the oldtimers.

Historian Views Centennial Editions

Local historian, Nick Mika, publisher of Mosaic of Belleville, looks over one of 42 centennial newspaper editions which he has collected from all across Canada.

Belleville Publisher Starts Novel Centennial Project

Belleville's Nick Mika who with Mrs. Mika has published successful histories of this city, Trenton and Picton, has still another centennial project underway — this time a personal one.

Mr. Mika is collecting the centennial editions of every newspaper in Canada and already has 42 of them — ranging all the way from the Yukon News to the Halifax Herald.

Some of the newspapers have not yet published special editions and by the time the year ends the Belleville man hopes to have at least 50 of the editions.

Mr. Mika's interest in the centennial editions is strictly a historical one in keeping with his role as publisher.

He finds the centennial editions carry stories and pictures of local history not available from any other source.

For instance Western Canada papers carried stories on the development of wheat and the oil industry.

Still others did features on the lumber and pulp industries, as well as mining and the early fur industry.

"These are once in a lifetime articles. They won't appear again for another 100 years," Mr. Mika says.

An avid reader, Mr. Mika will use the centennial editions to do research for books and other publications which he plans for the future.

One such project is already underway — a Mosaic of Canada on Postage Stamps. This book will feature enlarged full color pictures of Canadian postage stamps with historical sketches about the person or subject appearing on the stamp.

Mr. Mika is also keenly interested in steam railway locomotive and hopes eventually to publish a history on the early days of railroading in Canada.

The last on many of the newspaper centennial editions is still hardly dry but already some of them are becoming collectors' items. In many instances the editions were completely sold out and additional copies are not available.

Just the other day a Toronto man offered Mr. Mika $250 for his centennial edition. He turned the offer down because of the intended future use he has for the papers.

What centennial editions are the most interesting?

Mr. Mika feels that the Ottawa Journal, the North Bay Nugget, Niagara Falls Evening Review, the Victoria Daily Colonist and the Winnipeg Free Press are outstanding.

The entire front pages of a number of the centennial sections are done in full color.

Generally speaking Maritime papers treated Canada as a whole in their special editions but according to Mr. Mika many of the other papers across the Dominion did exhaustive research for articles of local interest.

For instance the Yukon News, a tabloid type paper, carries stories and pictures of the early Klondike days.

Already local educators have shown an interest in Mr. Mika's collection of centennial editions.

He feels the papers might also be of interest to school children and others. Accordingly he is making arrangements to display some of the editions at the Corby Public Library.

Income Gap

Belleville Income Figure $4,888; Inaccurate Says Labor Leader

Average income statistics for Belleville do not accurately reflect labor wage standards, a local labor leader charged today.

"As a community we're not that well off," said George Dalzard president of the Belleville and District Labor Council.

Mr. Dalzard's criticism was drawn by publication today of the revenue department's survey of national average income earned by personal income tax payers.

Topping the list is the motor centre of Oshawa, whose 31,753 taxpayers reported average earnings of $5,820 in 1965. The annual study is always two years behind the current taxation year.

Toronto was 12th with $5,321. In the East-Central Ontario region Belleville placed behind Peterborough and ahead of Kingston in the survey.

Peterborough is 24th on the national list with $5,047; Kingston is 40th with $4,829.

Mr. Dalzard said the Belleville statistics revealed a wide income gap between professional echelons and the labor force at the city's economic base.

"This $4,888 is a very deceiving figure," he claimed. "This is still a lot of money to most people in this city."

Doctors, dentists, lawyers and other professional groups boost the average income figure with income earnings in some cases above $25,000, he said.

"It doesn't take very many of them to cover up for a lot of people who are only making $3,000," added Mr. Dalzard.

The average income for a family of four, he estimated, should be $5,200.

"This is big money from what you got 30 years ago," he conceded, "but the costs are just exactly as great."

"If you got $20 then you need $100 a week now."

The survey also revealed the biggest total income tax payment by one city was Toronto's $662,200,000. Montreal, in second place, paid $278,700,000 and Vancouver in third paid $181,100,000.

Man Committed to Trial At Preliminary Hearing

Gerald P. Griffin of Toronto was committed to trial yesterday in a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Philip Baker of Kingston.

Griffin will go before a judge and jury facing charges of criminal negligence.

Griffin was the driver of a tank truck which was in collision with a school bus.

The accident occurred June 19 on R.R. 2 Tyendinaga. A young girl, Nadine Greene, 9, lost her life in the mishap and five others were injured.

Officer Change At Camp Picton

The command of the 1st Battalion Canadian Guards at Camp Picton changes on Wednesday, August 9.

Lt. Col. J. L. C. Entwhistle becomes the 45th commanding officer of the unit — taking over from Lt. Col. J. W. G. Haynes who has held the post for the past two years.

A ceremony connected with the change will get underway at 1.30 in the afternoon. Army officials have invited area residents to attend.

Lt. Col. Entwhistle was formerly senior major of the 2nd Battalion Canadian Guards at Camp Petawawa. Col. Haynes has been posted to the NATO army training school in Italy and will leave in September.

During his stay in Picton Col. Haynes took an active interest in sports activities — and particularly in the minor hockey program.

De Gaulle Departs

President de Gaulle has returned to France on his Canadian visit cut short by the extraordinary events of the last few days.

The French leader's statements in Quebec, virtually recognising the province's aspirations toward separate statehood and inflaming the relatively small number of Quebecers disposed toward achieving independence at any cost were such that they could no longer be tolerated without some form of protest.

This was forthcoming in the shape of a firmly-worded statement by Prime Minister Pearson pointing out that Canadians do not need to be liberated and reminding the president that "many thousands of Canadians gave their lives in two world wars in the liberation of France and other European countries."

The situation is probably without precedent. For a long time now de Gaulle's image on the world scene has been one of a reactionary, of a man opposed on every hand to the policies of others, of an aging leader whose undisputed patriotism and greatness have made him intolerant even of diplomatic courtesies.

True, France owes much to de Gaulle. Had it not been for him and his leadership of the Free French following his county's collapse in 1940 France would not have reached its present level of stability and prosperity.

But over the years the president has become an increasingly difficult personality on the world scene. While it would be foolish to suppose he has any leanings toward the communist world the fact is he seems on better terms with the Soviet Union than he is with his western allies.

Thus de Gaulle is loud in his condemnation of the American role in Vietnam, and has made no secret of the fact he does not want Britain as a member of the European Common Market.

The man is at least consistent. Here is no weak-willed leader, but one who puts his own country and the "French fact," wherever it is to be found — from New Caledonia to St. Pierre et Miquelon — first. At the same time, as Mr. Pearson has pointed out, France owes a debt to its oldtime wartime friends who helped liberate the country from the Nazis.

It may well be that the events and statements of the last few days will prove a blessing in disguise. Quebecers may come to realize that their true destiny lies within a strong, united Canada, that economically as well as spiritually their best hope for the future lies in the fact they are North Americans.

Even Creditiste Leader Real Caouette recognizes this fact. "If we have to fight for our rights to be respected," he said, "we must also understand that we have duties towards our Canadian country." President de Gaulle, he added, should remember that Quebec is in Canada, not France.

Of nearly 1000 telegrams of protest against de Gaulle's statements 449, or about half, originated in Quebec. Letters to news papers from French Canadians are in similar vein.

Prime Minister Pearson, whose statement was as timely as it was necessary, can be said to have won a diplomatic triumph. The French president's decision not to visit Ottawa is a clear sign he got the message.

Expo's Future

All things in this life are transient, although cumulatively they give life its meaning — and ultimately its immortality.

Thus, what is taking place with such sparkle and success at Expo in Montreal must also come to an end. And when it does, inevitably, there will be a sense not only of achievement, but also decline and perhaps a degree of anti-climax.

Yet this, too, will be only temporal — for "man the genius" will apply his mind and talents to new and even greater accomplishments which ultimately will find their way into the public eye at the next world exhibition in Osaka, Japan, in 1970.

Meanwhile the people who man the Expo operation in Montreal will receive their notices August 1 and the national pavilions — all save the 9½ pavilions which have been donated to Canada — will be demolished.

The apartment complex of Habitat will be retained permanently, as will the amusement area of La Ronde. Guayana shares a building with Trinidad and this constitutes the "hall" pavilion donated with nine others, the latest being Monaco. The United States, meanwhile, is reported to have donated its pavilion to Montreal.

The Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition which operates Expo, has set up a job relocation bureau to assist Expo employees find work once the exhibition is over. However, with 8,000 employees of the Corporation itself, and 8,000 others who work for the various concessionaires and pavilion operators, the task is a formidable one.

Ottawa Offbeat

Wages Supplant Security as Big Bait in Civil Service

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, - Remember, not so long ago, when the big attraction of the federal Civil Service was security?

The salary scale wasn't supposed to be all that great, but you never, ever — for anything, short perhaps of shooting the Prime Minister — had to give even a fleeting thought to the occupational hazard of just about any non-bureaucratic job being invited to leave.

For if the Brass of the Bureaucracy didn't care for the quality of your work, you always could be transferred to less demanding post — and always at the same salary.

Matter of fact, if you played your cards correctly, you might even negotiate a bit of a salary increase in the transfer, as a sort of bribe — or more politely, reward — for being "co-operative" and accepting the demotion in understanding good grace.

Then when your day in public service was done, they put you out to pasture where you could live in reasonable comfort on a pension running 70 percent of your salary on retirement — with always the hope, as has happened, of an "adjustment," as they call it, upward, of your superannuation.

Well, Civil Service security is as smug as it ever was.

Maybe even smugger now there is a very good prospect Treasury Board President and Revenue Minister Ben Benson has warned Parliament, that Civil Service pensions just might have to be tied, sometime soon, to the cost of living.

But people no longer go into the federal service because it is safer than safe.

They go simply because that is where the money is.

Civil Service Commission Chairman John Carson made that official in conceding, just the other day, that "we never mention security any more, for the old concept of the federal government staff as a refuge from the stress and strain of competitive life in business and industry just has no attraction at all for anybody."

Instead, the Commission offers money and what Chairman Carson describes as "intellectual stimulus."

What kind of money?

Only a few years ago — as recently as five, certainly not more than 10 — a salary above the $10,000 level was still the symbol of Civil Service senior-ity.

But not any more — not with salaries in the $12,000 to $15,000 range being commonplace, perhaps even run-of-the-payroll for any body outranking the clerks and stenogs, the "privates" of the ever - growing Civil Service army.

How common?

Common enough that in a report to the Commons on the salary scale of senior Civil Service personnel, the Commission didn't bother to list any under the $18,000 level.

So how are the Above-$18,000 Boys doing?

The report to the House catalogued them as:

222 drawing between $18,000 and $20,000.

307 getting $20,000 to $25,000.

In the $25,000 to $30,000 bracket.

Seven in the exclusive Room-at-the-Top with $35,000 and up.

But now, the federal Civil Service is organized and the government this Fall brings collective bargaining with just about all hands from its 30,000 postal workers to its elite, the well-paid — up to $24,250 — Foreign Service Officers.

The Foreign Service Officers, unhappy with their $24,250 top, have warned Treasury Board President Benson that he will find the bargaining, as they promise, "very, very tough indeed."

Postal worker and Foreign Service Officer alike are determined to "shake," as they phrase it, "some pretty impressive money gains out of the Treasury" in these historic first negotiations.

Business and industry are worried. President J. Herbert Smith of Canadian General Electric has told his shareholders the federal government, whether it wishes to do so or not, now sets wage and salary guidelines.

And matching payroll increases, he contended, is obviously looking over his shoulders at the Big Spenders in Ottawa, whose raises "are justified by the economic facts," at least in his industry.

He had better hang onto his hat, for under enormous Civil Service pressure, the federal payroll just might take off even higher into the wild blue inflationary yonder.

The federal payroll currently runs an annual $1,307,302,406, up $142,214,238 from last year — a hefty increase, indeed, but maybe we taxpayers haven't seen anything yet.

"We Are Canadians First"

Letter to the Montreal Gazette

Although I am a fervent admirer of President de Gaulle because of all he has done for France and though I am sentimentally and culturally attached to France I find that the Government of Quebec has gone too far in decking the streets and towns through which he passed the same way that it had done in the distribution of the little tri-color flags. All this, in my view, will help to give General de Gaulle a false impression of the real Province of Quebec.

We are not a French province, we are a North American province with a French language and culture, a very distinct thing. Why create in the mind of the President of France the impression that we are puppies homesick for the mother country who see in him a liberator from oppression and refound father," instead of all those things he really is, a great hearted man, a friendly person, a man who will in history be known as one of the great chiefs of state in today's world?

And their movements are so circumscribed that they may not see all that is going on.

The one hope of peace, through a settlement at the conference table, seems to be as remote as ever. President Nasser of Egypt, still the key man despite his shattered image, shows no sign of trying to get along with the Israelis.

Instead he is concentrating on restoring his Arab leadership, whipping up new excitement about seeking revenge to eliminate the bitterness of defeat and leaning more heavily than ever on Soviet support.

It takes time and training to rebuild a shattered military machine and Nasser is fully poised for a new gamble on the field, he likely will play along with the idea of ceasefire observers and other means of preventing further Israeli action.

The presence of the Soviet naval squadron in Egyptian ports also provides a form of sevem-or inhibiting factor to make the Israelis think twice about instituting fresh opera-

Drug Prices In States

Edmonton Journal

Senator Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin is puzzled by the pricing policies of some U.S. drug companies.

He says one U.S.-manufactured drug costing $169.88 for 100 is purchased unlabels in the U.S. is being sold for only $19.90 per hundred in Switzerland. The pills are manufactured in the U.S.

It may be some consolation, to know that just Canadians are bewildered by drug-company pricing practices.

Public Inquiry Is Urged

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The reports of the current chaos existing at the day nursery are so diverse, and in the case of my wife, inaccurate, that I would like to comment.

My wife was employed by the city as an assistant at the Belleville day nursery, working under the direct supervision of Mrs. Durand, whom she describes as being a very competent, able, and qualified person, who is a pleasure to work with.

On July, 18, my wife called me and stated that Mrs. Durand had advised her that of that date, as a result of instructions from Mr. D. Aitken, she, and other staff members were to work under the direct-orders of Mrs. Misters, the nursery cook. My wife seemed quite locally upset, and on my instructions left and went home, together with another member of the staff who declined to work under the cook.

On arrival home my wife was extremely upset, and went to the doctor who issued a certificate that she was suffering from a form of nervous tension. This certificate was forwarded directly to the city authorities.

As a result of the public attention to the situation my wife has had to answer innumerable telephone calls from puzzled friends and neighbours. At this moment she has little pride in being a citizen of Belleville. No person from the mayor's or welfare office has seen fit to contact her, nor has any acknowledgment of the receipt of her sick certificate been received.

However, City Hall has seen fit to advise the radio station with facts that are completely false and inaccurate. Now, I have instructed my wife that she is, under no circumstances to accept a position in which she is likely to come under or to have any involvement with Mr. Aithens administration. She has been offered, and has accepted another position where the conditions she is most especially to be asked to face the confusion, tension, and muddle, that she has been working under of late.

I am shocked that the lines of communication are so bad between the mayor's office and the office of the department of welfare that such inaccurate statements can be released. It is my hope that a full, public inquiry into this matter will be insisted on, and that the case of Mrs. Durand is fully examined.

This lady has been described variously by the high and mighty of city hall as having been suspended, placed on the sick list, and according to Friday's paper, fired. Don't they themselves know what the position is?

If the administration is as good as His Worship would have us believe, why was Mr. Aithen sent to Toronto, to ascertain if the welfare office has seen fit to authorize him to do so or not, now sets wage and salary guidelines.

And matching payroll increases, he contended, is obviously looking over his shoulders at the Big Spenders in Ottawa, whose raises "are justified by the economic facts," at least in his industry.

He had better hang onto his hat, for under enormous Civil Service pressure, the federal payroll just might take off even higher into the wild blue inflationary yonder.

My parliament was increased when I started to contact the various city aldermen. They were unable at first to comment on the situation as the Mayor had not been in touch with them. Rather an odd situation. One would think, that the Mayor would first get in touch with his colleagues on council of the ins and outs of an issue that was bound to raise public indignation as soon as news of it leaked out. Why do we bother to elect aldermen if the Mayor is going to shoulder the running of the city?

There are so many aspects about this whole affair that seem to me to have been cast aside in the interests of petition and welfare "whitewash" that I cannot see how a full and public inquiry can be avoided.

I challenge His Worship the Mayor and the Welfare Director to call all concerned together publicly so that there can be no resort to political subterfuge in order to cover up anything that might well prove to substantiate growing public lack of faith in the administration of the City Welfare Department.

Unrepentant Nasser Seeks Revenge Against Israel

Russian Support

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Intensified Arabian diplomatic activity, accompanied by a continuing heavy flow of Soviet arms to Egypt, suggests it is only a matter of time before a fresh chapter is written in Middle East bloodshed, despite the presence of the United Nations observers along the Suez Canal.

The observers can watch and raise an alarm if either side launches new attacks, but they cannot do much more than that.

It would appear more likely the Russians realize there is a limit to what they can do in the Middle East without arousing the prospect of a conflict with the U.S.

As the lines between Moscow and Cairo grow stronger, there is a feeling Moscow cannot ignore, with the growth of this radical, foreign and atheistic influence, he may have many difficulties fanning the fires of a "holy" war. Saudi Arabia, for one, is reported to resent the growth of Soviet influence with some distaste.

Not End of Story: Tories

Britain's Nationalized Steel Industry Geared to World Markets

LONDON (CP) — Britain's steel industry will be welded Friday into a single industrial unit, a colossus by any standard.

The British Steel Corp., embracing 14 firms and bringing more than nine-tenths of the country's steel-making capacity under state ownership, is among the top 15 of the world's industrial giants.

The takeover marks the climax of a long struggle over the socialist doctrine of nationalization and between proponents of free enterprise on the one hand and of public control on the other.

Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government rationalized despite desperate efforts by Tory and industry spokesmen who said government meddling would wreck the industry.

Opposition Leader Edward Heath said after the steel bill became law in March that Britain had not yet seen the end of the story. The implication was that, on return to power, the Conservatives would once more de-nationalize the industry as they did in 1951.

Experts have pointed out, however, that Wilson waited until he had a big majority in Parliament before shoving through the steel legislation and much will depend on the success and integration of the industry in the next few years.

The impossible impact of the action on Britain's bid to join the European Common Market is unknown but at least one important French steel manufacturer has been quoted as saying it will raise serious problems.

One of Wilson's arguments was that the integrated industry will be on better competitive terms with United States and European giants.

BSC sales are expected to approach £1,000,000,000 ($3,000,000,000) a year on an estimated production of 29,000,000 tons annually, officials said. Gross assets are £1,800,000,000 ($4,800,000,000) and 218,000 persons are employed.

Among British manufacturers, BSC will be exceeded only by the Anglo-Dutch firms of Shell and Unilever, those officials said. Outside the U.S., BSC will rank sixth among all industries.

Friday will be just another working day for steel workers are concerned although Lord Melchett, the grandson of the merchant banker picked by Wilson to head the BSC, will put out a message to the employees.

By next Tuesday, a plan for reorganization of the whole vast industry will be published but informants emphasized that changes will be gradual in the hope of avoiding disruption of production.

Before the Second World War, Britain was third among the world's steel-producing nations after the U.S. and the Soviet Union. Japan and West Germany now have pushed it into fifth place, with France close behind.

Britain's steel productivity has increased and last year it made 14 per cent more steel with only 2.9 per cent more labor than in 1953.

Wilson started the nationalization ball rolling with a white paper paper in 1965. But he did not introduce a bill until June, 1966, after a general election has assured him of a big majority for five years or so.

Topless Dancer

York Lampton Gives Notice It Intends to Wind Up Westbank

TORONTO (CP)— An official of British International Finance (Canada) Ltd., parent company of York Lambton Corp., said Wednesday York Lambton will put a notice in the July 29 issue of the Canada Gazette to wind up formally the bank of Western Canada.

At Kuper, acting assistant secretary of BIF gave the news in discussing a York Lambton statement which said the company will call a bank shareholders' meeting to replace the bank's board of directors and wind up the bank.

York Lambton owns 50.2 per cent of the bank.

The company statement reaffirmed a letter to York Lambton and BIF shareholders Tuesday from Marc Bienvenu, BIF president, in which he gave notice of the shareholders' meeting.

No date for the meeting has been given. But York Lambton said six weeks must elapse before any definite information on the bank's future is available in the meantime, "it is still possible for other courses of action to be followed by those who may wish to maintain the bank in operation," the company said.

Notices in the Canada Gazette are usually inserted for six consecutive weeks, at which time a shareholders' meeting must be held.

The York Lambton statement said paid-up capital and contributed surplus of the bank is close to $13,000,000, and is "in-tact in the form of quick assets."

The company urged the public not to speculate in bank shares "during this period of uncertainty."

Mr. Bienvenu bought controlling interest in British International Finance, the parent company of York Lambton, from Sinclair Stevens and a Toronto group last March.

York Lambton lost $207,000 last year, and Mr. Bienvenu told shareholders that winding up the bank appeared to be the solution to improving York Lambton's liquid position and profits.

Under the terms of its sale, York Lambton owes Mr. Bienvenu $3,000,000 and interest which must be repaid by Sept. 16. The company is known to be anxious to obtain its full $6,500,000 investment from the bank in order to repay the loan and still have sufficient surplus cash.

One problem in selling York Lambton's shares to other investors has been that the company wants to get its full $15-a-share - investment back. Bank shares are now trading between $11 and $12 a share on the unlisted market. Sales at this price to individual investors would mean a loss of about $1,300,000 to York Lambton.

The things he did to some juniper berries are unspeakable.

To make gin, you need a number of rather exotic ingredients. Including Italian juniper berries.

So in 1769 Alexander Gordon bought sackfulls of the best Italian juniper berries money could buy. Experimented and experimented. And one day discovered that if you took the berries and ...well, something exciting happened.

You could make the best tasting gin ever. So naturally, he did.

200 years later we still do. And Gordon's is now the largest selling gin in the world.

Still made everywhere to the same secret formula.

And, so that it always remains a secret, what Alexander Gordon did to those berries must always remain unspeakable.

You always could buy a bottle of Gordon's though. And let it speak for itself.

Cheese-onion Pie

By MARY MOORE

To me today's Cheese-Onion Pie was a surprise success. In fact it stole the show. It was requested by a Canadian reader now living in Wales. It was recommended by my secretary, Shirley, whose husband's friend took some to work in his lunch and shared it with fellow workers. They said, "Ask your wife to make a whole pie for your lunch tomorrow."

This Cheese-Onion Pie idea is borrowed from the French Quiche Lorraine Pie — and will be a boon to vegetagians and summer cottage cooks.

1¼ cups boiling water
½ tsp. salt (first amount)
3 tbsps. butter
2 cups (packed) thinly sliced mild onion (large slices cut in halves)
1 cup milk
3 cups shredded sharp Cheddar cheese (about 10-12 oz.)
2 eggs
1 tsp. salt (second amount)
¼ tsp. curry powder
¼ tsp. pepper
Grated cheese from shaker (for top)

For convenience' sake I tested ready-made pastry in this pie. Probably you will make your own Pastry: To 1¼ cups stirred but not sifted flour and ½ tsp. salt add ⅓ cup shortening and 2 tbsps. butter and cut it in with pastry blender until size of peas. Drizzle over 2 tbsps. ice cold water, mixing with a fork until flour is dampened. Press into ball, roll out, and line deep 9" pie plate with high fluted rim. Bake 6 min. at 400 deg. Fahr. Remove from oven.

Meanwhile cook together, covered, in large saucepan, the rice, boiling water and ½ tsp. salt until all water is absorbed and rice is tender. Remove from heat. Gently saute onions over low heat in covered frying pan until limp but not at all brown. Remove from heat. To cooked rice add milk, cheese, eggs and mix well, then add 1 tsp. salt, curry powder and pepper. Cover partially baked crust with sauteed onions, turn rice mixture over evenly. Sprinkle with shaker cheese and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 1 hr. Serve hot cut in wedges.

A perfect lunch or supper dish but I served it for a summer Sunday night's dinner.

Status of Women Discussed At Soroptimist Convention

TORONTO (CP)—There have been too few complaints from women about violations of equal pay for equal work laws, Jessica Findlay said Wednesday.

Mrs. Findlay, director of the women's bureau, Canada department of labor, was one of four panelists discussing the status of women at the Soroptimists International Association convention.

About 1,400 delegates from 40 countries are attending the six-day convention which opened Sunday.

Mrs. Findlay said there is a federal law and laws in eight provinces guaranteeing women equal pay with men. She said governments cannot act on violations of the law unless a complaint is lodged, and she said only a handful have been. She told delegates this is something women's organizations should encourage women to do.

Mary Dublin Keyserling, director of the U.S. women's bureau, said the average work life expectancy for women in the United States now is more than 25 years.

She said girls must be trained to recognize this fact and to plan their lives and careers. She said while percentages of women working are growing generally, the proportion of women in the professions is declining.

Esther W. Hymer, speaking for the United Nations commission on the status of women, mentioned the need for education and day-care facilities as among problems common to women of many countries.

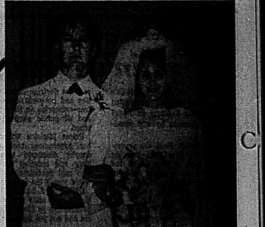
WEDDING

McGUIRE — SHURTLEFF

St. John's Church, Kingston was the setting on Saturday, July 8 at 12 noon, when Brenda Margaret Shurtleff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shurtleff, Belleville, was united in marriage to William James McGuire, Belleville, son of Mrs. Ann Symons, Belleville and the late Mr. Frederick McGuire.

Rev. Father Kelly officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by organist Mr. Brian Brick.



Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Donald Trussell, the bride wore a full length white Empire styled gown enhanced with appliqued lace, and flowing chapel train extended from the shoulders. A lily - of - the - valley headdress was caught to a waist length tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of pink delight roses interspersed with white stephanotis.

Miss Judi Trussell, cousin of the bride was maid of honor dressed in floor-length Empire styled dress of deep pink crepe featuring a pink lace bodice accented with a pink bow. Mrs. Beverly Ethier was bridesmaid dressed similarly to the maid of honor but in a lighter shade of pink. Both were matching pink bow headdresses and carried bouquets of white 'mums centred with pink 'mums.

Mr. James Sheridan of Peterborough was groomsman, while the usher was Mr. Barry Hubble, cousin of the bridegroom.

For the reception at Anne Lacy's Hotel in Kingston, the bride's aunt Mrs. Donald Trussell received the guests wearing a pale green linen dress with white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a blue linen two-piece suit with white accessories and a corsage of pink 'mums.

Leaving on a wedding trip to points in Northern Ontario the bride donned a pale blue linen suit, matching hat, white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT ALLEN CHAPPELL

Chappell — Mundrey

Rev. R. Crooks officiated at the wedding ceremony in Tabernacle United Church on Saturday, July 22nd 1967, at 3.30 p.m. when Linda Dianne Mundrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Mundrey, Belleville was united in marriage to Robert Allen Chappell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chappell, Belleville. Traditional wedding music was rendered by Mr. C. Templer and Mrs. R. Shaw was soloist.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a floor-length gown of pure silk organza over taffeta in A-line style. The empire waist and bodice were enhanced with Alencon lace. The train which hung from the shoulders was pure silk bordered with Alencon lace. Her headdress was a cluster of ten miniature roses with a shoulder three-tiered veil.

Miss Pat Mundrey was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a floor-length dress of jade green pure silk organza, while sleeves were enhanced the sleeves and hem with contrasting green velvet ribbon. The bridesmaids were Miss Darlene Trubridge, Miss Vera Provins and Miss Brenda Mundrey, sister of the bride was junior bridesmaid.

All were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

Mr. Laverne Allair was groomsman. The ushers were Mr. Larry Cook, Mr. John Scullion, brothers-in-law of the bride and Mr. Jeff Boyle.

For the reception at Tops Motor Hotel, Belleville, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a two-piece rose embroidered silk knit suit with rose and white accessories and a corsage of pink and white roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother wearing a two piece aqua green lace dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink and white roses.

For the wedding trip the bride chose a two piece orange ice linen suit with white accessories and a corsage of pale green 'mums and white roses.

Ann Landers

No Justification For Rudeness on Phone

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 30, have three children and am making plans to separate from my husband. He has agreed to pay support money but it will not be enough so I must find employment.

I have not worked for eight years and my shorthand and typing are somewhat rusty. I am also more than a little frightened. Yesterday I filled out a Civil Service form and noted that part of the form was missing. When I inquired as to where I could get the missing page, I was told to telephone the Post Office Department.

ANN LANDERS

This man with whom I spoke was so rude and impatient that I was in tears by the time he finished screaming at me. Perhaps he had problems greater than mine, but is that justification for taking it out on a person he is supposed to help, as part of his job? I felt like saying, "Thank you and God bless you, Sir, for the kindness in your voice."

Wouldn't this be a better world if everyone spoke to everyone else in the same tone of voice he would use if he were speaking to God? Myself included. — HOUSTON READER.

DEAR HOUSTON: Of course it would, but how many mortals behave in a civilized completely balanced manner at all times?

I am sorry you did not follow up your inclination and thank the man for that "kindness in his voice." It would have made him realize his thoughtlessness in a way that a sharp retort never could.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've had numerous operations and have had to take a lot of medication to relieve the pain. Light doses of medication are ineffective so I take twice as much as normally prescribed. I obtain the medicine through my doctor, of course.

The problem is that I am a poor sleeper and nothing knocks me out like whisky. So every once in a while I take several stiff drinks and go straight to bed. Notice I said "straight to bed" — I don't go out and raise Cain, nor do I abuse anybody. I just get pleasantly plastered and go to sleep. Isn't it O.K. to use whisky as a sedative? Please say so, because it's the only cure way I know to get a full night's sleep. — DUFF.

DEAR DUFF: Cut out either the medication or the booze or you could put yourself to sleep permanently. People who combine the two take a big chance. Discuss this with your physician at once.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am engaged to a wonderful girl. I have become very close to her family and I think the world of them. Her parents are divorced, and I seem to be the man of the house already.

The problem is an 11-year-old boy. This kid has a terrible chip on his shoulder. His mother and gets into fights with his teachers and neighbors. He has no friends. His father remarried and now has two sons by that marriage. This has hurt Hal a lot.

Last week I bought him some popcorn. He refused to share it with his sisters so I told him I wanted the popcorn back. He got mad and threw the popcorn in my face. I spanked him. He hasn't spoken to me since.

Hal can be very nice, but it only lasts a few days and then he gets mean again. Please tell me how to get along with him. — LOST.

DEAR LOST: Hal needs more help than you can give him. Please urge his mother to see that he gets counselling. His anti-social behavior is a symptom of a deeper problem.

Successful Living

Principal's Daughter Always Left Without A Date

Dear Doris: I'm 15. My father is the principal of the high school I attend and this sometimes causes difficulties.

My friends say that I'm attractive, always have a smile on my face, can converse with both boys and girls without any trouble. I'll never smoke, drink or neck with a boy because I can have plenty of fun without these methods of entertainment. My friends say that they know of millions of boys who would like to ask me out but they're scared of being teased by their friends because of my father being principal.

I sure wish I could be asked out occasionally. I've heard of boys wanting to wait till they are ready to get married before they go to the shy wallflower types who haven't gone running around with every boy in town, but remember, I do want to have fun during my two last high school years. I know they will be the same as this year. — Principal's Daughter.

Dear Daughter: Not from where I sit, they won't. Boys don't stay shy. But you could help things along by having a party at your house, with your Dad pitching in an appearance in time to flip the hamburgers. It may not have honored in those millions of boys that principals can be human too.

And what about meeting people through a young people's group not attached to your school?

P.S. Ask yourself whether your own attitude about being the principal's daughter is scaring them off!

Dear Doris: As long as I've known my husband he has been a musician, but for the last year he has been going to parties on Saturday nights from the hotel and doesn't come home until two or three a.m. To top it off he says there's nothing wrong in doing this as he behaves himself.

Lately my nerves are bad and my husband doesn't seem to realize that I'm very lonely. I can't say I'll go to the hotel with him as I am out of age, and besides, I don't drink.

We have a two-year old boy. We were married very young; I, me, and he was 21. I've got everything a woman would want but a husband. He takes me out on Sundays as that is the only day he isn't playing, but this isn't enough for me; I want a full time husband. Every night after supper he goes and is off again.

I know some musicians' wives and most of them couples and up separated. I don't want to end up that way. — Unhappy.

Dear Unhappy: A man 23 is not playing fair when he goes and to a party and leaves his wife of 18 home alone. You are upset enough to put up with all that band-playing absenteeism — which is far too frequent.

Comes a time when a gal needs to assert herself. You can save his happiness as well as your own. If you need moral support about this, get it; the sooner the better. Your family or child care agency is the place to go for counselling.

Confidential to Baffled Mother: Doubtless your daughter is just as baffled as you say one thing and Dad says another. Then when he rows with you about it, this upsets her world even more.

Believe me, it is better for her peace of mind when you are firm with her, even while you do rule about it. Might surprise you if you were to hear what commonly happens to a daughter 'cheating' to her friends about Mother's concern for her, shown by her insistence on some rules.

Blackout Prevention Will Cost Billions

WASHINGTON (CP)— It will cost the U.S. several billion dollars in improved equipment to make another great power blackout nearly impossible, a federal report said Wednesday.

The document comes from a Federal Power Commission study into the Nov. 9, 1965, breakdown caused by a switch failure in Ontario. The resulting power blackout affected 30,000,000 Canadians and Americans.

The Hydro - Electric Power Commission of Ontario, as a partner in the Canuse system affected by the breakdown, participated in many of the studies leading up to the commission report.

The report notes that Ontario Hydro is tied to U.S. power systems at Detroit, Buffalo and Massena, N.Y., and will almost double its capacity by 1973 to 15,400,000 kilowatts. Ontario Hydro will form part of a new loop being constructed around Lake Erie when Michigan is connected to Indiana and Ohio in 1970.

Ontario will have more standby power ready then for any severe emergency shortages that might develop in either country.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate

"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

In today's economic world, paying cash for investment real estate is not only old-fashioned, but is usually poor business. Readers constantly question this principle and require reassurance.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I was raised on the maxim, "Never a lender or a borrower be." I have followed this principle faithfully and found that it has not only kept me out of trouble, but has been responsible for my present comfortable circumstances. Although I have never earned more than $6,000 per year, I have managed by diligent savings and careful investment to accumulate over $190,000 in real estate.

My son only started five years ago, but in that short time he has accumulated more real estate than I have in my lifetime. His principle is, "It's good business to borrow all you can." Apparently it works—What is wrong with the good old-fashioned idea of, "It's best to pay cash." — Mr. O. S.

ANSWER: In a real estate investment program, (as distinguished from your personal home) maximum borrowing is usually the best. If one can borrow 100 per cent in mortgages, it is recommended, and 110 per cent is even better.

The state of Utopia exists because the investment return on real estate is almost always greater than the cost of money (mortgage interest rate). If the investment return, for example, is 10 per cent and a mortgage of 70 per cent of purchase price is available at 6 per cent, then the effective return increases because of the borrowing. Currently, mortgage interest rates nationally in the U.S. are in the 6 to 7 per cent range, while real estate investment returns are in the 8 to 15 per cent range.

Thus, by borrowing instead of paying cash, an investor gets higher returns, owns a greater amount of real estate, has a greater potential for capital gains and receives larger depreciation and tax allowances. It is with bowed head that I must say that paying cash for investment real estate is not only old-fashioned, but poor business. This is the kind of world we are living in today, and the wise man recognizes it and takes advantage of it.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm all for the little fellow getting fair treatment, but when mortgage lenders start discriminating against the boys, I think something should be done. When each of my employees bought their home, I helped them secure a mortgage. In each instance, the mortgage was from 80 to 90 per cent of the purchase price.

Now I'm buying my own house. I'm paying $65,000. The best mortgage I can get is $35,000. Is it me or the system that is nutty? — Mr. T. M.

ANSWER: It is neither you nor the system, it is simply the economics of the market. Mortgage lenders have found from experience that houses in the mass market have the greatest marketability and therefore, the safest for high ratio loans.

A $60,000 house in most areas is outside the mass market and therefore, carries a low ratio mortgage. The mortgage ratio for high priced homes is in the range of 50 per cent to two-thirds of purchase price.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Every time I use a ladder, I keep asking myself, "Is the ladder too far or too close to the wall?" My wife will keep second-guessing me from her comfortable chair, "Watch out! The ladder is going to fall over!" or, "It's about to slip." My question is simple, "How far should a ladder be placed from the wall?"— Mr. C.

ANSWER: The optimum distance of ladder from wall is about one quarter of the ladder's length. For example, if a ladder is extended to 16 feet, the distance from the wall to the base of the ladder should be about 4 feet.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm planning a new colonial house. The architect recommends that, he be allowed to specify a copper roof. Although it is very expensive, he claims that the initial cost is a saving in the long run because the roof will last a lifetime. How long is the lifetime of a copper roof? — Mr. F. F.

ANSWER: The lifetime of a copper roof should be at least 50 years or more. I know of copper roofs over 200 years old that are still serviceable. In fact, a copper roof can last almost forever if undisturbed. They leak, not because of weathering or aging, but rather because they are damaged by people walking over them, by falling limbs from trees or by thrown rocks or cropped tools.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Last week, while my attention was distracted, my 4-year-old marked up the bed linens with a ballpoint pen. I have had the linens in and out of the washing machine for a week now, but I still can't get rid of the stains. I'm sure I'm not alone for other mothers must also have this problem. Mrs. M.

ANSWER: The following should undo the damage of your 4-year-old writer (and perhaps future columnist.) Place an absorbent pad beneath the stained material. Lightly moisten the stained area with denatured alcohol. Blot immediately with a second absorbent cloth. Repeat until there is no more ink coming out. Then wash in warm, sudsy water and rinse.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Despite the mighty counter - attraction of Expo '67 and others of lesser importance, the Bay of Quinte Country Club directorate is optimistic over the success of the Fourth Annual Festival of Golf scheduled for the club on August 5, 6 and 7th.

"Coming on the Civic Holiday weekend as it does" club pro Jimmy Egan, explains John Gee, "it is likely there will be a big exodus from the city to Expo-67 — and this could include a number of potential Festival entries. Another district tournament may attract some of the potential but as this is an amateur affair, it should not affect the Festival professional feature."

"Entries to date in the B and C Flight, the Mixed Two Ball and A Flight point to the success of the Festival which we hope will be on a par with the highly successful show of last year."

"The entries," John said, "particularly those from the club and district club are coming in fairly well and indicate the valley fields will compare very favorably with those of a year ago."

President George O'Brien who guided the club to its first Festival success four years ago is back at the helm and with a hard-working directorate ably aided and abetted by club pro George Balzas and his associates are going all out to make the Centennial Festival a success at least comparable to its predecessors.

A new feature has been added this year to the awards list. It is a handsome plaque with the inscription "Bay of Quinte Country Club Shield which will be presented to the winner of the professional tournament which will be played with "A" Flight on Monday August 7th. It will carry the winner's name as "Professional Champion, Festival 1967." This with the usual cash award.

Due in no small way to the efforts of club pro Balzas, the Festival has attracted over 50 of the best pros of the province every year since inauguration. The first year, the contest came under the critical eyes of the pros and their return in subsequent years was proof of their approval.

Games captain Gee stated the club had word that last year's winner Wilf Homeniuk and the controversial Moe Norman, who reigned over the Muskoka Open will be on hand in effort to be here with other outstanding pros.

And it is likely that other 1966 winners, Izzy Bedard "A" Flight; Elza Hobden and Rod Gill, Mixed Two-Ball; John Lomas, "B" Flight and Joe St. Pierre, "C" Flight will be back to defend their titles.

Last year Homeniuk blasted a two-under par 68 to edge out Norman who fired a one-under 70. Al Balding shot par to split third money with J. DeLarna of Thunderbird. Bob Pranstak had the gallery on its ear with a three under par 32 on the first nine but blew his chances with a 40 coming home.

In an interview yesterday, club pro George Balzas said "There is no doubt Expo 67 has affected golf tournaments all over this part of the country. People are saving their money to see the big show especially during holiday time. But a lot more entries at this time last year than we have now."

"However," he added, "while the entries are slow coming in we expect a full draw for all three days of the Festival."

He said the consensus of pros he contacted regarding the festival was "We'll be there if we can possibly make it" and added "a lot of them will be here."

Only two pros shot under par scores at last year's Festival and that meant the Bay of Quinte course was "tough." "And we expect the course to be tougher this year," said Balzas.

Kinsmen Shade Kingston

They chalked up their second consecutive 11-inning win last night, a 2-1 Quinte-KASA thriller over Kingston LaFontaine Clippers.

The win tightened Picton's grip on third place. Lake Bus of Kingston visits Picton next Wednesday for a postponed game.

Winning pitcher Ken DeMille helped win his own game when he led off with a bunt single in the bottom of the 11th. last night. He got to third on a pair of passed balls and scored with one out as Keith Stacey grounded to short.

DeMille set the visitors down on four hits over the route to host Kingston's pitching pair of D. MacDonald and fireballing Dave Ruthowsky. They gave up six hits. DeMille struck out 11 and did not walk a batter. The Kingston pair fanned 12 and walked one.

Back-to-back triples by C. Stacey and Weese got Picton ahead 1-0 in the second. The Clippers tied it in the third on Burt's triple and a ground out — and the pitchers took it from there.

Carl Stacey led the Kinsmen with a triple and single while Ron Weese also tripled. Ken DeMille, Leo St. Denis and Marve Stacey had the others.

Kingston got Ron Burt's triple, Mike McCue's double and singles from D. Porteous and Stu Little.

Marksman Win Second

Elaine Splashes To 1st Gold Medal!

WINNIPEG (CP)—The scene was almost pandemonium as Elaine Tanner, Vancouver's mighty might, won her first swimming gold medal of the Pan - American Games Wednesday night.

The ear - splitting crescendo of the crowd grew as the tiny 16-year-old schoolgirl made her final touch in the women's 200-metre backstroke, the winner in world record time.

When her time of two minutes, 24.44 seconds was announced, the crowd of 2,000 let loose with a thundering ovation.

Miss Tanner clipped two full seconds off the world mark of South Africa's Karen Muir in 1968.

The 200 backstroke is a new event on the Games program. Three world records and a flock of Games records were broken and another world record was equalled in the swimming and shooting events.

As everyone expected the United States quickly dominated the medal standing with 11 gold medals after three days of competition in the two-week-long Games.

Canada, aiming for second place, held the runner - up position. Canada won two gold medals — in swimming and shooting—and picked up four bronzes. Nine of Canada's 10 medals were won Wednesday.

Far behind the Canadians were the Chileans, in third place with one gold, one silver and one bronze—all in the grand prix de dressage.

Canada's first gold medal of the Games came off the rifle sights of a 29-year-old mechanic who has been winning Canadian championships for the last four years.

Alf Mayer of Kitchener, Ont., was concerned that he would "fall apart" and blow his chances. He didn't. He equalled the world record with a score of 1298 out of a possible 600 in winning the individual English match rifle competition.

The Canadian match rifle team took the second - place silver. The U.S. won the gold.

Swimmers really tore the new $2,700,000 Pan - American pool apart. Five finals were staged, and the U.S. team swam off with the first four championships, breaking one world record and four games records.

Mark Spitz, 17, of Santa Clara, Calif., won the men's 200 - metre butterfly; Don Havens, 19, of Granada Hills, Calif., took the men's 100 - metre freestyle; Katie Ball of Jacksonville, Fla., captured the women's 200-metre breaststroke and Pamela Kruse, 16, of Pompano Beach, Fla., grabbed the women's 200 - metre freestyle.

Two Points Shy of Perfection

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Kitchener marksman who came within two points of a perfect score brought Canada its first gold medal of the fifth Pan-American Games Wednesday.

"It's great," said Alf Mayer, 29-year-old mechanic who has been winning Canadian championships for the last four years. "Now maybe we can get some more."

Mayer's 298 of a possible 600 gave him a five-point margin over Brody Norenberg, 33, United States Army captain from San Antonio, Tex., Olegario Vazquez, 32, of Mexico and Bruce Meredith, 30, U.S. Army captain from Columbus, Ga., all three of whom tied with 293.

On the basis of best targets, Norenberg was awarded the second-place silver medal, with the third-place Bronze going to Vazquez.

Hotel, Cheesemen Beaten

Three Bunched For 2nd

With a helping hand from the ball-end "spoilers," Stinson's Construction created a three-way tie for second place in the Commercial Softball League last night.

Stinson's knocked off the loop-leading City Hotel 7-4 while Brant's - Mountain View, mired in the cellar, upset Black Diamond Cheese 6-4. It was Brant's third win of the year.

Black Diamond, Lightfoot and Stinson's all have 22 points, six back of the Hotelmen, with Stewart Warner close behind at 20.

Four runs in the sixth brought Brant's their win as Grant Collet stopped the Cheesemen on six hits. He fanned two and walked four. Bob Swan and Don Holoway split the losers' pitching. They gave up seven hits, struck out many a man and passed three.

Home runs by Daniels and Golden and a pair of singles by Collet sparked the winners' attack. Scrimshaw doubled with Ted Drumm and Joe Maracle adding singles. Swan's double and singles by Gene Francis, Jack Gilby and Bob Fraser were the only Black Diamond hits listed.

Junior Day made his second start on Stinson's rubber an impressive one, stopping City Hotel on four hits. He struck out three, did not walk a man and got solid support.

Dave Feeney hurled nine-hit ball in defeat. He fanned two and also threw walkless ball. Whiting's base hit, two errors in succession and Potter's triple got him behind 3-0 in the third, however, and the winners never eased up.

Jack "Deacon" Whiting and Harold Workhaven had two singles each and Paul Stinson hit a home run for the victors. Frankie Donovan and Larry Potter added triples, Bob Boyle and Ken Greenwood singles.

Hotelmen singles went to Jack Hughes, Dave Feeney, Doug Murray and McLeod.

Four "Pros" Removed From Canada's Pan-Am Baseball Team

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's pro baseball activities Pan - American baseball team has decided to continue in the double round - robin event despite the loss of four players cut from the squad because of

The remaining 16 players decided at a midnight meeting they wanted to continue. They also decided to decline with thanks an offer by Puerto Rico to replay a game between the teams Tuesday and won by Canada 3-2.

Suspended were catcher Bob McKillop of Kitchener, Ont.; infielder Ron Smith of Kitchener; and pitchers Ron Stead of Guelph, Ont., and John Elias of Ste. St. Lor, Que.

Stead, a southpaw, played with Dunda - Superior of the Northern League a decade ago while both McKillop and Smith saw service in minor league play. Elias also took a fling at minor league baseball several years ago.

The action came after the Bob Osborne, liaison officer of the Canadian squad, learned of the players' backgrounds.

The report showed the four suspended players all had a history of professionalism but that the subject had been discussed with an official earlier and their eligibility was confirmed.

"We just got a wrong decision," said Gerry MacKay, team manager. "The players are not happy about things, but they decided unanimously that they might as well complete the schedule with the players left. All are accredited amateurs for Canadian baseball purposes, but they don't exactly fit into the purified picture of Pan-American or Olympic Sports.

On the other hand, extremely few competitors here, would pass the strict test — particularly tennis players.

The men in the middle are coach Gerry Mackay and his assistant Gladwin Scott. Both are soft-speaking, unflustered men, highly-respected in their communities. Both knew they were sitting on a powder keg.

The job of collecting a representative baseball team for Canada was thrust on them in June. They toured Canada, trying to pick the best. Many teams and players couldn't, or wouldn't get behind them. They spent a lot of their own money, which they say they will be compensated for.

Finally on July 13, only 11 days before the Pan-Am games got underway, the team began to practice together.

Then the question of amateur eligibility of some players struck. Should the team's lean that wasn't considered a medal prospect anyway? Should they lose out four of their top players, or should they drop out completely?

A number of Canadian sportswriters knew of the plight. Several suggested Mackay approach Canada's delegation with his problem.

Carm's Clip Pointers 9-3 In TV Tilt

Trenton Carm's fastened their already insurmountable lead in the Trent Valley Softball League standings last night with a 9-3 win over second - place Point Anne.

Carm's scored four runs in the first and three in the second to win in a breeze.

Bob McAlpine pitched eight - hit ball for the victory while Pat Maracle gave up 11 hits in defeat, fanning seven. McAlpine whiffed six.

Roger Drake had three Trenton hits and John McKibbon two, including a three - run homer.

Bob McAlpine and Elgie Currie also had two hits each, Dale Lewis a double and Joe Theriault a single.

Jerry Hill and Rick Rosebush collected two safeties each for the Cementmen. Denny Maher had a double, Pat Maracle, Pete Green and Gerald Maher a base knock each.

Busmen Blank Ellis Srs.!

KINGSTON (Special) — Ken Lewis pitched Kingston Lake Bus to within a point of first place in the Quinte-KASA loop, as the home-team pounced on first place Belleville Ellis for a 5-0 victory.

The Kingston hurler stopped Belleville on four hits to gain the shutout.

Lake Bus brought its record to 11 wins, four losses, and no ties. Belleville headed the pack with an 11-5 won-lost record, but have tied one game.

Bob Ethier was the losing moundsman. In the first frame he walked Brian Porteous, and Bob Jackson slammed a home run to give Kingston a 2-0 lead. In the seventh the winners pushed across three more runs. Jackson, walked, Tom Hollingsworth reached first on an error, and catcher Howie Amey brought them home with a base hit. Amey himself scored when Ron Spencer singled.

Lewis fanned 10 and walked four for Kingston. The singles that he gave up were shared two each by Belleville catcher Larry Mavety and leadoff hitter Paul Merew.

Ethier allowed eight hits, struck out four and walked five in his losing effort.

Minor Softball

Stephen Licence blasted the Redskins 26-3, Indians whipped the Seals 19-3, Vaughan Auto beat Kiddies Korner 13-3, and Shopping Plaza over the Browns 11-4, in KMSA squirt games on the east hill.

On the other hill, in the same division, Peacock Plastering trounced Tuck Appliances 19-2, Stevenson Ford wiped out the Reds 15-9 and Cubs swallowed the Bombers 15-5.

In the peewee division, a double - death playoff game for the sixth and final playoff spot was won by Athletics over Grants, by a score of 9-6.

The squirt games completed the schedule. The final standings on the east hill show Shopping Plaza on top with 16 points; followed by Stephen Licence, 14, Vaughan Auto, 13, Indians, 10, Kiddies Korner, 9, Browns, 8, Redskins, 2, and Seals, 0.

Over on the west hill, Tuck Appliances headed the pack with 12 points; two better than Peacock Plastering, Stevenson Ford and Cubs. Bombers had eight and Reds trailed in last with no points.

Third baseman Greg Kelly and cleanup hitter Ross Kenney slammed two base hits, and Bob Jackson cracked his home run, to pace the Limestone City's attack.

Right-fielder Porteous, Ron Spencer and Howie Amey had singles.

Ellis' next fourth place Kingston Prince George Regals tonight at the Alemite. Game time is 8.30.

Handsome new decanter. Smooth, light flavour.

Now you know why Hiram Walker's Gold Crest is the hit of every party.

When a whisky is as smooth as Gold Crest, you've got something good going for you because everybody likes it. And since a whisky like this doesn't happen very often, we've decided to celebrate the Centennial year by putting Gold Crest in a new kind of decanter. Tall and cylindrical. Clean, clear, and sleek. With a cut glass sunburst in the base. It lets you show off just a bit. Because it looks great, and tastes so smooth and light. It's the kind of whisky that goes well at any kind of party. Try it at your next party and see. Gold Crest. The Party Whisky.

Bob Veale, weary from having struggled through a complete game just five days ago, Wednesday night held Los Angeles Dodgers at Bay for 7 1-3 innings in the Pirates' 4-3 victory Wednesday.

But then familiar signs of noncompletion set in and in came relief ace Jim Pizaro to protect this big left-hander's 12th victory against four defeats.

Pizaro came in with one man on and two balls on Ron Fairly. After completing the walk, he struck out Al Ferara and Jim Lefebvre.

In other National League action, St. Louis Cardinals best Chicago Cubs 4-2, Cincinnati Reds bounced Atlanta Braves 7-1 rain washed out the second game of a scheduled double-header, Houston Astros edged Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 and New York Mets bombarded San Francisco Giants 11-5.

Willie Stargell homered for the Pirates in the fourth inning, but the Dodgers came back to tie the score 2-2. Manny Mota singled in the run that broke the tie in the sixth and Maury Wills walked, stole second, went to third on an error and scored on a forecount for the final run.

The Cardinals extended their league lead to two games by downing the Cubs. Julian Javier drove in three runs and Lou Brock stole two bases and scored twice. Nelson Briles, 5-4, was the winner with ninth-inning help from Jack Lamabe and Joe Hoerner.

Deron Johnson cracked a two-run homer, sparking the Reds' victory after Phil Niekro had held Cincinnati to one hunt single through the first six innings.

Mel Queen, 10-5, was the winner.

Joe Morgan's single drove in the second run in a ninth-inning rally that sent the Astros past the Phils. Jackie Brandt's single earlier had tied the game after singles by Dave Adlesh and Bob Aspromonte.

Cleon Jones broke loose for a homer and five runs batted in against the Giants and Bud Harrelson had four hits and two RBIs for the Mets.

Mike Andrews had an idea and also a solution in case it didn't work. Happily it worked.

There were men on first and third with two out in the Boston sixth inning Wednesday night with Andrews at the plate. He bunted.

By the time surprised California third baseman Woody Held fielded the ball Andrews was on first and Reggie Smith was home with the third run of the inning to tie the game 3-3.

The Red Sox went on to score three more times in the inning for a 7-4 lead en route to a 9-5 victory.

"It was my own idea," Andrews said. "If I'd popped it up, I would have just kept running."

While Andrews was outsmarting the Angels, Washington Senators were busy beating the City Athletics 6-3 and New York Yankees split with Minnesota Twins, winning the first game 5-1 and losing the nightcap 3-2 in 12 innings.

The Cleveland at Chicago game was rained out. Detroit and Baltimore were not scheduled.

The Red Sox, who stayed ahead of the Angels in second place with the victory which snapped California's seven-game winning streak, scored one run in the fourth and added insurance tallies in the eighth on consecutive homers by Tony Conigliaro and Jerry Adair.

Jose Cardenal and Woody Held each drove in two runs for California — Cardenal with a homer and single and Held with a homer.

Joe Pepitone drove in three runs with home runs and Steve Whitaker two with a homer and single in New York's first game victory. Minnesota got its runs on Bob Allison's leadoff homer in the first inning.

The sightings threatened to go forever until Rod Carew walked in the 12th inning, stole second, went to third on Yankee catcher Jake Gibbs' bad throw and scored on Rich Rollins' infield hit.

Bill Monbouquette pitched nine innings in relief for the Yanks, retiring the first 21 batters he faced before being hited for a pinch hitter in the 10th.

Jim Merritt went the first 14 innings for the Twins.

Home runs by Frank Howard and Ken McMullen helped Joe Coleman, 8-6, win his fourth straight game for Washington. Howard's homer was his 28th.

SAYS NO SNAP

HALIFAX (CP) — Jim Melsbac of Windsor, Ont., and Newark, N.J., who meets Milo Calhoun of Jamaica for the British Empire middleweight boxing title in Glace Bay, N.S. Friday, says the bout may go the full 10 rounds. "Milo is strong as a bull and moves like an elephant so I'll try to outbox him," he said. "It'll be rough; he's real tough and he'll probably go 12 rounds."

No Team ! No Game ! Just Practice

The senior baseball contest slated for last night between Belleville's Lombards and Little Britain was cancelled, as the visitors were unable to field a team.

However, coach Moe Hunter took advantage of the "prime" time at the fairgrounds and held a practice. With the playoffs just around the bend the extra workout should prove to be of value.

Date for last night's game to be played was not given. The Lombards have five games remaining, most of them postponements. The next game is in Oshawa Friday night.

Wrestler Given "The Bite"

WINNIPEG (CP)— Ray Longshead, 34, railway brakeman from Moose Jaw, Sask., appears certain to wind up with a Pan-Americans Games wrestling medal for Canada.

But he does, it will be some consolation for his sore left inner finger.

Longhead tangled with Alejandro Zawadzki of Argentina in the roughest fight on Wednesday's card. The angry Argentinian, disqualified for biting, refused to leave the mat until he was escorted away by teammates.

As Longhead grappled with his opponent, Zawadzki sank his teeth into the finger. The bite did not require medical attention.

In the featherweight division, Ray Rober of Dutton, Ont., was decisioned by Roberto Wallejo of Mexico and eliminated on two-fifty points.

Bantamweight Charles Nixon of Burlington, Ont., lost his first bout but remained in the running for a medal. He was outpointed by Richard Sanders of the U.S.

City Archers In Holland!

From AP-Reuters

Carol Anne Armstrong, 26, of Belleville, Canadian women's champion, is 11th in the women's over - all with 1,464 points.

Eileen Donaldson, also of Belleville, who took up archery because she didn't feel like staying at home while her husband participated in the sport, was a respectable 13th with 1,362 points.

AMERSPOORT, The Netherlands (CP) — Sweden led the men's events and the United States the women's after the first round of four distances in the world archery championships at this Dutch holiday resort Wednesday.

Canada was sixth in both sections.

Arne Ljungquist of Sweden had a total score of 1,144 out of a possible 1,440 in leading his team. The team held 3,355 points. The three best scores of the four team members make up the team score.

The U.S. team was second with 3,321 points and Canada sixth with 3,268.

Each of the 129 men and 56 women contestants representing 28 countries have shot 144 arrows; 36 each at the 90, 70, 50, and 30 metres for men and 70, 60, 50, and 30 metres for women.

Emmanuel Boucher, 34, of St. Eustache, Que., Canadian Diamond Arrow champion, is top Canadian with 1,309 points, 12th day.

In the over-all individual standings.

Donald Jackson of Lindsay, Ont., who has held a flock of Canadian championships, is 17th over-all with 1,052 points. Fay Belsch nee Elmer Ewart, Bamberg, Ont., 29th with 1,056 points and Edgar Barrier of Montreal, Que., 30th with 1,036.

The second round starts today. The championships close Friday.

Score 18-18

Riders Tie BC Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 34-yard field goal by Ted Gerela on the final play of the game gave British Columbia Lions an 18-18 tie with Ottawa Roughriders in a Canadian Football League exhibition game before 21,147 fans Wednesday night.

The Lions scored 14 points in the first quarter to keep an undefeated streak intact after three exhibition games.

Ottawa, the defending Eastern champions, have yet to win an exhibition game in three tries.

Gerela also converted touchdowns by Jim Young and Sonny Homer and his second quarter field goal attempt was conceded by Bob O'Billovich for a point.

Frank Clair's riders capitalized on an interception and a fumble to score two touchdowns, one by halfback Rick Black and the other by veteran halt Ron Stewart.

Moe Racine converted one and made good on a 30-yard field goal.

The other two Ottawa points came when Neal Beaumont conceded a safety touch in order to retain the ball for B.C.

BRITONS WIN AGAIN

OTTAWA (CP)— Marylebone Cricket Club breezed to a quick and easy eight - wicket victory over Quebec Wednesday for its fourth victory without a loss in a continuing 6½-week tour of Canada and the U.S. The British club got the Quebec side all out for only 91 runs in one hour and four minutes, then scored 93 runs in one hour with only two batsmen out.

Departmental Softball

Electric Motors shaded the Fire Department 3-2 in one of the best Departmental Softball League games of the season last night.

It was a key game for both clubs.

The win gave the Motormen a three - point lead over the police in their battle for a final playoff spot. And the loss delayed, at least for the time being, a pennant for the Firemen.

With but a few games left in the schedule every position is open. Combines and Intelligencer separated by a single point in second and third, clash tonight.

A walk and hits by Sikema and Belanger got the winners in the first 2-0. In the second each side scored once in the third last night. The Firemen cut it to 3-2 in the fifth but that was as close as they came with a double play in the seventh erasing their final chance.

Teddy Waite pitched a five-hit victory while Bob Davenport was the loser before Craig Rump took over in the third. They also gave up five hits.

All hits were singles with Electric Motors' going to Teddy Waite, Glynn Reynolds, Arnold Sikema, Pat Brown and Terry Belanger. Grand Parks had a pair, Ron Wahn, Eric Emerson and Steve Miller one each for the Firemen.

Read Wins Four In Row

For most of the season Read was the laughing stock of the South Hastings baseball league.

Recently, however, nobody but Read is smiling.

Last night the former cellar dwellers reeled off their fourth straight win to move into a third place tie with Cannifton. The win was a 3-1 decision over Cannifton.

Three of the four games in their winning streak have been against Plane's.

Both third place clubs are within easy striking distance of the front - runners, Latta and Shannonville.

Carm Milligan and Harold Pascoe in the eighth shared the winners' pitching chore. They struck out six, walked one, and sprinkled 10 hits over the route.

Bernie Coughlin threw third strikes past four, walked four, and allowed nine hits, for Plane's.

Ken Abrams slammed a game winning double to lead the Read batmen. Wayne Pascoe and Carm Milligan had two base hits each, and Ken Brennan, Ed Lazier, Frank Farrell, and Leo Enright one each.

Ron Urch, Hugh Petrie, Jack O'Neil and Court Bralley had two hits each for the losers. John Tweedy and Bernie Coughlin added one each.

Big play of the ball game for Read was a double play with the bases loaded in the fifth.

Fourth Ballet Needed "Like Third Railroad" Says Council

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canada Council says it has "watched ghast" various tentative moves to form permanent ballet companies.

"The country needs a fourth ballet company like it needs a third railroad," the council said in its 10th annual report made public today.

The report surveys the development of the arts in Canada in the last decade.

Ballet, music, visual arts, theatre, opera and writing are assessed separately.

"With our finger in the financial dyke, we sometimes wonder if Canada may have more ballet than it can really afford," the report says. "It costs more to keep a ballerina in the field than a U.S. soldier."

Canada now has three major companies—the National Ballet of Toronto, the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, and Montreal's Grands Ballets Canadiens. With revenues of $1,300,000 this season, they have a combined budget of $2,900,000.

Ballet, next to theatre, was the costliest art the Council assists, the report says.

The council suggests that the three companies try to cut costs by co-operating more—notably in training dancers.

It praises Canadian theatre attendance 1,053,000; box office revenues $2,430,000; operating costs $4,200,000 for such co-operation.

French and English Canadian directors, actors, singers, dancers and composers had found "stimulus in working together."

The council would continue to promote the movement.

Musically, concerts given by orchestras that the council helps are drawing an audience of 1,400,000 and revenues of $2,300,000, with spending will ahead of $4,600,000.

The report notes that while audience has doubled and revenues have tripled in the last 10 years, spending has quadrupled for all major arts organizations.

Harder work behind the scenes was one reason and it was showing in the quality of concerts.

Where the symphonies had been "casual conglomerations of underpaid musicians," they were becoming "fine instruments of music."

The Montreal and Toronto symphonies are "quite clearly, and by international standards, considerable instruments of music." In Vancouver, Winnipeg, Quebec and Edmonton, other symphonies were arising, plus the National Youth Orchestra.

"Perhaps the greatest stimulus to the Canadian composer during the decade has been the carefully planned series of commissioning grants made by the federal centennial commission and the commissioning of four operas by the CBC."

The council said its own grants have resulted in 30 new works since 1957 and it plans to continue these grants after the Centennial Year.

The city had conductors, set and costume designers aplenty, a fine orchestra and the 3,000-seat Salle Wilfrid Pelletier in the Place des Arts.

Only the meanies, under the influence of Expo 67 World Festival, Montreal will become a world capital of opera as it plays host to so many visiting compatibs."

TV ENTERTAINMENT

THURSDAY

The excellent anthology that was aired a few months ago, "The Sangmakers" will return to Summer Focus, at 10:00 on channel 12. The program provided an analysis of modern music from rock, to blues to folk-rock. Among the guests were the Mamas and Papas, the Byrds and Simon and Garfunkel.

Channel 7 presents "Toys in the Attic" the story of a troubled household. It stars Dean Martin, Geraldine Page and Yvette Mimieux.

Minor Baseball

Sines Shell whipped the Fountain Park 14-3 behind the two-hit pitching of Blaine Mullins and Robin Guest in BMBA peewee last night.

The Shell scored in every inning in taking the win.

Mullins and Guest fanned nine and walked six, while on the opposing mound Dale Volkenburg and Jim Richardson allowed seven hits, walked 12 and struck out three.

Mullins and Grant Geegan slammed a double and single each, Cliff Radbourne had two singles, and Don McTaggart one.

Tom Barrigar and Volkenburg had the losers hits.

Hitting—Joe Pepitone, Yankees, hit two home runs as New York won the opening game of a doubleheader from Minnesota Twins 6-1.

Pitching — Bill Monbouquette, Yankees, retired 21 batters in a row, pitching nine scoreless innings in New York's second game with the Twins. But Minnesota won 3-2 in 18 innings.

EOBA Bantams Stop Frankford

Belleville rammed home ten runs in the first two innings and whipped Frankford 12-3 in EOBA bantam play last night.

David Wood spun four - hit ball on the Belleville rubber. He struck out nine and walked four. Loser McCauley gave up six hits, whiffed six and walked two while suffering three errors.

Jerry Meagher had a double and single and Paul Hall a two-base safety for the winners. Rick Meagher, Moe Thompson and Mike Geegan singled. Rogers, Campbell, Lockwood and Hyle singled for Frankford.

Belleville opens EOBA playoffs against Peterborough here Saturday, the first in a best-of-three series going at Parkdale at 3 p.m.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed — MR. TWEEDY — by Ned Riddle

Inquest Finds Toronto Woman Drowned in Her Bathtub

TORONTO (CP) — Terrence Milligan, 32, was charged with capital murder Wednesday night, shortly after a coroner's jury ruled that his 29-year-old wife died June 11 "as a result of homicide at the hands of her husband."

The coroner's jury was told earlier that Jane Milligan died by drowning, not from the electric shock of a plugged-in radio found with her body in the bathtub of the couple's Scarborough apartment.

The girl's father had to be restrained when he made a lunge at Milligan who was being led away from the inquest by detectives.

Milligan was to appear in court today.

Milligan, who went to Prince Edward Island following his wife's death, returned to testify at the inquest under the protection of the Canada Evidence Act.

He told the inquest that on the day of his wife's death, he awoke at about 7:30 a.m. and found his wife lying partially submerged in the bathtub. A radio which was still plugged in was in the water with her, he said.

Milligan testified that when he touched his wife's body he received a slight shock. He then disconnected the radio and went for police.

Dr. Donald Ryder, the pathologist who performed an autopsy on Mrs. Milligan, said she died of asphyxiation due to drowning.

He said the body had several bruises on the scalp and abrasions just below the left eye, on the left elbow, and on the right hip.

Gerald Fitzgerald, an Ontario Hydro engineer, told the coroner's jury that a radio completely submerged in water could cause a shock sufficient to kill.

But he said he thought it unlikely that the body would be in the position it was found—lying on her left side—if the woman had received a severe shock and had continued to receive electrical current.

Thomas Greene, a life insurance representative, testified that Milligan had taken out a double indemnity policy for his wife and himself in March. The policy was worth $30,000 in case of death by accident.

Several witnesses testified that Milligan showed no distress at his wife's death.

Mrs. Patricia Haggood, a neighbor, said she told Milligan she was sorry to hear of his wife's death and he replied: "I'm not sorry; I've been living with her almost a year and that's enough. Marriage is for the birds."

Shulman Says Inquest Intended to Embarrass NDP Leader

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Morton Shulman said Wednesday the Ontario government was out to embarrass Donald C. MacDonald after the provincial NDP leader was involved in an accident in which a woman was killed.

The former Toronto chief coroner said the government blocked him from taking over an inquest into the woman's death because it felt it had a better chance of embarrassing Mr. MacDonald with the coroner already assigned.

The inquest was into the death of Mary Doddatis, killed last Dec. 4 when a car driven by Mr. MacDonald crossed a median on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway in Toronto.

Dr. Shulman said he wanted to take over the case from Dr. Alison Noble, the coroner assigned, because Mr. MacDonald's lawyer named marked public interest in the case.

"The government wanted Mr. MacDonald embarrassed and they felt there was a better chance he would be if Dr. Noble conducted the inquest."

He said he believed this because Dr. Noble, although a fine and sincere man, nevertheless, in Dr. Shulman's opinion, was not competent to handle such a complicated case.

Earlier Wednesday, Mrs. George Moore told the commission, investigating Dr. Shulman's charges of government interference in inquests, that she said her husband never were given a full explanation of the death of their three-year-old daughter Barbara.

Mrs. Moore's statement contradicted testimony by Dr. H. B. Coleman, Ontario supervising coroner, that he had telephoned the Moores shortly after Barbara's death to ascertain whether the cause of death had been explained to their satisfaction.

The baby died in a Pembroke hospital in 1961, when her stomach was ruptured during administration of oxygen following removal of her tonsils and adenoids.

Under cross - examination, both parents said no mention of the administration of oxygen to their daughter had been made to them by any doctor.

"As I understand it, she gulped down air and ruptured her tummy. I do not recall any mention of oxygen."

Dr. Coleman told the commission Tuesday he had called the Moores.

Mrs. Moore said Wednesday she was definitely not mistaken in denying the call was made.

"I was home myself. We took Barbie to be buried on Saturday. I felt I had to face the house alone."

Welland Pair Remanded in Betting Case

WELLAND (CP) — Robert Grubi of Port Colborne and Howard Brennan of Welland Wednesday were remanded on recognizance bail until Aug. 30 on book-making charges. They are charged with keeping a common betting house, of being engaged in the business of betting and of making agreements for the purchase of betting privileges.

Crown Attorney Donald Scott told the court, "it could be a somewhat lengthy trial."

Grubi opened a shop in Welland where he accepted money from clients and took it to Fort Erie race track to be bet through pari-mutuel machines for a fee.

Mayors Request Federal Government To Share in Meeting Education Costs

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities wound up its three - day conference Wednesday by appealing to the federal government to ease the financial burden weighing on the shoulders of the municipalities because of rising education costs.

The 600 mayors and reeves from across Canada adopted a resolution calling on the federal government to begin immediate discussions with provincial authorities on the "urgent and critical problem" of education finance to "relieve the property taxpayers" of the burden.

The resolution dealing with the financing of education was among the most important to come up for study at the federation's 30th annual conference.

The 1968 meeting will be held in Edmonton.

The conference's business was disrupted Wednesday by visiting French President Charles de Gaulle's remarks which have been interpreted as encouraging Quebec's separation from Canada. The president left Montreal for France later in the day after cancelling a scheduled trip to Ottawa.

The day's proceedings were interrupted by Mayor M. E. Dickerson of North Bay, Ont., a member of the federation's executive committee, who tried to introduce a resolution condemning Gen. de Gaulle's statement.

Although most of the delegates — about 80 per cent of them are English speaking — strongly disagreed with Gen. de Gaulle's interference in Canada's affairs, the federation decided that the matter was being adequately dealt with by federal authorities.

The resolution condemning the French president preceded another which urged that all functions attended by the mayors and reeves in the future pay "due respect to the Sovereign head of state."

This resolution was brought up at the conference because a number of the delegates objected to the fact that no toast was made to the Queen at Monday's dinner given in honor of the mayors and reeves by the Quebec government.

Two resolutions dealing with the slaughter of baby seals were defeated chiefly because strong arguments by the Maritime delegates who stated say such resolutions should come from the Atlantic provinces and not from Ontario.

The federation urged the federal government to initiate talks with the provincial governments to help reduce pollution of Canada's natural resources and requested federal grants and provincial assistance to carry out programs to beautify the country's rivers.

8 Airliner Jets Lost In Training Manoeuvre

TORONTO (CP) — A pilot-training manoeuvre that has cost civil airlines in North America eight swept - wing jet aircraft in the last nine years has been suspended pending investigation by the airlines and government officials in the United States and Canada.

The practice requiredd a pilot to throttle back two engines to simulate an engine - out emergency condition while on a landing approach.

The Air Canada DC-8F jet that crashed near Ottawa in May while on a training flight had two engines pulled back.

The official transport department statement said "evidence indicates that simulation of abnormal procedures were being practised as part of the standard training routine."

Following the accident, a Canadian Pacific Airlines spokesman says the training manoeuvre was stopped pending completion of the investigation, expected in the fall.

Denbigh Marks Centennial

NAPANEE — A number from the south of the county were among the many who attended the Denbigh Centennial celebration last weekend, and all returned home with the same opinion. It was thoroughly enjoyable experience, and all the more so because the whole celebration was a home effort.

The program got underway at two o'clock, with Ezra Ball, principal of the North Addington High School at Cloyne, as the master of ceremonies. Speakers were introduced by William Scott, and included Reeve Gordon Plotz, who proclaimed old home weekend officially open; Warden William Briscoe, who brought greetings of the county; Ronald Macpherson, chairman of the county-town centennial committee; A. Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P., R. Webb, M.P., and the Hon. J.-R. Simonett.

The formalities included two dedications, the dedication of the new Council Chambers by Mr. Webb and Mr. Simonett, and of the Denbigh Lake Conservation Dam, by James Taylor, an official of the Department of Lands and Forests.

The evening saw a dance, fireworks, and an old-time box social, with the Vosnyes brothers auctioning off the elaborately decorated boxes.

On Sunday an all-faith service was held in the school grounds.

To Fill NDSS Board Vacancy

NAPANEE — Interviews for the post of secretary - treasurer of Napanee District Secondary School board are being held this week, a board member said Tuesday.

Eight applicants are being considered for the position, vacated recently by Gordon MacGregor, who held the position for more than 10 years. A decision is expected later this week.

The school board expects to have eight of the 31 new rooms now under construction open by September. The addition will permit an enrolment of 1,500, an increase of about 600 pupils from the June, 1967, registration figures.

RUSSIANS FOR BERGEN

The Moscow Philharmonic Orchestra will give two concerts at the 1968 Bergen International Festival.

Rain Needed For Good Crop

"We'll need rain in the next week or 10 days. If not there's always next year, you know."

That's the way a typical Prairie farmer, John Moreland views the present situation.

John Moreland, in assessing the current drought afflicting his 2,500-acre wheat farm, says spring wheat crops were still capable of producing "decent" yields. But late-growing spring wheat, without rainfall, would "not amount to much of anything."

Winter wheat could produce 30 bushels an acre but spring wheat, now in the heading-out stage, was dependent on moisture for increasing yields.

Spokesmen in Alberta and Saskatchewan say that with some exceptions, below but near normal wheat crops are still possible with additional rainfall by the first week of August.

In some areas, particularly in wheat-bak Saskatchewan, additional moisture even this week would be too late to assist many crops.

"We'll be lucky to get half of last year's crop," said E. H. Evans, Saskatchewan's agriculture department statistician.

That crop totalled 546,000,000 bushels.

R. E. English, statistician for Alberta's department of agriculture, summed up that province's outlook with:

Every day of dry weather pushes the current wheat crop prospects farther below normal. The best farmers can hope for in the south is an average crop; in the Red Deer, Edmonton and northeast areas crops remain near normal but deteriorating. Everywhere else "it's extremely dry."

Mr. English, who has watched Alberta crop prospects for about 40 years, said rain and drought have been cyclical. A break in dry weather now could mean six weeks of rain. But it was more likely to stay dry.

Reports from Manitoba showed crop prospects in most areas were generally favorable due to extensive rainfall last week. Only in southwestern Manitoba were crops suffering.

In Alb'rta, hay crops varied from good in the south, to fair along the western edge of the province to light elsewhere.

Saskatchewan's hay crop was less favorable. Mr. Evans called the crop "very poor."

In Manitoba, hay crops and pastures have been reported more favorable than elsewhere on the Prairies, but, like Alberta and Saskatchewan, second hay crops will need additional moisture.

Skimmer Surfing

Latest fad on Vancouver-area beaches are skimmers — round pieces of wood or metal about three feet in diameter which youngsters use for surfing thrills. They toss skimmers along the water, jump on, and ride until they are dumped or the skimmer sinks. Top left, Debbie Macdonald collapses gracefully while Lloyd Dean, above right, is thrown forcefully. Below, Hamish Macdonald demonstrates two other kinds of landing. (CP Photo)

Only Unforgivable Sin Is to Be Unforgiving

Thoughts at Large:

Beautiful girls don't win beauty contests, because beautiful girl don't enter them — for a truly beautiful woman would not submit to such commercialized vulgarity.

• • •

A man who has something to say never becomes an orator; for an orator is someone who makes words do the work of ideas.

• • •

Watching the UN representatives on television, it occurred to me that the one characteristic all of them have in common is an intense humorlessness — and that the same single-minded dullness that propels them into statesmanship also makes it impossible for them to see the absurdity of proclaiming that their country is always right.

When a parrot confesses he or she "can't handle" a child or life, it is a safe conclusion that the child was mishandled at the age of six.

It is hard to quarrel with the observation made a century ago by J. C. Collins that: "Half our mistakes in life arise from feeling when we ought to think, and thinking when we ought to feel."

The moralist fails to understand what wise women have long known — that the best antidote for lust is not indignation, but laughter.

• • •

When we are young, we would like to write a burning satire about mankind; as we get older, we realize such a book would have to be largely autobiographical in nature, for we ourselve have done as little to rectify the world's folly as those we accuse in our youth.

Easy to like.

That is if you like an easy whisky. If so, you should have no difficulty liking 5 Star.

Where things get difficult is in making a whisky that good it means selecting whiskies from our five distilleries across Canada (only Seagram's has 5, by the way). Then blending and re-blending them to get 5 Star's easy taste.

Is it worth all the trouble? Easy for you to find out.

We're Not French We're Canadians

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — Real Caouette, leader of the Creditistes, responded Wednesday to President de Gaulle's Quebec tour by saying he would "resist fight against being imposed by other countries."

He said in reference to the people of Quebec:

"Our country is not just Quebec, it's Canada. We're not French; we're Canadians. We want to be respected."

OTTAWA (CP)—President de Gaulle's decision to cut short a Canadian visit has been blamed by Separatist MP Gilles Gregoire on a "wilful, intentional and deliberate" insult by Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Gregoire said that a Pearson statement rebuking the French president for separatist remarks also was an insult to Quebec's French population.

The federal MP noted that Premier Daniel Johnson had spent "this whole memorable day" at Gen. de Gaulle's side. It was now up to Premier Johnson to define "clearly, rapidly and without equivocation the attitude he will take henceforth."

CORNER BROOK (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national New Democratic Party leader, said Wednesday night it was doubly unfortunate that French President de Gaulle terminated his Canadian visit after his controversial remarks about Quebec.

Mr. Douglas felt things might have gone much better "if everybody had kept cool." He said he felt things were worsened by giving an undue degree of attention and publicity to the small separatist element in Quebec.

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba said Wednesday he is in agreement with the federal government's stand on remarks made in Montreal by French President de Gaulle which seemed to support the cause of Quebec separatism.

Hamilton Says Dief Will Pick New Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker will be the kingmaker when Progressive Conservatives hold their leadership convention in September says Alvin Hamilton, one of eight leadership candidates.

Mr. Hamilton, member of Parliament for Qu'Appelle, told a news conference Wednesday Mr. Diefenbaker, who has not yet declared whether he will run, has the largest block of supporters among the delegates.

With this voting strength and with the eight candidates splitting up the rest of the votes, "Mr. Diefenbaker will decide who will be the next leader," Mr. Hamilton said.

However, the 55-year-old former school teacher and cabinet minister in the Diefenbaker government refused to speculate on how many votes Mr. Diefenbaker has.

In Toronto on a three-day visit to try to win delegates support, Mr. Hamilton said that of the eight candidates he and Premier Stanfield are the only ones able to win the leadership race.

PC Aspirant Hits 'Partisan Politics'

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—John Maclean, a candidate for the Progressive Conservative leadership, said Wednesday that at a time when constructive advice to the government was needed party leader John Diefenbaker continued to be critical and unconstructive in his comments on Prime Minister Pearson's handling of the de Gaulle affair.

Mr. Maclean, a Brockville businessman, was commenting on criticism by Mr. Diefenbaker of Mr. Pearson for "gunny-footing" with a "pusillanimous" statement on the French president's Quebec outburst.

"It is this sort of partisan politics in a non-partisan situation that I find most unsatisfactory," he said.

Eskimo Girl Cries

OTTAWA (CP)—Simaluk, a 12-year-old Eskimo girl, burst into tears as she boarded an RCAF Yukon aircraft for Frobisher Bay, N.W.T., Wednesday.

She was one of 100 Eskimo children from Frobisher Bay brought to Ottawa for a two week centennial visit by the suburban Hillcrest Community Council.

They departed under a load of mini-dresses, wool earrings, Beatle caps and cowboy hats collected during their stay.

Roblin Said Ready to Run But He Calls It 'Speculation'

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba will announce his candidacy for the Progressive Conservative Party leadership by the end of this week, it was learned Wednesday from reliable sources.

Mr. Roblin's candidacy would be the ninth in the Conservative party leadership race, to be decided in Toronto at a leadership convention in September.

Candidates already announced are Premier Stanfield, former trade minister George Hees, former justice minister Fulton, former finance minister Donald Fleming, former labor minister Michael Starr, Senator Wallace McCutcheon, briefly trade minister, former agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton and John Maclean, a Brockville, Ont., businessman who is not given much of a chance.

MONTREAL (CP)— Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba Wednesday dismissed as "speculation" reports that he will enter the race for leadership of the Progressive Conservative Party.

But he said:

"The matter is under consideration. I am not prepared to make a statement at this point."

Earlier, in a speech in French to a service club, he made an appeal for a united Canada and goodwill among the provinces.

Efficiency Will Not Solve Farm Income Problem Says Biggs

KEMPTVILLE, Ont. (CP)— Efficiency alone will not solve the farm income problem. It is going to take money too—about $500,000 according to Everett Biggs, chairman of the special committee on farm income and Ontario deputy minister of agriculture.

Mr. Biggs was addressing delegates to the Ontario Conference on Agriculture in Kemptville Wednesday.

The money would cover the cost of continuation of a study to develop Ontario policies for agriculture. The money would come from the government for a proposed second - phase study of long-range policies for Ontario agriculture.

The first phase of the study has been done by Winnipeg economic consultants Hedlin, Menzies and Associates Ltd. for the special committee on farm income.

Unless the government supports the individual farmer, he will be unable to compete with massive corporations which could lead to corporate control of agriculture.

"Modern technological agriculture cannot be settled with a 'laissez-faire approach to its problems," he said.

Mr. Biggs said that some Ontario farms could never be farmed commercially and should be consolidated into more economically feasible units. But he said human considerations must precede economic ones.

Too much efficiency, would mean lower prices for individual farmers he said.

"When the new technology has been adopted by the entire industry, supplies may increase to a level where the less efficient lose money," he said.

"Only the consumer benefits by way of a lower price."

Pope Rejects Pill, Frowns on Regular Use of 'Rhythm' Method

VATICAN CITY (CP) — Pope Paul today banned the contraceptive pill and all other mechanical and chemical means of birth control for the world's 500,000,000 Roman Catholics. He also indicated that the rhythm should not be employed as a regular practice.

"Every matrimonial act must remain open to the transmission of life," the Pope declared in a key sentence of his long-delayed encyclical letter on one of the most controversial issues facing the church today.

This appeared to rule out the possibility of any future acceptance by Pope Paul of contraception for any reason and seemed to imply disapproval of the constant use of the rhythm or "safe period" method, the only method of birth control sanctioned by the church.

The Pope said: "To destroy even only partially its (intercourse's) significance and its end is contradictory to the plan of God and to His will."

The current Vatican stand on birth control results from 1930 when Pope Pius XI issued his encyclical Casti Connubii on marriage and a ruling by Pope Pius XII in 1951 that permitted the rhythm method.

This teaching, which emphasizes natural processes of fertility planning based on the wife's periods of infertility, was maintained despite recent advances in the manufacture of pills and other means of limiting births.

In a passage directed to men of science, the Pope voiced encouragement for continued research in the area of birth regulation. But again he appeared to rule out any other solution than ways of improving the rhythm method.

The Vatican's leading moral theologian, Rt. Rev. Ferdinando Lambruschini, presented the encyclical at a news conference and said in effect that despite the Pope's decision, the issue is not closed for all time.

"The rule is not unreformable," he commented. "It is up to theologians to debate and expand all moral aspects involved.

And if, for instance, some principle should become overwhelmingly accepted in the church, contraception may even be launched."

Msgr. Lambruschini pointed out that the Pope deliberately avoided any Biblical references to the sexual act or any references to procreation as the primary end of marriage. These are the foundations of traditional Catholic teaching, but their Biblical basis is under serious challenge.

The Pope also refused, "even for therapeutic reasons," to allow direct sterilization.

Although demands for liberalization of the church's policy have grown steadily in recent years, the Pope's decision to continue the past policy had been predicted and was generally expected.

The decision rejects the majority view of Pope Paul's 75-member birth control commission, which recommended to him in June, 1966, that the birth control ban be eased.

The Pope's conservative conclusion is expected to touch off a new explosion of worldwide controversy among Catholics and non-Catholics alike.

World's Birth Rates Not Soaring

WASHINGTON (AP) — The population reference bureau Sunday reported that the belief that birth rates are soaring in predominantly Roman Catholic nations is "an old misconception."

In fact, the private research agency said, United Nations figures show that birth rates are not soaring anywhere in the world."

The bureau released a study of birth trends in 136 Catholic and non-Catholic countries on the eve of an expected announcement by Pope Paul reaffirming the church's position on birth control.

"The big difference between high and low birth-rate nations . . . is not whether they are Catholic or non-Catholic but whether they are economically underdeveloped or advanced," the bureau said.

The 11 Roman Catholic countries in Europe have an average annual birth rate of 18.1 babies per 1,000 of population, it added, while the figure for 15 non-Catholic nations is 18.0.

Czechs and Russians Meet Aboard Train

Other Nations' Fates at Stake

PRAGUE (Reuters) — The meeting of Soviet and Czechoslovakian leaders will not only determine the future of Czechoslovakia, but also the direction of many other Communist states.

The unprecedented meeting, planned in secret while Soviet troops are still in Czechoslovakia, is on the surface a discussion of Prague's sweeping liberalisation program.

However, it is clear Moscow will use the forum to try to crush the reform program before it spreads to other Communist states and even to the Soviet Union.

The meeting pits a big power which regards itself as the true guardian of Communist dogma against a small country which seeks an independent Socialist policy.

It also lines up Kremlin-approved men in their 60s against new-style Communists in their 40s.

The real tragedy, Czechoslovakians point out, is that their country feels a basic commitment to the Communist alliance since Czechoslovakia was sold out to Hitler in 1938 and overrun by the Nazis shortly thereafter.

If the top leadership of the Czechoslovakian party continues to maintain its allegiance to the new program, the summit conference will mark the beginning of a Soviet political siege to crush the reformers.

If the Soviet Communists succeed in halting Prague's democratization program, they can expect a longer life for their own strict centralized authority.

Czechoslovakia also expects to fight this battle by itself. Although the Romanian, Yugoslav and Western Communist parties have expressed moral support, they cannot be counted on to take further action.

The United States, observers believe, is too closely engaged in super-power relations with the Soviet Union to offer anything more than moral support at this time.

However, Czechoslovakian party leader Alexander Dubcek went to the meeting with heavy support from the general public as well as within his own party.

Criticisms of his leadership almost vanished when the Russians continued to threaten and accuse Prague of selling out the Socialist countries.

China Promises Ho Atom Arms

HONG KONG (Reuters) — China has promised President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam nuclear arms if necessary, the Hong Kong Star says. It did not give its source for the report.

The newspaper says the pledge was made in a secret letter presented in Peking last week to a North Vietnamese negotiating delegation after it signed an aid agreement with China.

Test of Wills Gets Underway

PRAGUE (CP) — Russian and Czechoslovak leaders met today in a shabby frontier town near the Soviet border for crucial talks on Russia's demands that Czechoslovakia check its independent course down the Communist road.

The official news agency Ceteka said the talks opened in the Moscow delegation's special train at Cierna, a Czechoslovak railway junction on the Tisa River. The junction is where wide-gauge Soviet trains are reloaded onto cars with the narrow European gauge used in Czechoslovakia.

Cierna is in the southeast corner of Slovakia a few miles from the Soviet and Hungarian frontiers. At a Hungarian station around the town and there are many gypsies in the area.

Unconfirmed reports said the meeting opened on a tense note with the Soviet delegates showing anger about the presence of photographers in the area.

Secrecy on the meeting had been one of the Soviet demands coupled with agreement to have the talks held on Czechoslovak territory.

A strong police cordon was thrown around the area where the Soviet train was parked.

Russian troops, though officially said to be small in number, were reported to be still near Presov, a Czechoslovak rail junction about 15 miles north of the meeting site.

Other units, which had stayed on in Czechoslovakia after last month's Warsaw Pact manoeuvres, were officially announced as having scheduled their departure tonight from the area of Libava in Moravia.

About 40 Czechoslovak leaders, including party leader Alexander Dubcek and 11 members of the party presidium, arrived Sunday night by plane at Kosice, about 30 miles from the Soviet border. They continued by sleeper train to Cierna.

Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev led the 11-member Soviet politburo that travelled to Cierna by train. There were two other Russians in the group. Among premiers in attendance was Premier Alexei Kosygin, who is considered to favor a more moderate approach to the Czechoslovak leaders.

The Czechoslovak news agency Ceteka, in its last reference to Soviet troops in nearly a week, said units in the Libava area close to the Polish border started moving Saturday night south toward Valasske Mezirici in northern Moravia.

Ceteka merely said "their departure had been planned for July 22" but no reason was given for their movement south when they should have been going back into Poland, East Germany or Russia.

Czechoslovak authorities have not said how many Soviet troops are still in the country and the final date of departure is not known.

BILL EASTON of Belleville landed this 22-pound lake trout in Lake Opeongo last week following a 35-minute battle.

Huge Lake Trout Caught in Opeongo

Just ask Bill Easton, building superintendent at Regency Towers, who last week hauled in a whopping 22-pound lake trout in Opeongo Lake, 50 miles north of Bancroft.

Mr. Easton and two friends, Bill Kemp and Gary Gow, fished for three days in the northern lake and came home with 15 beauties — the largest of them the 22-pounder landed by Mr. Easton.

"I caught him on the end of a 6X0 foot line and landed him after a 35-minute battle, reported the Belleville fisherman.

The big fish was hooked at a depth of more than 100 feet.

Mr. Easton is well known in the Belleville area. He at one time operated a suburban grocery business and a number of decades ago was manager of the Bata senior baseball team.

Negro Riots Not Work Of Hoodlums, Criminals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The national advisory commission on civil disorders went out of business today—one year, seven months and a hundred thousand words and $1,500,000 after President Johnson created it.

Sniper fire still whined in the streets of Detroit July 29, 1967, when Johnson convened the 11-member commission at the White House and charged it with trying to learn:

"What happened? What can be done to prevent it from happening again and again?"

The commission, headed by former Illinois governor Otto Kerner and representing nearly all the colors of the political spectrum, issued its first report last March.

Another report was released during the weekend and said new studies show rioters to be representative of urban Negro youth and not just "riff-raff" and criminals.

The report also said that 18 per cent of ghetto residents took part in riots and not one to two per cent as originally estimated.

The latest report, expected to be the last bearing the commission seal, was a compilation of three studies by separate groups. It was issued without comment.

The original report ran some 160,000 words and was the work of 150 fulltime paid staffers as well as the 11 commissioned members.

End to Postal Strike Not in Sight

OTTAWA (CP) — An end to Canada's postal strike, now in its 12th day, appeared nowhere in sight today despite struggling mediation to end the walkout.

Mediation talks among representatives of the 24,000-member Council of Postal Unions and the treasury board under the eye of Judge Rene Lippe adjourned at 2 a.m. EDT today to resume at 2 p.m. this afternoon.

Prime Minister Trudeau, back in the capital Sunday from a week's trip to Canada's North, also held out no immediate hope for a legislated end to the dispute.

He told reporters he still feels the continuing negotiations are the best way to deal with the strike at the present time, although the possibility that Parliament may be recalled to end the walkout remains.

Mr. Trudeau said his cabinet will hold its regular Wednesday meeting—apparently the earliest time at which the postal strike will get a thorough review.

Judge Lippe told two reporters after the 2 a.m. session adjourned:

"The mood is good, the atmosphere is good."

Asked once again whether progress is being made in his talks with the council's chief negotiator Romeo Mathieu and the treasurery board's Douglas Love, he replied:

"Surely you don't discuss things for almost 11 hours in a room without making some progress."

Sunday's mediation began at 3 p.m. and except for a dinner break continued until the morning.

About 40 Czechoslovak leaders, including party leader Alexander Dubcek and 12 members of the party presidium, arrived Sunday night by plane at Kosice, about 40 miles from the Soviet border. They continued by sleeper train to Cierna.

Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev led the 11-member Soviet politburo that travelled to Cierna by train. There were two other Russians in the group. Among presidium members was Premier Alexei Kosygin, who is considered to favor a more moderate approach to the Czechoslovak leaders.

The Czechoslovak news agency Ceteka, Czech radio and Soviet troops in nearly a week, said units of the Libava area close to the Polish border started moving Saturday night south toward Valasske Mezirici in northern Moravia.

Ceteka merely said "their departure had been planned for July 22" but no reason was given for their movement south when they should have been going back into Poland, East Germany or Russia.

Czechoslovak authorities have not said how many Soviet troops are still in the country and the final date of departure is not known.

BILL EASTON of Belleville landed this 22-pound lake trout in Lake Opeongo last week following a 35-minute battle.

Huge Lake Trout Caught in Opeongo

Just ask Bill Easton, building superintendent at Regency Towers, who last week hauled in a whopping 22-pound lake trout in Opeongo Lake, 50 miles north of Bancroft.

Mr. Easton and two friends, Bill Kemp and Gary Gow, fished for three days in the northern lake and came home with 15 beauties — the largest of them the 22-pounder landed by Mr. Easton.

"I caught him on the end of a 6½ foot line and landed him after a 35-minute battle, reported the Belleville fisherman.

The big fish was hooked at a depth of more than 100 feet.

Mr. Easton is well known in the Belleville area. He at one time operated a suburban grocery business and a couple of decades ago was manager of the Bata senior baseball team.

Negro Riots Not Work Of Hoodlums, Criminals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The national advisory commission on civil disorders went out of business today—one year, seven hundred thousand words and $1,500,000 after President Johnson created it.

Sniper fire still whined in the streets of Detroit July 29, 1967, when Johnson convened the 11-member commission at the White House and charged it with trying to learn:

"What happened? What can be done to prevent it from happening again and again?"

The commission, headed by former Illinois governor Otto Kerner and representing nearly all the colors of the political spectrum, issued its first report last March.

Another report was released during the weekend and said new studies show rioters to be representative of urban Negro youth and not just "riff-raff" and criminals.

The report also said that 18 per cent of ghetto residents took part in riots and not one to two per cent as originally estimated.

The latest report, expected to be the last bearing the commission seal, was a compilation of three studies by separate groups. It was issued without comment.

The original report ran some 160,000 words and was the work of 150 fulltime paid staffers as well as the 11 commissioned members.

End to Postal Strike Not in Sight

OTTAWA (CP) — An end to Canada's postal strike, now in its 12th day, appeared nowhere in sight today despite unflagging mediation to end the walkout.

Mediation talks among representatives of the 24,000-member Council of Postal Unions and the treasury board under the eye of Judge Rene Lippe adjourned at 2 a.m. EDT today to resume at 2 p.m. this afternoon.

Prime Minister Trudeau, back in the capital Sunday from a week's trip to Canada's North, also held out no immediate hope for a legislated end to the dispute.

He told reporters he still feels the continuing negotiations are the best way to deal with the strike at the present time, although the possibility that Parliament may be recalled to end the walkout remains.

Mr. Trudeau said his cabinet will hold its regular Wednesday meeting—apparently the earliest time at which the postal strike will get a thorough review.

Judge Lippe told two reporters after the 2 a.m. session adjourned:

"The mood is good, the atmosphere is good."

Asked once again whether progress is being made in his talks with the council's chief negotiator Romeo Mathieu and the treasurery board's Douglas Love, he replied:

"Surely you don't discuss things for almost 18 hours in a room without making some progress."

Sunday's mediation began at 3 p.m. and except for a dinner break continued until the morning.

Pickerel Poacher Escapes

NAPANEE — Police in the Napanee area have a search out for 21-year-old Lawrence Calvert of Napanee who early Saturday afternoon escaped from the Lennox and Addington county jail.

Calvert, serving a 30 day sentence for pickerel poaching was to appear in court on further charges this week.

Police described the escaped man as being nearly six feet in height with a slim build and weighing 145 pounds. He has dark hair and eyes with a prominent nose and was dressed in a light T-shirt and fawn trousers.

Accident Damage Totals $2,000

TWEED — Three accidents near here over the weekend resulted in $2,000 damage and no personal injuries.

A one-vehicle accident at four o'clock this morning resulted in $900 damage to a car driven by Ronald Crawford, 24, of RR3, Tweed.

Mr. Crawford was travelling east on the Sulphide Rd. 6 c.d. two miles east of 37 near the railway crossing when the accident occurred.

He was uninjured. According to police several guideposts and a railway directional signpost were damaged in the incident.

A second one-vehicle mishap resulted in $400 damage about 8:20 p.m. last night in Marmora.

The car was driven by Paul John Keeley, 17, of Oakville.

A three-car collision on the Malone Road at midnight resulted in $700 damage.

A vehicle driven by Earl Whiteman, 65, of RR 3, Madoc, sustained $300 damage while a second car driven by Ralph Watson, 60, of RR3, Madoc, sustained $400 damage.

A third car involved in the incident, driven by Carl Spotola 17, of Toronto had no damages.

No one was injured.

The Quinte Branch of the Ontario Humane Society has purchased the Sidney township property owned by Eastern Breeders Incorporated for use as an animal shelter. The Society will take over animal control duties in Belleville on Sept. 1.

Quinte Humane Society Buys Eastern Breeders Property

A new animal shelter has been acquired for the Belleville and Trenton area.

It is the Eastern Breeders' Incorporated property in Sidney township just west of the city limits, which has been purchased by the Quinte Branch of the Ontario Humane Society.

The property consists of a 6.9 acre area and has a large frame type barn, which now houses, in the association area, a modern type office structure and a residence.

Robert Whiten, president of the Quinte branch of the Ontario Humane Society said today that certain renovations would be done to fit the property as an animal shelter.

Facilities will also be available for the impounding of neglected farm animals.

Mr. Whiten said the Belleville society has the responsibility of checking into reports of neglected farm animals throughout the Quinte district and the Sidney township property would be available for use as a general centre for impounding of such animals.

But the big immediate responsibility of the Humane Society will be animal control duties for Belleville and Trenton.

The Society will assume this responsibility in Belleville on September 1, and it is expected will also take over dog catching and similar duties in Trenton on about the same date.

The recently purchased Eastern Breeders quarters outside Belleville will be partially available to the Humane Society by September 1. A Humane Society inspector will live in the residence.

Earlier this year Eastern Breeders announced that it would move all its sires to Kemptville headquarters.

The breeders association however, has now decided to retain a district office at Belleville and station at least two technicians here as well.

Office space at the Humane Society centre will be rented back to Eastern Breeders.

priests show that millions of Catholic couples already use birth control devices including the pill.

Even in the non-Catholic world there is enormous pressure for Catholicism—the world's largest Christian faith to permit birth control as a means of easing the population in starving parts of the world.

The encyclical—the seventh of Pope Paul's five-year reign—was titled Humanae Vitae (of Human life) from the first words of the text. It is dated July 25, 1968.

It was considered especially significant that the Pope timed his announcement prior to the scheduled August trip to Latin America, the world's most populous Catholic continent.

While ruling out pills as a birth control means, the Pope retained the right for women to use pills to cure physical disorders even if they also happen to be birth control pills.

This has been acceptable in the past.

Despite his strong restatement of the obligation of Catholic couples to obey the traditional teachings on birth control, the Pope urged priests to show understanding to them in their problems.

The Pope said that Christ was indeed intransigent with evil, but merciful toward individuals." He said that "many married couples always find in the words and in the heart of a priest, the echo of the voice and the love of the Redeemer."

This reference was taken by theologians as a reflection of the so-called "French line" of thought—that while practicing contraception is objectively a sin, in individual cases, depending on circumstances, allowances must be made.

Around the "Cat"

Wally Lavergne, President of the Belleville Bowling Club and his chum, John Sager, attended the Western Ontario Bowling Tournament at London last week and with Bill Fuller as skip won third place in the second event. They also competed in the doubles and made a good showing but did not figure in the prize list. They report the greens were excellent and the hospitality "out of this world."

"Jerry" Hyde and Bruce Milley journey to Oshawa on Saturday to compete for the Provincial Championship for doubles and from reports emanating from the local Clubhouse they need a little more practice before tackling the Bearcats from three other zones. The other night a pair from the club, Percy Graham and Orlo Smith took on the zone champions and trounced them 25-12. The champs were happy when they had the challengers down 8-1 around the fifth end but that was the last time they touched the chalk before the winners put on an insurmountable lead. A Ohher game will likely be played this week and as he says the score will be different.

A number of men's and women's doubles rink journeyed to Peterborough on Saturday and had a good time but did not enter the prize lists.

On Thursday the women staged their regular bowling schedule. The top scorers was a rink of Nora Kyle with Thelma Fitzgibbon as skip. A rink of "Doll" Argue, Lil Hermon with Jessie Hunter as skip was second and a rink of Anne Watkin with Carm Mott as skip, third place.

Stella Ford, Flossie Baldbird, Loretta Ryan and Helen Blackwell were tea hostesses. There were seven tables of Bridge in play.

Building, Animals Are Lost in Fire

NAPANEE — A large frame barn, built years ago by the Rathbun Lumber Company, along with 70 young pigs, a bull and 3,000 bales of last year's hay, were lost Saturday night in a blaze started by lightning.

The large heavily timbered structure, 210 by 60 feet with an addition 30 by 60 feet, situated one half miles north of Desoronto on the Boundary Road, and was owned by Ralph Kimmett.

The Desoronto Fire Department answered the alarm but could do nothing to save the structure which burst into flames in minutes. Embers fired burning boards, blown by the wind were carried away from the nearby house. There is still no estimate of the loss.

One hundred head of cattle owned by Mr. Kimmett were in pasture at the time of the fire and this year's hay crop had still not been hauled in the barn.

The barn had been completely modernized and contained expensive equipment, including milk cooling tanks and a mechanical milker.

The 25-head of milch cows are now being milked at the home of a neighbor Hugh Fingland.

Woman Injured In Picton Mishap

PICTON (Staff) — A Quebec woman has been placed under intensive care at Kingston General Hospital following a motor vehicle accident near here Saturday. She suffered head injuries and shock.

Hospital authorities said Mrs. Kenna Pichovick was in fair condition.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Kenneth Pratley also of Quebec.

Also a passenger, Mrs. Pratley, suffered minor facial lacerations.

Both women were given initial treatment at the Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital here.

Mr. Pratley and Mr. Pichovich both escaped injuries, as did Kenneth Cook of Picton, driver of a second car involved in the accident.

The accident took place on Highway 33, the Glenora Road, near the Glenora Marina.

Damages to the Pratley vehicle amounted to $250, and to the Cook vehicle, $350.

Crown Seeks True Bill In Marijuana Case

The preliminary hearing for Joel Whitton, the Quinte Secondary School teacher accused of possession of marijuana, began before Magistrate T. Y. Wills this morning.

Arraigned along with Whitton was another teacher, Christopher Williams, but the hearings are being held separately.

They are accused of unlawful possession of marijuana between April 14 and 15 of this year.

Testimony from a primary witness for the Crown, Bruce Pringle was heard this morning along with evidence from RCMP officers Donald Pelley and Corporal Samuel Pitman.

The hearing will continue this afternoon.

Other

opposition to Soviet pressure.

Millions of Czechoslovakians signed appeals asking the party leadership to stand firm and continue its policy of freedom of speech and other reforms.

Moscow in recent days has been particularly concerned that the country's new-found discipline in the Czechoslovak armed forces by weakening ties with the Soviet command ers and diluting political indoctrination.

The Soviet Union fears this could expose its underbelly in the enormous area of the Soviet army divisions—and threaten the East German regime which increased infiltration and subversion from the West.

The Kremlin, according to expert opinion here, is expected to produce four major demands at the meeting.

The first is that Czechoslovak Communists postpone the party congress which has been designed to oust old-time conservative leaders.

The second is to bolster defences against the West presumably by permitting Soviet divisions on Czechoslovak soil.

The third is to reimpose press censorship and stifle free speech.

And, the last major demand appears to be a purge of "anti-Socialist" elements which in Soviet terms might mean several of the country's new leaders.

However, there are reported differences of opinion within the leadership of both parties.

Little is known about cracks in the Soviet politburo, although premier Alexei Kosygin is generally ranked among the more liberal-thinking men.

In the Czechoslovakian prediliction, the splits are more discernable because of the recent free-dom-of-speech policies since Dubcek ousted Antonin Novotny earlier this year. Four or five members of the ruling group are known to be lukewarm to Dubcek himself.

But observers believe the public opinion since the Russian pressures have forced the Prague leadership to present a united front at the conference.

IN MEMORIAM

BALDWIN — In loving memory of my dear son, David, who passed away July 29, 1966.
There is a mother who misses you
And thinks of you daily and hourly;
And finds the time long since you went,
But I think of you daily and hourly;
But I'll be brave and content,
And I'll wait a while and then
And I breathe a sigh of regret,
For you were mine, and I remember
Though all the world forget.
—Always remembered by Mom and Dad.

BALDWIN — In loving memory of our brother, David, who passed away July 29, 1966.
Stella who passed away July 30th, 1956.
Beautiful memories are wonderful;
Of a dear mother and grandmother
Stella who passed away July 30th, 1956.
Beautiful memories are wonderful;
They never went with her,
They never went with her,
And can never be taken away.

Sky Diver Appears, Moves Closer, Descends, Misses Tree, Lands on His Posterior and, Garbed in Bathing Suit, Talks With Spectators

It's A Bird, It's A Plane... No, It's Just Bill Baird

Local individuals and a duty-minded motorcycle policeman rushed to the grounds of BCI early Saturday night when a mysterious "object fell from the sky."

The constable chased through the streets of Belleville after spotting the object until it landed in BCI's grounds.

The object turned out to be Bill Baird, 30, who was attending a local party in grand style — by sky-diving in.

It was Bill's third jump that day and his 155th since he began jumping in 1965.

Covered by his jump suit was the costume he is wearing at the Kingston Summer Festival, a vintage bathing suit. The festival will be the scene of more dives by Bill during its festivities from July 27 until Aug. 3 at Megaffin Stadium.

"It wasn't one of the easy jumps," said the former army photographer. "The wind was blowing 40 miles an hour when I jumped. I was over the shopping centre (Towers) and I could see the people pointing up at me when I was doing my free fall.

"I had to work the chute all the way down. With the wind coming right out of the west I didn't really have too much of a shot at my alternate landing spots so I had to make it to the school."

The jumper's comments were matched by the 60 people at the school grounds who followed his progress. Only a few of them were aware the jump was for their benefit. Almost all of them, unfamiliar with sky diving, thought he would land far short of his target — although later the diver said "I could have floated another mile."

As he approached the field, crossing the Moira and the city's main business section, it appeared he might over shoot the target area.

Then, manipulating his shrouds to spill air out of the chute, he floated in to a landing 20 feet from the assembled guests.

Bill is the senior jumper in the Kingston Sky-diving Club. He is at present a "C-licenced" parachutist and is working towards his "D".

The C-licence has enabled Mr. Baird to jump in exhibitions although he only dives for a hobby and is not a professional.

He became interested in the sport as a result of his job as a reporter for the Kingston Whig-Standard. On a picture assignment he was offered a free jump program and he "jumped" at the opportunity. He is now an instructor with the Kingston club.

Sky-diving is the only deviation he has from his job. "It helps to keep you in decent shape."

Bill's Jump Saturday night was at 2,500 feet from a Cessna 150 supplied by Wagner Aviation in Kingston. There was a 10 second free fall.

He estimated his run-in from the plane to the field as two miles.

Does it take a lot of nerve? Ask a sky-diver and he says no almost every time.

Parents and friends were on hand Saturday evening to bid farewell to 24 students from the Belleville and Peterborough area. "The Young Voyageurs" were about to commence a journey to Winnipeg as part of an exchange program.

Students Off to Winnipeg

Saturday night saw the Belleville CNR station jammed with young people and their parents and friends. The well-wishing and the good-byes were a prelude to 10 days of ambassadorship in Winnipeg.

The 24 students will be visiting all of the sights in that city including the parliament buildings.

The students are from an area from Peterborough to Belleville including Lakefield, Trenton, Brighton and other centres.

Basically one student represents each school. He is selected by the principal of that school usually on the basis of his all-round student abilities.

Called the Young Voyageurs, the group works on an exchange basis. Earlier this year students from British Columbia visited the Belleville area.

The entire operation is co-sponsored by the Federal and Provincial Governments. Transportation and lodging is supplied by the sponsors.

The trips are designed to familiarize Canadians with their own country and to offer them an opportunity to learn of Canada's history and political structure firsthand.

Woman Injured In Accident At Bayside

A one-vehicle accident near Bayside Sunday afternoon sent an area woman to Belleville General Hospital.

Reported in "satisfactory" condition was Cissie Hilton, 50, of RR3, Belleville who collided with a hydro pole at the corner of White's Road and Highway 2 near Bayside.

She was admitted to hospital with a fractured nose, lacerations to her elbow and numerous bruises and contusions.

Girl Killed Near Coe Hill

COE HILL — A jaunt in a borrowed sports car ended in the death of a 19-year-old girl near here Saturday night.

Killed when the automobile skidded on a curve on Highway 620 two miles east of here was Carol Landon, of Coe Hill.

Earlier in the night Jud Gunter, 17, also of Coe Hill had borrowed the car from a friend in Bancroft to take Miss Landon for a drive.

She was pinned beneath the car when it rolled on the curve.

Provincial police said Gunter, in Bancroft Red Cross Hospital with shoulder injuries, could not recall who was driving the car when it slid out of control.

Gunter and Miss Landon had graduated from Bancroft high school earlier this year, say police.

1968 Fair Edition Provides Preview

The special Belleville Fair Tabloid edition of The Intelligencer will go to press on August 8, the last Friday before the opening of the fair on August 13.

Like last year's edition, the paper will be a supplement to the regular edition of The Intelligencer with additional copies to be placed in the hands of families by other means.

The purpose of the Belleville Fair edition is to provide a comprehensive preview of the fair for families within a 30 mile radius of the city. It will be directed to what has been established as the Quinte district retail area with its 35,000 homes and 150,000 population.

The tabloid edition will carry general information about the 5 - day class - A fair, pictorial features, maps and advertising.

The last day for the receipt of editorial copy for the special edition is August 5.

All Eyes on Czechs

The eyes of the world are on Czechoslovakia this week as talks begin to determine its future.

For the Czechs and their new leader Alexander Dubcek it is a week of crisis. Moscow has taken outspoken exception to Czechoslovakia's move to a more liberal government. The Kremlin has made it plain it wants to see the Communist satellite country re-impose censorship, slow down its move to more friendly relationships with West Germany, purge the reformists from top government and party posts and crack down on anti-Communist political activity.

The demands won't find favor with Dubcek and his vocal band of supporters. However, the possibility is strong that Czech leader will have to knuckle under on some of the counts for, despite considerable support at home, the country's precsidium is split on the liberal movement.

On the eve of the summit talks Pravda has termed the meeting as crucial and decisive in Russia's efforts to compel Prague to reverse its reform program.

The situation is the toughest one the Communists have had to face in Europe since the Hungarian revolution in 1956.

There isn't any question it could be a matter of life and death for the Czechs. The world is waiting anxiously to see whether the struggle between the two communist nations will have wider repercussions than that.

Acclaim for Belleville

Perseverance is a fairly commonplace term in the sports world.

But it takes on added significance when applied to the sport of archery and particularly to Mrs. Carol Armstrong of this city.

On the weekend Mrs. Armstrong, for the second year, won the women's archery championship of Canada at the conclusion of a four-day meet in Regina.

What makes Mrs. Armstrong's feat even more remarkable is that it costs this dedicated woman and her husband about $2,000 a year out of their family budget to enable her to represent this city in national championships and this country in international events.

It makes the training and the competition perseverance par excellence.

The Riot Report Is In

Millions of the residents of the United States today must be re-assessing their social consciences in the wake of the reports issued by the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders.

Shot down was the theory that the riots of the 1960s have been caused by the actions of riff raff and outside agitators. Examination of records have shown that 78 per cent of the Negro populations of ghetto areas took part in the riots that have befallen U.S. cities.

In one fell swoop, it wipes away the argument used by many police, social workers and civic officials who attempted to explain riots in their cities by claiming the violence was the product of outside agitation.

And at the same time as this pill has to be swallowed, the obvious corollary is evident that the answer is not riot control tactics and legislation to rule out future violence but the transformation of the institutions and attitudes which have created the Negro slums.

Soul searching may be a necessary part of everyone's life, but for the 200,000,000 million people of the United States it has become of paramount importance to prevent the breakup of their country.

Summer Fun

This week our neighbors in Kingston and district are in the middle of their first summer festival. For years, the community tried to put across the idea of a winter festival but it did not prove practical.

Now, in an attempt to engage the interest of the considerable number of tourists in the area and to create a pleasant change of pace, the first summer festival began last Friday.

The majority of the 60 events planned for the 10-day event are free and range from the inevitable baby show and beauty contest to water ski tournaments, ski diving exhibitions, a parade by the Antique and Classic Car Club, fiddlers contests, fishing derbies and tug of war finals.

It sounds like a great idea. It might not be cricket, but I wish we had thought of it first.

The Communist Crisis—I

Relaxed Border Crossings Czech Reform Issue

The view across the Czech border into Austria at Devin isn't much of a tourist attraction but residents and road gangs flock to it on Sundays.

Peter Buckley, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow who visited Czechoslovakia, sees the relaxed attitude at the border guards as a symbol of the liberal attitude under the new Czech regime.

By PETER BUCKLEY

DE VIN, Czechoslovakia (CP) — From downtown Bratislava you join a woman conductor in bedroom slippers on the rickety old No. 7 tram to the end of the line, then transfer to a No. 29 bus.

Just past Devin's old baroque church and down a narrow village street, you get off the bus at a cemetery where the tombstones lean right out over the roadside.

A five-minute walk along a dusty road and you're there: Fragile strands of barbed wire, a sluggish river and distant wooden guard towers announce that this is the border between Czechoslovakia and Austria.

It's not exactly a gee-whiz tourist attraction, especially since there isn't even a control point at Devin where you can cross over.

But on a warm, sunny Sunday recently, there were light-hearted crowds in a steady flow out of Bratislava on the road to Devin, carrying picnic lunches and sweating freely in the crowded bus.

Once here, they climbed the rocky slopes of a little hill that overlooked the border, and from the ruins of a centuries-old castle at the top they surveyed the level green farms of Austria beyond the turgid Danube River.

In the watch towers, the guards lounged on straight-back chairs with an indifference that defied the summer heat. And from the deck of a Czech border-patrol boat docked just beyond the barbed wire, the young crew whistled at pretty Slovak girls strolling by.

The relaxed attitude of the whole Devin border area was a first-class illustration of a change announced by the new reform government in Prague that is likely to be welcomed by ordinary Czechs as much as any other.

The change is that the Czechs are to be allowed to come and go across their borders just about as they please.

The new laws, when enacted, are to be similar to those in Eastern Europe. Alone among Communist states, Czechoslovakia plans to limit its citizens the right to travel abroad that, for instance, a Canadian has.

The whole restrictive fabric of visas and limited passports, paperwork and intimidation is to be abolished, government spokesmen say.

The only limitations will be money—and this may prove to be fairly severe, since hard currency is scarce—as well as exceptional cases where judicial or state interests could be affected.

Even before the new law went into effect, there have been changes.

Some of the more austere concoctions of barbed wire and mines along the Czechoslovakia from such neighbors as Austria and West Germany are reported to have been tidied up and reduced.

An engineer in Bratislava told me of another change:

"I have travelled abroad several times on business. Each time I had to apply at the police station for my passport. When I came back, the passport had to be turned in again.

"Then, a little while ago, I got a call from the police. 'Would you please report to the station at your convenience.'

"I went down and they gave me my passport. To keep at home. Without me asking for it."

The man was visibly moved by the police action, as much as free speech, a free press and a new freedom from fear the liberty to travel beyond one's own borders is regarded by many Czechs as essential to any deep-rooted reform of the country's political system.

For years they have watched with resentment or envy as tourists from the West surged through their cities and villages, free as birds to travel almost anywhere their wallets allowed.

The young people are believed to have felt it most. They mixed with students from Germany and France and the U.S., then stayed behind when the foreigners moved on.

Many Czechs were able to visit the West in years past and returned home well-liked when they got there. But travel at almost any quality ended to good behavior in every respect, including politically. The interior ministry was able to refuse a visa on a whim or a suspicion.

It may be that in the worst years of the Stalinist past in Czechoslovakia, the people of Bratislava came to Devin and cafe for picnic lunches and warm beer and a laugh.

After this summer will be the stuffy little No. 29 bus, the No. 7 streetcar with the conductor in her slippers, and home.

Quite A Challenge

Vancouver Province: That's quite a challenge handed to French-Canadians by the Council of French Life in America. Babies and still more babies by French-speaking couples are needed if French Canada is to survive, says this private organization dedicated to the preservation of French culture.

The growth and development of French culture in Canada in the past 200 years should help the council to put most of its fears aside, however. The French-speaking population has grown from 60,000 in 1760 to 6,000,000 today. French-Canadians can also claim some such advances as the ability to invest $1,300,000,000 in their own credit-union movement; the development of French-language universities, newspapers, radio and television, literature and art; the role they are playing in federal government.

Recess to Be Rest for Beleaguered Wilson

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

This week's backhander administered to Harold Wilson by the executive of the British Labor party is only the latest manifestation of a certain discomfort that seems to go with being a political leader in Britain at the moment.

All three chiefs of the major parties are afflicted with saddle sores from disaffected followers.

As parliamentarians leave Westminster today for 11 weeks, the summer recess will give Prime Minister Wilson relief from a long season of well-publicized discontent among his followers. The cabinet squabbles, resignations and back-bench revolts have followed in such a succession that a Canadian politician would be left wondering whether the ship of state was foundering.

Piled on the intra-party troubles is the fact that the electorate has been unkind to Labor in a long string of by-elections. The popularity polls have also been discouraging, though they look somewhat better lately.

Wilson has borne it all with outward resignation, apparently buoyed by the dictum of former Labor Prime Minister Clement Attlee that what counts is the long string of victories. The popularity polls have also been discouraging, though they look somewhat better lately.

The latest item of woe for Wilson was the party executive's rebuff Wednesday in turning down Anthony Greenwood, his minister of housing, for the vital post of Labor's general secretary. Instead, it went to a union man, Harry Nicholas.

The rebuff emphasizes a growing rift between the party's union element and the old-school-tie brigade exemplified by Wilson and Greenwood. The pill was more bitter because two union men who walked out of the cabinet this year, George Brown and Ray Gunter, apparently were largely instrumental in staging the coup.

The last has not been heard of the affair. An enraged group of Wilson back-bench supporters is reported steaming up a counter-pot to squeeze Brown out of his post as deputy leader of the parliamentary group.

Tory leader Edward Heath, who should normally be riding high on Labor's troubles, is having his own. His personal standing has lagged behind the party's in the polls, and he has been having embarrassing difficulties in getting his MPs to march in the same direction on such issues as the government's bill to toughen up against racial discrimination.

A special hairshirt has been intellectual Enoch Powell, whom Heath heaved out of the shadow cabinet for denouncing colored immigration. Another embarrassment was a Heath-sponsored and futile gesture by the Tory lords, who refused to endorse government legislation to abolish them. The only result was to incite Wilson to break off negotiations for reforming that body.

Liberal leader Jeremy Thorpe, whose 12-man Commons group is impotent enough, suffered the indignity of hearing his young electoral demand for a change to a more vigorous leadership while he was honeymooning on the Continent. However, he seems to have smacked that down on his return.

Guyana-Venezuela Dispute

Trouble in South America Could Affect Canada

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Two centres of simmering trouble in South America have bubbled to the surface and also could cause concern in Canada.

Government officials in Guyana, a new independent South American country since known as British Guiana, are expressing fears about a possible war with neighboring Venezuela, which has been pressing vigorously its claims to a large chunk of Guyanese territory.

Canadian interests have a big stake in Guyana's bauxite resources, used in production of aluminum.

And Sir Lionel Luckhoo, Guyana's high commissioner in London, gave prominent place, in a sombre summation of the border dispute, to the fact that his country's prime minister, Forbes Burnham, has been in touch with Prime Minister Trudeau of Canada.

Meantime, the claim of Argentina to the British-controlled Falkland Islands off its coast gave rise to officially-denied reports that the nervous islanders were looking to Canada for help in resolving their plight.

They are worried because British statements on the Argentine bid have not removed entirely the possibility of an eventual handover of the sparsely-populated Falklands to the mainland nation.

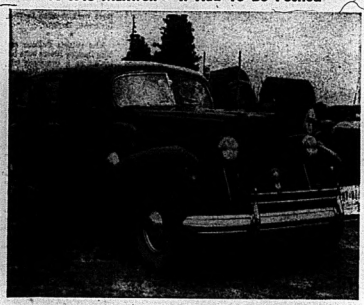
Argentina alleges that Britain illegally dispossessed it in 1833 of the Falklands, where wool is the chief export.

Venezuela insists that a territorial award made by an arbitration board in 1899 is null and void and that more than two-thirds of Guyana thus consists of Venezuelan land.

Some commentators in London are arguing that Britain is not taking a sufficiently vigorous stand in favor of the English-speaking Falkland Islanders and the Guyanese.

Both disputes arise at a time when Britain is pulling back from its old imperial network of interest as part of the country's gravitation towards Europe and reduction of its overseas commitments to a size worthy of a country no longer enjoying super-power status.

In both instances, too, the tendency—as reported tendency—has been for the English-speaking parties to look towards Canada in the absence of outright support from London.



This tendency would square with older arguments of statesmen in the British West Indies.

They say Canada must fill the vacuum left by the Caribbean area—including Guyana if not the Falklands—by the British withdrawal, though not to the point of becoming another colonizer.

Any worsening of the Guyanese and Falkland situations could therefore provide first indications of how Canadian foreign policy will be developing in the new Trudeau era.

Vintage Cars Stop for a Breather on London to Brighton Tour---

The Bonnie and Clyde Era Returns As Old Cars Complete Tour to Brighton

TRENTON — The era of Bonnie and Clyde was given a new lease on life Saturday as a stream of vintage cars paraded through the streets of Brighton.

It was the last stop in the London to Brighton tour completed by the Antique Auto Club of America. The trip took one week.

Thirty six cars were registered by the Ontario branch for the trip and some dated as far back as 1911.

For a car buff the site of these immaculately restored classics was enough to bring a tear to the eye. And many of the spectators who lined the streets had to look twice to verify what they were seeing.

The cars gathered approximately one mile north of Brighton to prepare for the ride through the city. Even here people came to view the cars.

One of the most popular was a 1911 Ford which was the oldest car in the tour. Surrounded by an equally large group of people was a 1939 Packard.

And the list goes on as both young and old admired, sat in, and even attempted to drive the classics.

And then the word was given to "get ready to ride" and the cars roared to life.

Well most of them did. A few became temperamental and warranted a push but all got off.

A member of the club, Dr. G. M. Longfield said the Ontario branch of the club had been in existence for 11 years.

"We mark each year by a tour of this type," said Dr. Longfield.

The drivers said their cars rode smoothly throughout the trip and an average speed of 40 to 45 mph was maintained.

It was three in the afternoon when the procession came into Brighton and the residents greeted them with cries of "hey, look at those cars."

Czechs and Russians Meet

weet into the meeting to defend their new democratic style of communism with an outward show of bravado.

But they know, as the world does, that Russia is determined to halt the inflow of what Moscow called subversive infiltration.

At stake is the survival of Czechoslovakia's home-made brand of communism which varies widely from the Moscow model.

Since coming to power, the liberal government bestowed free speech upon its citizens, restored justice without party influence to the courts, curbed the security police, opened up the top councils of the party and has given a boost to the morale of the country's 14,300,000 people, which was badly needed after 20 years of stagnant conservative rule.

Informed sources in Prague view the little country town and railway junction of Cierna as merely the site of the first formal encounter between the Russians and the Czechoslovaks.

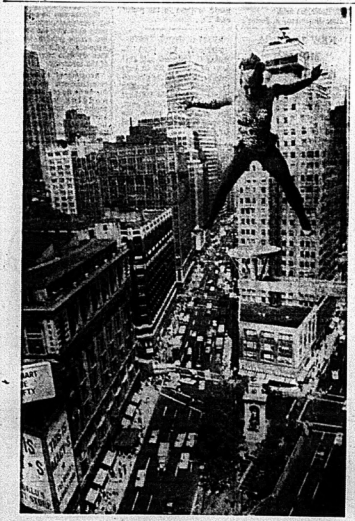
They believe the two groups will move to some nearby town or health resort where there will be room to accommodate large delegations possibly totaling several hundreds.

Prague's new reform leaders promised their countrymen none of their new freedoms would be taken away in the talks with the Soviet leaders demanding an end to liberalization.

"We will bear in mind that we are responsible for socialism in our country, for the sovereignty and for the future of this state," Joseph Smrkovsky, National Assembly chairman and a key figure in the new liberal movement, said in a television interview.

Smrkovsky said the presidium would not give ground on press freedom, a main Soviet target.

The Soviet press coupled announcements of the meeting with more warnings against what it called the counter-revolution in Czechoslovakia.

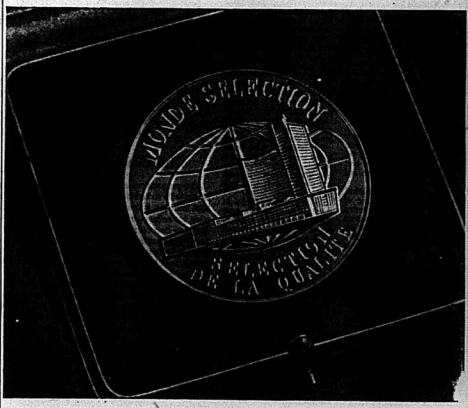


The Moscow papers also announced that military manoeuvres under way near the Czechoslovakia border are among "the biggest ever carried out by the Soviet Army."

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, warned that the Soviet Union not only would uphold its brand of communism in Czechoslovakia but also would support the "unity and security" of the Soviet bloc.

Soviet Defence Minister Andrei Grechko said in a statement marking Soviet Navy Day that the Soviet armed forces must "increase further their combat readiness" because of threats to "the Socialist system."

On the eve of the talks, two Czechoslovak newspapers proposed a nationwide, five-minute general strike today to demonstrate popular support for the liberalization drive, but the party leaders spoke against it.



Public support for Prague's leaders has snowballed rapidly as the showdown approached. Hundreds of thousands of persons signed an open letter calling for defence of the new course "on which we have started and which we will not leave alive."

WEDDING

GLEIBS — GRAVES

The Protestant Chapel at C.F.B. Trenton was the scene of the wedding on Saturday, July 20, 1968 when Beverly Jean Graves, daughter of Lt.-Col. H. G. Graves and Mrs. Graves, Belleville was united in marriage to Gernot Gleibs, Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Gleibs of Preston. Rev. Hedley-Smith officiated at the ceremony, while Mrs. Smith presided at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line gown of imported pristine white, ribbed silk featuring an Empire waist and elbow-length bell sleeves and a scalloped neckline. Double rose appliques enhanced the sleeves skirt and waist and the chapel-length train. A finger tip veil of silk illusion was caught to a satin rose with lily-of-the-valley sprays. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and gladioli with centres of graduated pink shades of Sweetheart roses. Maid of honor was Miss Sherry Graves, sister of the bride. Her gown was the same style as the bride's dress; and it featured deep pink georgette over taffeta with a matching single rose and tulle headpiece. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and gladioli centred with Sweetheart roses. The two bridesmaids, Miss Kathy Gist of Belleville and Miss Lois McEachern of Oshawa were attired identically to the maid of honor but one was in medium pink while the other wore pale pink. Their headdresses were in shades to match their gowns and all carried matching bouquets.

Ross Metcalfe of Hampton attended the bridegroom and his ushers were Wallace Pitt of Oshawa and Fritz Marcinkowski of Kitchener.

The reception was held in the Officers' Mess of C.F.B. Trenton where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a two-piece dress of white, gold and beige lace with matching hat, bone colored accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. In the receiving line also, the bridegroom's mother was attired in an aqua lace sheath dress with matching lace coat, matching hat, black accessories and a corsage of pink tea roses.

For departure on the honeymoon to points west, the bride chose a white lace cotton A-line dress with bracelet-length bell sleeves, white accessories and a corsage of roses in three graduated shades of pink.

Mr. and Mrs. Gleibs will reside in Oshawa.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK KAMPHUIS

Kamphuis – Matthews

St. Margaret's On The Hill Church was the scene of the July wedding when Rev. J. Arnold Dunlop united in marriage Donna-Marie Matthews, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arden A. Matthews of Belleville to Frank Kamphuis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kamphuis of Calgary, Alberta.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown enhanced with an empire bodice and elbow length sleeves of French Guipure lace. Her A-line skirt of peau de fallle was adorned with a rounded cathedral train caught at the waistline and bordered with matching lace. She chose a peau de faille and lace petalled headdress showered with seed pearls and crystals and highlighted with a four tier scalloped veiling of silk illusion. She carried a cascade of apricot carnations, lily of the valley and ivy.

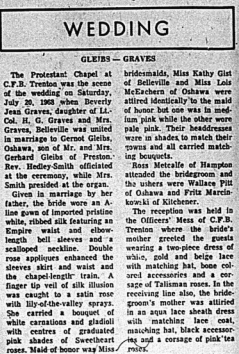
Maid of honor, Miss Lorraine Trumble of Picton, was attired in a full length gown of aqua cotton worsted. The empire waistline was outlined in Swiss embroidery trim; the two panels accenting the back of the A-line skirt. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow shastas.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. Thomas Clifford of Scarborough and Miss Trudy Kamphuis, sister of the groom, Miss Peggy Kamphuis, junior bridesmaid and sister of the groom, were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

Flower girl, Miss Marina Cheese, wore a short white brocaded cotton dress with matching headdress. She carried a basket with yellow shasta daisies with a touch of apricot carnations.

Attending the bridegroom was Tex Cheese of Trenton; and the ushers were Les Roebuck, George McLean and Jack Berry of Belleville.

The wedding reception was held at Club Canara where the mother of the bride received the guests in an imported French silk and worsted white sheath, embellished with a beaded rounded neckline and tiny sleeves and a matching floor draped turban. Accessories were of seafoam green and the flowers were complementing cream baby mums.



The mother of the bridegroom wore a coat and dress ensemble in silver-grey Ottoman silk with navy blue accessories and a corsage of pale pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Banff, Alberta, the bride wore a white crimp-o-lene dress accented in black with matching white and black accessories. She wore a corsage of striped red and white carnations and a white picture hat.

WILL NEED COMPUTERS

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientific and technological advancement is producing so many new books that librarians of the future will have to be aided by computers to keep up with the flow. The bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Gord McKinney with Mrs. Harold Farrow as co-hostess; a linen shower was given at the home of Mrs. Jack Doran with co-hostesses Mrs. Thomas Clifford and Miss Lorraine Trumble. Showers were also given by her fellow teachers of the Dr. C. F. Cannon School, Oshawa, at the home of Mrs. Barbara Heald; a neighborhood shower was held by Mrs. Edward Barrett and a miscellaneous shower, attended by relatives of the bride, by Mrs. Donald Matthews. She received a presentation upon retiring from the teaching staff of the Dr. C. F. Cannon School. The mother of the bride entertained friends of the bride at a trousseau tea on July 10.

Tweed Has World's Smallest Jailhouse

TWEED — The directors of the Tweed Chamber of Commerce, in Tweed, who operate the tourist information booth in North America's smallest jailhouse on Victoria St., are well pleased with the result of their latest venture, the sale of Hastings County cheese, and also maple syrup (local), at the booth.

Marketed under the souvenir brand, "old jailhouse", both products are selling well, the hostesses for the season are: Misses Ann Alexander and Dianne Gunning.

There has been a marked increase in the number of visitors at the booth during the past week. Ontario visitors lead the list in numbers, followed by visitors from Ohio, New York and Michigan, in that order. The register also shows visitors from as far away as Tokyo, Japan and Glasgow, Scotland. Visitors from the furthest point in the U.S. came from the State of California.

A new brochure, "Welcome to Tweed", has gone on distribution this week. Published by the Tweed Chamber of Commerce, the leaflet gives a brief history of Tweed, the surrounding district, and North America's smallest jailhouse, as well as listing the service facilities offered in Tweed and district. The brochures are available at most of the places of business in Tweed village.

Anglican Mothers Conclude "Mother's Union" Too Conservative

LONDON (CP) — Anglican mothers wound up their world-wide conference here Friday amid a growing sense that the church in the modern world may need a more broadly-based women's organization than the conservative Mothers' Union.

The Victorian principles of the union's central executive, which debars divorced mothers from membership and caused a split between Canada and the rest of the international association, came under close scrutiny at this week's decision debates in Westminster, despite winning the day by a two-thirds majority.

But questioning about the future of the 90-year-old society reached further when New Zealand indicated it would follow Canada out of the main body by making its own rules on divorce. South Africa wants the whole concept of a mothers-only organization replaced by a parents' association.

Dr. Cecil Northcott, church correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, says pressure is growing in the British parishes for a "churchwomen's fellowship" which would provide much wider in its aims than the frontiers of marriage and children.

"Homes, babies and families are not the frontiers of the modern woman's life," writes Dr. Nothcott.

"The future is not entirely linked with the divorced - mother question but is concerned with the modern woman and the modern church."

Phyllis Hutchison of Winnipeg, Dominion president of the dissident Canadian branch, said she was not surprised by the voting result on the question of admitting divorced members.

"But I've been agreeably surprised by the number of mothers I've spoken to privately whose views are in line with ours in Canada" she said in an interview.

Last October's revision in Canada of the marriage canon in the Anglican Church, permitting certain divorced persons to remarry, crystallized the women's feeling that the rules should be changed, Mrs. Hutchison said.

Mrs. Hutchison, a doctor's wife, did not speak separately on the Canadian question, but spoke in support of New Zealand's resolution that the Mothers' Union in each country should be independent of the main council in Britain if it wishes.

The official line here is still that divorced mothers cannot "bear witness" to the sanctity of marriage as effectively as women whose marriages have remained unbroken.

"In Canada we feel the witness is borne by what mothers are now and the life they are leading, not by what happened to them in the past," said Mrs. Hutchison.

Girl with Personality Problem Needs Help

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a high school boy (senior) who needs your advice. I am depressed most of the time and don't want to talk to anybody. When I'm in the dumps I feel worthless and stupid and I hate myself. Then I go the other way and think I am the greatest.

I know I need to socialize more but when I get the chance I make some dumb excuse and back out because I'm afraid I won't act right and people will dislike me even more.

I feel alone when I'm with my family. My father has always been cold. My mother is so busy trying to keep peace in the family she has no time for anything else. Dad fights with everybody.

I've told Mom I think I need psychiatric help but she says I am going through a stage and I'll grow out of it. I've even thought of suicide. Please tell me what to do. — AFRAID OF LIFE.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR AFRAID: My advice is for both you and your parents because you need to recognize the nature of your problem and your parents need to recognize the importance of getting you to a doctor for a psychiatric evaluation.

Unfortunately some parents are reluctant to recognize symptoms in their children that could be signs of emotional illness. The parents fear it will label them as failures. In any event, fixing the "blame" serves no useful purpose. What is needed now is professional help. Your personality swings (from high to low and low to high) need exploration.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are five teen-age girls who are writing to servicemen in Vietnam.

One girl (I will call her Jill) has been getting gifts from the boy she is writing — not little trinkets, but the best gift was a wristwatch that must have set him back a lot of money. Jill is practically engaged to a 19-year-old boy she's been dating for two years. When we criticized her, she said, "I am making the G.I. happy and I'm entitled to whatever he wants to give me."

Maybe I feel so strongly because I have a brother in Vietnam and I'd hate to have a girl double deal him like this. What is your opinion? — OUTSPOKEN IN CHIPPEWA FALLS.

DEAR OUTSPOKEN: It is unlikely that the G.I. would be sending Jill expensive gifts if he knew she was "practically engaged." It's neither proper (nor honest) to accept presents under the circumstances and I hope Jill will return the watch and urge the G.I. to save his money.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Four years ago I did a foolish thing. I let a man move into my apartment without benefit of clergy. He had lost his job and was broke. I felt sorry for him. I was also flattered by his attention because he was nine years younger than I and very good looking. We lived together for almost two years.

When he got a good job, he also got a new sweetheart — someone his own age — and married her. My question is this: Am I legally free of this rat? A woman at work said something about common law marriages. (I am listed on his company insurance policy as his wife.)

I'm too shy to talk to a lawyer and I need your help. — SOUTHERN NITWIT.

DEAR SOUTHERN: Beats me how a woman can play house with a man for two years and be too shy to talk to a lawyer. Sorry, but if you want legal advice, you'll have to go to someone who can give it. I can't.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Chicken or Turkey Used in Popular Recipe

By MARY MOORE

My recipe for Chicken Florentine proved so popular with you I decided to adjust it, substituting economical turkey for the chicken and broccoli for the spinach. It made a beautiful main dish for a dinner party for eight.

TURKEY DIVAN
TO SERVE EIGHT

Meat from one 6-lb. boiled turkey (see below)
2 large bundles broccoli
SAUCE:
⅓ cup butter or margarine
⅓ cup flour
¼ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. Accent
2½ cups hot turkey broth
(or 2 per cent plus some and remove package of giblets. Simmer in water to half cover, with one bay leaf, 1 tsp. salt, 2 or 3 sliced onions, covered, until meat starts to fall from bones, turning over once. Carefully transfer to large tray or platter. Dissolve the chicken Oxo cube in ½ cup of the hot turkey broth. Strain and reserve remaining broth for making soup for next day.) Separate meat from bones and skin, leaving meat in fairly large pieces. Discard skin and bones.

Meanwhile wash, trim and cut broccoli into two-inch pieces. Cook, covered, in unsalted water until barely tender. Drain.

Turn into very large shallow baking dish. (I used a 13 x 9 x 2" Corningware.) Cover with the imperfect lit tle pieces of turkey, then arrange large choice pieces, thickly sliced, over all.

To make Sauce: melt butter, blend in flour, salt and Accent, then stir in hot milk and Oxo liquid until thick. Pour evenly over turkey slices being sure some sauce flows through spaces to bottom. Sprinkle generously with grated Parmesan cheese. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 30 min. or until golden and bubbly.

NOTE: This dish may be made 24 hours in advance and thoroughly chilled. But it will require longer baking if it is taken directly from refrigerator to oven.

18 per cent cream)
1 chicken Oxo cube
½ cup boiling hot turkey broth
½ to ¾ cup grated Parmesan cheese
If turkey is frozen thaw it

Top Fashion Designers Wage Endless Battle of the Hemline

PARIS (AP) — High fashion's pacesetter, Christian Dior, popped the skirt two inches above the knee at his fall and winter showing Thursday but showman Andre Courreges raised it thigh high.

Dior's designer Marc Bohan also sanctions the skirt and outlines the bosom. His slender, belted silhouette is what he calls "naive" and he affects the little-girl look wherever possible. The mood is sometimes inspired by the looks of an infant's layette.

But Dior's "baby-blue" is encrusted in solid-gold sequins or lace. And his "baby-pink" is the most luxurious fabrics, the finest silks and sleek novelty weaves, the smoothest wools and fabulous furs.

Sometimes his gold embroidery looks like fish scales. Coats and suit buttons are often rimmed with gold, thong belts are tipped in gold, and some models were weighted down with gold tassels, chain belts and gold boule earrings. Not to speak of gold brocades.

The Dior evening styles are elaborate but include many numbers in soft, flowing chiffon with waving satin feather hemlines or sash ends or cuffs. Soft flimsy crepes and chiffons are treated to long sleeves, round necklines, and flowing circular skirts. Black, white, rose and oyster grey are shown.

Andre Courreges emphasized sex. Besides ultra-short mini-skirts, he bares the bosom and uses the black chiffon top without bra.

Bolero cut to match the shorts, pants or skirts, tend to make the see-all tops more decent than they may sound.

The designer's ideas seemed to be based on white underwear and the old-fashioned "combination" jump suit culled from Edwardian days, even though the jump suit was done in loose white knit.

For evening, Courreges drops hemlines to the ankle.

Successful Living

Schizophrenics Can Have Normal Lives

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I feel I must answer "Unhappy" asking about schizophrenia.

We have just found out our son 18 years old has this, and after many doctors and well-meaning people telling us he was a spoilt brat, and to get tough with him, I began to take a close look at his spells. Then I knew my son was a very ill boy. I had a violent argument with my husband to make him see this and get an appointment with a psychiatrist.

To my husband's horror and my relief he was told our son had schizophrenia, but not fully realizing the magnitude of it all he thought it rather a joke, and was told to read a specialist's book on "How To Live With Schizophrenia". I did this, wishing I had this information before, which would have stopped a lot of heartache, and believe me, many grieving hours for our son, who was beginning to get very frightened.

He had been ill for 11 months with spells coming every month; now he knows he can get help. With the medication plus a strict diet he will be able to live a normal life in time, as he accepts the fact that he was and still is an ill person. — Heartache.

Dear Heartache: I'm sure Unhappy and other anxious people will be glad of your news that schizophrenics can get skilled help towards living normal lives.

I'd be glad to send a copy of the booklet on this disease published by the Mental Health Research Fund in England. I pondered to adjust it, substituting economical turkey for the chicken and broccoli for the spinach. It made a beautiful main dish for a dinner party for eight.

Since you didn't take a stand in the beginning, I can hardly see you taking it now without a fight. I'm going to write a letter from another more successful stepmother, to suggest to you (and to your husband) what might have been; and the address of a counselling service near you.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a teenaged boy from Australia and other countries and would like to get a few penpals from places like Australia, Europe and Africa.

Could you send me the name and address of any organization that helps people get penpals? — Interested.

Dear Interested: Indeed I can, several of them; but I'll need a name and address of the teen-aged boy if send it to — you !

We have a dandy leaflet called "How to Get More Mail", which we supply to readers for you for 10 cents and a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "You were so disappointed when we had a little girl, it's a good thing Susie is such a tomboy. She's always ready to go fishing or camping with you."

Father: "I'm glad she doesn't care for the silly things girls seem to be interested in these days."

A girl needs the friendship and approval of her peers, and she may not have them if she rejects their interests so she can be a good buddy to Dad.

Don't encourage Susie to try to compensate for being a girl. Accept her for what she is, not as a substitute for what you once wanted. She should not grow up feeling that femininity is silly or worthless.

Canadian UN Association Voices Its Concern Over Federal Government's Indian Policies

OTTAWA (CP) — The United Nations Association in Canada is concerned with the federal government's "inadequacies of policies, actions and legislation" dealing with Canadian Indians.

A resolution allowing the 8,000-member organization's policy committee to act to help solve the problems was one of several passed at the eight-hour final session Saturday of the association's two-day annual meeting.

Other resolutions advocated government aid to Biafra, UN seating of Communist China, and easing of the Vietnam war.

The resolution on Indians was approved following a panel discussion led by three Indian representatives who insisted their people be given a say in formulating policies which affect them.

The association also wants Canada to take "immediate initiatives" to give Communist China a seat on the UN Security Council and in the General Assembly.

A comment attached to the resolution said this implies the end of support for Nationalist China, a UN charter member. There was no hope for a two-China policy at the world body.

The Canadian government was asked to urge publicly the negotiation of a prompt withdrawal of "foreign forces" from Vietnam.

The meeting voted to support efforts of voluntary groups in Canada offering medical facilities for immediate treatment and rehabilitation of war victims in Vietnam.

The association wants the government to act at the UN to ensure that all members of the international organization regulate transfers of arms entering or leaving their territory with the UN Secretariat.

Canada should modify its immigration procedures if necessary, the association said, so that the processing of applications from South Africans who wanted to emigrate to Canada might be resumed.

The South African government had refused to allow a Canadian government immigration team into the country, the association said, and consequently Canada suspended acceptance of applications from South Africans.

NDP Member's Death May Give Douglas Seat

NANAIMO (CP) — Tributes came in quickly Sunday following the death of Colin Cameron, New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

Mr. Cameron, who represented the riding for 11 years, died in hospital Sunday of a stroke after becoming ill Saturday. He was 71.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas in Ottawa said he was profoundly shocked by Mr. Cameron's death. He said Mr. Cameron had a stimulating and provocative personality, a restless and inquiring mind which would be missed both in the party and in the House.

Mr. Douglas said Mr. Cameron was "a picture of good health" when the party caucus met in Winnipeg last week and elected him chairman.

The NDP leader, who was defeated in the June 25 federal election, said it would be "most inappropriate and in extremely bad taste" to comment on whether he would seek election in Mr. Cameron's riding. There was however, wide speculation that Mr. Douglas would contest the seat.

Mr. Cameron's death reduced NDP strength in the House to 21. There are 155 Liberals, 71 Progressive Conservatives, 14 Creditistes and one independent. The death created the first vacancy in the House since the election.

Trudeau Finds Change in North

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau returns to the problems of government today after a 8,000-mile tour of the North that carried him from the Alaska border to the Labrador Sea.

The prime minister, who charmed thousands of northerners in 16 communities, said he was most impressed by the "social breakthrough" in the Arctic.

"What surprised me most was the state of the Eskimo," he said, referring to the fresh new houses he found in most communities.

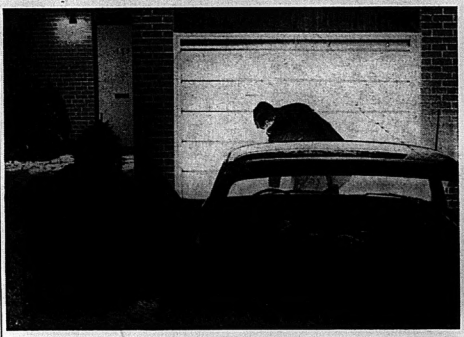
Built with federal funds by Eskimos, they are replacing the canvas tents, makeshift lean-tos and miserable conditions Mr. Trudeau saw in canoe trips to the North 10 years ago.

He was met here by Senator Paul Martin, who briefed him on developments in the postal strike that began July 18.

Mr. Trudeau said he has "no plans" to call Parliament and end the strike. The people had given the postal workers the right to strike and could take it away if it was misused. But this wasn't the case now.

Asked about European fears that Canada will withdraw from NATO, Mr. Trudeau said this country's military involvement in the defence organization is under review.

He said countries like Czechoslovakia might withdraw from the Warsaw Pact, the Communist equivalent to NATO, if countries such as Canada drew back militarily.



Mr. Trudeau said in an interview later that seeing the millions being spent on resource developments in the Yukon and Labrador "lends credibility" to development of resources in the remote Arctic islands.

He tended to agree with former northern affairs minister Arthur Laing's view that exploration spurs the technological thrusts needed to develop such resources.

Better airfields, navigation aids and icebreakers were needed. "I think we're a long way from takeoff in the north."

However, Canada should certainly pioneer in northern transportation and technology.

Today,
your car insurance
protected you from hailstorms, fire and falling stars, vandalism,
other drivers... and yourself.

Is it expensive?

The cost of car insurance per day is no more than a gallon of gas, less than a day's parking, much less than a car wash. In fact, the average driver pays no more than 35¢* a day for car insurance.

If you are in a serious accident, car insurance can make the difference between financial security—and bankruptcy. A personal injury accident causes physical suffering. Car insurance helps relieve the financial worry. The slightest driving error can cause an accident resulting in staggering repair bills. And where would you be if your car caught fire or was stolen? When you realize how much you get, for so little, car insurance is quite a bargain.

Of course, accidents are just so many ifs. Until you have one. And we honestly hope you don't. But isn't it comforting to know car insurance protects you all the way, just in case?

If you have any questions about your car insurance, just let us know. Write All Canada Insurance Federation Information Service, 36 Toronto Street, Toronto. Our membership consists of 189 competing insurance companies in Canada.

Buenos Aires Is Headquarters For Recruiting Drug Couriers

NEW YORK (Reuters)—Buenos Aires now is the world centre for recruiting couriers to smuggle heroin and cocaine into the United States from Europe, U.S. narcotics bureau officials say.

The recent arrests of several South American women caught smuggling millions of dollars worth of drugs strapped to their bodies or hidden in girdles led narcotics agents to build up a clear picture of a huge international drug smuggling ring.

The narcotics bureau says there now are three main gangs —French-Corsican, Italian and Spanish—who control the heroin ring. Another European group controls traffic in cocaine.

But in the last year, all became dependent on a central organization in Buenos Aires which recruits couriers to bring the drugs into the rich U.S. market.

Most of the couriers arrested so far were South American women with no previous criminal record but usually in need of money. Few were drug addicts themselves.

For carrying a load worth $3,000,000 on the black market, a courier normally receives about $1,500, customs agents estimate.

Once the drugs enter the United States, the main recipients are believed to be the Mafia, since it probably is the only group with sufficient capital to carry such a large-scale operation.

In the last year, since the bureau became aware of the Argentine-based smuggling organization, heroin and cocaine has been seized than in the previous 10 years.

About 450 pounds of pure heroin and about 110 pounds of cocaine have been grabbed from the smugglers. On the black market, heroin can bring up to $100,000 a pound, while cocaine is sold for around $20,000 a pound.

In their pure form, both are worth about the same. But heroin can be cut more finely for retail purposes.

During the last year, dozens of couriers recruited in Buenos Aires were arrested as they entered the U.S.—either directly from South America or via Canada, Mexico, Puerto Rico or Europe.

One such arrest—in New York in April—produced perhaps the most valuable haul of heroin ever seized.

About 245 pounds of the drug were found in a car belonging to a Frenchman.

But most of the carriers are Argentine women recruited in Buenos Aires. About 15 women were caught bringing drugs strapped to their bodies; another 10 used false-bottomed suitcases.

"The use of women is new," one customs official explained. "At first we were reluctant to search them for fear of repercussions. But then we got a bit brasher, and if a woman looked a bit bulky, we would search her."

He said that last week, one woman "was wearing a heavy winter coat in hot July weather when she flew in from South America.

"So we searched her and she had 2½ kilos (5½ pounds) of cocaine stuffed in her body."

Few of the couriers can help the agents trace the ring leaders.

"A courier never knows the identity of the recruiter or of the ultimate recipient," the officer said. "Usually they are watched by one of the gang while on the plane and then at the customs."

Most of the arrests so far have been merely of carriers. But U.S. customs and narcotics agents, together with Interpol, are working on many leads and are confident they have recognized the work of "a known smuggling group."

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, JULY 29, 1968

by Maurice Switzer

Foreign waters must be looking bluer these days for yachtsmen, who are no longer satisfied with the weekend jaunts around the familiar home harbor course.

It seems scarcely a summer week goes by that we don't read of a Hyannisport-to-Bermee Handicap, or a Cape of Good Hope Gold Cup sail.

Well, the latest ocean-going marathon was the Victoria-to-Maui. Hawaii race, which attracted 14 yachtsmen.

And if 16 days at sea — (the time it took the winning skipper to navigate the 2,200-mile distance) — weren't enough to upset a few stomachs, the United States Navy finished the job.

The skipper of a Los Angeles race entry reported that two navy destroyers fired non-explosive shells within 500 yards of his bow Thursday.

And he didn't feel it was the start of a 21-gun salute!

A U.S. Navy spokesman at Pearl Harbor later confirmed that a pair of destroyers "had been in the general area," and confirmed sighting an unidentified yacht, which they reported as still floating when last seen.

Good thing the startled skipper wasn't flying anything resembling a rising sun!

Golfdom's legendary "Hawk" had just holed out on a short, 135-yard hole when a ball came sailing over a slight knoll which hid the green from the tee. It stopped about three feet from the cup on the par-three hole.

Sensing an opportunity to give some duffer the thrill of his golfing life, Hogan walked over and tapped the ball into the hole . . . and waited.

Moments later, a player appeared over the knoll, looked about for a moment, then walked towards the cup.

Looking down, his face lit up like the marquee at an Elizabeth Taylor premiere.

"Hey Jim, Jilm," he yelled over his shoulder, "I made it in SIX!"

Complete Schedule

Joyces Still Jinx Kingston Sr. Champs

A ninth-inning double by Ralph Plane, and a follow-up single by Belleville Joyce Realtors' centrefielder Doug Dafoe provided the decisive run in a 5-4 Saturday win by the local Eastern Ontario senior baseball loop entry over the Kingston Lakeview Centennials.

The road victory for the Joyces marked the fifth in six 1968 starts against the defending all-Ontario senior champions from the Limestone City, the team the locals will likely meet in the first round of E.O.B.A. playoffs sometime in August.

Saturday's game was the last of the Joyces' regular schedule.

Joyce rookie right-hander Joe Hastings continued to fill the breach created by mound stalwart Bill Latchford's absence, scattering 10 Kingston hits, striking out nine, and walking three (one intentionally) for the win.

Jerry Gravett started for the losers, giving way to Johnson in the seventh. Mcinroy relieved in the ninth inning.

Catcher Larry Mavety provided some plate punch for the Realtors, smacking a home run and a brace of singles in four official at-bats, to drive in three of the winners' five runs.

Crowding a .400 batting average, the slugging backstop gave Belleville a 1-0 first-inning lead, ringing home second-baseman Ralph Plane who had led off the game with a single.

Fifth-frame singles by Hastings, Plane, shortstop Gary Goyer, and Mavety sent another pair of Joyce runs across the plate for a 3-0 margin.

The sixth-inning was all Kingston as the Centennials took advantage of a pair of Joyce errors, and collected three hits to manufacture a three-run rally.

RALPH PLANE

But the home team's lone ninth-inning tally left them short, after Mavety's eighth-frame solo homer and the Plane-Dafoe scoring combination in the top of the ninth.

Bruce hit three singles to pace the losers, with Earl and Harris each adding a pair of safeties.

The win boosted the Realtors' season's mark to a respectable 12 wins, against four losses in first spot in the EOBA standings.

This Price Is Right

If he wasn't, he wouldn't be lifting Bob Walt and Enos Evans for the benefit of Apollo Barbell Club coach Ken Carr-Brariit. The man REALLY in the middle is Canadian heavyweight weight-lifting champion Price Morris who, with Bob, Enos, and two other Apollo members, leaves Belleville this week for Canadian Olympic trials in Calgary.

At Fairground Trots . . .

Quartet Post First Wins of Season

Saturday night marked the debut of no less than four sulky-pullers in the win column on the Fairgrounds result board.

The 881 "paid" crowd pushed 815,626 through the Parimutuels to see Don Heath's Atomic Selka win her first 1968 trot in Saturday's fifth heat, paying $28.70 for a $2 combination ticket.

A 2.15 fourth heat for Jerry Walsh's Kendall Brook (3:14.30 to win), Sandy Riddell's 2:14 third heat for Cobless, and Candy B. Creed's $20.20 combination payoff in the first race marked the other three initial Belleville oval wins.

Candy B. Creed's win for Sid Booth of Marlbank came in the first start of the season for both the brown mare and her owner-driver.

Rosedale Cal's best time of 2.10.2 at the 1968 Fairgrounds meets wasn't in danger, with Saturday night's fastest heat a 2.13 second race run by General's Boy, owned by Harold Uens of Glenburnie, and with Ben Wemp in the sulky.

A 2.14 heat was turned in by Orval Sleeth's R. B. Dillon in the eighth and final race, a muddy affair which got underway despite the arrival of a late-evening thunderstorm.

Guy LaBash — leading driver with eight wins, six seconds, and a third-place finish in 21 starts to date this season at the Fairgrounds — escaped injury in the fifth race, when Bill Knight tumbled leaving the gate.

The seven-year-old gelding — owned by Trenton's Albert Defreze — was reported "well-bruised up" in the incident.

The results of Saturday's eight-heat card:

Only the Clock to Beat

HAMILTON (CP) — With no competition and just a handful of friends to cheer her on, 15-year-old Angela Coughlan swam against the clock Saturday night and won.

Angela, of nearby Burlington, set a world record for the 1,650-yard freestyle at McMaster University swimming pool. She was timed in 18 minutes, 47.8 seconds, reducing by 1.5 seconds the record set by Kathy Wainwright of Australia in March, 1967.

Her coach, Nick Thierry of Toronto, said Angela was "an exceptional girl to do it under such circumstances."

He said that if the race had been under the heat of competition and not against the clock, it "would have been a much better time."

The five-foot-five, 120-pound swimmer thrives on hard work, Thierry said.

"Her one big worry is that I don't work her hard enough," he said.h"She is absolutely dedicated."

"Hawk" Slams Prey Beyond League Fences

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Hawk is making lazy circles on the bases again . . . but he won't take much credit for his latest swoop.

"There's only two words you need to know: Bobby Doerr. He did it again," said Ken (Hawk) Harrelson Sunday after his two-run ninth inning homer swept Boston Red Sox past the Washington Senators 10-8.

Harrelson, who stroked a single and double in addition to his third homer, went on to explain that Doerr, a Red Sox coach, had found a flaw in his swing and helped pull him out of a brief batting slump.

"That's the first time I've hit a ball like that in a week and a half," said the slugging outfielder, who has connected for 10 game-winning hits—seven of them homers—this season.

In other American League action Sunday, Baltimore salvaged the finale of a three-game series with first place Detroit 5-1 behind Dave McNally's three-hitter; Cleveland swept a doubleheader from the New York Yankees 3-2 and 4-1; Oakland nipped Minnesota 4-3 and Chicago White Sox edged California 2-1.

Chicago Cubs took a pair from Los Angeles 8-3 and 1-0; Pittsburgh downed St. Louis 7-1; Cincinnati trimmed New York Mets 5-3; San Francisco beat Houston 4-2 in 11 innings and Philadelphia zipped Atlanta 3-0 in National League play.

Harrelson, who equalled his previous season home run high with the ninth inning blast off Bob Humphrey's at Washington, said he'd taken extra post-game batting practice Saturday after Doerr spotted him opening his left shoulder and dropping his right during a 3-for-20 lullaby at the plate.

"I thought it was my hands," Harrelson said. "It wasn't. I tried five different hand positions. Then Bobby said, 'Don't worry about your hands. Drive your shoulders toward the pitcher and your hands will be all right.'"

That enlightened the Hawk. He punched a single and scored a run in the fifth inning Sunday and doubled in the seventh as the Red Sox tallied twice for an 8-8 deadlock. Carl Yastrzemski opened the ninth with a single and Harrelson hit Humphreys' next pitch into the left field bullpen.

The homer boosted Harrelson's batting average to .292—second best in the league. He leads the majors with 74 runs batted in.

McNally, who has won five straight, blanked the Tigers until Willie Horton hit his 20th homer with two out in the ninth. Frank Robinson's two-run homer keyed a 10-hit Baltimore attack that moved the second place Orioles within 6½ games of Detroit.

The Indians snapped a four-game losing string as right-handers Luis Tiant and Stan Williams, backed by five bases-empty homers, stymied the Yankees.

Home runs by Lou Johnson, Joe Azcue and Tommy Harper gave Tiant his 17th victory against six losses. Tiant hurled a five-hitter and struck out 10. Williams, 8-5, scattered 10 hits in the nightcap while Duke Sims and Larry Brown homered for Cleveland.

GUELPH (CP) — Claude Patternore of Hamilton won the Ontario blind golfers' championship here Saturday — his fourth try at unseating three-time champion Nick Genovese of Dundas. Patternore shot a 101, but his handicap reduced it to a net of 73, to win the Ostrander's Trophy. The defending champion trailed all the way, finishing second with 112 gross, 85 net) on the 18 holes.

ZANDVOORT, Netherlands (AP) — France's Jean Pierre Beltoise drove his Matra Cosworth Ford to victory Sunday in the Grand Prix Formula 2 auto race marred by the death of Chris Lambert of Great Britain. Lambert, 24-year-old chemistry graduate of Birmingham University, was killed outright when his Brabham Cosworth Ford collided with another auto, spun off the track, rolled over and crashed over the railing. He was the third top British racer to die this year.

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Munro was expected to announce late today the appointment of a commissioner to conduct a study of amateur sport in Canada. During the federal election campaign, Prime Minister Trudeau promised to order a one-man study of why Canadians do not usually do as well in the Olympics as world-champion skier Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C. Mr. Trudeau at the same time suggested the study might also investigate the awarding of National Hockey League franchises.

A True Pirate, Al Robs Cards'

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's got to be a great day for a pitcher when he survives a 13-hit attack by the National League-leading St. Louis Cardinals, beats them 7-1 and also hits a grand slam home run for good measure.

But it could have been even better for Pittsburgh's Al McBean. Much better.

"I didn't know the bases were loaded when I hit the home run," McBean said Sunday. "I knew there were runners on base and was figuring I could help myself by getting a hit.

"But if I had known when I hit it that it was a grand slam, you really would have thought I'm a hot dog. I probably would have been jumping in the air when I passed first base and would have gone around the bases hopping like a jackrabbit."

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago Cubs beat Los Angeles Dodgers twice, 8-3 and 1-0, Philadelphia stopped Atlanta 3-0 on Larry Jackson's three-hitter, Jim Maloney and Clay Carroll combined to hurl Cincinnati to a one - hit 5-0 triumph over New York Mets and Juan Marichal singled home the winning run and gained his 19th victory as San Francisco outlasted Houston 4-2 in 11 innings.

In the American League, Baltimore turned back Detroit 5-1, Cleveland took two from New York Yankees 3-2 and 4-1, Boston outslugged Washington 10-8, Oakland edged Minnesota 4-3 and Chicago White Sox nipped California 2-1.

McBean got his grand slam with two out in the fifth inning. After a single by Roberto Clemente and walks to Manny Mota and Jerry May, McBean hit the first pitch from Larry Jaster over the left field wall.

The Pirates had taken a 3-1 lead in the second on Clemente's triple, Donn Clendenon's ninth homer, Mota's double and Maury Wills' single.

The Cubs sweep of Los Angeles put them in a virtual tie with San Francisco for fourth place and came before a home town crowd of 42,361, largest in 20 years, lured by a streak that has seen the Bruins win 11 of 23 games.

Billy Williams doubled to touch off a four-run fourth inning off Don Drysdale in the opener and then slammed a fifth-inning homer. The eight runs were the most scored against Drysdale in more than two years.

Ken Holtzman struck out 10 and hurled a four-hitter in the nightcap. The Cubs scored in the fifth on Al Spangler's single and Randy Hundley's double.

The double defeat dropped the Dodgers deeper into ninth place. They have lost 31 of 44 games since a seven-game winning streak put them in second place June 9.

Guns for 30

Juan Records 19th; Setting A "Dizzy" Pace

HOUSTON (AP) — Juan Marichal of San Francisco Giants, ahead of the pace for 23 victories this season, says he's "just lucky."

Marichal not only grabbed his 19th triumph Sunday—a 4-2 victory over Houston Astros in 11 innings—but singled in the winning run.

The 29-year-old right-hander from the Dominican Republic leads Dizzy Dean's pace of 1934, when the former St. Louis Cardinals pitcher twirled 30 victories.

"Just Lucky," Marichal said after Sunday's game before 33,241 spectators in the Astrodome. "I'm having a real good year so far. I hope I can continue this way."

What about 30 victories and American League hurler Denny McLain, who is a 20-game winner so far with Detroit Tigers?

"I don't worry about Denny McLain," Marichal said. "I just worry about Juan and the Giants. McLain doesn't mean a thing to me. I'm glad for him to have a good year, but he's in the other league."

"Thirty wins? I don't think about that," said the high-kicking pitcher. "Just about my next start. That's the one I want to win—the next one. I wish I could win 30 but I don't worry you dayrea

After Bisley...

Canucks Clean Rifles, Trophies

BISLEY, England (CP) — With the glittering Queen's Prize crowning its trophies, Canada's Bisley team heads for home this week after a satisfying fortnight in the 90th Commonwealth shooting meet.

Arnold Parks, an unassuming marksman from Saint John, N.B., who was at his best when the chips were down, will be carrying the top honor among Commonwealth marksmen plus an assortment of medals and the Queen's £250. He gave gunnery's elite one of Bisley's finest displays of long-distance shooting under pressure Saturday.

The 35-year-old Parks, an accountant who acalculated his shots against a murderous cross-wind with the precision of a computer, laid down a remarkable closing string of 12 out of 13 bull's-eyes at 1,000 yards to come from behind and win over a pair of Britons.

Parks, a lean, bronzed veteran of 20 years' competitive shooting who had been in the final "Queen's Hundred" three times before but never above 25th, brought Canada the big prize in the face of a couple of handicaps.

He failed to qualify as a shooter in the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association championships last summer—a gunsight let him down—so he came along this time as team adjutant.

This gave him the DCRA group's office work, and he wasn't sure he would get enough shooting to sharpen up for the Queen's. Besides, he was using a rifle he had never before fired in competition.

But by the time he and the new .303 had burned up the home stretch of the Queens, he had turned in the best score in a dozen years for the event and his 295 out of a possible 300 had equalled the record for a Canadian winner set by Lieut. Gil Rea in 1951.

It also was three points better than the 1966 score of retired Maj. Dick Humpton of Alliston, Ont., the last previous Canadian winner.

Though a doubtful starter originally, Parks shot soundly during the last week and was second-high Canadian getting through the first round of the Queen's on Wednesday. In Saturday morning's semi-final, he was tied at the top of the Canadians with Cpl. Joe Moreau of Port Severn, Ont., only member of Canada's servitex team to enter the 100.

Their 145 put them just a point behind the leading Briton, but after the first 15 shots of the final at 900 yards, Arne Soreno of Calgary moved ahead of Parks into a tie for second while Moreau fell back. Parks dropped into a tie for fourth, two points off the pace.

He lost further ground with his first two shots at 1,000 yards —better than half a mile—when he missed the possible by three with a magpie and an inner. At this stage he was three down to Roland Nicholson, a 20-year-old Oxford medical student.

Then Parks settled down to some fancy shooting and shot home three successive bulls, missed the centre narrowly for an inner, and slammed in nine bulls with his final shots. Tom Hill, a Kent farmer, joined Nicholson at 283.

Gerry Ouellette, a Windsor, Ont., schoolteacher on his eighth trip to Bisley, finished ninth with 280 and Moreau was 17th with 278. Sorenzo—who was charged with two mystifying clean misses—slumped to 275

"No Advantage in Being Tall" Says Six-Foot-Three Tourney Winner

TORONTO (CP) — Carol Mann, who says "there's no built-in advantage about being so big," used her cannon-like drives to overpower the course for three days and win the $20,000 women's golf championship Saturday—her seventh tournament victory of the year.

The six-foot-three blonde, who reduces to a slim 155 pounds for the professional tour, fired a third-round, two-under-par 71 for a 54-hole total of six-under 213 by reaching most par-five greens in two strokes with iron approach shots.

The Canadian championship, which she also won last year, was her third in a row on the professional circuit and the $3,000 first-place purse brought her total earnings this season to more than $28,000—tops on the tour.

Meanwhile, the field of 44 other professionals and 19 amateurs labored over the 6,645-yard Bayview Golf and Country Club layout.

Only Judy Kimball, a fellow American professional, was able to complete the tournament at par 219 and collected $2,300 for the second-place finish. The tournament was the only Canadian one on the women's pro circuit and all prize money was in U.S. funds.

Kathy Whitworth of the U.S. and Gerda Whalen of West Germany tied for third place with 221s and collected $1,650 each, while Americans Beth Stone, Pam Barnett and Gloria Ehe followed with 222s and won $962.50.

Amateur Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto and Foothill, Ont., tied for seventh place with Sandra Spuzich of the U.S. at 223.

Sandra Post of Oakville, the only Canadian woman professional, finished at 228 after a three-over 76 Saturday and collected $225. She does not plan to play in the Connecticut Open at Danbury later this week.

"The course is a couple of hundred yards longer than what we usually play and I guess the girls were tired," said Miss Mann.

"Most of the girls rely on chipping and putting and you couldn't spend much time on the practice green because it is not at all like the greens on the course.

"Those par fives were reachable in two and they saved me."

She said the pin placements on greens that "were more tricky than usual," gave her the advantage.

Sunday Racing Packs Fort Erie

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — A crowd of 15,008 turned out at Fort Erie race track Sunday for the first Sunday thoroughbred meeting in the history of Ontario.

It was the fifth highest crowd ever at the Jockey Club Ltd.'s border track. Punters pushed $783,110 through the mutuals, just $57,658 short of the track's all-time record handle.

"I thought the day was a huge success," said John J. Mooney, executive vice-president of the Jockey Club.

"The only trouble came when the tote calculator broke down. We were then forced to figure two complete races manually."

The Ontario legislature last month gave third reading to an amendment to the Lord's Day Act which allowed municipal councils to approve Sunday racing.

Then Bertie Township, in which Fort Erie is situated, passed the Sunday racing bylaw three weeks ago by a vote of 3 to 2. The bill received royal assent in the house last Tuesday and the Jockey Club immediately announced Sunday racing July 28 and Aug. 4 at Fort Erie.

Three track records were equalled over the eight-race card Sunday.

Ousts Norman

Vollmer Birdies to Win Playoff

EDMONTON (CP) — Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver won his first major tournament as a professional golfer Saturday when he took the Alberta open title in a sudden-death playoff.

Nearly 1,000 people watched at the second hole of the Edmonton Country Club as he sank a 15-foot birdie putt to defeat Moe Norman of Gifford, Ont., and amateur Bob Wylie of Calgary.

The three had finished the 54-hole tournament tied at even par 213.

On the final round Norman shot a two-under-par 69, Vollmer a 70 and Wylie a 71.

On the first playoff hole each player two-putted for a par and on the second both Wylie and Norman had to settle for pars after missing long birdie putts.

The victory gave the 23-year-old Vollmer a berth in the all-Canadian championship tournament at Toronto in September and $1,200. Vollmer turned professional last year after graduating from Arizona State University.

Norman took second-place money of $800 followed by Wilf Homenuk of Winnipeg who received $600.

Homenuk, who led the first two rounds of the tournament, shot a 74 to finish at 214, tied with amateur Doug Silverberg of Calgary.

Wylie started the final round as if he were going to rip the course apart. He fired birdies on the first three holes and added another on the fifth. Then, on the seventh, he went one over and did the same again on the ninth.

On the back nine he shot a two-over 37 to go with his two under on the front.

Norman also got off to a good start, finishing the front nine with a string of birdies to make the turn at 32, four under.

He also ran into difficulties on the back to score a 37 for a two-under round.

Vollmer's round was uneventful except for an eagle three on the 479-yard 10th. He dropped a 12-foot putt after hitting the green from 200 yards out.

Five professionals tied at 218 to share fourth-place money—$330 each. They were Bill Wakeham and Vaughn Trapp of Victoria, Bob Breen and John Henrick of Montreal and Herb Holtzschelter of Toronto.

Amateurs in the tournament were also competing for three of four berths on the Alberta Willingdon Cup team.

The first berth went to Wylie after he won the Alberta amateur. Silverberg, Keith Alexander and Norm Gray all of Calgary won the other spots.

On Women's Tour

Colors and Coiffures As Vital as Good Caddies

TORONTO (CP) — Golf is a man's game—right?

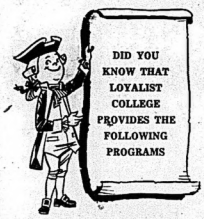
Wrong, said the 30 women on the Ladies' Professional Golf Association tour are out to prove it.

They take their rainbow-colored skirts and blouses to the courses, visit hairdressers as much as three times a week, and rely heavily on moisture cream and hair preparations to keep themselves as attractive as possible.

Carol Mann, at six-foot-three unquestionably the most noticeable of the group, carries three suitcases of clothing and three garment bags full of mini-dresses with her on the tour.

"It's our business to see that we look good," she says. "We all make a tremendous effort to appear neat and attractive on the course. It's important for our image."

Miss Mann often wears patterned stockings with her miniskirts because "we have to do a lot of stooping and bending in this game—lining up putts and so forth—and sometimes we expose parts of us we don't want the gallery to see."



She gestures at her remarkable legs. "Look at that line. The sun's rays don't go through these golf skirts. The stockings help cover that white patch when I bend over."

The girls agree that golf can be just as much a woman's game as a man's. Most carry at least three "fancy" dresses with them, and look forward to the parties and dances that usually accompany a tournament.

"It's a job, sure," says newcomer Sherry Wilder, "but it's also a—what do you call it—avocation.

"Sometimes it's a bit of a drag," Sherry admits of the 35,000-mile tour. "But the other girls are willing to help. You should see us in the motel before a game.

"People are running up and down the halls—just like a girl's dorm or something—saying 'who's got a yellow pencil' and 'Where's my 401?' You can't keep everything clean on a tour like this."

Tweed

TWEED — Mrs. Elaine LeSage, of Flinton, formerly of Tweed, left on Monday, July 22, for a trip to Ireland.

A surprise baby shower was held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Spicer, in Flinton, to honor the arrival of their new baby girl. Several attended, and many lovely gifts were received.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Rush and family of Oshawa, have purchased the farm at Stoco from his father, Mr. Mac Rush, and have already taken possession.

Raymond Trudeau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Trudeau, of Stoco, is employed by the Hydro for the summer months.

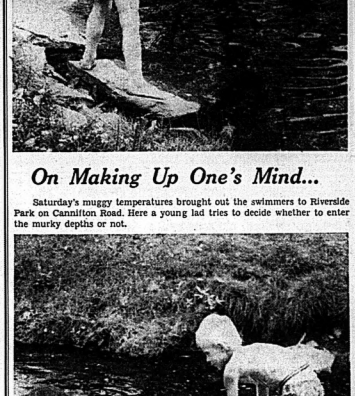
Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sherwood and family of Kingston have been spending some time at the residence of her father, (the late Fred Loyst) at Henderson, doing some repair and redecorating.

Miss Maureen Clement of Stoco, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Geraldi of Tweed, motored to St. Ann De Beaupre.

Mrs. Philip Doran and Mr. Levi Goulah, both of Stoco, are patients in the Belleville General Hospital.

Miss Audrey Yanch, nurse-in-training, Toronto, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Yanch, Flinton.

Mrs. Kathleen Irvine, of Toronto, is visiting friends and relatives in Tweed and surrounding district, and with her son, James Irvine of Stoco.



Frank Trudeau, of nearby Sulphide, has stalks of timothy grown this season that measured six feet from the root to the tip of the head.

Miss Marion Kenny, Mrs. Jane Genereaux, both of Toronto, are spending their vacation in their home town, Tweed, and at present are at the home of their brother, and sister, Wallace Kenny and Miss Mabel Kenny, of Victoria St.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Courneyea, of Stoco, and their family attended the funeral of their late Daniel Long, of Toronto. Mr. Long was the father of Mrs. Simon Courneyea.

On Making Up One's Mind...

Two youngsters found Riverside Park Saturday a little calm for surfing but made do with a swim anyway.

EOBA Midgets

Ellis Takes Wins Over Cobourg, Oshawa

Ellis Midgets, Belleville's EOBA entry in that classification, picked up two wins over the weekend. Sunday saw the Midgets take a 9-0 default game from Cobourg while on Saturday, the locals topped Oshawa 3-1.

The weekend games finished the season for the Belleville nine. The Ellis crew has won 13, lost four, and tied one. Playoffs against Oshawa will be announced.

In the last season game against Oshawa Saturday, the Ellis crew took their win behind starter Wayne Farrell who went nine frames, allowing one run on four hits and four walks while striking out 11, and had a no-hitter going into the eighth.

Oshawa pitcher Grove Bennett went the distance, allowing three runs on nine hits and one walk while fanning 18.

Top local hitters were Mike Hosky with a triple and two singles, Ron Jury with a double and a single, Dennis McCormack with two safeties, Brian Coughlin with a triple, and Paul Hall with a single.

Oshawa found their hitters in Scott Wilson with a double and Jim Zarowny, Bill Taylor, and Joe Reid with singles.

Pitcher Farrell had a no-hitter going into the eighth inning of the Oshawa contest.

Holy Rosary Wins

The Belleville Holy Rosary Peewee Minor Baseball team collected seven runs, including Terry Ray's homer, in the third inning to down Oshawa 7-4 Sunday.

Tom Coughlin pitched the first five innings for the locals, giving up five hits while fanning eight. His hits included a homer by Brabin on Oshawa. Bobby Moore took over in the last two, holding Oshawa hitless while fanning four.

Home - run hitter Ray also collected a single, Coughlin had a single, as had Andy Ricketts and Meagher.

Oshawa collected two runs in the first and four in the fifth in taking the loss.

The Belleville Lions Peewee A crew took a loss Saturday at the hands of Frankford - Peewee C nine, 9-7.

Minor Soccer

Winners Play It "Cosy"

Kevin Reed was the deciding factor in a Belleville Minor Soccer Association bantam fixture Saturday, scoring both of his team's goals as the Cosy Grill 11 blanked Lafferty-Smith Transport by a 2-0 margin.

A goal by Reed in each half spoiled defeat for the truckers, who had plenty of scoring opportunities, but failed to capitalize.

In Saturday's other scheduled bantam league contest, Crawford Metals were awarded a win by default, when Upton Billiards failed to field a full team.

The Crawford team's win was its sixth of the season, against one loss and a tie, moving them into first place in the bantam standings ahead of the idle Quinte Transporters.

Reed's pair of goals for Cosy gave him a total of six for the season, best among bantam players, and helped move his team into third spot in the six - entry bantam division.

SHBL Title Tilt

Shannonville Edges Planes

The South Hastings Baseball League title, in contention by one point through most of the season, was captured by one run Sunday as Shannonville topped Plane's 6-5.

Shannonville took the pennant and the game behind the pitching of Dave Lewis and homers by Bill Barberstock and Michael Brant.

Garnet Adams was on the mound for the losers.

The winning burler gave up five runs on nine hits and no walks while fanning 11.

Adams struck out five while giving up six runs on six hits and one walk.

Both teams had two errors.

Top hitters for the winning Shannonville nine were Barberstock and Brant with their homers, pitcher Lewis with a single and ½ double, his brother, Larry Lewis, with a double, and Bud Hill with a single.

Planes hitters were Court Brailey with a double and three singles, Larry Adams with three singles, and Hay and Don Forsythe with safeties.

With the final game of the regular season over the SHBL goes into league playoffs. On Tuesday, Read visits Shannonville for the opening playoff game and on Wednesday, Latta will meet second-place Planes at Cannifton. Both games are at 6.15 p.m.

White's District Personal

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Master David Penley returned on Saturday after travelling for nearly three weeks in Lake, Germany. While there, he attended the 150th anniversary of the founding of Lahr. He also visited Edinburgh, Scotland, where he contacted relatives and friends of a family who had emigrated to Canada. He visited Ayr, the birthplace of the Scottish poet, Robert Burns and crossed by ferry the Firth of Clyde to the island of Arran. Also, he took in the sights of Kilmarnock, Dumfries, Coatlaps Square and Piccadilly Circus.

Mr. and Mrs. George Arthur entertained for the weekend their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Arthur of Oshawa; and their son, Mr. Eric Arthur of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Pryher of Niagara Falls; and Mrs. William Arthur of Burlington and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fehr, Laurel and Maureen who have just returned from Lahr, Germany and are their way to Gimli, Manitoba.

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Jones, Debra and Scott spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stoneburg of Bailcroft.

Miss Kathy Jones spent the past week with her friend Catherine Haw and the rest of her family at Cedardale Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Jones spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. William Cassidy and Murray and Lois Erlabie, Master Jimmie Jones spent two weeks with his friend Murray and will remain for another week. Miss Debra Jones was holidaying the past week with her friend and family, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zielski, Jane und Rhonda of Toronto.

Mrs. Lorne Mallory has just returned from a three-week visit with friends in Toronto Postal Workers Won't Cross Picket Line to Get Pay

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

With their pay cheques just across a picket line, postal workers in Toronto dug in their heels today for a long strike as their union announced it would pay the rent or buy groceries for those in need.

The Toronto workers are part of the 24,000 postal employees who have been on strike for 11 days across Canada. None of the workers receive strike pay, but the union leader says no strike funds.

The cheques, covering two or three days pay for work before the July 18 strike, are available inside Toronto post offices. But the men, members of the Council of Postal Unions, have resolved not to cross their own picket lines to get them.

And the government has made, no arrangements to get the cheques out to the strikers.

"We're trying to follow normal industrial practices," said J. G. Fultz, director of Toronto postal services.

"When a company is on strike, the workers are paid through the mails, but of course we can't do that. So we'll be paying in the lobby like we always do."

However, alternate arrangements have been made for strikers in financial difficulties.

"If one of our men is really badly off, then the union will pay the rent or buy groceries," a union official said. "we're set up to go like this for a couple of months, and the morale is very good."

Other arrangements have been made with the postal credit union to approve small loans which will be deducted from pay cheques when the strike is over.

Meanwhile, the striking workers are making arrangements on their own to get without their pay cheques.

In Montreal, Maurice Briere, president of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, said Sunday that 32,000 provincial welfare cheques to invalids and those incapable of picking them up at distribution centres would be delivered by postal workers today.

In the Maritimes, the postal strike has given municipal office workers in southwestern Nova Scotia their vacations and has led insurance agents to develop a "faster than before" mail service of their own.

Bernard Leblanc, warden of Clare municipality in southwestern Nova Scotia, said Saturday the strike provided a "golden opportunity" to give municipal office workers their vacations.

W. G. Shakespeare, manager of the Nova Scotia board of insurance underwriters in Halifax, said insurance agents have arranged to take their important correspondence to one of 15 centres throughout the province where mail is being delivered.

Travelling Companions

"Two men tried to force me off the road in Virginia on the way down to Florida, so I decided to play it safe on the way back." Mrs. Hazel Smith's "bodyguard" took the form of a homemade male mannequin that kept her company on her return trip to Erie, Pa., this summer. Mrs. Smith got her unusual idea from a newspaper article and concluded, "I felt much safer." (AP Photo)

Decision on U. S. Steel Strike May Be Made Sometime Today

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Whether there will be a countrywide steel strike Thursday, or a settlement in the pattern of the can, aluminum, copper and autoindustries, may be decided today.

It's showdown time—and what will be shown for the first time will be the long-awaited wage-benefits package from the 11 largest U.S. steel producers that could avert a threatened walkout of 380,000 steelworkers.

The still-secret industry offer, hammered out by top negotiators, is to be considered first by the United Steelworkers 33-man executive committee at a morning session.

The union president I. W. Abel takes it in the afternoon to the 600-member basic steel industry conference which has the power to ratify or reject any agreement—or even extend the old one which expires at midnight Wednesday night.

The conference can also order a strike.

Most signs, however, point to a tentative agreement with more hard bargaining in the next two days to wrap it up.

A news blackout has surrounded industrywide talks since they started here June 24, and this has produced much in rumors and little in hard facts.

The steelworkers went into negotiations determined to win "a substantial wage increase," a bigger pension, better hospital and vacation benefits, and incentive pay coverage for all workers.

No price tag was put on the proposed union package but Abel was under stiff pressure from his men to come up with something equal to steelworker settlements in can, aluminum and copper worth slightly more than six per cent.

Air Controllers Seek U.S. Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian air traffic controllers, enrolled in a wage dispute with the federal government, are putting out feelers for employment in the United States, a spokesman for the controllers said Sunday.

"The door was thrown open to them during the weekend when the U.S. announced an additional 3,000 controllers will be hired as soon as possible. The U.S. also dropped a requirement that the controllers be U.S. citizens.

Shortage of controller staff in the U.S. has caused delays to commercial flights at several major airports.

Inco Signs Agreement With Celebes on Nickel

JAKARTA (AP) — International Nickel Co. of Canada signed an agreement with Indonesia today for mining rights in vast sweep of rugged jungle in Sulawesi (Celebes), which could make Indonesia an import nickel producer.

Inco expects to make a $150,000,000 investment in the project.

The contract, valid for 30 years, was initialled by Inco chairman Henry S. Wingate and Indonesian Mines Minister Sumarri Gondowardojo.

The agreement formally ended more than a year of hot competition among major foreign nickel producers, including powerful French Nickel and the U.S. Kaiser Aluminum combine as well as two big Japanese producers.

Indonesia did not finally accept the Inco bid until only a few hours before a deadline last January.

Inco has exclusive exploration rights in 15,000 square miles of dense rain forest, where geological surveys indicate sizable nickel ore deposits.

Inco has said it hopes, depending on more detailed surveys to start later this year, to produce about 25,000,000 pounds of nickel annually-about 10 per cent of current annual world production.

Wingate stressed Inco believes there are "vast quantities of low-grade ore which have been bypassed" in favor of higher grades in the region. But he admitted the venture would be "a big gamble" as the extent of deposits has not been fully established.

Two Missing Children Hunted In Manitoba Muskeg Country

GRAND RAPIDS, Man. (CP) — Footprints in the mud offered a thread of hope today to searchers scouring the desolate brush and muskeg country near here for two children missing since Thursday.

"We're quite hopeful we'll find something soon," said RCMP Cpl. A. J. Cairns as search parties straggled back to camp Sunday night. "There is every indication the children are on the 'move.'"

Footprints that faded out in the thick underbrush were found twice Sunday and Cpl. Cairns said he believes they were made by the children.

The first set were found about eight miles south of the spot where eight-year-old Jill Sinclair and her four-year-old brother Kirby wandered away from their parents' car. Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Sinclair were picking seneca roots at Honeymoon Lake, 35 miles north of here, and left the children with a baby-sitter.

Police said when they returned they found only the 12 year-old babysitter.

An estimated 75 men, almost the entire adult male population of this settlement at the mouth of the Saskatchewan River, worked through the rugged wilderness in teams of eight Sunday.

A tracking dog and two helicopters were also used.

Plaguing the men are hordes of black flies and mosquitoes, adding to the discomfort of plowing through dense, tangled brush with mud underneath. Cpl. Cairns said both children were only light clothing, making them vulnerable to the biting insects.

Grand Rapids is 270 miles north of Winnipeg and is the site of a large Manitoba Hydro power development on the shore of Lake Winnipeg.

78 Die in Accidents

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 78 persons died in weekend accidents across Canada during the weekend, 57 in traffic.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, also showed 14 drownings, two deaths by fire and five in other accidents.

Ontario and Quebec led with 26 deaths each. Ontario reported 17 in traffic, five drownings, two in fire, one when a man was struck in the head by a helicopter propeller and one when a boy fell off a tractor and was crushed.

Quebec had 21 deaths in traffic, two by drowning, two in falls and one person crushed by a falling tree.

British Columbia reported 14 deaths—six in traffic, seven by drowning and one other.

Three persons died in highway accidents in New Brunswick while Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Alberta each had two traffic deaths.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland reported one traffic death apiece.

The survey does not include known slayings, suicides or natural or industrial deaths.

Toronto Livestock

TORONTO (CP) — Slaughter cattle traded on a moderate demand at prices up over last week's dull close at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Veal and lambs were steady, hogs lower.

Bears Kill Two Calves

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP) — Marauding bears are being blamed for the slaughter of two calves on a farm near Wolfe Station, 12 miles south of Pembroke and about 75 miles northwest of Ottawa.

"One weighed 350 pounds and when I found it there was only the backbone left," said farmer Edwin Karau.

It had been mauled and dragged 30 feet to a creek. The other was attacked and killed on the spot in a pasture where Mr. Karau kept 15 head.

Bears have been prowling campsites in Algonquin Park near here and officials of the Ontario lands and forests department have asked for immediate reports of trouble.

Some animals have been shot. Last week a tent at Driftwood Park near the Algonquin Park border was ripped to shreds by a bear trying to get at food inside.

Diefenbaker Opposes Cut in NATO Forces

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker says any reduction in Canada's commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would be a "retreat from reality."

Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters on his return Sunday from a three-week overseas vacation that a reduction of Canada's NATO forces would be "tantamount to a repudiation of our responsibilities."

He said he found apprehension in Europe that Canada will reduce its NATO participation and that there are fears that this would be "detrimental to freedom."

Defence Minister Cadieux has said the government is reviewing Canada's defence and other foreign commitments but that no action will be taken without consulting NATO allies.

The 72-year-old former Conservative leader described government's handling of the postal strike as "another example of negligence."

The former prime minister called on the government to make public the note it sent to Washington following a decision by State Secretary Dean Rusk not to extradite Hal Banks, former president of the Canadian section of the Seafarers International Union.

Mr. Diefenbaker said recent revelations had shown "political considerations" were involved.

Mr. Rusk's decision on Banks, wanted in Ontario on a charge of perjury,

Catholics React To Renewed Ban On Birth Pills

PARIS (Reuters) — First reactions here to the Pope's renewed ban on birth control were disappointment and relief, by churchmen and parishioners.

An official of the Pastoral Sacramental Centre, which acts as a link among bishops, priests and the faithful said he was not surprised by the Pope's encyclical.

"It could act as a brake on the liberal climate which the great majority of Catholics have entered," he said.

"But after all Catholics always had the choice between the ecumenical council's view allowing freedom of conscience on the issue and what is only the Pope's personal opinion."

The Parish priest of a fashionable Paris church said he would have to face great disappointment from many parishioners who were expecting a more liberal pronouncement.

But, he said, the Pope's encyclical would make little difference in practice.

"We always have to balance doctrine against the lesser evil," he said. "If a marriage is on the point of breaking up over this problem, the lesser evil would still be to tolerate birth control."

Reactions from the man on the street were more forthright.

"I think the Pope is wrong," said a 27-year-old father of four. "In my present position it would be very difficult for me to have another child. I shall ignore the Pope's ban."

"I don't see that he needed all these years to reach this conclusion," said a 36-year-old childless working wife.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market gained strength in light trading early Monday, after five successive days of decline.

A fall in the bank rate to 6½ per cent at the weekend, which indicated a strong position for the Canadian dollar, was a prime reason for renewed investor confidence in the market.

Industrials issues, particularly strong, as the industrial index rose .57 to 166.65.

Bell Phone was up ½ to 43¾ and Northern and Central Gas rose ¼ to 14¼.

Levy Industries gained 1 to 17½, while Imperial Oil, which last week announced increased oil and gas profits, rose ¼ to 69¾.

Hiram Walker fell ¼ to 24¼ as Pittsburgh the company announced an extra dividend of 25 cents a share payable Oct. 15.

Base metals were firm. Falconbridge rose ¼ to 101 although Inco dropped ¼ to 43 and Denison Mines lost 1, trading at 72½ by 11 a.m.

The base metal index rose .66 to 163.82.

Western oils were off slightly, Husky Bay Oil and Gas lost 1 to 30½ and Husky ¼ to 25¼. The oils index dropped .75 to 202.30.

In golds, Kerr-Addison gained ½ to 17¼ and Patino ¼ to 29 although the gold index fell .12 to 195.74.

About 646,100 shares were traded to 11 a.m. compared with 629,000 at the same time Friday.

Kashtan Evades Stand on Czechs

MOSCOW (CP) — William Kashtan, leader of the Canadian Communist party, said today his party's central committee would have to study developments in Czechoslovakia before any official statement could be issued on the current Czechoslovak-Soviet crisis.

Kashtan, of Hamilton, Ont., is in Moscow for a few days on an informal visit after a three-week holiday in Bulgaria with his wife.

Viet Cong Infiltrators Raid Air Base

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong infiltrators in loincloths attacked a U.S. air base today and blew up $6,000,000 worth of planes.

The attack on the Tuy Hoa air base, on the central coast of South Vietnam 295 miles northeast of Saigon, was the third on an American air base in South-east Asia in three days.

It raised U.S. aircraft casualties since last Monday to the unusually high total of 12 planes lost—including nine downed over North or South Vietnam—and four badly damaged.

Air force officers at Tuy Hoa said about nine Viet Cong got into the base and all were killed. One American was wounded.

Reports from Tuy Hoa said the Viet Cong slipped into the base under cover of a brief mortar and rocket attack shortly after midnight.

Firing rocket-propelled grenades and hurling satchel charges, they destroyed two four-engined C-130 transport planes and badly damaged an F-100 Superabre fighter-bomber. Several other transports were slightly damaged, U.S. officers said.

Other aircraft losses announced during the weekend included a navy A-4 Skyhawk, downed southeast of Vinh, in North Vietnam, and an F-100 Supersabre downed off the coast of South Vietnam. The Skyhawk's pilot is missing, but the two-man crew of the Supersabre was rescued.

The Skyhawk was the 873rd American warplane lost in combat over the North. The cause of the Supersabre downing has not been determined.

U.S. pilots reported destroying or damaging 232 supply boats on waterways in North Vietnam's southern panhandle Saturday, "the largest bag of boats for the war," the U.S. spokesman said.

In 118 missions over the panhandle Sunday, U.S. pilots reported smashing another 152 supply boats for a total of 477 reported destroyed or damaged over the past four days.

Too Young to Die

This North Vietnamese soldier, captured by soldiers of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division in the Son Tung village, about 25 miles from Hue, lies in the sand with hands raised in sign of surrender. The paratroopers found him and two other North Vietnamese in the village. He told them that "I was too young to die and I wanted to surrender." The American soldiers stripped him to his shorts, interrogated him, and then sent him to a POW (AP Photo)

Pearson Urges Canada Accept Curbs of New Internationalism

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Former prime minister Pearson urged Canadians Saturday to create a new kind of internationalism in the world.

"We should be in the forefront of moves to widen and deepen political internationalism, even if it means accepting through international arrangements limitations on our own independence," he said.

Mr. Pearson was speaking at the opening session of the 30th Couchiching "thinkers' conference" in nearby Bonnaya Park. His address was the keynote of the six-day conference entitled The U.S. and Us—Are We Independent? sponsored by the Canadian institutes on public affairs and the CBC.

Mr. Pearson said Canadians should look to the future and join other countries in international courses.

"This is the wave of the future for Canada and it would be tragic if we joined the Canutes on the beaches, trying to hold back this international wave with tariff walls and nationalist restrictions.

"The international course for Canada would not be a betrayal of our independence, it would be making independence work for use, for our progress and security—which are inseparable from that of other nations."

Mr. Pearson said he was speaking as a professor and not as a former prime minister. He said he was free from official restrictions on his words for the first time since 1928.

He said national independence has always been a Canadian obsession.

"In earlier years, it was Downing Street. Then it was our obsession, basically for the same reason—domination of Canada by, and dependance of Canada upon, another government.

"Indeed, worrying about the Americans, their friendly pressures, is probably the strongest Canadian unifying force at a time when we are in some doubt about the reality of the separate Canadian identity."

But, Mr. Pearson said independence today does not mean freedom from U.S. influence or pressure, determination of Canadian destiny by Canadians only.

"It must mean less if there is to be international co-operation and peace. Independence is relative and never, even for the most powerful. For us, it can only mean the right to make decisions in our own country, through our own institutions.

"While policies discouraging foreign investment could weaken us, opposite monetary policies could make us more independent by increasing our economic strength.

The former prime minister warned that such policies could result in U.S. control of Canadian politics, but suggested the true could be avoided by applying some of the recommendations of the Watkins report on foreign ownership of Canadian industry.

"We will need to receive the kind of special treatment we have enjoyed in Washington, while making clear to our friends that this is not a matter of grace and favor on their part, but something to which we are entitled by the nature of our public discussion of these treaties.

"What we really need is a department of external affairs that trusts the members of Parliament.

"It's time we had an external affairs committee of the House instead of a place where members are supposedly consulted by government officials."

The Conservative member from Rothesay, N.B., told the second session of the 30th Couchiching conference in searing Queen's Park that in the six years he's been in Parliament he has not been cleared for NATO secrets.

Mr. Fairweather noted that the NORAD agreement was renewed this spring, but after the Liberal leadership convention and just before Parliament was dissolved for the June 25 federal election.

"It didn't have to be announced then, it could have been renewed for three months and brought up in the House," he said.

"It was done that way because it's very unacceptable for the government to have a

MPs Are Not Trusted

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Gordon Fairweather Sunday night accused the government of not trusting members of Parliament on foreign affairs, and called the House foreign affairs committee "a place where members are consulted for government policy."

Mr. Fairweather noted that the NORAD agreement was renewed this spring, just after the Liberal leadership convention and just before Parliament was dissolved for the June 25 federal election.

"It didn't have to be announced then, it could have been renewed for three months and brought up in the House," he said.

Erie Residents Protest Closing of Erie Beaches

RIDGEWAY, Ont. (CP) — About 50 demonstrators marched a mile along nearby Wyldwood Beach then staged a sit-in Sunday to protest the closing of area beaches to public use.

The demonstrators were members of the Association for the Preservation of East Lake Erie Lakefront. They were led by Rev. Robert Wright, director of the association and a United Church Minister from Welland, 12 miles northwest of here.

The group walked around a fence into the property owned by Sherkston Beaches and laid claim to the land, saying it was public property.

Some demonstrators sat down in front of traffic but set up a picket line when moved by police. Later, motorists signing a petition in support of the association were allowed through the picket line.

The blockade broke up when police warned the demonstrators they would be charged with obstruction.

'Speed' Deaths Expected

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto psychologist said Sunday that 300 addicts of the drug methamphetamine hydrochloride could die in the city within two years unless they give up the habit.

William Clement of the Ontario Hospital said that among addicts using "speed" are expected to increase sharply starting this fall.

Speed is the slang term for the drug, an anti-depressant with side effects of uremia, pneumonia, malnutrition, and cardiovascular and cerebrovascular shock.

"Anyone becoming addicted to meth has between six months and two years to live-at most," said Dr. Clement. "If the methfreaks don't stop using it ... they are not going to last out the winter."

Dr. Clement was commenting on a survey showing meth addicts in Toronto have increased tenfold to 300 from 30 less than a year ago.

Dr. Clement said the "statistically significant" upsurge in youthful deaths will not be due to the drug, but to its harmful side effects.

He said two addicts have died in Toronto this year from uremia.

"Although the deaths are not directly attributable to the drug, when a person has been using meth for a year and dies from uremia, it's not hard to know what caused it," he said.

He said addicts always appear wide awake and full of energy. The drug induces a feeling of well-being and creates a false sense of security from the agitate and making it practically impossible to sleep.

Quality of Life Is Low

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In all the scathing criticisms that the Communists make against capitalist society, they have never put their finger on the one just accusation that can be levelled against us.

For the big failure of capitalist society is neither economic nor political, as the Communists wrongly insist. It is social, cultural, and educational. We have failed to raise the quality of life nearly as much as we have increased the mere quantity of goods and opportunities.

The general quality of life in our society is low and brutish. The violence we are lately so concerned about is merely an extension of that brutishness, our bad manners, our coarseness of values and crudeness of sensibility.

The original idea of the American Revolution was to raise the level of all citizens, to educate them, civilize them, make them responsive to the grand ideas and broad sentiments expressed by Jefferson and his colleagues. Americans were to become a different breed of people.

But something went wrong. In the process of exercising economic and political freedom, Americans somehow forgot that these are just means, not ends. The ends must include a citizenry ruled by reason and compassion.

We have failed dreadfully, thus far, in this crucial area. Just walk along a crowded downtown street in any American city and you will see what I mean. Or visit a beach on a hot day. Or drive along a congested expressway at rush hour. The spirit is mean and cheap, the very quality of life is disgustingly uncivil, mean and petty.

The massive educational system has not educated. The imposing religious establishment has not Christianized the inhabitants of the people. Affluence has merely convinced Americans that possession, rather than decency or merit, should be their prime and ultimate goal.

Americans do not understand the meaning of law, the workings of democracy, the relevance of religion, the roots of civilization — do not even comprehend the virtues and limitations of capitalism in a way that will permit them to benefit from the former while escaping the dangerous consequences of the latter.

Most literate criticism of the U.S. is a mad mixture of malice and ignorance, half-truths and utter distortions. The kind of "capitalism" they fulminate against disappeared a long time ago. But if U.S. enemies are too dumb to disclose its true defects, Americans should be smart enough to see them and to take prompt steps to rectify them. For if the quality of American life keeps degenerating, there will be no need for a revolution. The U.S. will disintegrate from within, for Americans are their own worst enemies.

McCarthy Urges Urban Aid Program

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Senator Eugene McCarthy said he would ask presidential candidates to give priority to ending the Vietnam war, would be to divert most of its $30,000,000 annual cost to city problems, which he calls the second most critical concern.

But Vice - President Humphrey's camp claimed Sunday delegate-selection results indicate Humphrey will have "far more than enough" votes to win the Democratic presidential nomination over McCarthy on the first national convention ballot.

On the Republican side, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's drive to block first-ballot nomination of Richard Nixon appeared to have gained some limited bi-partisan bearings began in Miami Beach with the Republican convention only a week away.

McCarthy, in a policy statement Sunday, said he would not wait for an end to the Vietnam war but as president would begin diverting money to domestic problems as the war was de-escalated.

The Humphrey camp, privately claiming as many as 1,500 delegates, said results of delegate-selecting conventions—including those in Kentucky, Virginia and Utah during the weekend—indicate first-ballot nomination is assured.

The Democratic nomination requires 1,312 votes.

In Miami Beach there was a feeling among some early-arriving delegates that Rockefeller may have stirred enough doubts about Nixon's ability to win in November to hurt Nixon's chances for nomination.

But some top party strategists said that wouldn't necessarily mean victory for the New York governor and there was talk of a darkhorse winning the nomination if Nixon's heavy delegate lead dwindles.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For July 30th,

Your birthday today: You may not sacrifice many times during the year. The temptation is to retreat. It won't work. The stronger the effort to escape, the tighter the relationships. Earnings are favored for increase. Many of today's natives are wealthy.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Love affairs of the heart face breathing space today. Then, buy a gift for your beloved. Business travel will go a long way this evening.

TAURUS (Arp. 20 — May 20): Use your best thinking to plan for the coming months of family and group cooperation. The day's routines tend to break for bits of fun and possible romantic signals.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): If you owe an apology, attend to it. Aesthetics are better expressed. Find something this evening that involves complex hand movements and mental concentration.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Give attention to home improvements, to brighten and complete colors. The evening is fine for unaccustomed cuisine.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Easy does it today. Once over lightly; no recriminations. Romantic or shared activities are favored, day and night.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Today may begin the delicate drift from an old romance to a new one. The results are promising but vague. Shopping is an unusually drastic chore today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Romance shines amid the rush of the day. Get that obligation redeemed. Make amends for any hasty words, and go on with your pursuit of happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Secret affairs bring intense feelings. Confidential information is apt to leak. Select the lonely jobs for today. There are mysteries to solve.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): This is another day when it's very difficult to stay on a job: adventure and pleasure are beckoning. Put in what is expected.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): After the stress lately, your heart belongs on your sleeve today. Make amends for any peevishness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): This is the time for overall planning. Be sure to line up your accounts early this time. Expect no great issues to arise.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Today promises better experience than yesterday. Get in a full day. Expenses tend to increase slightly. Make a small party tonight.

Snipers Fight Police In Three U.S. Cities

Eight Peoria Officers Shot

By The Canadian Press

Policemen were wounded in racial violence in Peoria, Ill., and Seattle and police at Gary, Ind., silenced snipers with return gunfire and arrested 64 persons.

Eight policemen were shot and wounded in downtown Peoria Monday after an outbreak of rock and brick throwing turned into gunfire. None was in serious condition.

Police said the trouble began when Negro youths started throwing rocks and bricks at vehicles stopping for a traffic signal near a housing project.

The shooting broke out shortly after an officer and representative of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People went to the city jail to check on the welfare of a Negro girl arrested earlier at the scene of the rock throwing.

Police said the shooting appeared to come from a nearby housing project.

In Seattle, a sniper fired through the roof of a police car, wounding two policemen, and firebombing and rock-throwing swept the city's predominantly-Negro central area.

Three other officers were injured and three civilians were wounded by gunfire. Police said they did not return the fire.

The violence came after the arrest of two members of the militant Black Panther party. They were charged with suspicion of larceny at a rally at which a Panther leader told 150 Negroes: "If you have a gun and don't plan to use it, give it to someone who will."

Police at Gary silenced snipers with return gunfire, but no one was injured in the third straight night of disorder.

The disorders were on the perimeter of the central district. Sniper fire shattered the windshield of a police patrol car less than an hour after Mayor Richard Hatcher readopted a 9 p.m. curfew.

Police said when they returned the gunfire, the snipers quit.

The arrests included 42 for violation of curfew and 22 on charges ranging from narcotics violation to carrying a concealed weapon.

In Muncie, Ind., gasoline bombs were hurled at five businesses in the city's predominantly-Negro east side. Little damage was reported and police said the fires were isolated.

Police arrested 12 Negroes on preliminary charges of conspiracy to commit a felony and confiscated at least eight gasoline bombs found in cars.

Scattered incidents of overnight rock throwing and firebombings were reported by police in Kalamazoo, a western Michigan community of 170,000.

There were no arrests, no serious injuries and little damage reported.

In Cleveland police charged a second man with first-degree murder in connection with the sniper shootings of three policemen last Tuesday night.

Seven Negro civilians were killed in the violence which followed the sniper attack on the three white policemen.

Toronto Reports Eighteen Lepers

TORONTO (CP) — Leprosy is appearing with some frequency in this area, says a University of Toronto physician.

Dr. Arthur Hudson, assistant professor of medicine, says in an article in the Canadian Medical Association journal that 18 cases were treated or were under observation in the Toronto area last year. All affected were persons who had moved here from parts of the world where leprosy is common.

"And it is quite possible that many more cases remain undetected," he says.

U. S. Units Hard Hit

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. forces suffered setbacks in two ground battles reported today in which 24 Americans were killed and five North Vietnamese bodies were found. In the air a U.S. Navy pilot downed a MiG—17 jet fighter in a five-minute dogfight over North Vietnam.

One of the setbacks was dealt U.S. marines in a day-long battle about 25 miles south of Da Nang.

About 200 North Vietnamese troops cut into the marines with heavy machine-gun fire in what appeared to be an ambush. When the North Vietnamese finally pulled back under heavy air and artillery attack 20 marines were dead.

U. S. Steel Settlement Expected

PITTSBURGH (AP) — With the threat of a U.S. steel strike fading before a reported 78-cent offer, the stage is set today for the first big test of new power by members of the United Steelworkers Union.

It was reported the wage-and-benefits package, for three years, still is being negotiated and may be worth another 10 cents an hour before it is wrapped up.

"They have an agreement," said Anthony Todilo, president of a 5,000-man local at McKeesport, Pa. "The problem now seems to be whether the union leaders can sell it to the members."

For the first time, the 600 local presidents have the power to ratify or reject a contract, or call a strike when the current agreement runs out at midnight Wednesday night. They are expected to get a group effect the basic steel industry conference, meeting this afternoon.

Officially, the union wasn't even admitting Monday that a new offer from the industry was on the table, much less that it was acceptable to top negotiators.

But union sources passed the word that the industry had offered a 36-cent hourly wage increase immediately, with raises of 12 and 13 cents to follow in the second and third year of the contract—a total of 45 cents.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Temperatures plunged to record-breaking low levels throughout Ontario Monday night. Most localities had minimum readings in the 40s. Warmer weather is on the way as a storm at present over the Dakotas heads towards the Great Lakes, initiating a southerly flow of warmer air over Ontario.

Postal Talks Continue But No Accord in Sight

OTTAWA (CP) — Mediation to end Canada's countrywide postal strike continued until early today with no letup in the 12-day walkout in sight.

Representatives of the striking Council of Postal Unions and the government's treasury board spent Monday night closeted with mediator Judge Rene Lippe on the 18th floor of a downtown hotel until 3:10 a.m. today. They were to resume discussions at 12:30 p.m. over luncheon.

There was no announcement on progress of the talks which are known to centre on working conditions.

Wages have not been discussed since two days before the strike began at which time the government proposed a six-per-cent increase over a 14-month contract which expires Sept. 30 this year.

The council has been seeking a 75-cent-an-hour increase for most of its members and 95 cents for its lowest paid ones.

The post office department made available Monday the first pay cheques to its striking employees since the ilesup began. However, a majority of strikers declined to pick up the cheques, most of which amounted to only a few dollars.

No decision by the cabinet on recalling Parliament to end the walkout is expected before Wednesday. Prime Minister Trudeau has said he hopes legislation will not be required.

Senior postal clerks now are paid $2.75 an hour and letter carriers, $2.63.

Mexican Student Riot Leaves 400 Injured

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican paratroops fired a bazooka shell through the heavy wooden doors of a preparatory school early today and dragged out hundreds of young demonstrators after Mexico City's worst student disorders in 20 years.

Nearly 400 persons were injured, 100 seriously, in the 24-hour rampage by thousands of teen-age students. Nearly 300 persons were arrested. Some sources reported one youth was killed, but this could not be confirmed.

The students, ranging from 14 to 18 years, were demanding the removal of the chief of police and the commander of riot troops, charging their forces with brutality in putting down pro-Castro demonstrations last weekend.

Some of the mob shouted anti-American slogans and called for another Vietnam in Latin America.

The evening of violence began with the theft of several buses and the disruption of traffic throughout the city.

Soon a mob of 1,500 to 2,000 youths surged toward the city's main square but riot police were waiting for them a block from the National Palace.

The club-wielding police turned back the students in quick order, and about 30 young demonstrators were injured within five minutes, Other clashes followed.

Czechs Leaders Are Confident After Talks Far Into Night

CIERNA NAD TISOU (Reuters) — The critical Russian-Czechoslovak talks on basic policy differences are going well, Czechoslovak journalists who managed to get near the meeting place in this Slovak border city reported today.

The journalists, who were within 50 yards of the conference site, said Josef Smrkovsky, one of the Prague leaders at the talks, came out of the conference building and said: "I went in with a smile and I expect to leave it with a smile."

Prague radio said a communique on the talks, which went into their second day today, would be issued either tonight or Wednesday morning.

The talks, which are taking place in a club opposite Cierna station, began Monday until late at night. They were officially described by Czechoslovakia as "an exchange of views."

Prague radio said Russian Communist party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev and Czechoslovak Chairman Alexander Dubcek made opening speeches, but did not give any details.

The radio correspondent said no one could approach the meeting site, a railwaymen's "House of Culture."

"We watch from a distance of 50 metres," he said. "People gather to chant encouragement to the Czechoslovak leaders."

A report from Moscow by the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said the Soviet delegation, headed by party chief Leonid Brezhnev, Premier Alexei Kosygin and President Nikolai Podgorny, brought a "minimal program" that included the curbing of the new freedom of the Czechoslovak press and the ouster of "anti-Socialist elements" from positions of influence.

Meanwhile, Russian troops were on the move through eastern Europe as Czechoslovak leaders defended their new-look democratic socialism in talks with skeptical Russian leaders.

Here, in Prague and throughout the country, there was a mood of optimism as the talks went into their second day, generally taken as a good sign.

Most Czechoslovaks refused to believe the Russians—to whom they look as natural allies—would occupy the country by force if the talks go badly.

Czech General Meets Russians

PRAGUE (AP) — A Czechoslovak general, opposed to the country's new democratic reforms, today was reported in contact with Soviet army officers.

The trade union newspaper Prace reported that Gen. Samuel Kodaj, who warned early this month against "counter-revolutionary" tendencies in the country, met at Sirac no, in Slovakia, with the "Soviet Army staff which is operating on our territory."

Prace said Kodaj and other Czechoslovak officers met with the chief of the Soviet Army staff, a Gen. Mayorov, and other Soviet officers "to exchange views on the present situation."

Postal Workers Paid -- Cheques From $1 to $45

Postal workers in Belleville got paid yesterday, but a few of them found there was l e s s to pay cheque than even their pessimistic hopes had expected.

Les Wynne, president of the local CUPW and Raymond Huffman topped the list when they discovered their deductions were more than their pay.

The government, in many cases, had totalled up the month's deductions and taken them from one pay instead of spreading it out over 30 days as usual.

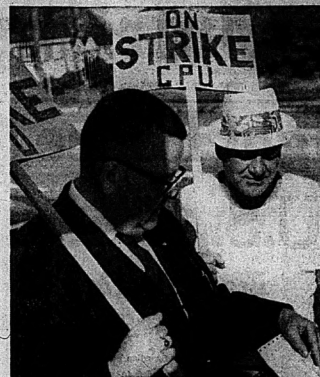
Also, the regular end of the month deductions had been taken off the cheques.

"I owe the government $13.20," laughed Mr. Wynne, "and Mr. Huffman is worse off -- they got him for $15.71."

A few others also found that their cheques were no longer cheques, but statements in the red.

However, some of the men did get paid-amounts ranging from a low of $1.01 to a high of $45.

Mr. Wynne said that all those who had been on holidays prior to the strike had received their full pay cheques earlier.



According to Mr. Wynne, the cheques were brought down from Ottawa yesterday by car.

And unlike post offices in other parts of the country, there was no problem in Belleville getting the cheques distributed.

Co-operating with the strikers who would not cross their own picket lines, local postmaster Jack Smith handed the cheques to Les Wynne.

"Of course I gave them their cheques," said Mr. Smith, "There's no reason not to."

"I think some of the people are just making a big issue over this business as most of the postal workers everywhere did get paid."

Strikers Check Cheque

Harold Bankier looks over a statement from the government along with Les Wynne, president of the local CUPW. Many of the workers got statements from the government instead of cheques as their deductions came to more than their pay.

Air Cadets to Host Ontario Mayors

TRENTON — The air cadets at CFB Trenton will be hosts to some high priced help on Wednesday when mayors from cities and towns across Ontario come to view the cadet program.

The operation has been dubbed "Mayors' Day" and invitations have been sent out to all Ontario communities which have a cadet detachment at the summer camp.

Although the mail strike has slowed replies to the invitations, a spokesman at the base said "many of the guests have replied by phone."

"The answers have been enthusiastic," continued the spokesman, "and so far we have 10 affirmative replies."

Included among the visiting mayors will be James MacDonald from Trenton and Belleville's J. Russell Scott.

The program will begin at 10.30 Wednesday morning. The dignitaries will be shown around the base. During this time they will see the cadets taking part in various activities such as sailing, sports and various hobbies.

Then at three in the afternoon the town heads will direct their attention to Mountain View where they will see the air cadets at home in the skies as the cadet glider operation takes place.

And then it will be all over. Officials at the base are enthusiastic about the turnout that is expected and as one officer put it, "this will be one of the highlights of summer camp."

Area Cheese Producers To Air Views Thursday

Problems confronting the cheese industry will be the topic of discussion at a public hearing at the Sun Valley Motel in Belleville on Thursday, August 1.

The public hearing is one of several being held throughout Ontario by the Ontario cheese Industry s t u d y committee headed by John M. Bain, former director of dairying for Ontario.

In his former role with the Ontario department of agriculture, Mr. Bain was a popular figure in the Belleville area and has regularly attended the British Empire Dairy Show and cheese makers' conventions here.

The cheese industry study committee is inquiring into the present status of the industry with a view toward determining basic problem areas; the disposition of fodder cheese and alternative outlets for winter milk and the feasibility of establishing alternative facilities necessary to provide producers with the best possible returns.

Thursday's hearing at Belleville will get underway at 1.30 p.m. and continue through until 10 o'clock in the evening.

Two Committed to Trial On Marijuana Charges

Two Belleville High School teachers, Christopher Williams and Joel Whitton, were yesterday committed for trial on charges of illegal possession of marijuana.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills committed the two accused after hearing evidence from Bruce William Prindle, who was convicted of a similar offence June 26 on two of his friends, Sue Brown and John Radomski as well as RCMP officers.

Prindle testified he had sold the two teachers what he believed to be marijuana on April 14 while he was a visitor at Williams' home on Reid St.

A search of the home the next day by RCMP uncovered two cigarette butts in an ashtray which an analyst in Toronto said were marijuana.

Both men will eg on trial during the first general sessions of the court coming in early November.

Accident Damage Totals $800.

TWEED — Highway 37, just north of here, had 12 of its guideposts forcefully removed early this morning.

The posts were ejected from the roadside as the result of a one-vehicle mishap at 3 a.m. this morning.

Robert McGuire, 22, of Tweed, driver of the car, was not injured, but his automobile sustained $800 damage.

Traffic on Highway 401 has been detoured near the North Front Street interchange for the past month as workmen repair the bridge. Automobiles are slowed to a crawl as traffic shifts into a single lane.

Pool Hall Age Limit Lowered

Thurlow Township Council passed a by-law reducing the age limit of persons entering pool halls at a special meeting last night.

Under the bylaw, entry to a pool hall will be restricted to persons 18 years of age and over. The prevous age limit was 18.

The reducing of the limit follows a trend of reduction across the province. Recently the Ontario government passed an amendment to its Minor Protection Act which completely dropped age limits for entry to billiard halls.

No other feature of the original pool hall bylaw have been changed.

Gambling is not permitted. Halls must be closed at 11.00 on Saturday nights and at midnight on all other nights of the week.

There is only one pool hall at present in Thurlow Township.

New Parking Area Opens

Born out of a downtown business area fire which swept the Safe Block a few years ago a new commercial off-street parking lot has appeared on East Bridge street.

The tarred out area which had years before been a colorful beauty spot through the efforts of the Junior Jaycees and the Belleville Horticultural Society, has been graded and covered with crushed rock for use as privately owned off street parking area.

The owners, Peter and W. S. Wills, will rent the 20 to 25 parking spaces on a yearly basis.

IN MEMORIAM

ELLIOTT — In loving memory of our dear husband, Frederick James Elliott who passed away July 31st, 1966.

"Though death divides,
Fond memory will not."

—Sadly missed by his wife Nettie.

ELLIOTT — In loving memory of a dear brother who passed away suddenly July 31st, 1966.

"Though death divides,
Fond memory each day we miss you."

Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
Which is hidden and concealed
Today.

You were called away without goodbye,
But memories of you will never die.

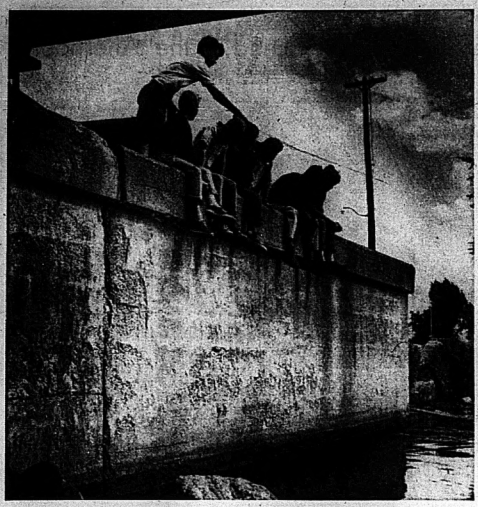
—Deeply remembered and sadly missed by Ross, Mary and nephew Shawn.

LUMLEY — In loving memory of our dear husband and father who passed away suddenly on July 30th, 1967.

"Sweet memories are golden,
Time cannot take away
Our love, though you are gone,
This month comes with deep regret,
For it brings back a day we shall never forget,
You fell asleep without goodbye,
But the memory of you shall never die.

We often think of bygone days,
When we were all together,
The family circle is broken now,
But memories will live forever,
To us, he has not gone away,
Just entered God's eternal home,
And left the dear old family.

—Sadly missed by his sister Doris and brother-in-law Harold, nephew Scott and Robert.



CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to thank most sincerely all the good people who remembered me with cards, flowers and with prayers, during my illness and visits. I also appreciate the kindness of the Head Office south nurses, aides and ward secretaries and a special thanks to Dr. Walcott.

Pearl Baird,

The Scenery Doesn't Matter!

So it's only a railway bridge with a river suffering summertime sluggishness. Still it's a spot to fish and where there's fishing and small fry there's fun — like this scene at the CPR Victoria Park overcross yesterday. Come to think of it, the fish aren't that important either. A catch is just all in a day's fun.

Mercury Drops

The mercury went into a gold-summer's night slide to hit its lowest in many a Quinte July last night.

Low recorded at Canadian Forces Base Trenton was 44 degrees — the coldest temperature for that date in at least 25 years, says the duty forecaster.

The same low was recorded in 1945 —but on July 31.

Fire Situation Extreme

With the month of July one of the driest on record, forest fires are posing a serious problem in the Tweed forest district.

A department of lands and forests official at Tweed reported today there were five fires burning in the area—two of them 10 acres in extent. The fires are now under control.

So far this year there have been 112 fires in the district—already equalling last year's total — while 1110.2 acres have been burned over, or almost double that of last year.

And many of the fires have been the result of carelessness on the part of campers, fishermen and timber operators.

A careless camper is blamed for one 10-acre fire in the Marmora area, while lightning caused the other 10-acre blaze in Sheffield township.

Two half acre blazes are burning in Lake and Effingham townships, while one third of an acre is burning in the Madoc area along Highway 7.

The blaze in Lake township, caused by lightning is in an isolated area and is hard to get at.

With less than half an inch of rain since the first of July, the fires are burning into the ground and are difficult to extinguish. There have been 19 fires so far this month as compared with only five for all of July last year.

To guard against the fire hazard department crews are doing regular fire patrols, and when blazes are spotted, special crews trained in fire fighting are brought into the area.

U.S. Air Cadets Arrive

Bancroft Gemboree Aug. 7-10-- Meeting Place for Rockhounds

BANCROFT — This district is the treasure chest of Canada—and when the lid comes briefly ajar next week you can see why.

On view will be a glittering hoard of natural gems, more colorful than rainbows — and easier to chase.

This is one of the great lures of the Bancroft Gemboree — the fact that all that glitters is accessible to everyone.

Any one can become a rockhound — a collector of stone deposits — and gather his own collection for cutting and polishing into natural gems.

And, says Harold Petch, publicity chairman for the Gemboree, more people are doing it every year.

"This is one of North America's fastest-growing hobbies," he claims.

Among its attractions is the fact it takes an entire family into the outdoors with the added excitement of discovery.

Potential natural gems can be found along road cuts, abandoned mines — anywhere the natural land deposit has been carved.

Bancroft is among the richest areas for deposits in North America.

Mr. Petch, a former Bancroft high school teacher, who now has a collection of 5,000 natural gems, says many varieties of gems can be unearthed within a 30-mile radius of the community.

Reason for the richness is the fact the region lies on the fringe of the Laurentian shield, the cross-country spine of rock that provides much of Canada's mineral wealth.

Local rockhounds find a focus for activities in the Bancroft Mineral Society, and the results of their discoveries form the centrepiece for the Gemboree.

Started five years ago, the Gemboree now has grown into one of Ontario's unique tourist attractions, blossoming into a tent - city operation at Bird's Creek, five miles north of Bancroft.

Touches of showbiz have been added to fill out its customer-drawing potential.

This year, the Gemboree runs Aug. 7-10, and features a rock - beer garden, and a Children's Day program on opening day.

A highlight of the side attractions will be the Eastern Ontario cross - country Gemboree show, Aug. 9-10.

Nature's Sparklers

Harold Petch, Bancroft rockhound with part of natural gem collection he will enter in Gemboree, near Bird's Creek, opening August 7. Display of hoard, collected in Bancroft area, which is rich in mineral deposits, annually draws thousands of Canadian and U.S. collectors.

BGH Grant To Establish Dental Unit

Belleville General Hospital has had a grant of $10,025 approved by the Atkinson Charitable Foundation, it was announced recently.

The grant is one of seven approved by the foundation, totalling $23,000.

It will enable the hospital to purchase special equipment for its proposed dental suite.

Dental treatment in the hospital will help to further fulfill the concept of total health care for both in-patients and out-patients.

Patients, who for various medical reasons were formerly unable to receive dental treatment under regular circumstances in a dental office, will now be able to receive treatment in all phases of dentistry under the combined supervision of a medical-dental team, utilizing all the modern facilities now available in the hospital.

Vegetables Appear On Market

The Good Old Summer Time is rapidly passing us by!

Evidence of the fleeting season is the appearance of late summer vegetables on the Belleville market.

For the past week blueberries — all the way from the Kirkland Lake area in Northern Ontario — fresh corn, locally grown tomatoes, harvest apples, plums and peaches have been offered.

Today fresh corn from the Wooler area brought 45 cents for half a dozen ears, while locally grown tomatoes sold at 25 cents per pint and 49 cents per quart.

Borden plums were $2.10 per basket and Envoy peaches, $1.85.

Advertising Necessary, Flagler Tells Rotarians

Without advertising as we know it some other means, perhaps much more costly, would have to be found to see that goods processed in our plants, or merchandise, eventually reached the consumer, Phil Flagler, farm director of radio station CJBQ, told Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

Citing critics of advertising — such as the man who says advertising can be used to hold out on your competition — Mr. Flagler said: "I think any businessman here would be happy indeed if he could dispose of his competitor just by spending more money in advertising . . . The theory is fine but it has only one flaw, it doesn't fit the facts."

Mr. Flagler said the market place was littered with projects that floundered on consumer resistance. A classic example was the Ford Motor Company and its Edsel.

Buyers heard about millions of dollars being spent in newspaper, radio and television advertising, but they didn't know that on most established household items today the average advertising expenditure was well under five cents per dollar expenditure.

"And because the buyer does not buy these things, he will continue to wonder about the cost of advertising and its value," said Mr. Flagler. "He will continue to harbor that nagging feeling that this is the thing which is adding to his household expense."

It was estimated that only about one-and-a-half per cent of the gross national product was represented by advertising, and yet some believed it was a major moulder of society.

"Whether we deserve such fame is debatable," said Mr. Flagler, adding: "Still, there are many legitimate questions being raised as to the long-run social, ethical and economic implications of advertising."

In the last decade, he said, business generally had become more and more market-oriented rather than product-oriented. Attention today was focussed on the consumer and the business that thrived was the one that remained alert to consumer preferences.

No School Parade At the Picton Fair

PICTON — Prince Edward County Fair at Picton is breaking with tradition this year and for the first time in history it will have no opening day school parade.

One of the reasons is school amalgamation and the lack of time to arrange transportation for the students. The other, is the fact that the fair this year is being held earlier during the summer holiday period.

Fair dates this year have been set ahead to August 5-6-7 as one fair official said "to avoid the rains and the cold weather."

But even without an opening day school parade, the Picton Fair this year is still planned to be the biggest and best on record.

A bigger than ever horse show will be staged, along with a cattle show and the 4-H club livestock display.

For the women there will be a baking contest with prizes for the best patriotic cake decoration. In addition there will be a flower show and art display.

For the younger set there will be the Peter March midway with a wide variety of rides and concessions.

Also there will be dance parties for the teen-age crowd.

Other attractions include the Imperial Hell Drivers, The Canadian Forces Band from Trenton, and a county amateur show.

PM's Arctic Visit

If any part of Canada fits into the category of "underdeveloped" land it is the far north which Prime Minister Trudeau has been visiting in a swift journey by air through that vast, largely unpeopled, region.

Canada's north has great potential. Mineral wealth abounds but it lies untapped. For those who live there, problems of isolation and health make the north a region of unusual harshness. People living on the "outside" have no real conception of what life is like there, but we do know that the Soviet Union has overcome many of the difficulties of a severe climate in Siberia for instance to industrialize and make that region habitable.

Mr. Trudeau has done a lot of travelling in his time. He has been in other remote parts of the world. That he is now concerning himself with the far reaches of this country is all to the good. His visit should lead to a better understanding of the needs of the Arctic region that occupies so much of the land mass of Canada.

Speaking of Siberia it will be recalled that former Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing led a Canadian delegation to study Soviet development in its northern territories. That was a year or so ago. This, coupled with Mr. Trudeau's visit could mean more progress in the opening up of Canada's far north.

A Melancholy Symbol

When we think of pollution the subject projects itself as one relating to the air or atmosphere and to water.

Air pollution has to do with exhaust fumes from motor vehicles and smoke from industrial plants. And it is ironic to think that where people used to get very upset about the threat of radiation caused by nuclear bomb tests, another creeping threat to public health by today's atmospheric pestilence — albeit peaceful in its intent — causes hardly a ripple.

Another dimension to the pollution problem has been added by the increasing noise levels of our industrialized society. People seek to escape — from cities like Toronto to the island group just offshore that offers people a peaceful sanctuary, and from our own Belleville area to The Outlet and Sandbanks.

Yet another facet of pollution — and we have drawn attention to it often in recent weeks — is litter. The amount of litter in Belleville streets is such that it catches the attention of visitors. "What a filthy city," one remarked recently to a local resident.

Belleville of course is not alone. Litter is everywhere. A host of people do use the receptacles provided for waste material, but far too many choose to do not. An example in this area is the restaurant at The Outlet where the ground outside any weekend is a mass of discarded cartons, paper and other waste. The beach itself presents a sadder picture — visitors seem to respect it more — which is fortunate because dead fish are still being washed up.

Globe and Mail columnist Bruce West has made some apt comments on the subject. Siding with those who oppose the sale of disposable bottles, he notes: "Heaven knows we have enough junk being scattered on beaches and in parks and camping grounds. The bits of rubbish lie there as objects which are among the most melancholy symbols of our time."

On some of our highways there is a sign warning that litter thrown on the roadway can draw a $50 fine. But who gets caught? Such warnings may work in Scandinavia where people are better trained with regard to keeping cities and countryside clean. In this country it would take time, but we could at least make a start. Signs and public address systems at public parks are methods that come to mind. Anything that encourages the public to have more regard for the preservation of natural resources and reducing pollution in all its forms should be employed.

The Wind

What a difference the wind makes. For vacationers at the beach it can be anathema, bearing on its wings the odor of rotting fish and briskly moving sand that gets into eyes, picnic baskets, food and so on.

For others it is like a healing balm. The wind in their lungs is an elixir that gives them new life. After the stifling deadweight days of the recent heatwave, the weekend brought welcome relief.

The wind also does things to the clouds. It moves them around and plays hide and seek with the sun. It dances on the water, tosses into being the tide and creates the roar of the surf. It whips the lake's surface into varied shades of white and blue and green and grey.

Welcome or not, the wind does make for a break in climatic routine.

With Everyone Away Capital Like "Land of the Afternoon"

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Like they used to sing it on Tin Pan Alley and the hit parage — seems like old times.

Even with the postal strike paralysing the mails — an essential public service if there ever was one — it has been so quiet in these corridors of power you could almost hear the pigeons cooing on the gargoyled ledges of the Peace Tower.

The silence has been all the more shattering because it has been such a stunning change from the sound and fury of these last 11 years.

Those were the years of the Pearson - Diefenbaker political blood feud when Parliament Hill remained in a state of gloriously colorful uproar whether the Commons was in session or recess.

Seven of those furiously combative years, minority governments, both Liberal and Conservative teetering on the brink of breakup, were in uncertain power, but never in what really could be called control.

But even in the four years when there was a majority — and it was the biggest ever, with 208 Conservatives swamping a combined opposition of 57 — all was still tumult and turmoil.

Those were the years when Parliament, which up to then had been a leisurely five, or at most, six-months-a-year operation, suddenly was transformed into the next thing to a non-stop talkathon . . . and always at the top of the Commons' collective voice.

Maybe it was just Diefenbaker and Mike. For did two political leaders ever so detest each other as these two extreme opposites?

Or perhaps it was that after 22 years of unbroken power — "Who's to stop us?" gloated old C. D. Howe," the minister - of-everything — the Liberals simply couldn't reconcile themselves to being "out" instead of forever "in".

But now, in this new political age of "Pierre Power," it's so dead calm in what for so long was the storm centre, that everyone could have dropped dead.

But they haven't — they just went away.

Prime Minister Trudeau to tundra - hop between the Arctic coast and its icy islands.

And with the postal strike in progress — or is "progress" quite the word for it? — how was that for cool-cutting it?

What a crisis Mike and Diefenbaker would have made of it.

Two things have made the difference.

The new leaders, "Pierre and Bob," and, for the first time in six years, a strong government majority.

And so, all last week, while the cabinet did manage a couple of days' work, the Hill seemed to have been abandoned to the tourists and the pigeons.

Even the cabinet, slipping in and out of the East Block, did it almost stealthily, with never a second glance from the holidaying hordes.

It was like it used to be when MacKenzie King ruled, spending the quiet summers at nearby Kingsmere, leaving the holiday hush perhaps once in two weeks with a press conference.

He always seemed to call them late of a hot afternoon. There he'd sit behind his big desk, his tiny feet on a little petitpoint footstool and drone away interminably in a sort of sleepy chorus with the flies buzzing in the sun on the window until his reportorial audience would nod and done.

It was a technique — it must have been — bore them to sleepy inattension so they would not ask so many questions.

It was like it used to be, too, in "Uncle Louis" St. Laurent's days of Liberal wine and roses, when things were in such quiet control he could go away for the summer, all summer, June, July, August and part of September on Quebec's south St. Lawrence shore.

It's the land of the afternoons again, or maybe it's just a dream. SSSHH.

The Communist Crisis—II

Will Czechs Achieve Blend of Communism and Democracy?

The leaders of Czechoslovakia's new reform administration hope soon to consolidate their position. But Peter Buckley, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow who visited Czechoslovakia, finds that many Czechs are waiting warily to see if the reforms will really mean an improvement.

By PETER BUCKLEY

PRAGUE (CP) — A long hot summer of turmoil and unrest may face other countries. In Czechoslovakia, they hope fervently for a long cool one.

Here, it has been spring that has been long and hot.

Now the new Czech leaders headed by 45-year-old Alexander Dubcek want a cool spell to assess, consolidate and strengthen a political reform movement that has already struck aside two decades of shadow.

If the Czechs succeed at their summertime labors, the result could be something entirely new and extremely significant. It could mean a blend of communism and democracy that would make Prague an alternative that might not only be transplanted more readily to the West than other forms of communism but could also be a precedent for liberals in the other Communist states.

The need for consolidation in Czechoslovakia was apparent even before the inevitable summer heat of Central Europe arrived, baking the idlers on the benches of the Old Town Square and driving the flower children to shade beneath the baroque statues at the Charles Bridge over the Vitava River.

So far the new Czech regime has stood firm against heavy pressure from Moscow. The Kremlin insists that Prague must toe the Communist line or face the consequences. Dubcek maintains that his country will not yield an inch in pursuing its reforms.

Former president Antonin Novotny and some of his absent supporters have been driven onto the sidelines, but the Communist party's liberal wing must still prove itself.

There are still many many questions unanswered about Czechoslovakia's reform, and too many fears that the answers when they come will not measure up to promise.

For example:

—Can a formula be devised to give a real measure of democracy at the polls, even though the Communist party is determined to stay in power?

—Can the Stalinists and reactionaries from the old regime, widely discredited but still around, be neutralized so effectively that they have no chance for a comeback even when some of the reforms begin to pinch?

—Can a new constitution be trusted to be any more effective in the long run than the old one, with its lofty phrases about freedom and rights, progress and welfare?

—Can the new leaders find the strength and internal backing to restrain the reform and channel it into "safer" paths?

The average Czech, in his traditionally practical way, still seems bet up about the changes that have occurred in Czech public life since the handsome but unimaginative Novotny began to lose control last January.

The reform is a natural topic of conversation almost anytime and anywhere in this charming old capital, especially with foreigners.

Old people debate politics amicably in the little parks along the banks of the slow-moving Vltava. Students from ancient Charles University argue heatedly in their walks between classes. Politicians and journalists and others caught up in the process, expound their theories and hopes.

But frequently, in particular among the "non-professionals" outside politics, there is a strong suggestion of wariness ranging from wait-and-see to outright cynicism that seems now to be part of many Czechs' personal defences.

In 1956, there was a promise of reform during Russia's de-Stalinization, but it came to little. In 1960, with a new constitution, hope was again aroused.

But the conservative Novotny regime hung on.

Now the cool, politically nimble Dubcek has taken over. Past hopes seem on the brink of being realized beyond expectation. So much so that many seem almost too wary.

A voluble young civil service clerk, complaining in painful French over a cup of Turkish coffee at a cafe, seemed typical of the skeptics.

"I still live in a flat where the housing authorities won't even install a hot-water heater. I still don't earn enough money to buy good clothes or go to a good restaurant. I'm not a Communist, but the Communists are going to govern even if the voters don't want them to.

"You tell me, what has changed?

Another Czech, this one a professional man, tried in his own picturesque way to explain the doubts: "For so many years, people have lived like Sleeping Beauty. They do not sure the prince's kiss is real or part of the dream."

For many, however, the kiss has been real enough.

"In the last few months, it seems that the tension has gone out of life," said one Westerner with extended contacts here.

"People really do seem to be smiling more and to be more gay," he said.

Again and again a visitor is told: "It can't possibly go back to the way it was."

There's a suggestion of whistling in the cemetery about the phrase, but there's no denying the extent of some of the changes.

The files of the secret police have been slashed and their powers sharply curbed. People now only hold views which contradict the Communist party's, they actively spread such views.

The press has been given unheard-of freedom to expose, criticize, to question. The last restraints have been lifted from novelists, poets and playwrights.

Thousands of victims of the Stalinist past—not only those imprisoned illegally but also those whose jobs or lives were affected unjustifiably are being rehabilitated. They are to receive compensation for injustice.

New economic ideas are being advanced, designed to blast the country's industry from its stagnancy—"and ideology be damned," as one young Communist put it.

Perhaps inevitably, however, there has already been a conflict between idealism and the facts of life. Idealism has not always won.

In the first flush of success, when Dubcek and his reform supporters began showing strength last January, it appeared that anything at all was possible.

Even in April, when the Central Committee of the party adopted-its Action Program and Novotny was ousted from the presidency, the sky could have been the limit, it seemed.

Certainly the 90-page Action Program is one of the most extraordinary documents ever to have come from a Communist party in power, condemning as it does a whole host of past abuses in harsh and straightforward language and promising fundamental, unprecedented reform.

But by May, some of the facts of geography and geographical life had been asserted. Novotny's past continued to be attacked, but by May the reformers had made two things crystal clear which had been less precise at first.

1. The Communist party was in power to stay. In future, it would have to "earn" its power by effective leadership. But even a hint—and a possibility that of course was not mentioned—it would not seek again.

2. Czechoslovakia was in the Warsaw Pact and the Eastern bloc of Communist states to stay. It would pursue a more independent course and many past positions would be re-examined. The basic fact would not be altered.

Gambler Leaves Canada to Tell Scotland Yard About Murder

LONDON (CP) — Gambler Charles (Wagg) Whitnall flew from a Canadian hideout to meet Scotland Yard interviewers in Vienna last week about a 1907 gangland-type killing, the Daily Sketch says today.

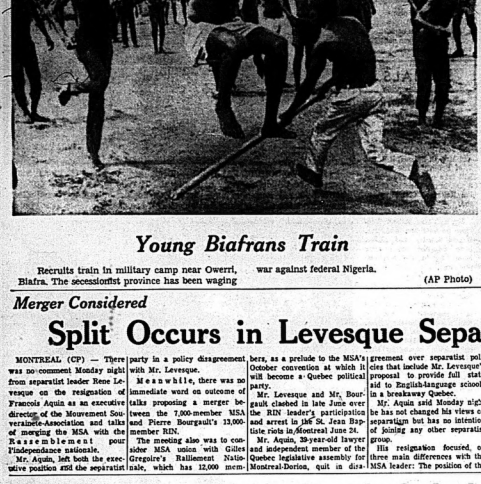
Londoner Whitnall has been on the move in several countries with his wife and three children since the body of John James (Scotch Jack) Buggy, a London underworld character, was fished from the channel in June, 1967, riddled with bullets and weighted with cement.

Scotland Yard disclosed last week that a top investigator was meeting Whitnall in Austria — which has no extradition treaty with Britain — but The Sketch's claim that Whitnall went there from Canada was the first suggestion to this effect. Previous reports were that Canada was among several countries visited by Whitnall during a year of wandering.

Last month it was announced that Detective Superintendent Arthur Butler, in charge of the Buggy case, flew to Toronto to talk to a man held in jail there on another matter. The Yard has never indicated the outcome of that interview, or just why it wanted to talk to Whitnall.

However, The Sketch says in a review of the Buggy case by crime reporter Peter Burden that Buggy had confided to Whitnall that he was looking into an explosion in May of last year at a Mayfair club frequented by several men suspected in the Great Train Robbery of 1963.

About $9,000,000 of the loot from the robbery is still missing, and The Sketch says Scotland Yard believes Buggy was removed because he had stumbled across the whereabouts of part of the missing money.



"What is worrying Whitnall," it adds," is that the big-time crime bosses responsible for Buggy's death apparently now have him at the top of their execution list. He can only assume that the killers believe that he knows what Buggy learned or did."

The paper says:

"For a year he flitted around the world until the Yard traced him in Canada and arranged the recent meeting in Austria.

"After the meeting with Butler, Whitnall left to continue the game of hide-and-seek, in which he says the seekers are not the police but crooks."

Mother's Voice Fails to Draw Lost Children

GRAND RAPIDS, Man. (CP) — A mother's voice, broadcast through dense bushland, has failed to bring two lost children to the notice of men participating in a frantic search.

More manpower is planned today in the hunt which has gone on since Thursday. An RCMP officer said the children may have gone bush crazy—wandering aimlessly and hiding at every noise—even though the noise may mean safety.

RCMP called Monday for "a couple of hundred" soldiers and permission was given later in the day by Provincial Secretary Stewart McLean.

Emergency Measures Organization officials left Winnipeg 270 miles south of the search area, Monday night to set up an advance camp and radio equipment. Soldiers were to leave today.

More than 75 volunteers, weary from trekking through bush and muskeg, still hold hope that Jill Sinclair, 8, and her brother Kirby, 4, will be found alive.

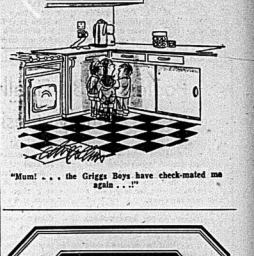
However, the use of helicopters, a tracking dog and the broadcasting of their mother's voice from a jeep-mounted loudspeaker has proved fruitless. The dog could not pick up a trail.

Observers in the helicopter found they could not peer deep enough into the thick bush covering several places.

The youngsters wandered away from the family car Thursday while their parents were picking seneca roots on the shore of Honeymoon Lake.

Hope was kindled in the parents and searchers when scattered footprints were found, but no one could find a definite trail.

Volunteers from Grand Rapids, about 30 miles from the search area, turned out in such numbers that the small community was almost deserted.



But the terrain took its toll. Men were exhausted after trudging through the fly-infested jungle. At some points they slogged shoulder-to-shoulder in search boggy potholes.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Sinclair stayed with the searchers.

With temperatures dropping to the 40s at night, no one knew how long the lightly-clothed youngsters could last. The area is sprinkled, however, with edible berries.

Merger Considered

Split Occurs in Levesque Separatists

MONTREAL (CP) — There was no comment Monday night from separatist leader Rene Levesque on the resignation of Francois Aquin as an executive director of the Mouvement Souveraineté-Association and talks of merging the MSA with the Rassemblement pour l'Independance nationale.

Mr. Aquin, left both the executive position and the separatist party in a policy disagreement with Mr. Levesque.

Meanwhile, there was no immediate word on outcome of talks proposing a merger between the 7,000-member MSA and Pierre Bourgault's 13,000-member RIN.

The meeting also was to consider MSA union with Gilles Gregoire's Rallieument Nationale, which has 12,000 members, as a prelude to the MSA's October convention at which it will become a Quebec political party.

Mr. Levesque and Mr. Bourgault clashed in late June over the RIN leader's participation and arrest in the St. Jean Baptiste riots in Montreal June 24.

Mr. Aquin, 39-year-old lawyer and independent member of the Quebec legislative assembly for Montreal-Dorion, quit in disagreement over separatist policies that include Mr. Levesque's proposal to provide full state aid to English-language schools in a breakaway Quebec.

Mr. Aquin said Monday night he has not changed his views on separatism but has no intention of joining any other separatist group.

His resignation focused, on three main differences with the MSA leader: The position of the English-language minority in Quebec, the place of Quebec in partnership with English-speaking Canada and economic relations with the U.S.

He said there was no personality conflict with the 45-year-old Mr. Levesque, like Mr. Aquin a former Quebec Liberal.

Both Mr. Levesque and Mr. Aquin left the Quebec Liberals in 1967 and Mr. Levesque established the MSA in November. Mr. Aquin joined the separatist group in December.

Mr. Levesque, regarded as a moderate separatist, favors a sovereign state of Quebec with loose economic ties to the rest of Canada.

His proposals include language and education rights for the English-speaking population in a free Quebec.

Mr. Levesque contends the MSA is a logical development of the Liberals' 1960 Quebec election campaign slogan of masters at home—"Maitres chez nous."

Quebec and the rest of Canada, he proclaims could negotiate on "mutually economic matters" but these also tie in with a "lot of other problems—citizenship, labor market, things like that."

Starving Man Relates 6-week Ordeal

HOPE, B.C. (CP) — Bob Mann, never did have a craving for porridge, but now he says happiness is in a bowlful of the stuff.

Mr. Mann, 34, is recovering in hospital at this Fraser Valley community after surviving a six-week starvation ordeal in bushland near here.

He said the first prescription for his malnutrition suffering was a bowl of porridge.

"I could have eaten a whole barrel of that mush and I never did. like porridge before. But when you're hungry everything tastes good."

He said he developed pneumonia during a storm while sleeping out in bush at Silver Lake, about six miles southwest of here, after arriving in Hope to find the welfare office closed.

He made his way to an abandoned shack near the lake and lay there too sick to move until thirst drove him out.

A logging crew discovered him lying beside the road Friday and rushed him to hospital.

Mr. Mann, about six feet tall, and normally about 195 pounds, weighed about 90 pounds when he was admitted to hospital.

He gained 15 pounds during the weekend through solid foods and intravenous feedings. Doctors said the rapid weight gain was caused mainly by fluids but this will slow down once he reaches his normal weight level.

Mr. Mann said he was dried out before he was found.

"I was in third body," he said. "My bones were sticking out through my flesh.

Drugs Sold In Prison

TORONTO (CP) — A 29-year-old ex-convict told a magistrate's court Monday that drugs were available in the federal penitentiary where he served 17 months of a two-year sentence.

Percy Deshane of Maple, Ont., testifying through his lawyer, said he was still addicted to drugs when he was released April 2.

The lawyer, Roger J. Smith, did not name the penitentiary in court. Outside court, he said he withheld the name because he could not substantiate what his client told him.

Postal Employees Find Deductions Eat Up Pay

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Question: When is a pay cheque not a pay cheque?

Answer: When the wage is equal to the regular deductions.

The cheques, or non-cheques for three days of back pays are providing a controversial side issue in the current strike of Canada's 24,000 postal workers.

An unidentified postal supervisor who tried to distribute the cheques to strikers on the picket lines in Toronto Monday was stopped by an order from Ottawa after the delivered 28 of them.

In Edmonton today, strikers will try another method of getting the cheques which range in amounts from $3 to $10. They are to be handed out at the door by a supervisor so workers won't have to cross their own picket lines.

Of the 28 handed out to Toronto strikers, 20 were statements listing only deductions. The average postal worker earns $23.50 a day but with end-of-the-month deductions calculated in the three-day cheques, there is little or nothing, left.

The cheques cover the period from July 15, when the last regular cheques were issued, to July 18, the day the strike began.

The postal workers, who receive no strike pay because their union has no strike fund, had decided earlier they would not cross their picket lines for the cheques.

At other post offices across Canada piles of cheques stayed in front of supervisors seated at tables waiting for the strikers.

RESTORE FORESTS

FREDERICTON (CP) — The New Brunswick department of natural resources will be increasing emphasis on reforestation of crown lands burned or cut over, planting 2,000,000 tree seedlings by 1972. This year's program includes planting of 2,000,000 seedlings in co-operation with ARDA, about 900,000 of which will be planted under arrangements with four pulp and paper companies.

World's First Heart Bank Will Be Set Up in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — A registry of prospective heart donors will be set up in Montreal, Bruce Brown, former president of the Quebec Heart Foundation, announced Monday.

Mr. Brown, a founding member of the registry, told a news conference that this will probably be the world's first "heart bank."

A publicity campaign will be launched to pursuade Montreal residents to volunteer their hearts for future heart operations. The campaign will later cover the entire province.

The registry will be financed through private donations.

Mr. Brown said he will serve as chairman of a special committee which will establish a 24-hour-a-day heart supply service for the province of Quebec. The service will alert transplant teams of available donors and set in motion the teamwork necessary to bring together donor and eventual recipient.

"This must be considered a pilot project which hopefully will establish practical guidelines for medical institutions and heart foundations throughout the world," Mr. Brown said.

He explained that the registry will enable adults to provide written authorization whereby they will agree to give their heart for eventual transplant in the event of a cerebral accident or at the time of actual or imminent death.

Royal Bank's First Woman Branch Manager Worried About Precedent and Responsibility

MONTREAL (CP) — When Georgette St. Cyr was appointed the Royal Bank of Canada's first woman branch manager she thought the directors were teasing her.

"It was so unusual. When I realized they were serious I was worried it might be too much responsibility for a woman."

But with the encouragement of her husband, Raymond, an inspector at an aircraft firm, and the statement of Georges Mercier, district general manager for Quebec, New Brunswick and eastern Ontario, that it was "simply a matter of selecting the proper person," she accepted the top-flight post.

When Mrs. St. Cyr began in 1941 as a stenographer—"on July 21, I remember it exactly" —the few women employees at the bank held relatively minor positions as ledger-keepers and machine operators.

The picture changed during the later war years as more and more men were called overseas.

The bank now employs more women than men in its 1,100 Canadian branches and 114 branches in 26 other countries.

Mrs. St. Cyr worked her way through the ranks until she became the bank's first woman accountant in a large city branch in 1965.

"I think there will be more and more women in important positions now. I was the first woman accountant and now there are several others.

"I think there will soon be more women managers. The problem is to find women who want to make a career of banking so that giving them the necessary training will not be a waste."

The high turnover in women employees, largely because of marriage, is the major reason why more women are not already in positions of authority, Mr. Mercier says.

"There's been a change in the past few years, however," he notes.

"For various economic reasons there are now more married women planning on careers. There are also large numbers of married women reentering the labor force, something that is happening in all fields."

So far Mrs. St. Cyr has encountered no opposition to her being manager of the Place Longueuil branch.

"Male customers seem to have sensibly decided that if I've been appointed manager then I must be competent. Women have seemed very enthusiastic too, though I understand women are often more reluctant to deal with a woman than are men."

To keep up her responsibilities both to the bank and to her home Mrs. St. Cyr says she has to have an almost dual personality.

"When I am a bank manager, I'm all bank manager. When I leave the office, I am all woman.

For the time being she is making the acquaintance of her clients and in the fall will begin drumming up new business for the branch.

"The bank manager's prime responsibility is, after all, getting more business for his bank. And you can't do that if you set yourself up in an ivory tower."

Poetess, 93, Finally Publishing Works After Timely Hesitation of 82 Years

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — It took Minnie McHolm 82 years to get around to publishing some of her poetry. Once she got the hang of it, however, it didn't take long for her to get out a second volume.

After all, when you're 93 years old, you haven't much time to waste.

It all started last year when Mrs. McHolm decided she'd publish some of her poems for a centennial project. Called Ripples on a Quiet Stream, the volume was published privately and Mrs. McHolm received so many requests for it that she had a second edition run off.

Encouraged by her success, Mrs. McHolm recently published a second volume, He, She, and "The Tatler." She says she has received requests from libraries across Canada for copies of the two volumes.

Mrs. McHolm usually writes her poems in short bursts. An early riser, she often starts a poem at 6 a.m. and finishes it by 9 a.m. Much of her work is flippant verse or nursery rhyme rewritten.

In He, She and "The Tatler" most of the verse is written from the viewpoint of a child.

Mrs. McHolm and her husband raised their four children in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and many of her poems reflect prairie life.

When her husband died 20 years ago, Mrs. McHolm moved to Port Hope to be near one of her sons. She continued her career as a poet, sending her poetry to countries around the world, including India and some parts of Africa. Her first poem was published in England when she was 11 years old.

Mrs. McHolm is a correspondent for two newspapers even today. She has found more time to write since she came to Port Hope. "I was too busy to write much when we lived in Manitoba and Saskatchewan," she says.

Mrs. McHolm is working on a third volume of Christmas verse which she hopes to complete for the 1968 Christmas season. She is enthusiastic about her new career. An active, vigorous woman, she has only one regret: "I wish I were only 70 again," she wrote wistfully to a friend.

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS A. BLAKE

St. John's United Church, Tweed, was the scene of the July wedding when Rev. Jay united in marriage Jean Irene Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wilson of R.R. No. 2, Halloway to Douglas Arnold Blake, son of Mr. Edna Blake of Tweed, and the late Harvey Blake. Fred Porter rendered the traditional wedding music; while the soloist for the ceremony was Miss Connie Blake.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length A-line gown of nylon sheer over satin. The floral patterned applique of Belgium lace blossoms on the skirt of the gown was also featured as complimentary trim on the scoop neck-line.

The sleeves of the gown were full length with lily points; while the train was of the same nylon sheer over satin, fastening from underneath the applique of the neckline of the gown, giving the train a trim of applique at the top, with the train falling full length to the floor. The shoulder length veil was of imported French tulle, four tiered set off with four sateen rosettes and crystal buds. She carried a bouquet of a dozen red roses.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Eva Adams, was attired in a pink floor length A-line gown of taffeta covered with organza and featuring a scoop neckline. The empire waistline had an applique of daisies and also long sheer sleeves, with a frill cuff with, matching daisies. Completing her gown was a short veil, complimented by a cluster of daisies set in a satin bow. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Elizabeth Walker and Miss Judy Blake wore dresses similar to that of the matron of honor, but in blue. All carried bouquets of white daisies.

Flower girl was Miss Margaret Wilson, who was attired the same as the bridesmaids, but in pink, with daisy trim. She carried a basket of white daisies.

Attending the bridegroom was Dennis Blake, while the ushers were Bruce Walker and Hugh Wilson.

The reception was held at the United Church parlor where the mother of the bride received the guests in a light blue brocade dress with matching jacket, complemented by white mums with blue trim. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom wore a white lace A-line style dress with three-quarter sleeves contrasted by a corsage of red roses.

For the wedding trip to points east, and the northern United States, the bride chose a straight yellow dress with white lace on the collar and long sleeves trimmed with lace. She wore a matching white hat, and a corsage of white mums trimmed with yellow.

Upon their return, the couple will reside in Tweed.

Mini-dress Reinstated by Pierre Cardin

PARIS (Reuters) — Pierre Cardin reinstated the mini-dress Friday with a collection of 200 creations ranging anywhere from four to eight inches above the knee.

Cardin's avant-garde silhouettes are extremely well made and there are enough new ideas and nonsense to please everyone.

His masterful technique appears to best advantage in a group of heavy tweed coats and thick, bulky woollens that are treated to sunray or accordian pleating.

Mini - dresses appear from morning until midnight, worn with thigh-high, shinlight vinyl or leather stocking boots for daytime, and matching-toned, sheer stockings for evening.

Cardin has a wild flirtation with vinyl throughout the collection, typified by the group of opening models with abbreviated mini-shifts and black or brown vinyl boots, long vinyl-gloves and halo bonnets tied under the chin, matching the vinyl hembands and belts.

Help Indian Girls

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hasaika Lodge is filling an important need for Indian girls who come here. Indian girls from 16 to 20, who are unable to find work or are taking training courses, can stay in the lodge for a minimum of $60 a month. Although the lodge now has only four full-time boarders, expansion is planned.

Food Facts and New "Bean" Ideas

Green beans fresh from the garden! Many people like them boiled and seasoned with salt, pepper and butter, but for variety, try these suggestions: cook with herbs or mushrooms; French the beans by cuting lengthwise and sprinkle with peanuts.

No matter how they are served, be sure to start with tender young beans of an even color. One guide to quality, say Home Economists at Macdonald Institute, University of Guelph, is a pod that snaps easily when broken. The pod should be straight, not withered or spotty.

The following recipe is one way to use up any leftover cooked green beans.

GREEN BEANS WITH ALMONDS

Arrange cooked and seasoned beans in a buttered casserole. Add a thin white sauce, and cover with blanched, slivered almonds. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 15 to 20 min., or until the almonds are browned. One pound of beans will serve four. FOOD FACTS

Picnics are one of summer's special delights. But play it safe, whether you have a cooler or not. The Home Economists at Macdonald Institute, University of Guelph, advise that you leave behind perishable desserts like pies, puddings, and cream dishes. Ontario-grown fresh fruit is readily available, easy to carry, and makes the perfect dessert just 'as is' at home or on a picnic.

Don't forget the little extras which put a finishing touch on a meal. Carrot or turnip sticks radish roses, and celery fans are an attractive addition to the table, and, say Home Economists at Macdonald Institute, University of Guelph, are a pleasant way of adding vitamins to the diet.

Make maximum use of the abundant fruits and vegetables in the food stores now. Freezing allows you to serve these same products to your family next winter. Food specialists at Macdonald Institute, University of Guelph, point out that only the best specimens should be frozen. Those at the peak of maturity will have the best flavor, texture and color.

WEDDING

BROWNSON — BEACHLI

St. James' United Church, Peterborough was the setting for the marriage on Saturday, July 20 at 2 p.m. when Margaret-Anne Beachli, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Beachli of Norland, Ontario, became the bride of Russell Cameron Brownson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Brownson of Madoc. Rev. Norman officiated at the ceremony and Mrs. King was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of peau de soie and lace. A matching material headdress adorned with rhinestones was caught to a flowing veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and golden shade garnet Sweetheart roses with trailing ivy.

The maid of honor, Miss Sharon Peel of Oshawa and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Linda Beachli, sister-in-law of the bride and Mrs. Elaine Devolin, sister of the bridegroom were dressed alike. All wore gowns of shimmering mauve peau de grenadine with lace bolcros with headdresses of daisies.

Allan Brownson of Actinolite attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were John Beachli, brother of the bride and Darrell Devolin, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

For the wedding reception at the Empress Hotel in Peterborough, the bride's mother wore an aqua crepe dress with chiffon coat in matching shade, while accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Wearing a turquoise linen dress with matching coat, white accessories and a corsage of white Sweetheart roses the bridegroom's mother assisted in the receiving line.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Brownson will reside at 319 Dublin Street, Peterborough.

Business of Theatre Management One of "Interruptions"—and Stars

TORONTO (CP) — If you're not an actor or a designer, but you're theatre smitten, be good at business, and you can keep as busy in the theatre as you want.

Anne Barr says that's been her experience, though no one told her about it. She found out by accident.

Miss Barr moved from Windsor, Ont., to London, England, and was working as staff advisor for a retail firm when she was offered a job as manager of the Drury Lane Theatre.

"Somebody offered me a business job, and it happened to be in the theatre. Had I not been oriented by interest and by having most of my friends in the theatre, I might not have been able to cope. Someone once remarked to me that it's a business of interruptions.

"And though I am in the business end, I have the utmost regard for the artistic. I'm still star-struck."

She says managing a theatre in England is a different proposition from a similar job in Canada.

"In England, a theatre is a piece of real estate. When you make up the accounts you add up income from the chocolates and tea, the 13 bars and last night's party, and right at the bottom, from the box office.

"It's almost a form of subsidized theatre, although you don't attract people to your 13 bars unless you have a hit.

"Here a business is just for the putting on of a production. I'm always amazed at businessmen looking at a building and leaving it empty most of the time."

Miss Barr, who came back to Canada five years ago, is manager of the Kawartha Festival Foundation which put on plays in an 80-year-old theatre saved from destruction by a committee of townspeople in Lindsay.

"It's the Academy Theatre. It was built in 1890-something and it's just lovely, in excellent condition. . . .

"I don't think a general manager has really existed in Canada before. What it actually means is business manager and public relations. I'll arrange contracts, order tickets and programs, hire staff other than performers. What I have to do with is getting people in and out of the theatre."

Miss Barr says she has had jobs to choose from in Canada. She has been commuting from Toronto to New York and Lindsay recently. She managed the Toronto production of Fortune and Men's Eyes and View from the Bridge. Fortune played in Montreal and has moved to New York.

In the fall she will be bringing an all-Negro production, Jericho, to Toronto for the same producer, Herbert Alpert of Toronto (not the band leader). Jericho has been playing off-Broadway.

In private life, Miss Barr is married to actor Paul Craig and mother of Jordan, 5.

WANTS TO BE A LAWYER — Pretty 17-year-old Ane Saplejs, Miss Teen Canada and runner-up in the recent Miss Teen International contest, wants to be a lawyer. Ane, a successful model, used to spend her spare time watching proceedings in magistrates' court. (CP Photo)

Teen Model Wants Career As A Lawyer

TORONTO (CP) — Miss Teen Canada, 17-year-old Ane Saplejs, has contract with her present success in the modelling field, she wants to be a lawyer.

She used to spend her spare time in magistrates' court, watching the proceedings. "It's marvellously interesting," she says.

"I don't know yet what branch of law I want to concentrate in. There's such a lot to learn. But I think there's a good deal of injustice in some of our laws."

Ane "just drifted into modelling" last year when her mother sent her to a charm school to cure her of her lonsboy ways.

Soon she was doing catalogue modelling and promotional work. One job took her to Jamaica for an exciting week-long working vacation.

Recently Ane placed a close second to Miss Australia in the Miss Teen International contest in Los Angeles.

Despite her poise, Ane retains some of the traits even a charm school couldn't cure. "I still have waterfights with the kids on the street, and I can play football with the best of them," she admits.

When dating, Ane prefers "swimming or skiing, or just a long walk somewhere."

Her most important thing is to be with someone you like who is fun to be with in a lot of people and up going to the movies all the time because they don't have anything to say to each other," she says.

Stanfield's Daughter Wed in Capital

OTTAWA (CP) — Sarah Stanfield, 26-year-old daughter of Conservative Leader and Mrs. Robert L. Stanfield, was married Friday to Edo Nyland, also 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Nylnd of Cornwall.

The afternoon ceremony took place at the chapel of Ashbury College here. A private reception followed at Stornoway, official residence of the Opposition leader.

Miss Stanfield is a graduate in arts of Dalhousie University at Halifax and of the school of library science, University of Toronto. She has worked as a children's librarian at Oakville, Cornwall and Halifax.

UCW Social

GLENORA — Social entertainment is to be provided at a raspberry and ice cream social to be held on Wednesday, July 31. The event, being sponsored by the Glenora United Church women, will bolster church funds. Mrs. Archie Snider, treasurer, said that the Country Gentlemen, the Friar Family, and children's games will be on hand. The show begins at 8 p.m.; admission is 50 cents, and children under 12, 25 cents.

Mr. Nyland was born in Haarlem, The Netherlands. He is completing his doctoral program in physics at the University of California, Los Angeles.

Barbara and Manja Nyland and Judy and Mike Stanfield attended the bride. Michael Berry of Ottawa was best man and Mac Stanfield, the bride's brother, was usher.

Miss Stanfield wore a pink A - line dress with matching coat, both trimmed in various shades of pink with a flower - covered rolled brim. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and trailing stephanotis.

Mrs. Stanfield wore a mint green coat - dress with shoes to match. Her flowered hat was softly draped in chiffon.

The honeymoon will be in Japan.

Ann Landers Visitor Is Glad To Be Going Home

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am returning to my native Europe after one year in America. Before I leave I am posting this letter of farewell with a few observations. Perhaps it will do you Americans good to know how you look in the eyes of a visitor.

American men are slobs. American women are the most vulgar, overdressed, over-bearing females on the face of the earth. Your children are insufferable. They are brash, undisciplined, and clearly in control of their parents.

Your newspapers are frightfully trashy. Your TV programs cater to the lowest common denominator. The commercials are gauche and unappetizing. Your radio programs assault the eardrums and are designed for idiots. Your motorists are 30 per cent suicidal and 20 per cent homicidal. Your once beautiful countryside is fast disappearing behind hideous billboards and orange and green neon signs.

America, which advertises itself as the most prosperous and progressive country in the world, is culturally bankrupt. The excellent plays do not survive. Opera is drawing its last breath. Your museums and art galleries are tombs of silence but the bowling alleys, go-go joints and bawdy clubs are crowded. Drunkenness is commonplace and homosexuals are accepted everywhere.

Now that I have seen America I can go back and tell my friends who long to go there that they should save their money. You have nothing worth seeing or listening to. — GLAD TO BE GOING HOME.

DEAR GLAD: Thank you for your farewell letter. Benjamin Franklin provided an appropriate response. He said:

"Our country offers to strangers nothing but a good climate, fertile soil, wholesome air (this was written 200 years ago), free government, wise laws, liberty, a good people to live among, and a hearty welcome. Those of other lands who have all these things or greater advantages at home do well to stay where they are."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Seven months ago our daughter (age 16) got herself into trouble with a 17-year-old boy. His parents said he could not marry Winifred unless she agreed to move into their home so the boy could finish high school.

Winnie had a miscarriage six weeks after the wedding. I was not surprised. She and her husband went bowling or roller skating almost every night and ate hot dogs and root beer for dinner. The day Winnie had her miscarriage they had spent several hours in the amusement park riding shoot-the-chutes and bump-the-cars.

Winnie quit high school in her junior year when she became pregnant. Her in-laws think she should go to work now and pay something toward their room and board. Her husband has one more year of high school. We say he should quit school and go to work and support his wife. What do you say? — OUTSIDERS NOW.

DEAR NOW: I say it's a mess. Neither one of them knows any more about marriage than a hog knows about Sunday. They should both stay in school and get diplomas.

In the meantime, I hope you haven't rented Winifred's room. I think she'll be home pretty soon.

Backward Heart Reversed

VANCOUVER CP- Doctors have fixed a reversed heart condition in four - year - old Joann Tomlinson's heart. The blood flow, reversed since birth because two major blood vessels in her heart were reversed, is still backward but is stronger than before. With the two operations bypassing the defect, Joann can now lead a normal, healthy life.

Successful Living

"Loving Kindness" Important Example in Living for Youth

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: After a discussion with some friends, regarding "Happy" letters, I and your answer, my husband and I thought we should back you up.

"Happy", you are far from the only man who feels as you do. You and Doris have broken the ice, and we feel for the good of our country and youth, it is about time more people spoke out on the importance of respect for law, marriage and sex, in its proper place. (As you say, the bedroom.)

We have both given long service in youth groups, and have all too often heard the phrase, "We don't see your kind of happiness in our home", or "I wish my parents would talk to me as you do to your kids."

In their youth my children had a habit of bringing their friends home and opening free discussions and we would try to come up with the right answers of good moral living.

We feel that we are neglecting our duty if we keep still. Someone has to get a little goodness across to our youth, so they can choose their own guidelines if the parents are too busy to care. For young people to see love and happiness in a home is to want it in their own lives later. — The Happy Gang.

Dear Gang: Your message does us all good. When loving-kindness is a way of life, it gets across to even the most sophisticated teen-ager.

* * *

Dear Doris: Why do you harp on communicating? If I could communicate, I thought there'd be no living with me.

When my wife starts in at me, "for my own good", I just walk out. If I didn't I'd blow my top. — The Silent Type.

DORIS CLARK

Dear Silent: Who said you should say everything that popped into your head? No point in reducing ourselves to raving hysteria.

But here is what one Public Relations firm says about the right kind of communicating:

"Communication is not used to inform. It is used to change behavior, attitude, and understanding of the people receiving the message. Set your objectives accordingly."

Let's learn from the experts.

* * *

Dear Doris: The minute I get excited my hands start dripping with perspiration. At a party I can't even bear to take a person's hand in a game, or when dancing. I'd rather not go. — Mortified.

Dear Mortified: Sweating palms are common; shouldn't turn you into a stay-at-home.

If your doctor says it's nervousness, and nothing else, try this: after each washing, rinse your hands with a solution of 1½ teaspoons of vinegar in 1½ ounces of alcohol. Or apply a good anti-perspirant two or three times a day.

Carry a dainty handkerchief to absorb any excess.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Joe: "What will your Dad say when you come home this late?"

John: "Oh, he'll be asleep. He doesn't care, just so he doesn't get any reports that I'm in trouble."

Son: "Why can't I stay out until 2? Tim's parents think it's O.K."

Dad: "I don't agree. It's much too late for a 16-year-old. When the dance is over, it's time to come home."

Even though he may protest, a young teen-ager knows that reasonable rules and boundaries are signs of concern for his welfare. He may even be grateful for your restrictions.

Summer Fruit Cake Practical Hostess Idea

By MARY MOORE

You came first in my reasoning for making another summer fruit cake. My guests who included Bess Furbey, Lincoln Women's Editor of the Victoria Times, ran a close second, and precluded a Lincoln, Ont., Victorian grandchildren.

Summer fruit cake can be made and frozen so is a great support to summer hostesses and cottagers. It was lovely, sliced thinly served with Ontario berries when Bess was in the East. It has a magnetic effect on my oldest grandson, Gary, who is drawn to it in the refrigerator until it is all gone. (In the first two weeks of July I was with them in Victoria and took one.)

The cake is based on the batter of the all-time popular Blond Florida Fruit Cake — but the pungent pecans have been omitted and replaced largely with raisins and coconut. Another welcome economy is that well drained canned pineapple tidbits replace the more expensive candied pineapple.

SUMMER FRUIT CAKE 1962

½ lb. butter
1 cup sugar
5 eggs
1 tbsp. vanilla
1 tbsp. lemon extract
1¼ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking powder
One 20-oz. can pineapple tidbits, drained and dried
1 lb. light California raisins (See below)
1-3 cup sliced red maraschino - cherries, drained and dried
1-3 cup sliced green maraschino - cherries, drained and dried
1 cup dericated coconut

Drain and pat dry the pineapple tidbits and sliced cherries. Pour boiling water over the raisins to plump them for 5 min. then drain and get dry. In large mixing bowl cream together butter and sugar until light then beat in eggs, one at a time. Add vanilla and lemon extract. Sift together the unsifted flour, salt and baking powder and add the drained and dried fruits and coconut to flour mixture to coat all with flour. Add to butter-sugar mixture, and blend. Prepare one large loaf pan or two small. (I wanted two cakes so I used two small loaf pans approximately 7 x 5 x 2¾".) Line pan or pans with double thickness of heavy wax paper and butter it. Turn in batter, smooth top. Bake at 250 deg. Fahr. with waterpan below cakes all during baking period. One large cake will require about 4½ to 5 hrs. or until pale gold on top. Two small cakes require about 4 hrs. baking until top turns pale gold.

Cool on cake racks leaving wax paper on. Store in plastic bags in refrigerator to ensure this slicing.

Kingston Brunette Pageant Winner

KINGSTON (CP) — Sandra Boucher, 21, a secretary at Queen's University, Kingston, was the southeastern Ontario beauty pageant Saturday.

Miss Boucher, a green-eyed brunette who measures 37-27-37, will represent the area in the Miss Canada pageant in Toronto in November. She is five feet 3½ inches tall and weighs 124 lbs.

Second was Mary Jane Chaplan, 20, a public school teacher from Kingston and third was Catherine Wilson, 18, from Belleville, an assistant at the summer school of arts in Kingston.

SACO Bantams Go Down-up-Down

The Belleville SACO Minors dropped their first game of the Eastern Softball Tournament to Scarborough at Norwood, then advanced to the "B" finals, only to lose to East Toronto Beaches in that title tilt.

In the opening contest of the tourney, the locals fell to the tourney champions 12-6 to put them in the "B" classification playoffs.

Then, in their first "B" game, Belleville topped Richmond Hill 10-4 to move into the championship tilt with the East Toronto Beaches.

The Toronto bantams took the title by downing the Belleville crew 8-5. Al Travis did the hurling for the locals, allowing eight runs on eight hits and one walk while fanning three. Barrett of Toronto allowed 11 hits and two walks while striking out five.

Top hitters for Belleville SACO were Bill Kirkham, Herbie Pointer, and Greg Scarlett with two singles each. David Dolan, John Sprackett, Jerry Mauclow, John Romano and Kenny Vos each had a single.

First baseman Liston of Toronto had a single and two homers, Nadeau had a brace of singles, and Trotman, Collias, and Johnston each singled for the Beaches.

Ellis Tops Golden Mile Parry Paces Beppi's

Minor Soccer League games this Saturday morning saw Ellis Printers edge Parry Sound banded Golden Mile team 6-0 in the PeeWees and Beppi's Pizza edge West End 1-0 in the Bantams.

J. Aitken of Ellis Printers was the hero of the PeeWee tilt as he collected the six goals for the winners. Golden Mile, short-handed because of vacations, took the field with their second-string team and just couldn't scrape up a goal.

Beppi's took the win behind Kevin Parry's goal, the only tally of the game. Parry kicked it in on a long, high shot from 30 yds. out in the first half.

To Your Good Health

Vegetables Needed to Supply Vitamins

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Our daughter, 30 months old, definitely refuses to eat vegetables in any form. All she wants is meat, pudding, desserts, cakes, cookies, ice cream candy and soft drinks. — P.

You — and the youngster — are in a predicament that both of you will have to work out of gradually.

These won't - eat - such - and-such quirks usually start because (a) the foods aren't offered as a matter of course with a child is old enough to start eating them; or (b) because a child notes, and copies, the attitude of someone else, or (c) the food, whatever it is, is not strained or chopped up fine enough at first.

Since your youngster eats meat, that last possibility probably is not involved in this case.

You are fortunate that she eats meat since this provides protein, vital for a strong, healthy body.

Other than that, the diet is heavily overloaded with sugars and carbohydrates, and woefully lacking in minerals and vitamins.

You did not mention fruit and milk. Fruit would help to some extent, although it can't make up for all the things she is lacking. She gets some milk equivalent from puddings and ice cream, but probably not enough.

Milk, being rich in calcium, is of great value in strong bone and tooth formation, in addition to its other values.

Lack of vegetables not only robs her of vitamins and minerals but also means lack of bulk in her diet. This causes constipation. If she eats fruits, that will make up for some of the bulk but cannot make up for some of the other nutrients.

I have no doubt that you will have to exercise patience, firmness and perhaps a little strategy to get this child onto a proper balanced diet, but it can be done — and must be done.

I would omit the soft drinks entirely, substituting milk and fruit or vegetable juices. She'll doubtless put up a howl but if she can't get pop, she'll drink what she can get. (But don't let her see any pop; better yet, don't have it in the house.)

The same thing will apply to vegetables. If she has a balanced diet of meat and vegetables put before her, it won't take her very long to be hungry enough to eat them.

But keep all desserts and sweets out of sight; if she knows they are waiting for her she'll gradually lose interest. If children do in such a situation; stall, look pitiful, weep and see whose patience lasts longest. If you give in, you're the one she'll suffer eventually.

The excess of starches and sweets will make her fat with-out providing strength and health, and you will have to be arbitrary about cutting down on these. No desserts unless she eats her other foods first.

If you don't establish a better food pattern for her now, she may have a warped appetite all her life.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our son who is 15 takes track and runs nine miles a day. My aunt said she read that fellows who do a lot of running have enlarged hearts, and usually live only to 45 years. Can you tell me more about this? — Mrs. A. W.

I can tell you one thing more about it: it isn't true.

Dear Dr. Molner: My father is 68 and had a heart attack. Now about twice a week his nose bleeds. Could this be connected? — Mrs. H. S.

If he is taking an anti-coagulant (blood thinner) drug, it could cause nose bleeds if the dosage is too high for him. Or without the drugs, such bleeding can occur if his pressure is high. Otherwise the bleeding and heart attack are not related.

Belleville Archers Take Six Titles

The Belleville Archery club had six members win their respective events Sunday at the Napanee Valley Shoot in Picton.

Leola Doxtator shot a 430 to take the overall title in the Women's Free Style while her husband, Bernie Doxtator shot a 490 for the Men's title in the same event.

Thelma Barnes collected the Women's Instinctive title with a 102 while Belleville's Roger Godin won the Men's Instinctive with a 290 score.

On August 18, archery clubs in the Belleville area will present a demonstration of their sport on the Picton Armory lawn. The public is invited.

North Americans at Odds

Pope's Encyclical Fails to Engender 100 Per Cent Support

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

North Americans have reacted with mixed feelings to Pope Paul's encyclical against birth control.

In Boston, Dr. Hudson Hoagland, a colleague of the late Dr. Gregory Pincus, who perfected the contraceptive pill, said:

"The world population problems is a serious social disease which threatens great tragedy throughout the world due to massive starvation caused by uncontrolled birth rates."

In Toronto, Archbishop Philip Pocock of Toronto said:

"To the encyclical of the Pope on birth regulation I give my complete assent. It is the utmost importance that anyone undertaking to comment on the encyclical letter should first read the text in its entirety."

Pope Paul, in his long-awaited pronouncement Monday, rejected the pill and all other artificial contraceptive devices. He backed his injunction with an appeal to leaders of civil governments everywhere to outlaw contraception, sterilization and abortion as means of limiting population.

Some critics predicted the world's 500,000,000 Roman Catholics would follow their own consciences and continue to use the pill if already doing so.

Mrs. George Cadbury, past president of the Planned Parenthood League of Toronto, said:

"It will cause them (Roman Catholics) much grief. Good Catholic couples have problems that the celibate clergy don't have."

She said many have been disobeying the ban, hoping for retroactive forgiveness if policy changed.

"This will make couples very unhappy and will destroy the harmony of the sex relationship for some. This is really depressing news but it won't hold back birth control."

Dr. Frank Fidler, secretary of the United Church of Canada's committee on family life and president of the Family Planning Association of Canada, described the decree as "incredible."

"It will be tragic if this statement frustrates people who are in need of family planning."

C. J. McKay, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, said:

"Personally, I think the Pope's decision is a backward step. I had hoped he would have introduced some less stringent rules."

In Los Angeles, James Francis Cardinal McIntyre called the Pope's decision "refreshing in an age grown confused by the changing and subjective theories of situational ethics and morality."

Hugh Moore, chairman of the U.S. Association for Voluntary Sterilization Inc., said the Pope's statement: "could result in the death of millions of people by starvation in the years ahead."

In New York, evangelist Billy Graham said:

"In general, I would disagree with it. Anyone who travels has seen the population explosion around the world and could see we need some form of birth control."

A spokesman for Archbishop Terence Cooke of New York said the encyclical would require the assent of all Roman Catholics.

Bishop G. Edward Carter of London, Ont., called the ban "a test of faith for many Catholics."

Rev. Bernard Mahoney of St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto, said the Pope is calling married Catholics to a life "of heroic sanctity and heroic sacrifice." It could mean "a great spiritual revival for the whole church."

But John C. Wilson, advertising director for Saturday Night magazine and a Catholic layman, called the encyclical a mistake.

"It disregards everything we've come to learn about human nature and inter-personal relationships."

Birth Control Ruling Doesn't Close Door On Relaxation of Contraception Ban

VATICAN CITY (CP) — Liberal Roman Catholics reacted with dismay today at Pope Paul's uncompromising pronouncement Monday on birth control.

Liberal Catholic theologians are unlikely to give up the fight to obtain a relaxation of the rigid ban on contraception.

Rt. Rev. Fernando Lambruschini, a prominent Vatican theologian who introduced the encyclical Monday, made it clear that while the papal ruling must be obeyed it does not close the door completely to a future relaxation.

The Rome independent daily Il Messaggero, which often reflects the thinking of the church - orientated Christian Democrat party, prints a generally moderate editorial on the encyclical today with a warning to the church.

"The encyclical probably reflects the theological opinion of a minority," it says. "The problems that the world faces under population pressures cannot be entrusted to the intelligence of single men, nor to calculation by natural rhythms regarding the reproductive system."

One test of Italian Catholic faith may come when a bill to make the birth control pill available to women for the first time is introduced into Parliament in the fall.

The Italian penal code prevents the sale of contraceptives, but in December the Roman Catholic news agency said 6,-000,000 boxes of pills were sold in the country in 1966.

POPE PAUL VI

Fiercest reaction so far has come from The Netherlands, where clergy said the question remained completely open.

In a statement released in Rotterdam, Msgr. C. Ruygers, vicar-general of the bishopric of Breda, and Msgr. J. A. Van Laarhoven, vicar-general of the bishopric of Den Bosch, said the encyclical was not to be regarded as an infallible pronouncement.

"The Pope's encyclical is not the language that people expected. It appeals to a very high ideal but is too remote from the daily life of Catholics."

Archbishop Casimiro Morcillo of Madrid, however, expressed support for the encyclical and told a news conference that employers must increase the wages of workers with large families.

Gerald Fitzgerald, a Catholic layman and official of the Christian Family Movement, said in New York: "I suspect that Pope Paul and a lot of church authorities are going to be surprised by the lack of concern caused by the encyclical."

Commonweal, a liberal U.S. weekly journal edited by Catholics, says in an editorial for publication this week: "For millions of lay people, the birth control question has been confronted, prayed over and settled —and not in the direction of the Pope's encyclical."

Drug companies dealing in birth control methods were not markedly affected by the decree in dealings on the New York stock market. But the entire market, including drug stocks, fell fractionally.

UK: Setback for Unity

LONDON (AP) — The Pope's ban on birth control for Roman Catholics created wide debate in Britain today. Many commentators saw it as certain to impose a heavy strain on Catholics, and likely to set back the cause of Christian unity.

Bishops of the worldwide Anglican communion, in London for their church conference, privately expressed fears that the ruling would harm closer relations with the Roman Catholic Church.

Catholic authorities immediately felt in line behind the pronouncement. But some prominent laymen issued forthright criticism. About one in 10 of Britain's 50,000,000 population are Roman Catholics.

Norman St. John Stevas, Conservative member of Parliament, condemned the Pope's statement as "extreme, partial and inadequate," and said it would create more problems than it could solve.

He added: "I have been a Roman Catholic all my life, I have never entered a word of criticism before. But I would be failing in my duty to fellow Catholics and to people in Britain if I concealed my opinion."

Desmond Albrow, editor of The Catholic Herald, forecast the Pope's decision would cause many people to leave the church in a crisis of conscience. But he described the likely effect as tremors rather than an earthquake.

The decision was headline news in all major British newspapers. "Pope's Decision Brings Church to Brink of Rebellion," is the headline on The Guardian, over a story saying the ban faces the Catholic Church with its gravest crisis of modern times.

"Shattering Verdict by the Pope," says The Sun. "World-wide Catholic Anger," says The Daily Mail.

The Daily Telegraph says: "It would be scarcely possible to exaggerate the damage which has been done in the past 24 hours to the cause of church unity."

Local Catholics Cautious

Local Roman Catholic spokesmen responded cautiously today to the Pope's pronouncement against artificial birth control.

Clerical and lay leaders of Belleville's Catholic community were guarded in their comments, the secular spokesman sharing a common response to queries:

They prefer to wait until they have read the encyclical in its entirety.

Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, pastor of St. Michael's — the oldest Catholic parish — said he was "really in no position to comment."

However, he said the encyclical would be the theme of a sermon in the near future.

(Other leading clerics were not available for reaction. Rev. Reginald Sweeney, Holy Rosary parish is on vacation while Rt. Rev. J. A. Carley, St. Joseph's was out of town.)

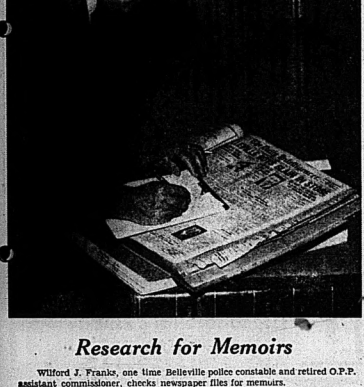
Mrs. Joseph Whalen, president of St. Michael's Catholic Women's League, confessed she was not surprised by the encyclical.

There was a similar reaction from Mrs. Gerald McEvoy, Holy Rosary CWL president.

"I wasn't surprised," she said. "It has always been our teaching and I think it will stay that way."

She supposed "there would be some" Catholics disappointed, but believed any reaction should await arrival of official encyclical documents in the parishes.

Mrs. Harry Carr-Brazil, president of St. Joseph's CWL also believed the issue "too controversial to just make a statement off-hand."



Dr. J. B. McSherry, city physician and himself a Catholic, pondered whether he and other local Catholic doctors, should issue a statement.

For the moment, however, he preferred to wait and read the complete encyclical.

A Belleville obstetrician also said he wanted to see what the Pope "really meant" before making public comment.

Retired Provincial Police Officer Recalls Investigation Into 1925 Double Murder

ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A one time constable on the Belleville Police Force who rose from his beat on the street to become assistant commissioner of the Ontario Provincial Police is going to write his memoirs.

Wilford J. Franks retired five years ago as assistant O.P.P. commissioner in charge of the criminal investigation department.

In his memoirs, the former O.P.P. department head will recall a double murder which took place back in 1925 when he was still a constable on the local police force.

"I was just a rookie constable at the time," recalls Mr. Franks. "It was my first murder case."

Mr. Franks, now living in the Toronto area, was in the city yesterday going over local newspaper files reporting the 1925 Belleville murder which saw two young men, John McGie, 23, and Clayton McWilliams, 25, shot down in Latimer's Drug Store on Front Street.

The gun wielder was David Arthur Moon, 35, a Canadian Bank of Commerce bank messenger who was later arrested in his apartment over the bank.

The then Constable Franks stood guard at a side window of the bank building while other officers went to the apartment to arrest Moon who gave himself up without offering resistance.

Moon was charged with the double murder and at the Spring Assizes in March 1926 was convicted on a reduced charge of manslaughter. He was given life imprisonment.

But Constable Franks was not to remain long on the Belleville police force.

The former farm boy from the Millbridge area in Centre Hastings quit the force in 1926 to join the Ontario Provincial Police. As OPP Constable he served in Northern Ontario, and in Eastern Ontario centres ranging from Kingston to Ottawa until 1940 when he was transferred to the Criminal Investigation Department in Toronto.

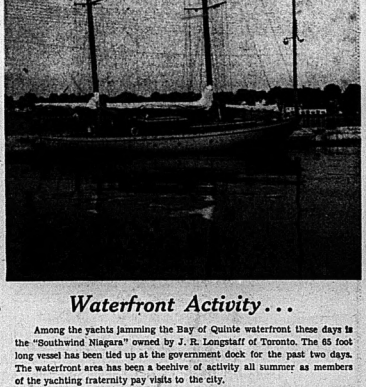
The next year he was promoted to CIB Inspector and in 1953 was made chief inspector of that department.

In 1958 he was made assistant commissioner in charge of the CIB, a role which he held until his retirement in 1963 at the age of 60.

He now lives in Toronto's suburban Don Mills where he augments his retirement pension as sales representative for a district lumber company.

During his more than 39 years in police work, Mr. Franks took part in the investigation of many murder cases across Ontario.

But the double Belleville murder, and others at Lindsay and Cornwall while he was still a young OPP constable, stand out most vividly in his memory.



Most of the material for his memoirs is available from provincial police files but such is not the case for the Belleville murder back in 1925. That was before the OPP had a criminal investigation department which now assists local police in major crime cases.

While in Belleville Mr. Franks renewed old acquaintances and recalled former local police officials such as the late Police Chief Alexander Kidd, Sgt. J. Truaisch, later to become police chief at Kingston, Sgt. Booth and others.

Mr. Franks expects to complete the necessary research in less than a year following which he will get down to the serious business of writing his memoirs.

Waterfront Activity . . .

Among the yachts jamming the Bay of Quinte waterfront these days is the "Southwind Niagara" owned by J. R. Longstaff of Toronto. The 65 foot long vessel has been tied up at the government dock for the past two days. The waterfront area has been a beehive of activity all summer as members of the yachting fraternity pay visits to the city.

Western Pros in Battle for Berths

TORONTO (CP) — Five western golfers are waging a fight battle for the eight remaining berths in the Canadian professional tour championship at Woodbridge, Ont., in September.

The 12 leading Canadian pros, including championship winners, at the end of the nine-tournament tour will qualify for berths in the winding event Sept. 13-15.

Wilf Homeniuk of Winnipeg, Alvie Thompson of Toronto, Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont. and Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver have already qualified by winning tour championships.

Three more tournaments remain, and Bill Wasdell of Victoria leads the list of non-winning professionals with 62.75 points.

After him are Bob Cox, Jr., Vancouver, 51.25 points; Len Harvey, Regina, 49; Vaughan Trapp, Victoria, 39.5; Stan Homeniuk, Dauphin, Man., 35; John Herrick, Montreal, 33.75; Bill Wright Jr., Edmonton and Jerry Magee, Toronto tied with 33, Bob Breen of Woodbridge, 31.75 and Dave Clayton, Toronto 30.5.

Norman, winner of the Saskatchewan Open, is the most successful professional on the tour.

Win in Pt. Anne

Cheesemen Jam Into Second Again

The Commercial Softball league moved into the home stretch Monday night with Black Diamond downing Point Anne 3-2 to create a three - way tie for the loop's second spot.

The win puts the Cheesemen at 22 points, tying them with Slinsons and City Hotel who each have a game in hand over the Black Diamond crew.

Monday night's game was the 20th for both the Cementmen and Black Diamond with all the other teams in the league having played 19 of their 25 - game schedules.

Denny Holoway did the rubber honors for the Cheesemen, allowing two runs on four hits and two walks while fanning five.

Jim Hunter pitched the first six for the Cementmen. He allowed threes tallies on nine hits, walked one, and struck out three. Ray Summers took over in the seventh.

A triple play by the Point Anne crew in the fourth helped keep the game close, ending a two - run rally by the Cheesemen.

Top hitters for the winners were Jack Francis and Dwight Rathwell with a double and single each. Martin Walsh connected in the fourth for a two - bagger.

Point Anne got singles from Gerry Mather, Jim Horwood, Larry Fraser and Rick Rosebush.

Montreal's on-again, off-again major league, baseball aspirations seem to be registering on the positive side of the metre . . . today, at least.

Backers for the proposed 1969 National League entry from Expoville seemed ready to bail out last week when two in their ranks withdrew their investment.

But Charles Bronfman, man in the middle of the athletic-financial conundrum, is breathing with a little more optimism of late.

Mr. Bronfman says he has found the lacking investment required to make up the estimated $10,000,000 for the franchise, players, and initial operating costs.

The city of the proposed 11th National League entry is also being asked to do their fair share in the enterprise, being the proud possessors of the ultramodern, "Autodafe."

Bronfman and Co. want the guaranteed use of the current home of the Montreal Alouettes, with a dome for "fair-weather" baseball.

Whatever the outcome, we're sure, if it's in Montreal, the new business will reward its shareholders.

Montrealers have made their city a Mecca for Canadians who "know where it's at," what with their "impossible" fairs, "illegal" non-raffles, and other excitable successes.

We've got some advice for the Bronfman Beagles, or whatever they intend to call their fledgling bunch of ball-hawks:

Sign Mayor Jean Drapeau as publicity director.

Put him in complete control of all promotion — let him sell programs on St. Catherine St. if he wants — but just give him free rein.

In one year, you'll have a pennant-winner; it shouldn't take any longer than two for a World Series title; and in three — who can tell — he'd probably have Toronto mayor Bill Dennison scalping tickets for him on Yonge Street!

Day gave up six Motormen hits in registering the win, striking out six and not walking a batter. P. Boomhower yielded nine safeties on the losers' dish, walking 10 and fanning five.

Pacing the Combines at the plate was Marshall, with three hits. Schwager collected a pair of safeties, with others contributed by Day, Conway, Scarieder, and Crawford.

Printers Press On

The Intelligencer clinched a first-place finish in the Departmental Softball League standings last night with a pair of wins — one of which came on a silver platter.

Hurlers John Edwards and Ron Culloden combined to set down the Post Office entry 9-8 in a cliff-hanger at the C.N.R.A.A. field. The Printer pitching duo were touched for safeties by the Posties' Gord St. Louis (two singles), Reid (double), and Bohan and Lusk, (a single each.)

Bruce Nickle went the seven-inning route on the Posties' slab.

A 12-hit inlell attack was led by third-baseman Ron Bennett, who added a pair of clutch singles to a long left-field home run. Steve Ling contributed a double and single, while Merv Thompson connected for a two-bagger.

The Printers also learned they had won a postponed game by default from the Police Department entry, who have announced they are withdrawing from the league. All teams having postponed games, or future games in the schedule with the Policemen will collect a pair of automatic points for each tilt.

In last night's other league game, the CN Combines vaulted past the Postmen into second spot in the Departmental standings, downing the faltering Electric Motors squad 10-7.

A Canadian Influence

Vast Sport Valley Will Border River Lee

LONDON (CP) — A vast valley of sport 23 miles long costing $91,000,000 is being launched along the River Lee, and some ideas picked up in Canada will help it along.

The 15-year development will bring recreation facilities —not only straight sports but all the way to beer gardens— to a region extending from rural Hertfordshire down into the heart of teeming London.

Facilities will be provided for 68 sports running through the alphabet from angling to yachting on several wide reaches used as reservoirs for London's millions.

The project is being launched by the Greater London Council through the Lee Valley Regional Park Authority. The authority's chief adviser on sports is Ron Pickering, 28, a Briton who has been a sports coach in Canada and developed a fondness for its system of national and regional parks.

"Of course, we don't have the natural grandeur of the Canadian outdoors," he said in an interview, "but we're trying to borrow what we can from the Canadian park concept in preserving the rural areas along the scheme."

Pickering coached track and field under Geoff Dyson when that fellow became national coach for the Royal Canadian Legion in 1962. He has also coached at several Canadian universities. In August he will teach at Dyson's national track and field clinic at the University of Guelph, Guelph, Ont.

Pickering will draw on his Canadian observations in laying out two ski courses. Because there's not much rise to the land, they will be bulldozed out artificially. A number of rinks also are planned.

"They're basically for family skating," he said, "but we'll have hockey if we find it's viable. Anyway, we'll try to have them built big enough for hockey."

As well as providing leisure-time recreation for all, Pickering thinks the area will be useful for spotting and developing potential ta'ent for the Olympic and Commonwealth games and European competitions.

"We're going to have facilities for training athletes right from novice to the expert," he said. Eventually, some of the establishment might be used for international meets here.

The undertaking is the first of its kind in England and is perhaps not quite comparable to anything in the world, though Pickering said in some aspects it resembles West Germany's 15-year "Golden Plan"—an even more ambitious venture costing about $1,000,000,000.

The first major section to be tackled—in the summer of next year—will be the Enfield area on the northeast flank of London.

A three-year plan calls for a rink, squash courts, golf courses, 12 acres of all-weather cricket pitches, bowling alleys, swimming pools, running track, rifle and archery ranges and the inevitable bar.

One incidental byproduct of the scheme may be a final settlement of a generations-long controversy over the name of the river involved. Britons are split over Lee and Lea, and it turns up either way in maps and reference books. The authority has come down firmly on the side of Lee.

The one designated map substitute for any player who takes the field. From there on, the player who is replaced is out of the game.

It could have its perils—if a coach designates the back-up quarterback and then sends him in place of the regular pivot, the team could find itself shy a quarterback should the replacement be injured.

In the closing minutes of the game the clock will stop on incomplete passes or passes on which the receiver is able to step out of bounds, resuming with the snap of the ball.

Officials now will carry these same number throughout the year so fans will know at all times upon when they are venting their spleen.

For the first time, all officials will carry whistles and any one of the five will be allowed to call offside penalties. On such a call there will be no option—the five-yard penalty must be assessed. CFL leaders say this will prevent such heartbreak as having to call back a long touchdown pass because someone moved early.

Some of the top crowd-pleasers of the last few years will be missing from the rosters this season.

Former Indian Reliever Throws No-Hitter for Reds

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now George Culver knows how to act.

"I really got nervous in the seventh," the Cincinnati Reds pitcher said Monday night.

"I'd never even come close to pitching a no-hitter before in my life. I didn't know how to act."

Two innings later, the former relief specialist had a 6-.1 no-hit victory over Philadelphia Phillies and he was acting completely normal under the circumstances.

"Actually after the game I was crying," he said. "Winning is important, but doing it by pitching a no-hitter, that's the greatest."

Culver's gem gave Cincinnati a sweep of the twi-night doubleheader—the Reds winning the first game 7-6.

St. Louis Cardinals beat New York Mets 5-1. Pittsburgh Pirates edged Atlanta Braves 3-2. Houston Astros blanked Los Angeles Dodgers 2-0 and San Francisco Giants topped Chicago Cubs 4-3 in other National League action.

Culver, who worked out of the Cleveland bullpen last year and was obtained by the Reds in a winter trade, ran his record to 9-9 with his third complete game of the season.

The Phillies put seven men on bases—five on walks, one on an error and one on a catcher's interference—against the young right-hander who struck out three.

Philadelphia's run was unearned and came in the second. Richie Allen reached first when third baseman Tony Perez booted his grounder, and continued to second when shortstop Woody Woodward picked up the loose ball and threw wildly. Allen advanced to third on a ground out and scored on Cookie Rojas' sacrifice fly.

Cincinnati scored three runs in each of the third and fourth innings. Pete Rose started both rallies with singles.

The Reds took the opener when Rose tripled in the ninth and scored on Vada Pinson's sacrifice fly. Rose then saved the game by throwing out Allen, who tried to score from second on Don Callison's two-out single.

Philadelphia had tied the game at 6-6 in the eighth on a solo homer by Allen and Don Lock's two-run shot.

St. Louis' Ray Washburn boosted his record to 10-3 with his seventh straight victory, a one-hit, eight strikeout, no-walk performance against the Mets. He hasn't lost since May 21.

Lou Brock, who scored once and drove in two runs, broke a 1-1 tie for the Cardinals in the eighth with a sacrifice fly.

Pittsburgh earned its victory over Atlanta on a homer by Bill Mazeroski. Donn Clendenon's sacrifice fly and a single by Roberto Clemente.

Mike Cuellar drove in the first run with a squeeze bunt and pitched a four-hitter in Houston's victory over Los Angeles. First baseman Ken Boyer of Los Angeles was taken to a hospital for x-rays after being involved in a collision at first with Houston's Bob Watson.

"Toast"-ed Way To Pitching Gem

"I had an upset stomach and had nothing to eat all day but some eggs and toast," said the 25-year-old Cincinnati Reds pitcher after he beat the Phils 6-1 in the second game of a twinight doubleheader.

"And I had an ingrown toenail that hurt, so I had to get a shot of Novocaine before I went out on my shoe to go out and warm up," the 6-foot-2 right-hander confided as he accepted congratulations for the third no-hitter in the majors this season, and the first in the National League.

Culver elevated his record at 9-9 and completed only his third game of the season, didn't even come to the ball park with the team for the first game he felt so poorly.

"I didn't want to sit around in the dugout so I came out later in a taxi," he said. "I tried to eat dinner about 4:30 but I just couldn't."

Culver allowed five walks and struck out three as he joined a select club of seven Cincinnati pitchers who tossed no-hitters which includes Johnny Vander Meer, Ewell Blackwell, and Jim Maloney.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — African proposals to replace the International Olympic Committee will lead to the "break" up of the Olympic movement, Frank Braun, South African Olympic and National Games Association president, said Monday. The United States and Britain are not going to be dictated to by little countries. In the end, the movement will be split and, will break up," said Braun. He was commenting on reports that Kenya, Uganda, Sudan, Egypt and Ethiopia were pressing for a new Olympic body representing all countries with Olympic committees. The present IOC is the selecting body whose members serve for life.

LOS ANGELES (CP) — The trial of former coach Toe Blake and winger Claude Provost of Montreal Canadiens, on charges that they assaulted a fan at a National Hockey League game last fall, has been postponed until today. Blake, 55, and Provost, 34, had been scheduled to appear Monday in Superior Court. Blake and Provost are accused of hitting Bernard Welsman, 29, of Northridge, Calif., Nov. 19 during a game between the Canadiens and Los Angeles Kings.

Tigers Lose Battle... But Gain In Standings War

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Yankees caught Detroit napping Monday night and roughed up the front-running Tigers 7-2 behind unrung right-handers Joe Verbanic and Lindy McDaniel.

But instead of losing ground to the pursuing Baltimore Orioles and Cleveland Indians, the Tigers stumbled forward another half step toward their first American League pennant in 23 years.

Boston Red Sox took the edge off Detroit's setback by sweeping a day-night doubleheader from Baltimore 3-2, in 10 innings, and 8-3 while last-place Washington upended Cleveland 4-2.

As a result, the Orioles and Indians each trail the Tigers by seven games and the Red Sox are 8½ boggths back.

Elsewhere California Angels edged Minnesota Twins 3-1, ending a five-game losing string, and Chicago White Sox struck for five runs in the 13th inning and a 7-2 victory over Oakland Athletics.

Verbanic, a Yankee reliever making one of his infrequent starts, pitched out of several early jams at Detroit before giving way to McDaniel in the sixth and squared his pitching mark at 4-4.

McDaniel, picked up in a recent inter-league deal with San Francisco, allowed only one hit —Norm Cash's solo homer in the seventh—over the final 3 2-3 innings.

Joe Pepitone's two-run single in the fifth broke a 1-1 tie and the Yanks pulled away on two-run homers by Jake Gibbs and Roy White.

Successive 10th inning doubles by Jose Tartabull and Mike Andrews snapped a 2-2 deadlock in the afternoon game at Boston, giving Ray Culp a hard-earned pitching verdict over Baltimore reliever Moe Drabowsky. Culp, 7-4, struck out 12 in going the distance.

Andrews and Joe Joy homered in the nightcap and Carl Yastrzemski slammed out three doubles as the Red Sox breezed behind relievedand Juan Pizarro. The veteran southpaw, 3-2, survived bases-empty homers by Boog Powell, Paul Blair and Dave Johnson.

Ron Hansen clubbed a tie-breaking homer in the sixth inning and Frank Howard unloaded his 29th homer in the seventh when the Senators surprised Cleveland behind right-hander Jim Hannan.

Sammy Ellis stopped Minnesota on four hits and scored the deciding run while finishing one up on the Twins' Dean Chance in a baseball exchange. Ellis hit Chance with a pitch in the top of the fifth and Chance nicked Don Mincher in the bottom of the inning. Chance then plunked Ellis in the sixth and the Angels' pitcher moved around to score the tie-breaking run on Roger Repoz' single.

Triples by Tom McCraw and Tommy Davis, a double by Tim Cullen and pitcher Wilbur Wood's two-run single keyed the White Sox' 13th inning awakening after Luis Aparicio's fourth hit in the game opened the gates. Aparicio drove in Chicago's first two runs with a single and triple.

Stamps Standing Pat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders, who finished first last season in the Western Football Conference, enter the 1968 season tonight with only minor changes in first-string players.

With other clubs shuffling, the Stamps are thus closer to holding a pat hand than any other club in the west.

Coach Jerry Williams has expressed interest in developing a solid ground attack to go with the club's spectacular passing game, but in four pre-season exhibitions, the club stayed by the pass for a record of three wins and a tie.

The big weapon was Peter Liske passing to Terry Evanshen, the weapon that brought the Stamps home in front last season.

It is likely to be the big weapon again tonight when the Stamps take on Saskatchewan Roughriders in Calgary.

In the other season opener, British Columbia Lions visit Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The eastern season opens Wednesday with the first interlocking game of the year, Edmonton Eskimos in Montreal to tangle with the Alouettes. That one will be televised by CTV starting at 8 p.m. EDT.

The most noticeable change in the Stampeder club will be the absence of fullback Lovell Coleman, who went to Ottawa Rough Riders in the season trade.

Coleman, once the leading ground-gainer in the west, and once named outstanding player in the league, was used last year mostly as a secondary receiver, a safety valve in case the primary receiver failed to break into the open.

He'll be replaced in the offensive backfield by Ted Woods, who has been out most of two seasons with injuries.

Evanshen suffered a broken leg during the playoffs last year, an injury that was largely responsible for the failure of the Stamps to win a Grey Cup berth. But he has been effective during the exhibition schedule, indicating the leg has completely healed.

Ron Roughriders, by contrast, have done a lot of juggling since defensive guard Jack Abendschein to the National Football League, and the retirement of passcatching ends Hugh Campbell. The Riders also lost halfback Ed Buchanan in a trade, and defensive end Garner Ekstran who retired.

But Ron Lancaster is back at quarterback and George Reed at fullback ang few teams would need much more.

The Lions and the Bombers both will go with new quarterbacks since Bernie Faloney and Kenny Ploen retired.

John Schneider from the University of Toledo will start at quarterback for the Bombers and Pete Ohler will start for the Lions.

Whether the Lions nor Bombers were impressive in pre-season play, The Bombers lost all four and the Lions lost three before whipping Toronto Argonauts.

Decision "Contemptible"

Aberfan Protests Use of Disaster Fund for Tip Removal

LONDON (CP) — Controversy about slag tips that brought death in Aberfan threatens to persist despite a government decision under pressure to have six hills of coal-mine waste removed.

Stephen Davies, Labor member of Parliament for the Welsh district that includes Aberfan, has criticized the government for requiring a contribution toward tip removal from the Aberfan disaster fund.

The fund was raised by contributions from around the world after the 1966 tip-slide. It killed 144 villagers including 116 children.

George Thomas, secretary of state for Wales, said in announcing the removal decision last Friday night "there is no longer any physical threat to the safety of the village."

However, the government had decided to "accept the representations concerning the fear that still troubles the villagers."

The Aberfan disaster fund would be required to provide £250,000, the government up to £400,000, and the National Coal Board up to £350,000 of the maximum of £1,000,000 (about $2,600,000) to be spent on tip removal.

While the government's decision to reverse its policy was hailed thankfully in Aberfan, Stephen Davies described the requirement for a contribution from the disaster fund as "contemptible."

Contributions to the fund amounted to more than £1,750,000. The balance after payments to survivors and village rehabilitation projects, plus accrued interest, amounts to about £1,000,000.

The coal board already has spent £700,000 draining and landscaping some of the Aberfan tips. Two have been left untouched because of underground burning.

The board spokesman said plans for tip removal put forth by Newfoundland-born Larry Ryan, 53, a specialist in coal recovery from tips, are unlikely to be accepted in their present form.

Ryan, 53, a native of Port Saunders, Nfld., offered before last week's government announcement to remove the tips completely at a cost of £1,-250,000 or have them away piecemeal while recovering coal for £600,000—if he could keep the coal for private sale.

The board spokesman said Monday the main objection to Ryan's proposals was that the process of separating old coal from waste by washing might be hazardous for the village below, and in any case would take much longer than complete removal.

The spokesman also said Ryan's cost estimates made no allowances for drainage, landscaping after removal or for a place to put the tip waste after removal.

Teachers Bored: Students

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Most professors at the University of Western Ontario are "pretty bored with teaching," say the students.

Most show up as competent "but not too stimulating," Wynton Semple, academic affairs commissioner of UWO's students' council, said Monday in summing up student evaluation of Western's professors.

The evaluation of professors at first-year courses is a project of the students' council compiled from questionnaires which Western students were asked to complete this spring.

In evaluating courses, Mr. Semple said, "most students felt the courses are too long, too hard and are not related to the real world."

He said the main purpose of the evaluation is to give the students the feeling he is engaged in education on an equal basis with professors.

"After all, professors evaluate students."

Recognize China Now Chester Ronning Asks

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP) — A retired Canadian foreign affairs diplomat called Monday for immediate recognition of the Peking government and a seat for China on the United Nations security council.

Chester Ronning, who was in China during the 1949 Communist revolution, said the time is favorable for Canada to recognize Peking because the American view of China is changing.

Speaking to the third session of the Couchiching conference in this resort area near Orillia, Mr. Ronning said Canadian policy should attempt to strengthen the UN so it could settle power conflicts.

He said recognition by Canada of Peking would not produce immediate or spectacular results because "we have delayed too long a decision we should have reached on Oct. 1, 1949."

Canada had initially planned to exchange diplomats with Peking, he said, but "the Korean war and other factors I can't mention forestalled."

"The UN is still guilty of keeping on its books a resolution that brands China the aggressor in the Korean War. When the UN troops reached the Yalu River, China entered . . . because the Yalu powerhouses supplied all the power for China's industry and those armies took the same route as the Japanese conquerors before the Second World War."

Asked what should be done about Nationalist China, Mr. Ronning said:

"We would only recognize sovereignty of Peking over the land it controls, as France has done. And we should replace Taiwan with Peking in the UN security council."

Mr. Ronning also urged Canadian diplomats to prepare policies based on closer Sino-Japanese relations and to work for such relations.

"Good relations between Japan and China are essential to peace in the Pacific."

Bungling at Queen's Park Charged by Civil Servant

OTTAWA (CP) — Some employees of magistrates' courts have been resigning because of conditions under which they were taken over as provincial government employees from the city, a staff association representative said Monday.

Ben Coffey of Toronto, official representative of the Civil Service Association of Ontario here to investigate staff complaints, said the provincial attorney-general's department bungled and showed bad faith in making the transfers.

"The problems do not arise as a result of local management, but because of bungling at Queen's Park," Mr. Coffey said in a statement.

"There have already been some resignations, and more are likely unless something is done promptly."

The province announced in January it was assuming responsibility for municipal courts. Mr. Coffey said he hasn't heard as strong complaints in other parts of the province or in Ottawa's juvenile and family courts as in the city magistrates' courts.

Employees are complaining about poor communications with their superiors and a mixed-up classification system, he said.

Some individuals complained they were hired at minimum salaries of $300 a month, as advertised in newspapers, but found they were being paid only $338 when they got their first cheques after a five-week delay.

"Some of these men left other employment on the strength of the salary offered by the courts, and it is not surprising they now are leaving in disgust," Mr. Coffey said.

PEPS UP PATIENTS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Police morality officers are boosting the spirits of hospital patients when they distribute quantities of confiscated liquor. They are apportioning it to seven hospitals and homes for the aged in Greater Winnipeg. One hospital director says the liquor peps up patients and stimulates their appetites.

Premiers' Conference

Quebec to Argue Its Rights

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government plans to seek support for its views on provincial jurisdiction within Confederation in dealing with other countries at this week's conference of provincial premiers, says a government spokesman.

Claude Morin, deputy minister of intergovernmental affairs for Quebec, said Monday the province's delegation to the Lake Waskesiu, Sask., meetings, which began Thursday, will have its chance when the subject—"provincial relations Act with foreign countries"—appears on the agenda.

Mr. Morin said in an interview the Quebec group will be led by Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand in the absence of Premier Daniel Johnson, recuperating from a mild heart attack.

The deputy minister recalled that at the last meeting of provincial leaders in 1965, the premiers made no decision on the matter, allowing the provinces to take steps on their own within provincial exigencies.

Since contentious issue of provincial rights in dealing with foreign powers has been brought to the fore in recent months by Quebec's appearances at international educational conferences.

Federal authorities have argued that Canada should have only "one voice" at foreign conferences and if provinces attend they should do so solely at the behest of the federal government.

Quebec has argued that education is a subject within provincial jurisdiction, allowed for in the British North America Act.

Mr. Morin said Quebec regards the conference, which will last for three days at the Saskatchewan centre 125 miles north of Saskatoon, as vitally important. A number of subjects will be discussed, fiscal policies, university financing and health care plans among them.

Religious Beliefs Are Polled

PARIS (Reuters) — Although 85 per cent of Frenchmen are nominally Roman Catholics, a public opinion poll published today shows that only 73 per cent of the population believe in God.

The poll, in the Paris France Soir, also shows the French are critical of their traditional Catholic beliefs. Only 39 per cent believe in heaven, 35 per cent in life after death and 22 per cent in hell.

Belief in God was least widely held in Sweden, with a total of 60 per cent, the poll shows.

Britain, 72 per cent believed in God but Britons were skeptical of hell and the devil, which scored 33 and 21 per cent, respectively.

In Switzerland and West Germany, 84 and 81 per cent, respectively, believed in God.

Carpenter Advocates Abolishing Hiring Halls

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A Toronto carpenter Monday urged that employment of carpenters be placed in the hands of national manpower services and removed from the jurisdiction of union "hiring halls."

Joseph Smith, a member of Local 27, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and a business representative with the Toronto District Council, said the move would eliminate accusations that some locals operate a "slave market" and discriminate in their placement of members.

He made his suggestion at the 56th convention of the Ontario Provincial Council of the union.

A referendum should be conducted among the province's union carpenters—there are about 16,000 in Ontario—on which they could decide to go along with the present hiring system or have it done through manpower services, Mr. Smith said in an interview later.

He said there have been seven-al complaints by members that they have been discriminated against, but the charges have never been substantiated in investigations through the union's international office in Washington.

He said the union was accused a few years ago of running a "slave market" in Toronto.

Important notice to employers

AMENDMENTS TO THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

Amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act, effective for accidents happening on or after August 1, 1968, directly affect the reporting of accidents. These changes should be noted carefully:

Waiting Period. The three-day waiting period is repealed. Compensation will be payable for time lost beyond the date of the accident. No compensation will be paid for the actual day on which the accident happened.

Maximum Compensation. The maximum wage base for compensation payments has been raised from $6,000 to $7,000 per annum. In reporting a workman's earnings for accidents on or after August 1, 1968, the increase in the maximum must be considered.

Form 7. Existing supplies of Form 7 will continue to be used for reporting accidents. Please note that Part 2 should always be completed when the workman is disabled from earning full wages beyond the date of the accident.

PAYROLL INFORMATION FOR ASSESSMENT PURPOSES

Amended Wage Estimates. Because of the increased maximum, employers should review their 1968 estimated payrolls and if necessary submit amended wage estimates.

Personal Covering. Personal covering may be increased on request to the new maximum of $7,000 from August 1, 1968.

1969 Returns. When filing your 1968-69 Employer's Statement of Wages Paid early next year, it will be necessary to calculate assessable earnings for 1968 at the annual rate of $6,000 per person to July 31, 1968, and $7,000 per person from August 1, December 31, 1968. Tables for calculating excess salary deductions are available from this office and will be mailed on request.

Tumor Cure Drug Discovered As Pig, Chicken Control Boon

OTTAWA (CP) — The drug that failed as a cure for tumors will prove as great a boon to the livestock industry as antibiotics, a drug company veterinarian forecast Monday.

Dr. J. S. Dodds told the annual meeting of the Canadian Veterinary Medical Association that the drug methallibure as a feed additive for pigs and chickens means complete control of farrowing and laying.

This will mean efficient use of production facilities by the farmer, better grades of pigs and greater egg production.

"This is as big a breakthrough for the hog and chicken industries as antibiotics," Dr. Dodds said.

Administration of antibiotics to livestock produced startling results in growth promotion and disease prevention.

With eventual feeding of methallibure, a farmer will be able to have all his sows farrow at the same time and bring his boars to egg laying at the best period of their lives.

The drug is commercially in use in Britain but still is undergoing examination by Canadian food and drug authorities before it may be generally available to pigs. Field trials are under way for its use in chickens. Pig field tests were completed this year.

Dr. Dodds, veterinary medical director of Ayerst Laboratories, Montreal, said methallibure was originally tested as a cure for some kinds of tumors in women but produced such undesirable side effects as nausea that it had to be abandoned as a tumor cure.

Once the federal food and drug directorate clears it for commercial use in Canada, Ayerst plans to market it under the trade name Almax, initially as a method of regulating the best period of sows.

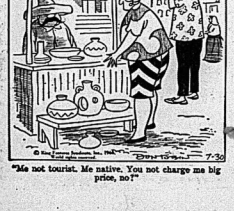
Vet Says May Be Losing Animal Disease Battle

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Kenneth F. Wells, federal veterinary director general, warned Monday that veterinarians may be losing the world battle against foot and mouth disease in cattle.



He said that last year's outbreak of the cattle disease in Britain was a severe economic blow from which that country will take years to recover.

With the rapidly-approaching age of large-scale commercial transportation of livestock, veterinarians must increase their knowledge of and vigilance against all kinds of animal diseases, he said.

The three-month outbreak of foot and mouth disease in Saskatchewan in 1952 had cost $1-000,000 to eradicate through killing infected herds and compensating farmers, but the economic losses in Canada had been nearly $1,000,000,000.

In the three-month outbreak, cash value of livestock held by farmers dropped by $690,000,000. When other countries closed their borders to Canadian cattle, lost markets were worth $300,000,000 and government relief supplies had cost the taxpayers $100,000,000.

Dr. Wells, speaking during a panel discussion at the annual meeting of the Canadian Veterinary Medical Association, said veterinarians must do more to make the public aware of their value to the economy in keeping livestock healthy and diseases under control.

Eisenhower Voices Opposition To Any Camouflaged Surrender

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Former president Eisenhower today opposed any "camouflaged surrender" in Vietnam, dimming chances for a dramatic proposal in the Republican party platform to end the Vietnam war.

Eisenhower's message to the platform committee, now holding hearings at the Republican national convention site, ruled out both withdrawal and massive escalation of the fighting.

It strengthened the sentiment apparently already held by a majority of the committee for a broadly-worded statement that would leave the party's presidential candidate free to develop his position during the election campaign.

Such a plank fits the mood of supporters of Richard Nixon, who are saying their man will be nominated on the first or second ballot when the vote for the party's presidential nomination is taken Aug. 7.

Even some sympathizers of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who is Nixon's main opposition, agreed the plank on the overriding international issue cannot be too specific.

Eisenhower urged the campaign document writers to "make it clear to Hanoi that we do not seek nor will we accept a camouflaged surrender which could inevitably result in the United States writing off Southeast Asia for the foreseeable future."

Eisenhower's appeal—addressed to both parties—was taken to the Republican platform hearings by representatives of the Citizens Committee for Peace with Freedom in Vietnam.

Nixon has not spelled out his proposals for handling the Vietnam problem, but he may have more to say later in the week by way of statements in his behalf to the platform committee.

Rockefeller has proposed a four-stage peace plan featuring use of an international military force as a buffer.

In his statement, Eisenhower said:

"We hope that both great political parties will make clear to Hanoi America's patient determination to obtain security for the South Vietnamese. Unless and until Hanoi is convinced of that determination, we cannot expect progress in the talks at Paris or a termination of the fighting in Vietnam."

15,000 to Stand Guard Over Democratic Rally

CHICAGO (AP) — Fifteen thousand soldiers, police and secret agents will turn the site of the Democratic national convention into an armed camp next month in a giant security operation.

The security arrangements could turn the convention—normally a horn-blowing spectacular—into an austere exercise in martial order.

Racial tensions in the city and the crowds of demonstrators and hippies who plan to come to Chicago will compound the job of keeping order and protecting President Johnson and the candidates.

Deployed round-the-clock will be Chicago International Amphitheatre, and at hotels and motels housing delegates, will be some 8,000 uniformed and undercover policemen, 5,500 national guard troops and at least 1,000 federal agents.

More men will be available on short notice from the Cook County sheriff's office, state police, the U.S. Coast Guard and the FBI. The remainder of Chicago's 12,000-man police department will be on standby.

All security procedures are being coordinated by the Secret Service, charged with protecting the president, vice-president and political candidates.

The Secret Service has 580 agents across the country and most will be in Chicago during convention week, Aug. 25-30.

Though plans are under tight wraps, it presumably was the Secret Service which ordered two air force reconnaissance jets to make low passes over Chicago last week to photograph the amphitheatre and surrounding terrain.

Security measures are being taken on the amphitheatre grounds, which sprawl across the eastern edge of the Union Stockyards on the racially-tense South Side. Fences are going up and helipports being constructed for air-lifting candidates to and from the hall.

The amphitheatre, with 585,000 square feet of floor space and a single roof, will be sealed off within roughly an eight-square-block buffer zone.

To penetrate the perimeter, both pedestrians and vehicles will be required to display Democratic national convention credentials. Inside, checkpoints will be established where Red Guards will turn off portions of the passes, good for only one day.

Mao's Foes Steal Arms In Kwangsi

HONG KONG (AP) — Civil war rages in China's Kwangsi province and foes of Mao Tse-tung are fighting with stolen weapons destined for neighboring North Vietnam, a provincial broadcast said Monday.

Another broadcast from Kweichow province just north of Kwangsi declared that unless the foes of party Chairman Mao are crushed there, "the stake is in danger of being wiped out."

A third broadcast, from Honan province, said Mao's foes are "instigating the masses to violence, sabotage and rebellion." Recent broadcasts from that central Chinese province have said Mao's foes threaten to gain the upper hand.

If the uprisings are as widespread as reported they could seriously interrupt the flow of military supplies from China to North Vietnam.

Most of the military supplies from the Soviet Union and China go by rail through Kwangsi. A trickle of arms and munitions also are believed to be taken in by road from Yunnan, the province bordering Kwangsi on the west.

Analysts in Hong Kong studying the Kwangsi broadcast said it is possible Maoists are exaggerating the situation in order to receive military help from Peking.

While factionalism among supporters of Mao is blamed for widespread fighting in China, both the Kwangsi and Honan broadcasts blamed the uprisings on "China's Khrushchev," a reference to President Liu Shao-chi, rallying point for the foes of Mao in the Chinese power struggle.

Kwangsi Radio broadcast a report from a Red Guard magazine as saying 50,000 people have been killed there in the last six months and both sides are fighting "with modern weapons and ammunition."

'Man and His World' Makes 1969 Plans

MONTREAL (CP) — The number of concessions at Man and His World will be cut by nearly a half next year in a financial streamlining of the operation of Montreal's permanent exhibition, officials said Monday.

Guy Huot, director of the exhibition on the site of Expo 67, said this season's losses by many of the concessionaires can be attributed directly to the over-abundance of such establishments at Man and His World.

About 350 concessionaires opened more than 400 concessions this season, compared with about 600 during Expo 67 when more than 50,000,000 visits were registered during the six-month world exhibition.

Attendance approached 6,000,000 as Man and His World neared the halfway mark of this season's five-month fair which was launched May 17 and will wind up Oct. 14.

Mr. Huot predicted, however, an attendance of 15,000,000 despite a slow start as visitors flocked to the site in ever-increasing numbers.

Mayor Jean Drapeau said a 15,000,000 attendance would put the fair in the black, but he originally had hoped for 20,000,000.

Mr. Huot said he expects the fair to pay itself because it is being operated "just like any other business"—and not as a non-profit civic service.

"We've got to make ends meet, eliminate losses and cut expenses," he said. "We're continuing to correct mistakes."

Jean-Guy Desjardins, assistant director, said this year's attendance had picked up to 80,000 or 90,000 on weekdays and between 110,000 and 130,000 a day on weekends. Restaurants as a whole were not doing too badly.

The number of concessionaires will be reduced to between 200 and 250 next season, he said.

The fair already has chalked up 112,000,000 of the expected $16,000,000 in gate receipts, and officials forecast the $18,000,000 figure will be reached.

Fernand Hurtubise, assistant director in charge of concessions, said 20 per cent of the concessionaires are happy, 50 per cent are breaking even and 30 per cent are showing losses. He said adjustments may be made.

The fair rents space to some concessionaires, and collects between 10 and 15 per cent on gross sales, depending on the type of concession.

Britons Can Leave

LONDON (AP) — Three British diplomats received permission Monday to leave China, but Sir Donald Hopson, the British charge d'affaires, was not among them.

A foreign office spokesman refused to name the three until their families have been notified. He said they were a senior member and two junior members of Britain's consular section in Peking.

Most British diplomats have been refused exit visas from Peking since last Aug. 22, when Red Guards sacked the mission in protest of British policy in Hong Kong.

Children Not Easily Deceived

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Everyone knows that children can see what adults are blind to, for adults have blinded themselves to reality. We accept the conventional and call it "real"; while children, seeing now the absurdity of conventionality, are less deluded by appearances.

Some time ago, we were driving in from the suburbs on the expressway, and turned into a particularly elaborate and complex cloverleaf system of exit ramps. My son asked, musing: "Your tax money is going for these highway improvements."

Beyond the sign there was a high chain fence. Just beyond the fence, we could see the sullen glitter of the city's slums. As we passed, my 13-year-old boy turned to me and said: "Isn't that a laugh? All this money for cars, and nothing for people."

Of course, he was right. With the clarity of youth, he observed the contrast between the billions we cheerfully spend for vehicular improvements, and the grudging millions we dole out for human improvement.

And, implicitly, what he was saying was the same judgment passed on us by older children, by college youths and others — that we care more about things than we do about People. This is what so much of the current disturbances are all about.

If they had their way, every dollar now spent on highway improvements would be diverted to where it is most needed — to the slum behind the high fence, to the squalor and stink and corruption (in its deepest and fullest sense) of these ghettoes where violence seethes until it finally erupts and ends up millions in frantic protection and patchwork.

Children are more truly "practical" than we are, since — for they have no vested interest in the practices of the past and present, no need to defend their mistakes, their callousness, their neglect. It is a simple matter of justice to them; to us, it involves an irksome re-assessment of our priorities — and an admission of our guilt.

What good are all these highways if people are there mostly to flee the city (as they do), leaving it to rot and burn and decay? Where can we go with our cars when the whole country is becoming urbanized into the ugliest possible sprawl? What value have these miracles of engineering, when the sense of direct, quiet and rehabilitating the slums might make a city livable, and joyous, and safe?

People should come before machines and roads and all inanimate objects. The Sabbath is made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." Our modern Sabbath, our modern worship, is the Thing; but if it is not soon made to serve us, man will destroy it, and himself in the process.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For July 31st

Your birthday today: Reorganization of personal habits and self-expression—mark the coming year. The temptation is to take promising conditions as vindication of pride; you should use them, instead, for insight. Today's natives seldom understand themselves very well and generally confuse others; too.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Caution should be taken in financial affairs. Your tendency is to disagree with your mate; what games do you play? Line up your budget tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Play it straight today without fear or favor. People with grievances tend to lose by overpresenting their cases. Double-check everything you sign. An overdue item should be cleared out now to avoid complications later.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Pursue new ideas. Don't let meddlesome people distract your attention from tools, appliances, or the treads of your front steps. Put up a good front.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Agreements will turn the site of the Democratic national convention into an armed camp next month in a giant security operation.

The security arrangements could turn the convention—normally a horn-blowing spectacular—into an austere exercise in martial order.

Racial tensions in the city and the crowds of demonstrators and hippies who plan to come to Chicago will compound the job of keeping order and protecting President Johnson and the candidates.

Deployed round-the-clock will be Chicago International Amphitheatre, and at hotels and motels housing delegates, will be some 8,000 uniformed and undercover policemen, 5,500 national guard troops and at least 1,000 federal agents.

More men will be available on short notice from the Cook County sheriff's office, state police, the U.S. Coast Guard and the FBI. The remainder of Chicago's 12,000-man police department will be on standby.

All security procedures are being coordinated by the Secret Service, charged with protecting the president, vice-president and political candidates.

The Secret Service has 580 agents across the country and most will be in Chicago during convention week, Aug. 25-30.

Though plans are under tight wraps, it presumably was the Secret Service which ordered two air force reconnaissance jets to make low passes over Chicago last week to photograph the amphitheatre and surrounding terrain.

Security measures are being taken on the amphitheatre grounds, which sprawl across the eastern edge of the Union Stockyards on the racially-tense South Side. Fences are going up and helipports being constructed for air-lifting candidates to and from the hall.

The amphitheatre, with 585,000 square feet of floor space and a single roof, will be sealed off within roughly an eight-square-block buffer zone.

To penetrate the perimeter, both pedestrians and vehicles will be required to display Democratic national convention credentials. Inside, checkpoints will be established where Red Guards will turn off portions of the passes, good for only one day.

Czech-Russian Parley Enters Its Third Day

Red Army Cuts Its Exercises

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Army newspaper Red Star reported today the large-scale Sky Shield anti-aircraft defence exercises in Russia are ending.

Red Star, quoted by the Soviet news agency Tass, added that rear-support troop manoeuvres over a wide area of Russia including regions bordering on Czechoslovakia will continue.

The Sky Shield exercises, which involved rocket troops, pilots, radar operators, and other specialized units, were first announced July 25.

Marshal Pavel Batitsky, commander of the air defence troops, said then that both series of manoeuvres were being staged over a wide area, but he did not specify the area or say how long the exercises would last.

Wester observers said advance announcements of the exercises were unusual, and probably were meant to keep up the war of nerves against Czechoslovakia.

Russia indicated that the support-troop exercises near the Polish and Czechoslovak borders were full-scale military plakers, tanks and a simulated nuclear attack.

Great Britain Warns Russians

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart is reported to have reminded the Soviet Union that Britain opposes any Russian intervention in Czechoslovakia.

Informed sources said the warning, the first such by a Western government , was given Tuesday to Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Smirnovsky.

The Russian asked for the meeting, possibly as an aftermath to the "hands off Czechoslovakia" speech Stewart made in the House of Commons July 18.

Threats to Kill Prince Charles Worry British

LONDON (Reuters) — Security officials disclosed today they are worried about threats to kill Prince Charles because the 19-year-old heir to the throne may become the target of extremists who want independence for Wales.

The prince will be formally made Prince of Wales at an investiture at Caernarvon Castle in Wales July 1, 1969.

Visit by Tito Is Postponed

CIERNA NAD TISOU (Reuters) — The Prague-Moscow summat at which Czechoslovak reformist leaders are defending their liberalized brand of communism before Kremlin leaders went into its third day today.

Communist sources in Prague had expected the meeting between the two Communist party presidiums in this bleak railway Junction town not far from the Soviet border to end Tuesday at the latest, but it didn't.

Czechoslovak party leader Alexander Dubcek was known to want to prevent the meeting from dragging on too long.

"The atmosphere is optimistic," said National Assembly Chairman Josef Smrkovsky in Rude Pravo, the Czechoslovak party newspaper.

Plans for the arrival in Prague today of Yugoslav President Tito, the first East European Communist leader to break away from Moscow's domination and pursue an independent course, were postponed.

There was still no official word about the substance of long hours of argument inside the railroaders' clubhouse here where the meeting was taking place.

No communique was issued when Tuesday's session ended although a brief statement by CTK, the Czechoslovak news agency, described them as "frank and comradely."

In the language of Communist statements, "comradely frankness" usually means hard talking—but something far short of a crisis situation. It generally means the two sides disagree on some basic questions.

Montreal Postal Clerks Sort Welfare Cheques for Delivery Today

Two Business Groups Plead With PM to Get Mail Moving

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two national business organizations sent Prime Minister Trudeau telegrams Tuesday urging government action to stop the postal strike now in its 14th day, because of its effect on Canada's economy.

The Retail Council of Canada and the Automotive Industries Association of Canada both said the economy will ho badly hurt if the strike by 24,000 postal workers continues.

The retail council's telegram said: "If progress in negotiations proceeds at no more than current speed, delay in solution will place unacceptable strain on economy."

Thomis H. Whelanna, executive vice-president of the automotive association, said in his telegram:

"Do not permit this situation to happen, as it will place an excessive financial load on all business firms, from which there is no recovery. The economy will be hurt through decreased employment and higher costs to the consumer and business, because of the added costs now being created."

G. W. Brown, president of the retail council, commended the government in the telegram for "not acceding to demands for settlement of public service wage claims at inflationary levels."

The automotive association said that the 10th of the month is the normal time for suppliers to be paid by their customers and obtain discounts.

"This is also the normal time of the month when all clearings are made through banks," the telegram said. "If they cannot be met then, firms will be faced with large loans over an extended period of time in order to carry on their business until collections can be made."

The retail council's telegram suggested "parliamentary machinery now be put into motion so that strike can if necessary be ended by legislative action by known date."

The council represents about 80 per cent of Canada's retail sales volume.

Both Sides Silent

OTTAWA (CP) — Mediation talks in the national postal strike still are plodding along with almost complete silence from both sides and no indication of a break in sight.

Judge Rene Lippe, the federal mediator, held brief sessions with the two chief negotiators Tuesday afternoon and evening before adjourning the discussions to 11 a.m. EDT today, the 14th day of the strike.

Pope Urges Faithful to Understand and Accept Ban on Pill

CASTEL GANDOLFO (CP) — Pope Paul, facing the possibility of widespread refusal to comply with his ban on mechanical and chemical methods of birth control, appealed to Roman Catholic couples today to understand and accept his prohibition.

In his first comment since his encyclical Humanae Vitae—Of Human Life—was issued Monday, the 70-year-old pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church told his weekly general audience at his summer residence here that he knew his decision not to modify the church's traditional policy would bring anguish to millions.

The Pope said preparation of the encyclical had caused him suffering and anguish.

Et Tu Brute!

MILAN (Reuters) — The secretary of the Italian Roman Catholic Doctors Association today called on doctors to oppose Pope Paul's ban on artificial birth control.

Professor Guido Caprio told reporters the papal encyclical published two days ago contained "incomprehensible and insoluble contradictions" from the medical point of view.

He told his audience in a speech, published in advance by the Vatican press office in several languages:

"The knowledge of our grave responsibility caused us no small suffering. We well know of the heated discussions in the press. The anguish of those involved in the problem touched us also. We studied and read all we could. We consulted eminent persons. And we sought in prayer the aid of the Holy Spirit in interpreting the divine law which flows from the inner needs of human love, from the essential structure of marriage and from the personal dignity of the wedded couple.

"We were guided also by the feeling of charity, of pastoral concern for married Christians. Finally, our labor was accompanied by hope—hope that this document will be accepted for its truth, hope above all that Christian married couples will understand that its teaching is but the manifestation of their true love, an imitation of the love of Christ for the church."

The text of the Pope's speech issued in French acknowledged that the birth control decision was the most serious the Pope has made since he was elected five years ago.

"Never as till this occasion," he said, "have we felt with such acuteness the weight of our duty to the service of all humanity . . . We want to hope that all, certainly married Christians, even if they have the feeling that our word is hard, will understand that it is our fidelity to the thought of Christ which motivated this apparent severity."

But dissent voiced against the Pope's refusal to modify the church's traditional position raised the possibility that many of the world's 520,000,000 Roman Catholics would disobey his injunctions.

His encyclical also sharpened the division between liberal Catholics who favor birth control and conservatives opposed to it. And it also appeared to be a block on the road to ecumenical co-operation with other churches that have sanctioned contraception for decades.

In the encyclical, published Monday, the Pope predicted the ruling would devastate many of the world's Catholics. But the strength of the reaction pouring into the Vatican from all corners of the globe appeared to have taken officials by surprise.

The encyclical ruled out all artificial forms of contraception and upheld the church's traditional position that the only permissible way for Catholic couples to space the size of their families was to confine intercourse to the woman's periods of infertility.

Pope Paul said in the encyclical the church should not be surprised by the opposition that would be aroused and should continue to proclaim the moral

POPE

'People Will Leave the Church Before They Leave the Pill'

MONTREAL (CP) — A church spokesman said Tuesday the Pope's encyclical expressing disapproval of the practice of birth control by Roman Catholics was "a surprise to everyone."

However, the spokesman added, the Montreal Archdiocese will not comment on the papal statement until after Archbishop Paul Gregoire returns from vacation Aug. 12.

Dr. Lise Fortier, a Roman Catholic and director of the family planning clinic of Montreal's Notre Dame Hospital, said she was "very antagonistic" when she heard of the Pope's statement.

"It is very unrealistic to maintain such a policy" following the papal commission's recommendations, she said.

"The Pope goes back, about 30 years back, and makes things still more strict.

"My colleagues feel the same as I do. Some even say: 'What's wrong with the Pope to make such a statement?' "

Dr. Maurice Jobin, also a Roman Catholic and a member of the advisory committee of the Family Planning Association of Montreal, said:

"If the church wants to commit harakiri (suicide), this is the way to do it. People will leave the church before they leave the pill."

"We're going 100 years backwards. As far as I'm concerned, the rhythm method, or calendar method, is worthless."

Mrs. Alice Cowan, secretary of the Family Planning Association of Canada, said most Roman Catholics she knows are "dumbfounded."

"I keep hearing words like 'tragedy' and 'disaster.' "

Rev. Patrick J. Ambrose former director of the Montreal Catholic Welfare Bureau, said he is "surprised at the indifference of lay people" towards what he called the reiteration of traditional papal doctrine and said the encyclical is "upsetting" to many theologians.

"I was really concerned about it. I thought it would be different—more lenient."

Father Ambrose found it "disturbing that the Pope rejected the majority recommendations of a church commission on birth control that restrictions against the use of birth control methods be relaxed.

"These things almost led you to believe something would be done about it."

Father Ambrose, who described himself as a social worker rather than a theologian, said the Pope's statement raises the question:

"Which is the lesser of two evils: to practice birth control or to bring a child into the world which you can't feed?"

He predicted that Roman Catholics currently practicing birth control will probably continue to do so.

No Impact!

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pope Paul's birth control edict is not expected to have significant impact on the U.S. government's broad and costly family planning programs, say informed sources in the department of health, education and welfare.

Past experience has shown that most poor women, including Roman Catholics, are eager to obtain means of birth control, those sources say.

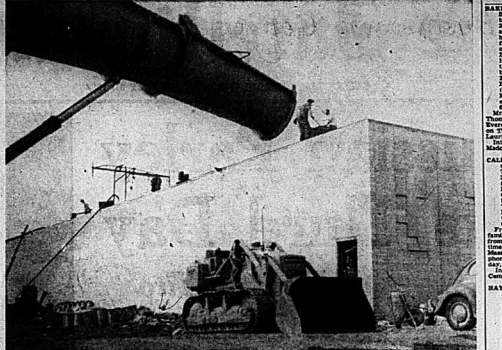
Raspberry Crop Hit In Prince Edward

PICTON — Cold weather hasn't helped — but lack of rain has done the most harm to area crops.

Raspberries have been hit hardest. Mrs. Gwen Trudell, manager of East Lake Canners, said today the crop at East Lake — 10 miles west of here — had been "practically ruined."

"We'll never can a quarter of our quota," she said.

Berry crops in the East Lake area are "slightly-to-completely" dried up, reported Mrs. Trudell.



Other crops have not suffered to the same degree, Tomatoes, however, have been delayed. According to a spokesman at Baxter Canning, Bloomfield, cold weather is blamed for slow tomato growth.

Lack of moisture has also hindered the tomato crop.

"The blossoms cannot set up," he said.

Warm weather also is necessary to convert the blossoms to tomatoes.

Peas, however, are still being canned in great quantity at the factory. That crop has been largely unaffected.

Look What a Little Dab Will Do --- And It May Get Bigger!

A Little 'DAB' Will Do Ya...

Many hands make lighter work on any project. The same principle applies to business.

As a result Belleville may benefit from a band of 40 citizens who have jointly launched the city's latest business venture: Development Assistance of Belleville Ltd.

Object of their project in west Belleville is to lease premises to existing industry and attract new industrial assessment by providing ready-made operating space.

Already, one business has leased in to the citizen band.

Its first building — now nearing completion — already has been leased out as a warehouse.

Its chief spokesman is a man familiar to all Bellevillians, former mayor Jack Ellis.

"This new company will fill a void in our industrial promotion program," he claims.

"Now Belleville will be able to answer 'yes' to new industry seeking accommodation for lease."

DAB will fill "the need of new industry and provide lease space at a cost lower than an ordinary investor can afford," he says.

Each of the 40 investors posted $1,000 to launch the new venture. The group represent a cross-section of city business and professional men, including lawyers and doctors.

Other officers of the company are Robert Lanning, vice-president; R. J. Belanger, secretary, T. A. Carruthers, treasurer, Mac Smith, director.

Site of the initial venture is a five - acre land parcel on Sidney Street and Wilson Avenue. Purchased from the Roman Catholic Corporation, the plot is familiarly known to older Bellevillians as the Catholic picnic grounds.

DAB hopes it will provide the foundations for up to 100,000 square feet of leased building areas within five years.

Already, one - fifth of that total is spoken for.

Now going up on the site is a 20,000 - square - foot structure that has been leased by the nearby Northern Electric Company for seven years.

The former mayor says DAB looks forward to "working closely with the Belleville Industrial Commission."

The venture, he says, should "strengthen and assist" the commission's quest for new industry.

As ex-mayor, Jack Ellis himself is a member of the commission.

However, he says DAB has a regulation that will not permit commission directors — steering group of the commission — or members of city council to join DAB.

This, he says, guards against a possible conflict of interest between civic service and business interests.

While it is basically a commercial venture, DAB has obvious overtones of community promotion, the former mayor indicates.

Officers of the company work without remuneration.

The investors themselves are not "men looking for a quick return on their investment," he emphasizes.

"(They) are looking at the possible returns for all Belleville business people and citizens which comes when the industrial base of the city is broadened."

DAB's original intention was to build speculatively. The fact its first construction project was leased before completion blunted the edge of business risk in the initial investment.

However, speculative building is essential to the project and DAB's directors already are laying plans.

"As soon as this one (building) is wound up the directors expect to go back to the shareholders with another project," says Mr. Ellis.

Lake Rough

Morch Boats Under Full Sail

Yesterday's finale of the 120-mile Freeman Cup Handicap on Lake Ontario was one "built of a day" for Belleville boats.

Jan Morch skippered his "North Star" to a second-place Division II finish, and arrived sixth out of 87 entries at the Chaumont Bay, N.Y., finish line yesterday. Included in the "North Star" crew were Arthur Jan, Dr. Harold Craig and James Jenkins of Belleville.

Mr. Morch had another reason for nautical pride — the first three "corrected-time" finishers in the annual event sailed boats built at his Belleville yards.

Participants left Rochester Monday for the easterly odyssey, which called for a double crossing of a wind-tossed Lake Ontario.

A second Belleville entry— Dr. Ken Douglas' "Serenade" — was forced to retire from Division III competition with spinnaker problems during what crew member William Finkle described as a "boisterous crossing".

"We'd been warned to expect 12-foot waves," said Mr. Finkle, "but I wish they'd been that small!"

Course racing events are scheduled for the remainder of the Freeman Cup program tomorrow, Friday and Saturday in Chaumont Bay.

Boats valued at an estimated $2,500,000 took on the Lake Ontario challenge this year.

Belleville Businesses 'Getting By' Without Postal Service

A lot of inconvenience and much extra work; but they are getting by — thanks to personal delivery service and customer co-operation.

That just about sums up the picture with respect to local business firms as a result of the two week old mail strike.

But just how well merchants and other business people are making out with month end bill deliveries and payments seems to depend on how aggressive they are.

However, through it all there are talking a philosophic attitude about the whole thing.

"There is nothing much we can do about it," is the general comment.

A survey of local merchants and business people revealed a heavy dependence on personal delivery in getting out statements.

And in the case of the bigger bills there is heavy reliance on the telephone to remind customers their payments are due.

But it was admitted that many of the smaller accounts would not be paid until after the postal strike.

Jack Ireland, of Ireland Furniture and Appliances, said the holdup of mail was not the worst problem resulting from the mail strike.

The big problem was that may people are waiting for parts for their television or washer and have little hope of getting their appliances repaired without payment of an enormous repair bill resulting from personal pickup or high express charges.

He admitted, however, that the strike was slowly beginning to hurt the merchants, and if it was not settled by the first week in August he expected there would be hardships.

People were "reasonably good" at coming in to pay their larger accounts.

However, bills and payments for out of town customers were mostly at a standstill.

At Bellewood Lumber in East Belleville, the accounting clerk admitted it was a case of rubbing customers as they come into the store, to make bill delivery.

However, in some instances where customers are entitled to discounts, it was expected a special effort of some sort would have to be made to get statements out.

Arthur A. Sills Company said they were being "slightly" effected by the strike. Here statements were being delivered by their own truck drivers but it was expected some of the payments would have to wait.

"No one is getting mad — it's pretty quiet," was the comment.

Bell Telephone monthly statements are being held up in Montreal until after the postal strike.

Lakeland Natural Gas said they were managing "quite well". Statements are delivered by hand and customers may pay bills at their bank.

"We are not being inconvenienced too much," was the comment.

The same is true at the Belleville Public Utilities Office. Here hand bills are delivered by hand, although there are some out of town owners to whom delivery of bills will be difficult.

In such cases allowances are being made in the due date of the bill and customers will not be penalized because of late delivery of their bills.

Local customers, however, are still expected to come in and pay their bills as usual.

Trudeau Motors Ltd. said their month end repair and parts accounts were being held up.

Over at Elliott Motors there is heavy reliance on personal delivery and pick-up for settling of accounts. Also, provision is made for customers to make payments through a downtown bank.

Time payments for cars are paid directly to finance companies or other leasing agencies and automobile dealers are not directly affected.

And finance companies are relying heavily on the telephone to remind customers of payments coming up.

Customers also have their own monthly payment books, and a personal delivery system for cheques has been arranged.

But as one finance company employee admitted, "It is a whole lot extra work."

But so far apparently few, if any Belleville people have become so fed up with the postal strike that they are firing off telegrams to Ottawa or to their local member demanding government intervention to end the strike.

Marmora Strike Averted

MARMORA — A community sigh of relief has gone up here. It may not be heard in Pittsburgh, but it should echo around Hastings County.

Last night's eleventh-hour wrap-up of contract negotiations in the North American steel industry puts strike shadows to flight in this iron mining town.

It meant the 280 men at the mammoth Marmoraton Mining operation will stay on the job, guaranteeing the major bulk of this community's pay package.

Memories are still vivid here of strikes in 1956 and 1959, which partially paralyzed local economy.

The general relief here that month-long negotiations had ended in agreement at Pittsburgh Tuesday was reflected by Reeve William Shannon.

The quiet-spoken local council head dubbed the agreement "such a delight."

"Myself personally, and the people generally are quite pleased," he added.

As yet, details on how the Pittsburgh settlement will benefit Marmoraton miners are not positively known.

Cecil Bell, president of the Marmoraton United Steelworkers local 4854 is still in Pittsburgh.

Marmoraton superintendent Bob McCann said he had no idea how the agreement would be reflected in the mine's pay scales.

Earlier, Mr. Bell estimated average hourly wage rate at Marmoraton was $2.45.

The Pittsburgh agreement is the richest contract ever won by steelworkers — a three year pact that will cost the giant industry $1,000,000,000.

First estimates calculated the package as an increase of 8.5-per-cent or better each year.

Official Opening Slated

Workmen put the final touches on the main entrance of the Trenton branch library prior to the official opening this afternoon. The library will handle 12,000 books.

Trenton's Branch Library Officially Opens Today

TRENTON — Official ceremonies this afternoon will mark the long awaited opening of Trenton's east side branch library — a project which no more than three months ago was only in the planning stage.

The official ceremonies to open the building will begin at 2.30 p.m.

James Cox, chairman of the Trenton Memorial Library Board, said he is "greatly pleased" with the building and is "looking forward with enthusiastic expectations to the opening."

Master of ceremonies will be O. W. Larry, Clerk - Comptroller for the town of Trenton. Mr. Larry will give a short history of Trenton's library along with his duties of keeping the ceremonies moving at a smooth pace.

After dedication of the building by Canon K. F. Blachford the ribbon will be cut to open the building. This will be handled by Miss Amelia Hayes who has been a former member of the library board for many years.

A book presentation will be made to Miss Hayes by acting Mayor, Paul Tripp who will speak to the gathering on behalf of Mayor James MacDonald.

Also in attendance will be Lieut. Col. S. M. Murphy of CFB Trenton along with Dr. R. T. Potter, MLA for Quinte and W. A. Roeder, Director of Provincial Library Services.

The branch library, which is situated on Dixon Drive at the southeast corner of the Marmora intersection, represents a current price of $36-764 and will keep a staff of four busy during its open hours.

The unit is at ground level and the interior consists of one large room which includes both the adult and children's sections.

Administration and staff rooms are situated directly opposite the main entrance.

According to Mr. Cox the main strength of the building is that "it is very adaptable" due to its modern and spacious interior.

The library was wanted a function at library. He said he had taken a survey and discovered that there were more children "on this side of the river who would be using the library."

The shelves hold some 12,000 books but the references section will remain in the main library on Quinte St.

The library will be open to the public tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock.

Mohawk Chief to Open 1968 Edition of Fair

Mohawk Indian Chief Earl Hill and members of his Council will officially open the 1968 Belleville Fair which gets underway on August 12.

The Fair will run for five days, commencing on Tuesday and concluding on Saturday night with the annual running of the Black Diamond Stakes.

Chief Hill and his councillors will appear in full regalia for the fair opening ceremonies scheduled to take place in front of the grandstand on Tuesday evening prior to the staging of a variety show by Slaggert Agency group of Saginaw, Michigan.

Also opening day of the fair will see the annual baby show. Application forms for this event will appear shortly in this newspaper.

Wednesday will be Western day at the fair with Western Horse games to be staged in the evening.

Thursday will see the Smith Brothers Tree Canada Hill Drivers from London as the feature attraction, while on Friday the big special attraction event will be the Provincial motorcycle championship races for which 40 entries have already been received.

Then on Saturday will be the Black Diamond Stake Race. The entry list for this event is the biggest on record with 20 horses slated to race.

Conklin's Midway will again be back while cattle and horse judging will continue throughout the fair.

And the Fair will also be a focal point for the 4-H club and Junior Farmer - judging events and demonstrations with juniors from four counties expected to take part in inter county events.

Forestry Officials Warn, Fire Hazard Extreme

TWEED — More forest fires have broken out in the Quinte area's northern townships in the past 24 hours and forestry officials warn the hazard is extreme.

As warm, rainless weather cries out the bush, two new outbreaks were reported in Faraday and Tudor townships today by the Department of Lands and Forests.

"Unless we get some rain soon, the situation will get pretty sticky," warned one forestry officer.

The latest fires bring to 115 the total outbreaks in Quinte-area forests this year, with a loss of 1,611 acres. This compares with 112 fires and 670 acres for the whole six-month fire season in 1967.

All but five of the fires to date have been caused by what foresters term "human carelessness."

Pope Urges

law with humble firmness.

The Pope in the encyclical warned priests "that in the field of morals as well as in that of dogma . . . all should speak the same language."

However, the outburst of defiance surpassed adverse reaction to any other papal document in modern times and confronted Pope Paul with the biggest crisis of his reign.

High church authorities tended to align themselves with the Pope's views or at least to withhold comment. But many priests, theologians and figures from other churches took strong stands against the renewal of the ban on contraceptive devices.

Obituaries

The funeral service for James Watson was held yesterday afternoon in the Thompson Funeral Chapel, Rev. Laurie Sutherland officiated. Interment was in the Elmwood cemetery.

The bearers were Ronald Bonsor, James Alexander, Vernon Weir, Burt Adams, Robert Orser and Milton Martin.

A memorial service by Masonic Lodge No. 9 AF and AM, Napanee, was held Monday night in the chapel.

Mail Strike Slows Down Entries to Belleville Fair

Belleville Fair this year is offering a total prize list of approximately $30,000 but the two weeks old mail strike is slowing down the receipt of entries.

Fair secretary Everett Gowsell said today that a fair percentage of the expected entries have been received.

"But undoubtedly many of them are tied up in the mails," he said.

As a result, fair officials have lifted all closing dates for the receipt of entries and are urging that wherever possible these be phoned in or delivered in person.

If the mail strike continues fair entries will be accepted even at the fair gates.

But to avoid any undue tie-ups at the entry gates, Mr. Gowsell is urging that exhibitors get entry information into his hands in any way possible. "They can phone it in or have it personally delivered," he said.

Sale of exhibition space in the new fairgrounds recreation building is now almost all taken, the fair secretary said.

There is no doubt that the building will be ready for the fair — the roof slabs are in place, the roof tar and gravel is going on — and the concrete floor is in.

EVER SEE A CHICKEN GET BAGGED?

We do it every day at Schneiders. We take the plumpest, tastiest chickens available. We clean them, cook them, and spice them. Then we bag 'em for your freezer. All you do is heat for thirty minutes and you've got a barbecue-style chicken so tasty you'll wonder why you ever bothered with the old way. If you didn't try one today, buy one tomorrow. No one should miss a treat like this two days in a row.

Postal Strike

The postal strike drags on. However, inconvenient and exasperating as it is, the public — and business houses and industry generally — who are the principal sufferers accept the situation uncomplainingly.

It is as someone was saying the other day, people are not making any protest. The last time the mailmen went on strike it was different. Public pressure and hostility soon made itself felt.

And it is of little help to note mediator Judge Rene Lippe saying after a recent 11-hour session "the mood is good, the atmosphere is good," when at the same time no real hope was being held out for an early settlement.

The wage demands of the postal workers — 75 cents an hour — are patently excessive, but granted that some increase must be forthcoming the public has a right to expect that the negotiations should be making more progress than is now evident. It is ridiculous that a country of Canada's size and standing should be cocooned, cut off from the rest of the world by a strike of a vital national service.

Relations With Peking

New Delhi was a pointed choice by U.S. Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach to make a significant statement recently regarding relations — or rather the lack of them — between the United States and communist China.

India has had its troubles with China. Fighting between the two countries in the forbidding frontier region of the Himalayas a few years ago revealed India's vulnerability in the face of a better-equipped foe. The Chinese, who might well have overrun their southern neighbor, finally withdrew and since then, aside from its brief war with Pakistan, India has returned to combating its age-old problems of overpopulation and hunger.

The United States meanwhile keeps China at a distance. That it intends to continue this policy was the import of Mr. Katzenbach's words in New Delhi. There was virtually no prospect, he said, of the U.S. and the Peking government developing any relationship.

Certainly the attitude of China itself discourages any meaningful discourse between the two countries. For long Peking has pictured the U.S. as the arch imperialist of the western world. It has trained its young people and armed forces to regard America and Americans with suitable disdain and even hate.

One day perhaps things will change for the better. Meanwhile the U.S. does hold occasional talks with Chinese representatives — in Poland. It is the only formal contact the two countries have and little publicity is given them. In reality though Washington and Peking remain as they have for years — poles apart.

He Keeps Fit

Governor-General Roland Michener, exercising his penchant for physical fitness, reportedly left accompanying newsmen out of breath during a recent vice-regal visit to St. Lawrence River communities.

The former high commissioner to India was up before eight every morning to go through his daily ritual of pushups and other fitness routines. The scene was the deck of the naval vessel which Mr. Michener and his wife made the journey.

It does not matter where he is but Mr. Michener likes to get in his daily dozen. A rail sliding once sufficed when the governor-general was travelling by train.

The governor-general is in his late sixties, but he is fitter than many a younger man. And just to give further proof of his capabilities in this sphere he also plays tennis — no game for anyone out of shape.

Child Labor

We had been under the impression child labor laws long since had prohibited the employment of young children in tasks of more than a menial character, and then only around the home in the ordinary course of family upbringing.

Imagine the surprise then of laundromat users the other day when a small boy — a youngster of eight — staggered in carrying a fair-sized load of washing. Refusing the help of a woman who offered to put the clothes in the machine the lad proceeded to carry out his appointed task.

A fine show of youthful training and enterprise to be sure, but we wonder what his mother was doing that fine Monday morning. Such a task should be hers and hers alone — unless of course she has at home older children to whom the delegating of this kind of job would be more appropriate.

The Communist Crisis—III

Without Economic Reforms Czechs Face Bankruptcy

Under the new regime in Czechoslovakia, the aim is to make the country's economy operate under normal laws of supply and demand, eliminating central planning while retaining state ownership of business, Peter Buckley, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow who visited Czechoslovakia, says this frightens a lot of Czechs.

By PETER BUCKLEY

PRAGUE (CP) — A newsreel in Prague's movie house not long ago poked wicked fun at one of the most painful jokes in the Czechoslovak capital, the would-be subway system.

Promised for decades, the subway is only now under lethargic construction.

After recalling some of those past promises, the newsreel dealt with either late malice on a workman slowly carrying a shovelful of dirt 10 feet or so in the present - day subway excavation, then plodding back to his pile for another shovelful.

The camera watched two men on hands and knees, levelling concrete an inch at a time with an old board. It peered in dismay while a group of workers bumbled around with a primitive shape of wood and wire whose purpose no one could guess.

The audience loved it.

But a Czechoslovak acquaintance who saw the newsreel with me commented sourly: "Now you know why we need an economic reform in Czechoslovakia."

A visitor to this graceful old capital these days is sure to be told a dozen times that the current overhaul of the political system—one of the most significant upheavals in postwar Eurocommunism — is mainly because of economic problems.

"Without a change in the political system, the new leaders claimed it would be impossible to make the economic reforms work," a veteran diplomat said. "And without the economic reforms, the country seems headed for bankruptcy."

What the Czech reformers want is an economy with a completely new mixture of orthodox communism and Western-style-business sense. The state would still own all the country's businesses, but it would top trying to run them.

The deadening, depleting weight of the Communist bureaucracy would be lifted. And everyone from factory hand to senior manager would be expected to prove himself on the job.

It may not sound revolutionary on paper, but the prospects of uncertainty over jobs and increased work loads have frightened a lot of Czechoslovaks at every level and of every political opinion.

The changes have also created some serious misunderstandings abroad, in both East and West.

Thus, Czechoslovakia's hard-headed economists feel they have been spoiled on enormous amount of time explaining what's going on.

They are convinced the Czechs must know what the reforms are all about since their co-operation will be crucial. And they believe foreigners must make no mistake either—for instance in estimating how much communism will be left after the reforms.

A group of almost full-time explainers has evolved—men like Jaroslav Nykryn, one of the most influential reformers working under Deputy Premier Ota Sik. An economics professor and government consultant, he has traveled widely abroad and spends much of his time at home telling both Czechs and visitors what ails the economy and what cures are needed.

The way, Nykryn says, is to make the Czech economy respond to normal laws of supply and demand, so that industry produces only what can be sold and learns to meet foreign competition.

"We will give individual enterprises full independence in every way. The director of an enterprise will no longer be guided by central planners. Each enterprise will be responsible for its own plan and its own decisions. If it fails, that's it!"

Since one of the pillars of Marxism-Leninism has always been central planning, there have been understandable shock waves among traditional Communists here when people like Nykryn say that, in future, perhaps only five per cent of the economy will be run by central planners.

A heavy-set, chain-smoking man, Nykryn has a refined sense of fun.

For instance, from an office at the Higher School of Economics where we talked, a large office building could be seen through the window.

"We have too many offices which are good for nothing," Nykryn said, swivelling around to point at the neighboring building and turning on a devilish grin: "There's one of them, a trade union headquarters. It's enormous. We could use it here at the school."

A Communist, he is still able to say: "The best planning I know is at General Motors in Detroit. We now go to these places to learn about planning."

In broad terms, Nykryn sees the main problem in economic reform as a "need to change the people's way of thinking" after 20 years of indifference, distrust, lack of imagination and lack of initiative.

He says it must mean bankruptcy for hundreds of unprofitable enterprises. Workers will have to be retrained. Massive foreign loans will be needed to buy new machinery and modernize factories. The Czech crown faces a drastic devaluation as it is free to move freely into hard-currency markets.

The road ahead promises to be rocky.

Before the Second World War, the Made in Czechoslovakia label spread across the world on Bohemian glass, auto parts, Bata shoes, all kinds of complex machinery, Skoda motor vehicles and a large variety of other goods. A lot of that success was financed by low wages.

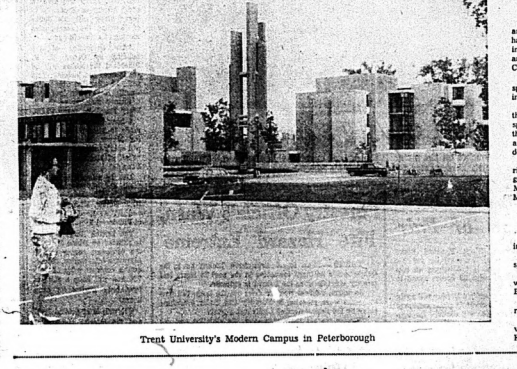
Emerging from the war with relatively little damage, the Czech economy again flourished even after the Communist takeover in 1948.

Then gradually the economic machine ran down. Aping the Soviet Union's concentration on heavy industry, the government under the late Klement Gottwald and his successor, Antonin Novotny, sank vast resources into enterprises which simply fit into the traditional economy.

Housing and highways, education and modernization—all were neglected.

Forced by Cold War politics to look East for both supplies and customers, the Czechs also diversified into economy past all reason.

Meanwhile, of course, the rest of the Eastern bloc wasn't standing still. By the late 1950s, the Czechs even began having trouble selling goods among the Communist countries.



To maintain full employment, numerous money-losing factories, real estate and peg-per-pushing offices have had to be subsidized.

In 1964, the economists led by Ota Sik rebelled. They warned Novotny's government that it had become a question of reform or bust.

The government reluctantly agreed, but it wasn't until January, 1967, that the New Economic System took effect. And all along the line, the traditionalists hindered reform, backed by the political conservatism inherent in Novotny's regime.

With the reform government under Alexander Dubcek now installed, the economic pace is quickening at both ends.

They must prove that a competitive economy can work better than the old one. And the proof must come quickly enough to satisfy the population or else they and the reform risk losing the leadership again to Novotny-style conservatives.

Father No Longer Boss

Toronto Globe and Mail: "Go! And never darken my doorstep again!" The line that launched a thousand melodramas was usually delivered by angry fathers to doorstep darkeners of either sex. . . . The judgment, passed on errant daughters or unsatisfactory sons, was often harsh but the legal right of the father to send his daughter packing for even unpacking was never questioned. Still less in doubt was his untrammelled right to cut off his son without a penny.

In the light of a recent ruling from the Quebec Superior Court, however, the paternal outburst might be expected to wring from the banished son nothing more than an insolent shrug and some remark like "Suit yourself and I'll see you in court." . . . Perhaps the effect of the law, now that it has been given prominence, will be to persuade wealthy fathers in Quebec that they should not be indulgent toward their children; that they should be wary of giving them a style to which they might become accustomed.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dr. Hawley Crippen of the United States, sought for one of the most grisly murders in English history, was arrested near Rimouski, Que., 58 years ago today—in 1910. The arrest of the doctor and his paramour, Ethel Le Neve, marked the first use of radio for tracking a criminal. Crippen was hanged later that year for the murder and mutilation of his wife.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—Americans became involved in fierce hand-to-hand fighting in the Argonne area while heavy artillery exchanges continued along the entire front; British gunners shot down 26 German planes; Von Eichhorn, a German military leader, was assassinated at Kiev.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—the Allied high command wanted the Badoglio government of Italy that aerial bombardment would be resumed; the French military forces in Algeria were unified under Gen. Henri Giraud and Gen. Charles de Gaulle; Yugoslavian brigades broke through Italian lines into northern Italy; China severed relations with France's Vichy government, taking over the French Indo-China railway in Chinese territory.

U.S. Congress and the PM

Saskatoon Star Phoenix: A deliberate smear of our prime minister—and, therefore, of our country—has been published in the records of the United States congress itself. Representative John R. Rarick, a reactionary southern Democrat, has filed in the congressional record what he calls "interesting background documentation" of accusations against Prime Minister Trudeau's past which has led many Americans to "ponder what can be expected from the new leadership of our neighbor to the North." This would be laughable if it were not dangerous. Rarick is, apparently, blood brother to the Canadian hate mongers who originated this smear; and he seems best upon perpetuating it. He was careful to give as his sources of information a Canadian intelligence service article, its reprint in the South African Observer, and a broadcast by Rev. S. J. Lyons. It must be contradicted—now. It cannot be expunged from the congressional record. But it would be well if some respected spirits of the congress would file, in the same record, a statement putting the accusations and Mr. Trudeau back in their proper perspective and thus correcting the implications of the CIS reports.

Senate Reform Issue

Vancouver Province: Mr. Trudeau is showing a traditional prime ministerial interest in reforming the Canadian Senate.

Years ago, Mackenzie King pledged himself to Senate reform. But, as the cynics observed, his idea of reforming the Senate was to fill it with more Liberals. It seems unlikely Mr. Trudeau would be satisfied with such a sardonic gesture.

Whatever other plans Mr. Trudeau has for the Senate, there is one move that would set the stage for a broader concept of what parliamentarians call "the other place." That would be for the NDP Leader Tommy Douglas, defeated in the June 25 federal election, a senator. . . .

While we have never been able to share Mr. Douglas' political philosophy or his economic ideas, he has given a lifetime to Canadian affairs. Now that he is preparing to leave both his party leadership and Parliament it would be timely to offer him the opportunity to devote his eloquence, ideas and lively wit in the chamber of second thought. . . .

Wage Issue in Mail Strike

Ottawa Citizen: The contract drawn up between the government and the dockyard workers Monday, maintaining a 75-cent-an-hour differential between Halifax and Esquimalt employees, is a reminder that there are ways of approaching the salary issue in today's nationwide strike of postal workers apart from the across-the-board increase where they remain seriously stalemated. The suggestion that postal workers might be paid according to regional schedules was put forward several years ago by a mediator in another postal dispute. The proposal's merit is borne out by the fact that pressures for a strike and for massive pay increases have always come from centres of high industrial earnings and living costs. Postal workers in the past have been sympathetic to this sort of approach, and it would give the government a little more elbow room in negotiating a settlement, as it continues to maintain a ceiling on labor settlements.

Debate in French

Montreal Gazette: The Ontario legislature has given formal recognition to a right which has existed for years in fact—the right of members in that body to use French in debates. . . . Ontario may be some distance away from giving official recognition to the French language by government departments. But the approach has been to proceed by establishing language rights in fact, and later in law. And the progress it has made is heartening. . . .

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 31, 1948

Mrs. Wallace Marner, Linda and Wallace, Jr., Queen St., have returned home after visiting Mrs. Marner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Sinclair of Swift Current, Sask.

D. A. Young, 168 George St., is spending this week with friends in Detroit.

Lois Flindall, student nurse at the Toronto Western Hospital is spending a week's vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Flindall, Gordon St.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marriott and children of Los Angeles, are guests at the home of Mrs. Marriott's grandmother, Mrs. W. Oliphant, Holloway St.

30 YEARS AGO

Mrs. G. L. Sprague and children are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Sprague, N. Front St.

Charles Skinner has returned to Rochester, after visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Skinner.

One Sunday evening recently, 150 automobiles checked through the gates to the picnic grounds of the Lake Shore House at the Sand Banks.

Massassaga Park which for many years was a favorite resort and picnic ground, has been closed to the public by the owners of the property, the Ontario Rock Company.

Maritime Economy

Ottawa Journal: The Maritime Union Study raises the hope of fiscal agreement and economics on the Atlantic shore. The governments of Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick sponsor this exciting undertaking. It will cover the possibilities of economic and other forms of regional co-ordination and co-operation. Political union may be considered later. This initiative should encourage other provinces to do likewise—on the prairies, for example.

Strikes Are Obsolete

Saint John Telegraph-Journal: With each passing day in the last week the mail mounts higher—and so does public annoyance. Each day more people find they are being personally affected by the lack of letters and parcels. And each day, along with the stories of inconvenience and resourcefulness in getting things delivered, we hear increasingly about hardship. . . . Sooner or later—sooner, most Canadians hope —it will be realized that these important public services are obsolete and impossible.

Postal Strike

Victoria Colonist: Treasury Board President Charles M. Drury says it would be irresponsible of the government to permit a prolonged strike of the postal workers. It can be suggested that the irresponsibility started when the postmen among other public employees were given the right to strike if they so chose. . . .

Trudeau Captivated By North

But "Long Way From Takeoff"

OTTAWA (CP) — The Arctic in late July is a symphony of firewood, yellow poppies, dazzling ice fields and shimmering blue straits.

Captivated Pierre Elliott Trudeau likened the vivid scenery to that of the Swiss Alps.

First of Canada's 15 prime ministers to visit the high Arctic, he was smitten with it.

In turn, the 48-year-old prime minister left the Inuit — the People, as the Eskimos call themselves — glowing.

"We are very glad to see you with our own eyes," said Phillipousie, 62, on behalf of the 94 Eskimos in Grise Fiord.

"We are like a boy."

Philipousie's words summed up not only the reaction of "the most ancient Canadians," as Mr. Trudeau called them, but of the increasing number of southerners living north of the 60th parallel.

Political skepticism tumbled away like the summer snows from Baffin mountainsides as the relaxed Trudeau appeared.

"Did you bring the mail?" asked a construction worker at the Anvil lead-zinc-silver mine deep in the Yukon.

"I'm not a strikebreaker," replied Mr. Trudeau with a grin. Any reservations the union men had about him disappeared in the laughter.

"I hope to learn many things in the North and I hope to come back to learn more," he told Eskimos and whites at Tuktoyaktuk.

Learn he did. The most surprising revelation of the week-long 2,700-mile trip of 16 settlements was "the social breakthrough" in the Arctic.

He found Eskimos and whites mingling easily and gaining from each other's culture.

Western style at residential schools and summer visits to the provinces have acquainted Eskimos with the latest from youthsville.

Young Eskimos and whites sharing the double seats on Japanese motorbikes escorted him from the airfield at Frobisher Bay.

At a reception later, three Eskimo go-go dancers performed to soul music.

A poised 19-year-old beauty named Meeka interpreted for Mr. Trudeau at Pangnirtung, a summer Shangri-la, and danced with him to a Beatles' tune.

At Pond Inlet, pretty Joanne and Tahiba, just back from Nova Scotia, chatted with him about surfing and beach parties.

Mr. Trudeau visited the Northwest Territories 10 years ago on a canoeing trip and found Eskimos lovable but living in miserable conditions in villages overrun with dogs.

This time around, he found them building new homes under a $12,000,000 federal housing program for Indians and Eskimos.

The huskies were tied up or penned and many have been traded in for powered snow sleds.

Bell telephone linemen from Montreal were installing facilities at Pond Inlet. Grise Fiord is getting a 4,300-foot runway to replace its daredevil 1,200-foot strip. Pangnirtung has bright new fuel storage tanks.

An influx of oilmen, prospectors, aviators and surveyors his left the bustling North short of everything this summer.

At Resolute, a staging airfield in the Central Arctic on Cornwallis Island, aviation fuel is being rationed until the Barrow Strait ice breaks up and tankers arrive.

The reason is the number of aircraft going in to Drake Point on Melville Island, 1,500 miles north of Edmonton, where the federal government and a consortium of private oil companies are exploring under the name PanArctic.

Farther south, so many prospectors are going into the Coppermine area that a new airfield is being built.

Mr. Trudeau circled over the Mary River area of Baffin Island where 139,000,000 tons of high-grade iron ore are awaiting a better market for development.

At Churchill Falls, Labrador, he got on a hard hat and was taken 5,100 feet into a huge access tunnel built into a hillside over the rushing Churchill River.

He was told that $272 a minute is being spent on the 2,900,000 hydro-electric power development.

Northern officials talk hopefully of ports at Coppermine and Tuktoyaktuk and Pond Inlet, to carry out the ore from mines.

Mr. Trudeau had some reservations. The North is still "a long way from takeoff" in the technology and communications areas.

Airfields are plentiful but many are primitive and even in summer, sudden Arctic fogs can seal a huge region and leave a plane in trouble.

Despite facility problems that made it impossible for Mr. Trudeau to get in to five communities by air, he said developments in the Yukon and Labrador "lend credibility" to others farther north.

And he met no lack of enthusiasm among northerners.

"This is Canada's plum," said aviator Weldon Phipps, 46, who has a fleet of five aircraft under the name Atlas Aviation at Resolute, N.W.T.

He plans to take three of his sons — he has eight children — prospecting in August north of Grise Fiord on Ellesmere Island, the most northerly in the archipelago. And he is seeking federal permission to open bases at Drake Point, near the PanArctic search area, and Frobisher Bay in the east.

Even cool aviator Trudeau was impressed as pilot Phipps guided his Twin-Otter through a cold thin mist to the Grise Fiord strip. A rushing brook is at one end of the soft, sandy strip and a 3,000-foot ice-capped mountain at the other.

In a community where the inhabitants include the blue-eyed son of Nanook of the North and the Eskimos hunt seal and whale only 1,200 miles from the North Pole, it was an unforgettable scene.

The holiday tour began with a flight in the fast, light passenger federal JetStar from Ottawa to Whitehorse, then a change to a DC-3 to visit the Anvil development and the new Cassiar asbestos mine at Clinton Creek, near the Alaska border.

The asbestos miners, perhaps recalling Mr. Trudeau's support of a 1949 Quebec strike that led to better conditions for mine workers, gave him a string tie with green asbestos fibre encased in the plastic clasp.

Montrealer Tony Castonguay presented it "from Local 564 and the boys."

Mine officials proudly showed Mr. Trudeau a steel bridge that had been built in 78-below-zero weather.

He went on from the Yukon to 11 communities in the Northwest Territories, Fort Chimo on Quebec's Ungava Bay, and Wabush Lake and Churchill Falls in Labrador.

Nine of the Northwest Territories stops were within the Arctic Circle, where he spent four nights.

The grimmest communities were the largest — Inuvik on the Mackenzie Delta, with utility-serviced federal houses separated from ramshackle slums, and dusty Frobisher Bay with its dry bureaucracy.

An inveterate outdoorsman who has paddled the Coppermine River and travelled the Gobi Desert by camel, Mr. Trudeau's most enjoyable hours were spent at Clearwater Fiord. It is located on Cumberland Sound on 197,754-square-mile Baffin, largest and most easterly of the Arctic islands.

He cruised there until midnight on the Inuit longliner Qasigiaq, firing a .222-calibre sealing rifle and an RCMP revolver at icebergs for target practice.

He slept in a tent at the campsite, on a sandy ridge beneath high hills flecked with melting snow, then caught a 10-pound Arctic char for lunch.

"The frozen Arctic of Peary and Franklin is all in the past," said Ralph Currie, a bluff Newfoundlander who helped set up the camp. "It's more dangerous on Bank Street in Ottawa."

At gorgeous Pangnirtung, 60 miles from Clearwater Fiord, the Hudson Bay's cannon, more than a century old and normally fired only on the company's birthday, was discharged with glee as Mr. Trudeau arrived.

Walking about the village, he met a shy 11-year-old Eskimo boy who recently brought down a nine-foot polar bear with two shots from a .303 rifle.

Excited northern officials flew a Chinese cook and a sumptuous meal into Pangnirtung for Mr. Trudeau's brief stop there.

He later said the food was the only thing that irritated him about his first Arctic visit.

"Why serve bacon and eggs when you're dying for stewed fox, roasted ptarmigan, seal liver, whale blubber," he said. "A tourist who comes to the North wants to try these things, and they're damned good actually."

Mr. Trudeau is looking forward already to his next visit, perhaps in the winter to experience the thrill of crossing the ice by dog team.

Southerners working in the North should seek such experiences and should learn Eskimo as the Eskimos are expected to learn English, he said.

And more Canadians should go north instead of south to the United States or abroad to Europe.

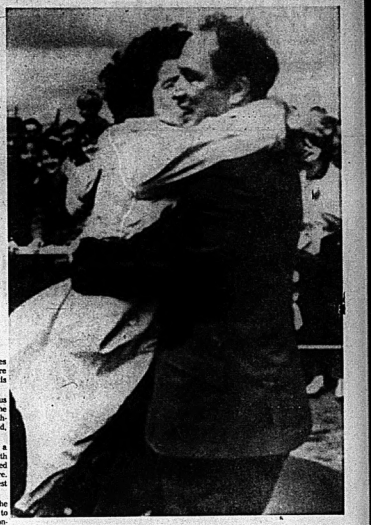
Eight men and one woman, Edith Iglauer, a Manhatten writer doing a profile on Mr. Trudeau for The New Yorker magazine, travelled with the prime minister.

The party included his brother Charles, 46, an architect from St. Sauveur, Que.; principal secretary Marc Lalonde; special assistant Eddie Rubin, 27; Bud Orange, member of Parliament for the N.W.T.; Northern Resources Director Digby Hunt on the western Arctic leg and Arctic Administrator Alex Stevenson at the eastern end; a CBC cameraman and a Canadian Press reporter-photographer team.

When fog on Melville Island prevented his DC-3 from taking him to Drake Point, Mr. Trudeau thumbed a ride in the crew's quarters of a Pacific Western Airlines Hercules transport.

A helicopter taking him to the oil exploration site landed en route near six stanger musk-ox, who formed a defensive circle against the intruders.

The elated Trudeau arrived at Resolute late at night and had a rare bottle of beer to celebrate his day.



Next morning, he and Mr. Lalonde — the only ones able to get security clearance in time — boarded an air force Hercules to go to Alert, 500 miles from the North Pole, where top-secret defence research is being done.

"It's so secret they fogged us out," said Mr. Lalonde after the Hercules, which zoomed to within 300 feet of the Alert airfield, couldn't land because of fog.

It landed instead at Eureka, a weather station 300 miles south of Alert, and the unscheduled visit brought out 15-men there. Eureka is 2,385 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Meanwhile, others in the party flew in a light plane to Bathurst Island where a National Museum party showed them the body of a musk-ox killed by a wolf the previous day.

The scientists, who watched the kill, recounted how the wolf had first damaged the cow-sized animal's right eye, then attacked it from that side in a long battle until it succumbed.

Traditional Welcome

Diphtheria Scare Over

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — London's diphtheria scare appears to be finished as a medical team analyzes the last of 1,100 throat swabs collected Monday.

The swabs were taken in a house-to-house survey of the neighborhood around the Elias Street home of Barbara Iles, the five-year-old who died of the disease July 15.

Dr. D. A. Hutchison, the city's medical officer of health, said there have been no positive tests since the dead girl's sister was found to have been a carrier of the disease.

While it will take "a day or two" to analyze the last samples taken, the six- to seven-day incubation period of the virus has expired several times since Barbara's death, Dr. Hutchison said.

Wife of Heart Transplant Patient Prepares for Homecoming

MONTREAL (CP) — "Dr. Pierre Grondin wants to see me. He wants to discuss my husband's homecoming—and I still have to decorate the bedroom and maybe my daughter's going to take care of Gaston.

"And oh, I can't wait to take him fishing again . . ."

The excited voices belong to Claire Paris, wife of Canada's second heart transplant patient who may soon come home from the Montreal Heart Institute.

The excitement mounted Monday night when Dr. Grondin returned to Montreal from South Africa where he had attended a conference of heart transplant surgeons in Cape Town.

It was at the airport that the 43-year-old surgeon hinted Mr. Paris, who received his new heart 33 days ago, may be going home in four weeks.

Dr. Grondin said in a telephone interview Tuesday that Mr. Paris will most likely not remain in hospital for "more than another four weeks."

"We are going to look at his home and make possible suggestions to Mrs. Paris as to what should be done to ensure the continued progress of Mr. Paris," said Dr. Grondin.

"Then we are going to try to find a job for Mr. Paris, who is an electrical designer, which will allow him to work but not strenuously. In the past he has had to climb ladders or work in cellars and he just can't do that right now," said the doctor.

Meanwhile, Christiane Paris, his 21-year-old daughter, may be brought into the Montreal Heart Institute for training on how to care for her father at home.

"Christiane is a nurse," said Mrs. Paris, "and she has signed a contract with a local hospital and must stay there until the beginning of September but after that, maybe she'll be able to help care for her father."

"He has a wonderful morale," said the surgeon. "The first week after his operation he kept entertaining us with all the jokes he knew. Now he reads a lot and watches television."

The Library Corner

By O. D.

Summer Reading In The Children's Library

The Canyon Castaways, by Margaret Leighton.

Jill Gray rather reluctantly agrees to baby sit for twin boys of ten and a five-year old girl at a cabin in a canyon so that the mother would not be alone with them. While the mother is away after supplies a flash flood comes roaring down the canyon and Jill needs all her ingenuity to save the children.

Copperfield Summer, by Marion Potter.

This is a pleasant family story, set in the 1920's. It is an interesting picture of rural life when Ann and her brother Ted spend the summer on their uncle's farm.

Dead End Bluff by Elizabeth Witheridge.

Quig had been blind since birth and now, the summer before entering high school, he finds himself frustrated in many ways. A bit of mystery adds interest to this unusual story.

The Hatching Of Joshua Cobb by Margaret Hodges.

When Josh arrived at summer camp, he found that the cabin counselor was a bully. So he prepared himself for a miserable two weeks.

High Country Adventure, by Marion Rumsey.

George Allen was a city boy with no interest in spending two weeks with his uncle in the wilds of Alaska. But when the bush plane crashed, he found himself plunged into an adventure in the wilderness.

The Hobstones, by Joy M. Bigsbaw.

Four children visiting their aunt near a wild stretch of moorland in England begin their search for the mysterious Hobstones — said to be a place of evil. Eventually they realize they have found something dating back to the bronze age. There is a detailed and fascinating account of their archaeological dig.

Mrs. Herring by Margaretha Shemin.

This is the story of three Dutch girls who spend their holidays with "Mrs. Herring," an old lady who lives in a fishing village.

The Mouse And The Motorcycle, by Beverly Cleary.

Keith was a small boy on his holidays who liked to play with a toy motorcycle. Ralph was an adventurous mouse who thought he would like to ride that motorcycle. Mischief and fun are the results.

Summer Of The Falcon, by Jean George.

Older girls will enjoy this story of a young teenager who begins to grow up one summer. June Pritchard spends her summer vacation training a sparrow hawk, and while teaching Hearna a few responsibilities herself.

With An Open Hand, by Marietta D. Moskin.

Jessie and her friends form a summer club. But when Jane, a new comer, joins the club, Jessie finds it difficult to widen her circle to take in a new friend.

Doctors Need Help Of Vets

OTTAWA (CP) — Veterinarians and physicians agreed Tuesday that both professions need to take advantage of each other's special knowledge and abilities to combat diseases in man and animals.

Dr. Colin Schwartz of McMaster University told a panel discussion at the annual meeting of the Canadian Veterinary Medical Association that veterinarians' knowledge of animal physiology and disease could provide the basis for study of diseases and their mechanisms in man.

Dr. H. C. Rowsell, executive director of the Council of Animal Care, who is on leave from the University of Saskatchewan's veterinary school said the western veterinarian college is introducing courses in comparative medicine with this need in mind.

And the University of Guelph's new biomedical centre, along with similar facilities at Laval University and the University of Alberta, recognized the importance of the veterinarian in a multi-discipline research team.

Liquor Store Blockade Ends

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP) — Dennis Stencell lifted his weeklong lounge-chair blockade of the delivery entrance to a local liquor store Tuesday night.

Shortly after, the 29-year-old chiropractor and his wife left for Toronto where Mr. Stencell is to appear in Ontario Supreme Court to present his claim that he owns a section of the service laneway behind the store in this community 36 miles west of Ottawa.

Donald Stencell, 15, said his father decided to end the human blockade after he was served with "papers" by the Renfrew County sheriff's office.

"Dad said it was an affidavit," Donald said. "That's why he's in Toronto."

Mr. Stencell was served with a Supreme Court injunction last week ordering him to stop interfering with the movement of goods to and from the store.

He said then that a truck expected this week with a $50,000 liquor shipment may use only a nine-foot strip of the laneway, and threatened to take legal action if police arrest him.

WEDDING

KAMPHUIS — MATTHEWS

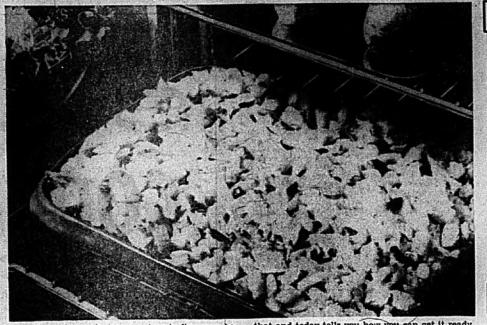
St. Margaret's On The Hill Church was the scene of the July wedding when Rev. J. Arnold Dunlop united in marriage Donna - Marie Matthews, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arden A. Matthews of Belleville to Frank Kamphuis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kamphuis of Calgary, Alberta. Mrs. Henry Van Ochten rendered the traditional organ music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full - length gown enhanced with an empire bodice and elbow length sleeves of French Guipure lace. Her A-line skirt of peau de faille was adorned with a rounded cathedral train caught at the waistline and bordered with matching lace. She chose a peau de faille and lace petalled headdress showered with seed pearls and crystals and highlighted with a four tier scalloped veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade of apricot carnations, lily of the valley and ivy.

Maid of honor, Miss Lorraine Trumble of Picton, was attired in a full length gown of aqua cotton worsted. The empire waistline was outlined in Swiss embroidery trim; the two panels accented the back of the A-line skirt. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow shastas.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. Thomas Clifford of Scarborough and Miss Trudy Kamphuis, sister of the groom, Miss Peggy Kamphuis, junior bridesmaid and sister of the groom, were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

Flower girl, Miss Marina Cheese, wore a short white brocade cotton dress with matching headdress. She carried a basket with yellow shasta daisies with a touch of apricot carnations.



Attending the bridegroom was Tex Cheese of Trenton; and the ushers were Les Roebuck, George McLean and Jack Berry of Belleville.

The wedding reception was held at Club Casara where the mother of the bride received the guests in an imported French silk and worted wheat sheath, emphasized with a beaded rounded neckline and tiny sleeves and a matching hand-draped turban. Accessories were of seafoam green and the flowers were complementing cream baby 'mums.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a coat and dress ensemble in silver-gray Ottoman silk with navy blue accessories and a corsage of pale pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Banff, Alberta, the bride wore a white crimp-o-lene dress accented in black with matching white and black accessories. She wore a corsage of striped red and white carnations and a white picture hat.

Upon their return, the couple will reside at 230 Moira Street West, in Belleville.

Tuna Casserole Perfect for Picnic Menu

By MARY MOORE

Believe it or not, I made this tuna casserole on June 27 for the Press Club picnic on July 13, but I was not there. However, I did make an individual one to taste so I could write this story.

After my return from Victoria, the Press Club girls told me it was delicious and went wonderfully with their crisp tossed salad, rolls and berries and ice cream. Try this menu for a big picnic on the Civic Holiday next Monday.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Potato Pancakes; New Green Peas; Chilled Sliced Tomatoes, Chilled Watermelon; Tea.

TUNA NOODLE CASSEROLE
(Serves 25) (Will Freeze)

1½ pkgs. (12-oz. size) broad noodles
2 tsps. salt
1 cup powdered milk
3 cups cold water
One 10-oz. can mushroom stems and pieces
2 pkgs. fresh frozen peas, thawed
½ to 1 green pepper, chopped
One 5-oz. can pimientos, including juice
6 cups chunk tuna, packed (about 2 lbs. — 4 or 5 seven-ounce cans)
About 3 cups buttered bread crumbs
Grated Parmesan cheese
Paprika

SAUCE:

1¼ cups oil (or ¾ cup oil and ¾ cup butter)
1½ cups flour
2 tsps. Accent
1 tbsp. salt
1 tbsp. sugar
½ tsp. garlic salt
6 cups hot milk
1 onion Oxo cube

Boil noodles in plenty of water with the 2 tsps. salt in very large pot for 5 min. Drain. Add onion Oxo cube to milk as it heats to dissolve cube. In very large pot blend oil (or oil and butter) with flour, Accent, salt, sugar and garlic salt and stir in hot milk until thick. Dissolve milk powder in cold water and add to hot sauce, along with mushroom stems and pieces, peas, green pepper and pimiento. On counter line up four large casseroles and butter them. Divide noodles evenly between them. Cover each evenly with broken up tuna. Then pour sauce evenly over. Sprinkle all four with buttered crumbs. Sprinkle all four casseroles generously with grated Parmesan cheese — use about 2-3 of the carton — and then sprinkle with paprika.

Bake at 375 deg. F. for 25 min. or until heated through and bubbly and rich gold.

NOTE: If to be frozen, these must be in stainless steel or Corningware casseroles. Cool, cover with foil or lid, slip into double plastic bags, chill then freeze. They should be thawed before reheating before serving.

Successful Living

Acceptance by In-laws Has Limits

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: When I remarried, I swore I would do anything to have my new in-laws accept me, and believe me I have. They own a 140-pound German shepherd dog, which is very dangerous. The only ones he won't attack are my mother-in-law and father - in-law.

In the last four years I've watched my husband's family change their minds about all the trouble I could cause him if he married me. I went overboard with learning to cook the food he likes, and to measure up to their standards, and I can't ruin it all now by saying, "Put that darn beast away or I won't stay in your home."

Last year my dear husband and his parents decided to have tea in the kitchen, and forgot I was in the livingroom alone with the dog. About 15 minutes later they decided to come and hold him while I joined them. When they let him go he went under the table and I got the usual "Igmor him" but he was biting my leg. The next day (when my leg was black and blue) I told my husband that unless the darn dog was put in the kennel I was coming back to live.

Now this year they have flatly refused to put him away and holidays are spread on the corner again. — Advice Desperately Needed.

Dear Desperately: I'll vote you an "E" for effort. But it does seem you have oversold the idea that you will put up with just about anything for their good opinion. Your in-laws act more like a spoiled children with a favorite toy than parents who should be showing love and concern for their young people.

They fail in hospitality too. Would they tell any other house guest to ignore being bitten? High time for a showdown! Plan a holiday some place else, for a start. And don't keep mum when they ask why.

• • •

Dear Doris: All the other girls I know are well liked by all the other kids. I'm 14, but my mother won't allow me to date. All the others can!

I'm a little on the plump side, but very much. I am not really ugly. My personality isn't all that bad, but I don't seem to fit into the crowd. What's the trouble? — Unwanted.

Dear Unwanted: From where I sit you sound fine. I'd need to do a little closer inspection to decide whether your defects are a figment of your imagination.

Most girls don't date at 14 — not in twosomes, anyway. Would your mother let you stage a barbeque with a crowd? This could be an innocent beginning.

Write in for my leaflet "Are You Really Growing Up?" This gives a girl a chance to look at herself as a young lady and to take some useful steps forward in appearance and habits. (Readers: This leaflet may be yours for 10 cents and a self-addressed envelope. Has helped thousands.)

• • •

Dear Doris: I am 18, male and insane: a schizophrenic. I want to commit myself to a modern mental hospital or sanitorium but don't know how or where to do it. Could you tell me?

I am doing this completely on my own without the advice or knowledge of a psychiatrist, doctor or parent. — Mental

Dear Mental: If you were to knock on the door of said hospital with a self-made diagnosis, they'd think they were hearing things. It just isn't that easy to opt out of the rat race.

If you are really serious about needing help, see a doctor.

WEDDING

NELSON — BRIDGEN

Elizabeth - Ann Bridgen, daughter of Mrs. Bessie Bridgen of Kingston, became the bride of Mervyn Nelson in a recent ceremony in the Fundamental Baptist Church, Kingston, with Reverend Samuel Dempster officiating at the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Stuart Bridden of Kingston, and was attended by Elaine Bratt. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Nelson of Carrickfergus, Northern Ireland. He was attended by John Luney of Kingston as best man; ushers were Syd Brown of Belleville, Ontario, and David Mitchell of Kingston.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's brother following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson are residing in Kingston.

Ann Landers

Children Taught Sex Sinful, Nasty

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I saw myself in that letter from the 16-year-old minister's daughter who was consumed with guilt because she had let a boy kiss her. Your advice was excellent. I hope she takes it.

ANN LANDERS

My brother and I were P.K.'s (Preacher's Kids.) We were taught that sex was sinful and nasty. I was 18 when a boy kissed me on the way home from a church picnic. My father was riding in the car behind us. He saw this. I was punished so severely I was determined to get even. So I became pregnant by a no good bum. My parents sent me to another state and I never did return home after that.

My brother married a very quiet girl (another P.K.) at age 23. Within two years his wife had a nervous breakdown and she later used him for divorce. He would get so tense he used to sneak out of the house at night and take up with street tramps. Why? Because he had such a low opinion of sex he couldn't function with a respectable partner. He needed a gutter type.

Fortunately my brother and I have had intensive therapy and are now living decent lives, but we were luckier than most. Please keep telling the teen-agers that sex is nothing to be ashamed of, that properly used it can be beautiful and a meaningful part of life. In fact you ought to write a book about it. — ARKANSAS MISS.

DEAR MRS.: I did — three years ago. It is called "Ann Landers Talks to Teen-Agers About Sex" and can be purchased in paper back for 50c. But let's get something straight, Lady, I don't buy your implied chicks about preachers' kids. Some of my best friends are P.K.'s — and the conflict between parent and child that you describe happens in all professions. The dedicated ministers I know raise fine children.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After publishing the letter signed "Pilloried," I'll bet you are the pin-up girl of every divorced man in the United States. My own — soon-to-be-shed spouse mailed that column to me and attached a note which read: "See, just like us."

Undoubtedly some men do get picked by conniving wives but a few of us deserve whatever we can get from the low life-skunks.

When Guy and I were married, his folks sold their home, bought a trailer and moved to our backyard. Guy has never made an independent decision. It was always, "I'll have to ask Dad."

For eleven years I served Guy his coffee in bed. When I was sick with the flu he went fishing because he was afraid he'd catch it if he "hung around."

I could have tolerated his disregard for me, but I couldn't stand the way he ignored his children. He said it was a woman's job to look after the kids, so he didn't even talk to them.

The day his son waited four hours for his dad to come and take him to a ball game — and then called to say he couldn't make it — was the day I decided to get a divorce.

We have $60,000 saved in cash and bonds. I want $500 a month plus $75 support for each child. (We have three.) He is screaming like a stuck pig.

I am asking you to break your rule and print my letter even though you are dead set against divorce. Granted, there's no such thing as a good divorce, but it beats living a lifetime with a mama's boy who is no father, no husband and no human being. — FREEDOM IT'S BEAUTIFUL.

DEAR BEAUTIFUL: Here's your letter. Surprised to see it in print? I thought you'd be.

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "This is our daughter, John. You can tell he's a girl by his long hair."

Son: "Aw, Dad, cut it out."

Ridiculing a teen-ager only creates anger and defiance. If you can't stand the hair, tell him it's got to go. Otherwise, accept it with grace and understanding.

Discuss your son's hair with him in private if you must discuss it, and refrain from mentioning it in public.

HOW TO COOK A BARBECUE-STYLE CHICKEN WITH NO BARBECUE.

AND NO COOK.

Schneiders' barbecue-style chicken comes fully cooked, fully seasoned. Just heat for 30 minutes and you're into a chicken so tasty you'll wonder why you ever bothered with the old way. If you didn't try one today, buy one tomorrow. No one should miss a meal like this two days in a row.

Postal Strike Issues of Wide Application

Justice Minister

Justice Minister John Turner wants to dramatize the law as an element of reform. Mr. Turner says he plans to be an activist justice minister. (CP Photo)

OTTAWA (CP) — Behind the country's postal strike are issues of far broader significance than the temporary curtailment of mail service, disruptive as it may be.

Some of the issues being thrown into sharp focus include:

—Should public employees have the right to strike?

—Should labor demands on the public purse be treated in the same manner as those in private industry?

The public service Staff Relations Act, enacted early in 1967, gave for the first time to some 200,000 federal employees the right to strike.

All employees—except those in essential and managerial positions—can choose between conciliation, with possible strikes, and compulsory arbitration.

The government expected that most federal employees would choose the arbitration route. And they did.

The 115,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada, biggest bargaining agent in the federal public service, has yet to have a component choose the strike route.

But the 24,000-member Council of Postal Unions quickly took the right to strike and at 5 a.m. EDT July 18, it exercised that option.

Federal dockyard workers, printers and air traffic controllers, totalling a few thousand employees, also have chosen the strike option. All but the controllers have signed first contracts without strikes. The controllers are seeking a conciliation board and are understood to be relatively close to a peace fat settlement.

But as the postal strike plows on, the government may be having some second thoughts about collective bargaining in general and its new legislation in particular.

Prime Minister Trudeau gave evidence of this at a news conference just after the postal strike began.

He noted that the government, unlike private employers, has almost unlimited resources to meet wage and other demands by its employees through its power to impose taxes. The union in the private sector can check a company balance sheet and gauge its demands accordingly.

However, governments are reluctant to raise taxes for any reason, and to raise them simply to meet demands by public servants may be one of the least attractive reasons politically.

Leaders of public service unions are watching the postal dispute carefully. One senior spokesman feared that a prolonged postal strike will result not only in Parliament legislating an end to the walkout but also an end to all strikes in the public service.

However, the government, several spokesmen say, will give its new legislation a fair chance. Mr. Trudeau has said he favors settlement by negotiation rather than by legislation.

The unknown factor is public reaction to the postal strike and to strikes in the public service generally.

Although the Public Service Alliance has abied fromf opting for the right to strike, it fought for this right in legislation and regards it as the one check on potentially unsatisfactory arbitrated settlements.

The legislation still is so new that the new public service arbitration tribunal has not yet heard a case.

The government policy on pay for its employees is based on detailed comparisons with pay rates in the private-sector. The government does not want to lead the way in salaries but it insists it will pay the going average.

How do you find a postal worker in the private sector? You can't. So the salaries of those in similar sorting-delivery jobs are used.

This reasoning resulted in the government's offer of a six-per-cent increase over a 14-month contract to the postal workers. However, also at play is free collective bargaining and it is assumed that neither the government offer nor the unions' demand for a 29-per-cent increase are final positions.

The government has a delicate job in not contributing to inflationary pressures in the economy.

A whopping postal settlement would trigger similar demands from the thousands of federal employees yet to sign contracts to "give us the same." The lid on inflation might be blown sky high.

Another unhappy feature for the government if public service unions is that all first contracts expire Sept. 30 under a clause in the legislation. Many contracts won't be signed until long after that date but will be retroactive to it.

Mexican Students Riot Again

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico City was a battle ground again Tuesday as mobs of young people ran wild through the city, fighting police, wrecking city buses and throwing rocks and bottles.

At least one person was dead, more than 400 were injured and at least 1,100 persons had been arrested since anti-government rioting began last Friday.

Officials claimed the riots were Communist-inspired and said they were the worst Mexico's capital has experienced in 20 years.

Tuesday night club-wielding students braved a heavy rain and hijacked four city buses after forcing terrified passengers to flee. Then they ran the vehicles into the sides of buildings.

Earlier, troops fired volleys of shots into the air and dispersed the students. The troops were withdrawn, but the mobs returned, marching from the old university section, and seized the buses near the city's central square.

Riot squads swinging long batons dispersed that crowd, but at least 3,000 of the youths gathered half a mile away near a teachers' college. Their leaders used bugle calls and walkie-talkies to control them. They swarmed over buses and a trolley car, smashing windows and running the vehicles onto the sidewalks.

Crystal Beach Park Started As Youth's Dream Years Ago

By DON MACKENZIE
Staff Reporter

So it all started with a post-dated cheque for $30.

Crystal Beach Park, owned by William "Bill" Hawthorne and his wife, is virtually a camper's paradise.

And the campers who come from all over Ontario and Quebec to attend the park on Lake Stoco never have to ask.

Everything is there.

But perhaps just as interesting as the camp is its owner, 46 year old Bill Hawthorne who started buying the land as a child with a postdated cheque for $30.

He's been on Lake Stoco for 24 years now which makes his camp a very old (as resorts go) tourist and camper haven.

And the Crystal Beach Park has grown ever since.

"I run it like a hotel," said the owner, "you can just about compare it to the Carlisle Hotel in New York City."

In case the Carlisle Hotel hasn't been heard of, it is one of the exclusive Manhattan hotels—the home of Henry Ford.

Mr. Hawthorne has been the manager there as well as on many other prominent hotels and resorts throughout the continent.

He was the director of Feeding and Housing for the competitors from 38 nations at the Squaw Valley 1960 Olympic games.

"I'm just applying as much of my hotel experience as I can to the camp," he explained. "This is one of the reasons for the huge success of the enterprise."

Mr. Hawthorne still works in a hotel in Ft. Lauderdale during the winter.

As a private resort owner, compared to government camping grounds, Mr. Hawthorne feels there are many differences.

"First of all I have a lot more to offer," he stated, "with flush toilets all over the grounds, electric outlets, boats, and recreational events."

"But even though $25,000 is spent weekly in the area as a result of my camp there is no help from the government."

Liability insurance takes, road maintenance and police protection all have to be provided by the management in a private camp whereas the provincial parks are provided with these services free of charge.

Campsite In Sticks With Facilities

Just name it.

Crystal Beach has it.

There are consistently 2,500 people at the Lake Stoco camp and there is only one reason for such attendance — facilities and service.

"It's run like a hotel," said owner Bill Hawthorne as he put some more records on to keep the people dancing at the pavilion.

"There's always something going on."

A camper from Toronto who has been coming to Crystal Beach for the past 10 years explained why.

"It's the combination," he stated, "Crystal Beach is a campsite out in the sticks with all the comforts of home."

It may be a weird description but it sure fits.

Hay rides, dancing, pony rides, horse-shoes, boating, skiing, sailing, begin the list.

There is plenty doing and Bill Hawthorne makes sure of it.

And along with plenty to do there is plenty of services available to the campers.

There are showers, flush toilets, a general store, gasoline pumps, boats for rent, drinking fountains and most important . . . recreation.

All for $45 a week for a cottage and $15 a week for a campsite — and that's cheaper than the rate in provincial parks.

"I specialize in family camping," indicated Mr. Hawthorne, "and we have people coming from all over."

The camping hotel located on the east part of Lake Stoco is run seasonally. Mr. and Mrs. Hawthorne spend the winters in Florida where he keeps up in the business and works for a hotel.

Mr. Hawthorne has been in the hotel business a long time and has worked throughout the United States and Canada.

At any rate, the Stoco Lake resort has been a tremendous success for both Mr. Hawthorne, the campers and the community.

And it has all been due to a $30 postdated cheque Bill wrote over 24 years ago, and plenty of hard work.

Pollution Of Concern At Camp

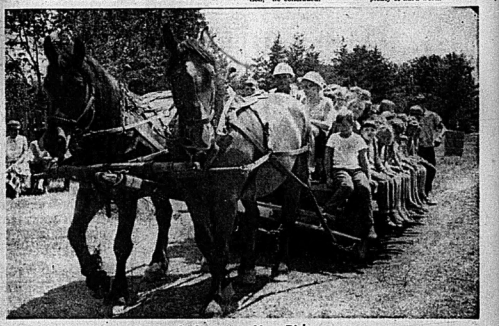
POLLUTION indeed en t i, 2 ma

Private or public . . . pollution always seems to be a problem.

"It might force me to close my gates next year," said Crystal Beach resort owner Bill Hawthorne.

"It's my one big complaint about the government, he continued. "Why don't they do something about the water before it becomes too late."

Even though Lake Stoco is not dangerous to anyone's health Mr. Hawthorne feels that it won't be long before things get out of hand.



"And then what," he said, "the only time anybody does anything about the water is when it is posted — and then it is too late."

"There just aren't enough teeth in the present laws," declared the owner of one of the largest resorts in Ontario.

Mr. Hawthorne feels that the pollution problem in Lake Ontario stems from industry dumping wastes into Lake Erie.

And closer to home he says, "it's industry and improper sewage disposal from Madoc and from the cottages on Lake Stoco."

Maybe when the public finally realizes what's happening and becomes sufficiently alarmed we'll get some action," he concluded.

Metro Goes Fishing for Olympics

TORONTO (CP) — A sports centre, with an Olympic village and jet airport nearby, has been proposed by Metropolitan Toronto in its bid to get the 1976 Olympic Games.

Chairman William Allen of Metropolitan Toronto council said Tuesday the plans make Montreal and Hamilton pale in comparison as possible Canadian sites for the international games.

The Toronto proposal has been submitted to the Canadian Olympic Association, which must decide Sept. 7 to back one of the three cities before the International Olympic Committee.

Included in the preliminary plans for sports facilities is an open stadium with seating capacity of 80,000 to 100,000, a swimming pool that will seat 10,000 and a multi-purpose building for indoor sport.

Allen said space should also be set aside for 8,000 to 10,000 athletes, coaches and trainers for the year before the Olympics.

"We can build it at less cost in the Canadian taxpayer than any city in Canada" because it would be part of the city's waterfront development already scheduled, Allen said.

The plans, submitted to the COA some time ago, have been kept secret because of the Hamilton and Montreal bids.

It would cost about $6,000,000 to $8,000,000 to supply about 500 acres for an airport to handle jet planes with a 500-mile range.

The waterfront plan needs the co-operation of municipal, provincial and federal governments as well as the harbor commission, which now is concerned only with operations within the city.

The Toronto proposal, contained in a 35-page booklet, also outlines the city's hotel facilities, its balmy summer weather, theatres, art galleries and its ability to obtain credit.

PULLING UP HIS SOCKS was something nobody had to tell Bobby Boyle to do last night. The Stinson's Construction pitcher threw a one-hit, 16-0 Commercial League softball win at Brant's Body Shop. The win assured Stinson's of temporary second-place security in the league standings.

Shades of Buenos Aires!

They say a Windsor soccer match over the weekend had all the torrid trappings of a tropical kicking spectacular.

You know, like those South American games where the fans shoot the referee for calling an offside, then trample 57 of themselves to death going out the nearest exit.

Well, the Essex-Kent League sounds like just about the last place in the civilized world — let alone Ontario — where something like that could happen.

It seems Windsor Italia and Teutonia "B" had themselves a scoreless tie, when the latter eleven broke the goal-less stalemate with a disputed marker in the second half.

The report of the game says that "tempers began rising" at this point.

If they were rising then, you should have seen them 20 minutes later when Teutonia had compiled a 3-0 lead.

Eyewitnesses said Italia players took off in pursuit of a terrified Teuton, prompting the 250 spectators on hand to clamor onto the field and begin throwing stones.

Before you could say "Cheezit, the cops!" about 20 of Windsor's finest were on the scene to sort out the shin pads from the shillelaghs.

Three persons who set out to watch a soccer game wound up spending the night in hospital while another five were busy bunking down in the nearest precinct.

Oh, yes — the game. It wasn't completed.

Not my way of passing a balmy summer's eve, thank you.

Lions Bomb Winnipeg; Roughies Lick Stamps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Heroics with less than two minutes remaining worked in one Western Football Conference game Tuesday, and failed in another.

In Winnipeg, Sonny Homer of British Columbia Lions took a last-minute touchdown pass from Paul Brothers to give the Lions an 18-16 victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

In Calgary, Larry Robinson's last-ditch field goal attempt sailed wide and Saskatchewan Roughriders escaped with a 25-24 decision over Calgary Stampeders.

It was the first game of the schedule for all clubs.

The Lions got a break in their final drive. Brothers had a pass intercepted by Ed Ulmer, but a penalty to the Bombers nullified the interception and allowed the drive to continue. Finally, Brothers, relieving starting quarterback Pete Ginter, hit Homer in the end zone with a 20-yard toss.

It was Homer's second touchdown of the game. Ted Gerela got the other B.C. points on two converts, a single and a field goal.

Winnipeg got touchdowns when Ken Nielsen and Dave Raimey and Pierre Guindon converted both and added a single. Ulmer also scored a single.

In Calgary, Robinson's field goal attempt for the winning points was wide from 23 yards out. Two plays later, and with a minute left, Alan Ford boomed a punt downfield to lift the Roughriders out of danger.

Five of the six touchdowns scored were on passing plays.

Saskatchewan's touchdowns came on two passes to Jim Worden and a short plunge by Ferry Dorsch. Bill Goods rounded out Saskatchewan scoring with a field goal, three converts and a single.

Calgary touchdowns came on passes to fullback Ted Woods, Terry Evanshen and Gerry Shaw. Robinson converted two, kicked a field goal and a single.

The Roughriders were never behind in the game, leading 10-3, 18-9 and 18-16 by quarters.

Tykes Tangle

Which Stars Shine?

Belleville's EOBA Tyke team will have a chance to prove what they can do against their house league counterparts in a special game Thursday at the Parkdale Community Centre field.

The game, scheduled for 6.15 p.m. will pit the Booth Radio-TV All-Stars — the city's representatives in EOBA tyke play — against a team from the city minor baseball association.

The Tyke "Non-Stars," as they have dubbed themselves, are comprised of players from the six house league teams.

The lineups for Thursday's game:

Trucker in Publicity Trek

TORONTO (CP) — John Rowe was looking for a spot for a walk around Lake Ontario, but he'll settle for a 258-mile stroll from Ottawa to Toronto this week to help publicize the Olympic track and field trials here Aug. 10 and 11.

Rowe, a truck driver, was to drive to Ottawa with his trainer Leo McDonald today. He will start his marathon walk at noon Thursday from Parliament Hill and expects to reach Toronto by noon Aug. 9.

Ken Twigg, sports manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, conceived the Ottawa-Toronto walk when he was unable to distribute tickets for the trials to out-of-town agencies because of the postal strike.

MacDonald, who will follow Rowe by car, will sell tickets and distribute literature along the route which follows Highway 15 to Kingston and Highway 2 to Toronto.

Rowe plans to walk 10 miles per hour for each morning and he expects to be on the road about nine hours a day.

Late Brant Single Costs Boyle No-Hitter

With both scheduled Commercial Softball League games Tuesday night having all the makings of "bit" parades, the only real excitement came from Stinson hurler Bobby Boyle's near no-hitter.

The chunky blond pitcher threw hitless ball into the sixth inning of the second half of last night's Alemite doubleheader. Then Brant's third-sacker Steve Ling smacked a single to break the hurling bubble.

In last night's other game, first-place Belvedere Hotel solidified their position with a one-sided 10-2 win over City Hotel.

The City loss dropped the Hotelmen to a tie with Black Diamond with 22 points in third spot while the Stinson win gave them 24 points, six behind Belvedere's league-leading total.

Brants move into next month's Junior "B"-O.A.S.A. playoffs after failing to make the Commercial loop's four-team cutoff.

Brant hurler Gary Matier gave up 16 runs on 12 hits while walking four and fanning eight last night.

Hits off Matier included homers in the fifth by Stinson shortstop Ken Genereaux and in the sixth by Bob Tomaso.

Line score:

Stinson	310	641	1	16 12 0
Brants	000	000	0	0 1 8

BELVEDERE HOTEL — 10

CITY HOTEL — 2

Doug Ellis did the pitching for Belvedere in their clash with City Hotel allowing the loscrs two runs on four hits while striking out 11 of 27 batters and walking one.

City pitcher Bob Davenport saw Belvedere collect 12 hits for ten runs as he fanned one and walked one.

Top Belvedere hitters were Lyle Tannamaker with three singles, Doug Smith with a double and two singles, Paul Goodfellow with a double and a single, and Gary Gow with the same.

City's top batter with two hits was left fielder Harry Green with two singles. Jack Hughes, and "Pug" Kellar connected for the other two safeties.

Mets Muster a Run Against Gibson

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Gibson, who's been dealing almost exclusively in zeros for two months, shrugs off an occasional odd number on the scoreboard.

Tony Cloninger hardly can afford the luxury.

Gibson's latest shutout string was severed at 23 innings Tuesday night but the St. Louis ace breezed past the New York Mets 7-1 for his 12th consecutive victory.

Meanwhile, Cincinnati's Cloninger, whose next shutout will be his first in two years, blanked Philadelphia on three hits for seven innings but had to settle for relief help and a 5-2 victory that sent the Reds into second place in the National League.

Cloninger, acquired from Atlanta in a trade last month after an injury-plagued 1967 flop with the Braves, failed to go the distance for the 17th time in as many starts this season.

Pittsburgh swept a twi-night doubleheader from Atlanta 8-5 and 5-4 in 10 innings, dropping the slump-ridden Braves from the runner-up spot to third. Los Angeles edged Houston 3-2 and Chicago Cubs trampled San Francisco 10-4.

Gibson checked the Mets on five hits, handling a run-scoring double by Ed Kranepool in the fourth inning, in boosting his season mark to 15-5. Eight of his victories have been shutouts and he has allowed just three runs in 101 innings since June 2.

With an earned run average of 0.96, the 33-year-old fireballer is zeroing in on Grover Cleveland Alexander's all-time ERA mark of 1.22, set in 1915.

But don't mention all those figures to Gibson. He couldn't care less.

"I'm just concerned with winning," he said. "And this kind of team makes it easy."

The Cardinals made it a cake-walk for Gibson Tuesday night by striking for five runs in the fourth inning with Julian Javier's two-run single the key blow. The league leaders' 22nd victory in 29 games this month gave them a 14-game bulge over the Reds.

Rookie Johnny Bench cracked his ninth homer as Cincinnati staked Cloninger to a 5-0 lead over the floundering Phillies.

The Pirates extended Atlanta's losing string to five games when Manny Alou scampered home from third in the 10th inning of the nightcap as the Braves failed to turn over a double play on Manny Mota's hopper.

Pitcher Steve Blass stroked a two-run double in a six-run fourth inning salvo that decided the twilight opener.

Bob Bailey drove in two Los Angeles runs with a double and single before Willie Davis tripled in the eighth and scored the clincher on Len Gabrielson's infield tap.

The Astros closed the gap with a ninth inning run and chased winner Bill Singer before Jim Brewer came out of the bullpen to end it.

Adolfo Phillips golfed two home runs and Ron Santo, Ernie Banks and Billy Williams hit one apiece as the Cubs overpowered San Francisco. Willie McCovey slammed his 25th homer in the third.

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Swedish men took a 66-51 lead in points Tuesday in the first day's events at a Swedish-Canadian track and field meet here. Eleven events were held. In the women's division, Canada had a narrow 22-21 points lead after four events. The big surprises of the day were defeats suffered by Bill Crothers, the Markham, Ont., pharmacist, and Abby Hoffman of Toronto. She won both of the 800-metre events, won by Ove Berg for the men, and Elizabeth Cestberg for the women.

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, is having trouble rounding up a quartet of NHL players to make the big surprises of the Canadian Forces bases in Europe next month — thanks to the postal strike. Last year, defencemen Jacques Laperriere and winger Dick Duff and Yvan Cournoyer — all of Montreal Canadiens — made the trip. The league president said any players interested in making the trip can call him at league headquarters here.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The 86th Royal Canadian Henley Regatta begins this week and by the length of the entry list it's just as well there's an extra day on the program this year. Thirty-five rowing organizations from three countries are to compete in the five-day event which begins today. The regatta is being held this year in conjunction with the Canadian Olympic trials.

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Unser, winner of the 1968 Indianapolis 500-mile race, said Tuesday his brother Al would have to be considered the favorite for Sunday's scheduled Indy-200-mile at Le Circuit Mont Tremblant in Quebec's Laurentian region. Bobby, in Montreal to attend a press conference for Sunday's action, said his brother has to get the nod as race favorite because of the type of car he will be handling in the event. "Al will be driving a four-wheel drive car and that's why he has to be the only favorite," Bobby said.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Mayor E. Dent Lackey said Tuesday that Erie and Niagara counties should look to the future and poll resources to build a domed stadium for Buffalo Bills' professional football team in the city. Lackey said he had not discussed the proposal with any official of the American Football League club, but said Niagara Falls would be the logical site for the stadium which would serve "a great megalopolis of 15,000,000 persons stretching from Toronto through Buffalo."

OTTAWA (CP) — The Toronto firm which manages Rideau Carleton Raceway estimates the trotting track will show a profit in excess of $100,000 for the four-month meet starting Thursday. But Glen Munro, president of Munro Management Ltd., said Tuesday the profit won't begin to help the track emerge from the heavy debt it has been shackled with since it first opened in nearby Gloucester Township in 1962. Built at a cost of $3,000,000, the raceway has been under the trusteeship of Guaranty Trust Co. of Canada since 1965. Liens against it total more than $1,000,000 and it requires court permission each year to open the track.

Indians Rebound From One-Man Triple Play

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ron Hansen of Washington Senators pulled off the first unassisted triple play in major league baseball in 41 years, but it didn't take Cleveland Indians long to get over it.

After falling victim to Hansen in the first inning Tuesday night, the Indians went on to build up an 8-0 lead by the end of the fifth en route to a 10-1 breeze over the Senators.

Detroit Tigers and Baltimore Orioles also had easy times as the American League race remained at the status quo.

Detroit rolled behind Earl Wilson's hitting and pitching to a 5-0 victory over New York Yankees after the Orioles used six runs in the seventh inning to bomb Boston 8-3 in the afternoon.

The Tigers still lead the Orioles and Indians by seven games.

Hansen got Cleveland off to a bad start after Steve Hudson singled and Russ Snyder walked in the first inning. Joe Azcue lined to the shortstop, who stepped on second to double Nelson, and then tagged Snyder coming from first base on the hit-and-run.

Only seven other players have accomplished the feat, the last two in 1927 when shortstop Jim Coosey of the Chicago Cubs and first baseman Johnny Neun of Detroit did it. Second baseman Bill Wambsganss of the Indians got his in the 1920 World Series.

Frank Howard gave Washington a 1-0 lead in the second with his 30th homer, but the Indians recovered by the fourth inning when Lee Maye slammed a two-run double.

Cleveland added six more runs in the fifth as Jose Cardenal doubled in three and scored on Maye's single. Cardinal drove in another run in the seventh and Sam McDowell coasted to his 11th victory in 20 decisions with a six-hitter.

Wilson was the big man for Detroit. He and Dick McAuliffe hit consecutive homers to open the third inning against Mel Stottlemyre, 13-8. The big right-hander gave up only three hits before Daryl Patterson relieved when the first batter in the ninth walked and saved Wilson's ninth triumph against eight losses.

Brooks Robinson broke a scoreless tie for Baltimore with a two-run single in the sixth inning and singled in another marker in the big seventh.

Jim Hardin, 13-6, stifled the Red Sox on four hits until Jose Tartabull singled in the eighth, Carl Yastrzemski doubled him home and Ken Harrelson whacked his 24th homer.

Sal Bando singled in a first inning run for Oakland after Bert Campaneris singled and stole second and third, and then Bando broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth with another single after Rick Monday tripled. Campaneris knocked in the final run in the sixth with another hit.

Chuters Rising?

Ground's the Limit For Canadian Jumpers

TORONTO (CP) — Canada, since first entering a team in the World Parachute championships in 1960, has risen to third from seventh place but this year's "green" team faces stiff competition.

"We've been improving steadily since the last championship in 1966," Ernie Mueller, chairman of the Canadian world championship committee, said in an interview.

"But the United States, Russia and Czechoslovakia—the teams to beat—haven't been idle either.

"We're going out to win of course, but if we hold our third-place standing, I'll be happy."

The team—five men and five women—leaves Toronto Aug. 2 for the 17-day meet in Graz, Austria, starting the next day.

The members:

Capt. Larry Costello, 28, London, Ont.; Victor Borgbjerg, 35, Guelph, Ont.; Neil Perks, 32, Longueuil, Que.; Harry Cole, 27, Toronto; Jim Lounks, 26, St. Thomas, Ont., and alternate Tom McCarthy, 26, Orange, Mass.; Diana Leonard, 35, Toronto; Kay Hardman, 28, Abbotsford, B.C.; Carol Brand, 31, Toronto; Audrey Borgbjerg, 31, Guelph, Ont.; Diane Latendresse, 24, Montreal.

They are equipped with a piggy-back chute with the reserve chute on top of the main chute strapped on the back.

The 250,000 persons expected for the final round should save no trouble picking out the Canadians—the chutes are white with a large red maple leaf on the front.

The training program at St. Thomas, Ont., included filming each jump, giving the coach a chance to point out flaws.

"Actually, I figure the Canadians have done really well," Mueller said.

"In Russia, there are about 250,000 sport chutists but in Canada there are only about 5,000 to draw from."

To win, the Canadians must beat 40 other teams in two competitions — accuracy and style.

Jumping from 3,300 feet, they aim for a six-inch disc. If they hit it they win 250 points, but lose one point for every 10 centimetres they're off.

For style, they drop from 6,600 feet and must perform a series of manoeuvres. The jumper who completes the series in the shortest time wins.

Ontario Loan Rate Boosted

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Members of a select committee of the Ontario legislature expressed astonishment Tuesday when told the provincial government's lending agency for municipalities has raised its borrowing rate to a record 6¼ per cent.

The increase from 7¼ per cent came last week almost simultaneously with a reduction of ½ per cent in the Bank of Canada's lending rate on treasury bonds.

Ralph Radcliffe, Sault Ste. Marie city treasurer, told the select committee on the Smith report on taxation the increase in the Ontario Municipal Improvement Corporation's lending rate came without warning just as the city was concluding a $472,100 loan.

Mr. Radcliffe said the 10-year loan concluded Monday was the city's first from the corporation and indicated that had the rate gone up sooner the city would have borrowed on the open market.

He told the committee Sault Ste. Marie got a loan in the spring through a private lending agency at 7¼ per cent and probably could still borrow privately at less than eight per cent.

Asked by committee members why he had gone through with the loan at the higher rate, Mr. Radcliffe said the only alternative was temporary borrowing on the eve of other planned debenture issues totalling nearly $2,000,000.

Committee chairman John White (PC—London South) said he was concerned that the OMIC rate should be so high and have gone up "when the market in other areas appears to be easing."

The committee had been discussing a brief from the city which applauded a trend toward direct capital financing for municipalities on the part of senior levels of government and expressed concern at the Smith committee's apparent disagreement with the trend.

City administrator Donald Evans said Sault Ste. Marie favors a fund from which any municipality could borrow at a set interest rate with the provision that large municipalities would have the option of going to the open market.

Donald Deacon (L—York Centre), a Toronto stockbroker, said the investment community feels municipal bonds would be much easier to market if the government allowed municipalities to issue term bonds backed by sinking funds.

Four of 10 Catholics Use Pill

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A recent survey of married Toronto women shows that 32.2 per cent of Roman Catholic women using some form of birth control use oral pills.

The survey, part of a study by three demographers from the University of Western Ontario's sociology department, also says the accepted rhythm method is second most popular among Roman Catholic women at 17.5 per cent, with the condom third at 12.6 and withdrawal next at 11.7.

Sixty-two per cent of Roman Catholic women said they use some form of contraception compared with 82 per cent of Protestant women.

The figures concerning use of the pill, however, show a much wider 11 - 7 difference between Roman Catholics and Protestants, with 8.8 per cent of Protestants using the pill.

Only 2.5 per cent of Protestant women using contraception use the rhythm method.

The study indicates a marked increase in use of the pill since a survey in January, 1963, when only 4½ per cent of married women under 46 years said they used the pill.

Carters Disagree

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — Pope Paul's ruling on birth control is clear, the Most Rev. Alexander Carter said Tuesday.

"There remains the pastoral task of bringing it to the attention of the people."

The Bishop of the archdiocese of Saint Ste. Marie, 75 president of the Canadian Catholic Conference, the organization of Canadian bishops.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Roman Catholic Bishop of London said Tuesday Pope Paul's encyclical birth control encyclical does not, in his opinion, constitute an outright ban on the use of pills which regulate birth.

Most Rev. G. Emmett Carter said he interprets a section of the encyclical as allowing the use of pills to regulate fertile and infertile periods.

MAKES PHONEY MONEY

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Jon Volgar is the big man counterfeiter in town, turning out thousands of dollars each year, but it's all legal. His money is made of wood. His company, Cabinet Craft Ltd., turns out thousands of dollars for the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association for publicity, although many keep them for souvenirs.

Kidnapping Charges Dropped in Court

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Lorne Charles Dean, 16, of Windsor, was given an 18-month suspended sentence Tuesday after pleading guilty in magistrate's court to a charge of auto theft.

A charge of kidnapping against Dean and two other Windsor youths was dropped.

Police said Dean and the two youths hitch-hiking near Belleville July 8 were picked up by Frederick William Moore, 72, of Toronto. They forced Mr. Moore into the rear of the car and tried to drive to Windsor but became lost.

Mr. Moore dove out of the car in Cookville, about 15 miles north west of Toronto, and telephoned police.

Earlier this month the other two youths, Harold Ralph Chapman, 16, and a juvenile pleaded guilty to auto theft.

Chapman received a suspended sentence and the juvenile, 15, was sent to training school.

Masterful Tracking Leads to Finding of Two Lost Children

GRAND RAPIDS, Man. (CP) — Masterful and painstaking Indian tracking led Tuesday night to the finding—alive—of two lost children who held off the northern Manitoba wilderness for five days and nights.

Found huddled behind a log in a muskeg swamp were eight-year-old Jill Sinclair and her four-year-old brother Kirby. They were scratched and mosquito-bitten but otherwise appeared in amazingly good condition.

"They looked up, smiled, and then crouched back down again," said Percy Jensen, an uncle of the two who was the first to spot a patch of sweater sticking out from behind the log.

They had somehow survived the astonishing ordeal without food except berries, with only light clothing against overnight temperatures that dipped to the low 40s and a drenching overnight rain Monday.

The determined Indian search party carried the children two miles through thick bush to reach the nearest road. They were brought by car to this Lake Winnipeg hydro-electric centre 270 miles north of Winnipeg, then under police escort to the hospital at the Gypsumville radar base 120 miles south.

Doctors there said after a preliminary examination they appeared to be suffering only from exhaustion but decided to keep them for at least a day for further checks until they recovered in straight-line distance, the their strength.

two had travelled only 12 to 15 miles after wandering off last Thursday from the camp where Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sinclair had been picking seneca roots at Honeymoon Lake, 26 miles north of here.

"They covered a lot of miles," said Saul Cook, the uncle who first gained Jill's recognition.

He knows. He knew they were alive and he had been on their trail since their disappearance, before an official search was started.

"There were signs showing every day," he said.

There signs were so sophisticated in wilderness reading that they included one strand of wool from a sweater and a single hair from the Sinclair girl's head.

Finding of the children showed the Indians and Metis to be right in their figuring that they would be found close by the area, nine miles from the Honeymoon Lake camp, where fresh footprints were found Sunday.

Just prior to the happy ending, more than 150 Canadian forces members had moved into the Grand Rapids area to participate in the RCMP-directed search.

Their plan was to make a more thorough sweep of an area already covered, while the Indians, sometimes against opposition, concentrated on the area where the children were eventually found.

The Indians said one difficulty was that every time they came up with sign they knew was fresh, RCMP would keep the area clear while it was checked by a tracker dog.

By the time the dog had gone through, and found nothing, the children would be miles away.

The Indians figured the children moved down into the treacherous muskeg because they were attracted by the lights of an island fishing camp.

"They could move on top of the muskeg while we would sink to our knees," said John Morisset, another uncle.

Seven Premiers Confer

WASKESIU, Sask. (CP) — Canadian premiers gather in this northern Saskatchewan resort tonight to begin two days of informal discussions with the accent on fiscal topics.

Also ranking are discussions about medical care insurance and federal-provincial relations although each provincial delegation has its list of subjects to talk about. All sessions are closed.

Three premiers are not making the trip, but only Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland won't have a representative at the meetings. All delegates will have back-up cabinet ministers and advisers to round out their delegations.

Jim Moore, secretary of the Saskatchewan Economic Development Board, said the host province puts its priority on the administration of Indian affairs.

The main thing we are concerned with is working out a common approach with the other provinces to the federal government on the financing of Indian affairs."

He said the federal government has taken a different approach in different provinces.

Other topics Saskatchewan wants to talk about are public health programs, medical care cost, education problems and the need for uniformity; federal and provincial marketing boards; external affairs; university financing; collective bargaining with the civil service; the federally-proposed prices and wage review commission and the need for uniformity in securities legislation.

Mr. Moore said the subject of provinces being involved in external affairs was added to the agenda at the request of Ontario.

The Quebec delegation rates that subject, along with Indian affairs and fiscal reform, as prime topics for the meeting. Premier Johnson's administration has had some dealings with other countries, notably France.

Premier Johnson, who is reciprocating from a heart attack, and Premier Bennett of British Columbia, who is attending a celebration marking the extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway at Fort St. John, B.C., are the men who'll be absent along with Premier Smallwood, who annually boycotts the sessions.

British Columbia will be represented by Grace McCarthy, minister without portfolio, while Acting Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand will represent Quebec.

Premier Weir of Manitoba will be attending his first premiers' conference. He will talk about the need for federal acceptance of a voluntary medical insurance under the plan it introduced July 1. It now calls for a compulsory program.

All provinces are concerned about the cost of medical insurance but it is not the only area of finance that has them worried. A recent recommendation of the Manitoba Economic Consultative Board will likely draw some attention.

The board recommended a national foundation program to finance education, health and welfare through the provincers would be primarily responsible for administration.

A federal government observer traditionally attends the meeting where the provincial governments take pains not to give the appearance that they are gauging up on the national administration.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

ONTARIO MOTOR LEAGUE QUESTION: We are taking our family to the Maritimes in August and would like to know the main points of interest, motel and guest house rates and a good route there and back.

ANSWER: - The Maritimes are a perfect place for family groups to visit. In New Brunswick, the drive along the St. John River is a lovely trip. Some of the best streams in Canada to fish are-New Brunswick's Miramichi and Restigouche rivers, where it costs $30. a day with guide.

Fundy National Park is New Brunswick's pride and joy. It is an 80-square mile area of wilderness on the shores of Bay of Fundy, which has the most spectacular tides in the world. Some 224 new tenting sites have been added, bringing Fundy's total to 850 serviced sites and 300 partially serviced. One problem with Fundy is that the water most days is very cold.

New Brunswick features several freaks of nature, mostly tied in with Fundy's tides. They cause the tidal bore on the Petticodiac River — a wall of water which flows uphill at Moncton and leads the rest of the river behind it. The reversing falls at Saint John, N.B. is a great tourist attraction. The tide tables are available at most tourist offices. Near Moncton, N.B., off the Trans-Canada Highway, is the famous magnetic hill. It's an optical illusion and appears to make your car coast uphill. If it is swimming you're after, head for Prince Edward Island National Park, where the water is in the seventies in July and August, and there are enough miles of sandy beaches to give you privacy. There are also golfing, boating, tennis, lawn bowling and hiking within the Park.

A point of interest at Cavendish Beach is Green Gables the farmhouse immortalized in the novel "Anne of Green Gables". Open daily 9 until 9, the farm has been converted into an 18-hole golf course. Charlottetown is the capital of Prince Edward Island and is the commercial and educational centre of the province and has a fine harbor. One of the features during August is harness racing.

The Cabot Trail in Nova Scotia, (named for John Cabot, who planted the British flag on the northeastern tip of the Island five years after Columbus made his famous voyage), is a 184-mile drive, considered one of the most beautiful drives in the Western Hemisphere. It has a good road overlooking a wild coastline, with coves, bays and harbours, and beaches set against a backdrop of woodlands, mountains, lakes and farmlands. Tourists should phone ahead for reservations here, because motels and guest houses fill up early and traffic gets heavy during July and August.

Baddeck, on Cape Breton Island, is in a region famous for its scenery. Yachting and fishing are popular sports here. Three miles from the town is the former home of Alexander Graham Bell. Inventor of the telephone. The Alexander Graham Bell Museum on the east edge of town displays many models and photographs of Bell's inventions. Open daily 9 - 9, July 1 to Labor day.

Cape Breton Highlands National Park, in the northern part of Cape Breton Island, is 367 square miles of scenic uplands and shore. Louisbourg, on Cape Breton Island, was the mightiest fort in French North America, and it is being restored to look as it did when Wolfe and the British Army captured it in 1758.

Halifax, capital of Nova Scotia, is worth a one-day stop. It is the home of many universities and colleges. The harbor is one of the finest in the world. Tours of city and harbor are available, as are charter fishing excursions that are popular when the bluefin tuna run in early August to October.

Peggy's Cove, the picture postcard community a few miles southwest of Halifax, is included by most tourists. Off the main road anywhere on the Atlantic coast of Nova Scotia you'll find pretty fishing villages, which will capture your fancy.

The Neptune Theatre in Halifax and the Confederation Theatre at Charlottetown are about the closest thing to nightlife you'll find in the Maritimes.

All through the Maritimes you'll find prices are very reasonable Government - spected guest houses charge as little as $2.50 a night and a couple can find a good motel for less than $10 a night.

Douglas Exercises Option

TORONTO (CP) — Douglas Aircraft Co. of Canada Ltd., announced Tuesday it has exercised its option to purchase land and buildings from de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd., for $6,291,000 on the Toronto Island.

The property includes 121 acres and 1,660,000 square feet of manufacturing and office space at suburban Mississauga. A company spokesman said the facilities will be expanded by construction of a new building for DC-10 production.

Douglas Aircraft, a wholly-owned subsidiary of McDonnell Douglas Corp., produces missiles, rear fuselage sections and floors for the McDonnell Douglas DC-9 and a portion of the lower fuselage for the DC-8.

The company has been selected to produce the basic wing structure for the DC-10 tri-jet. A spokesman said production of the wing structure is expected to require about 3,500 workers at its peak.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Stock Market turned up in active trading today after a seven-day slump.

Industrials were stronger, after several companies reported higher first-half earnings and a possible U.S. steel strike was headed off by a union agreement signed Tuesday.

CPT preferred shares rose ¼ to 22¾ after the company reported earnings of $22,200,000 for the first half of the year, up $2,000,000 from 1967. CPT warrants reached a high of 94, up 20 cents on trade of 7,200 shares.

Crown Trust rose 2 to 48 and Canada and Dominion Sugar reached a high of 27¾, up ⅝.

Abitibi was off ⅛ to 8 after reporting lower first-half earnings.

Steels gained strength. Interprovincial was up ¼ to 6 and Shelico ¼ to 21¼. Dofasco rose ¼ to 17¾ after reporting increased first-half earnings.

Base metals rose, although loco dropped ¼ to 4¼. Falconbridge and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting each gained ½ to 100¾ and 39¾, respectively.

Western oils advanced, after days of decline. Hudson Bay Oil and Gas rose ¼ to 38¼ and Husky ¼ to 14.

In golds, Kerr-Addison rose ⅛ to 11¾ and Patino ¼ to 30¾.

Industrials were up .01 to 163.06 on index, base metals .33 to 130.83 and western oils .49 to 198.88. The gold index dropped .02 to 194.25.

About 980,000 shares changed hands to 11 a.m. compared with 592,000 at the same time Tuesday.

TUESDAY'S MARKET

On Tuesday, the market closed lower for the seventh straight day, after showing signs of rallying earlier in the day.

Brokers were at a loss to explain the decline, since the New York market took a swing up and there was no major Canadian news to warrant the drop.

However, index declines in industrials, golds and western oils were less than half of what they were Monday. Base metals also closed slightly lower after being up most of the day.

Ford of Canada paced the losers, down 18¼ to 225½. There was no ready explanation other than the prospect of a steel strike in the United States. Ford

Highway 2 Fenced Off To Keep Out Wandering Hippo

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — There's $100 waiting for anyone who can coax a tame hippopotamus back into its pen.

The three-year-old animal, a native of West Africa, escaped from Woodlands Park Zoo here Monday and on Tuesday night by passing under an electrically-charged fence that crosses its water hole.

John Vanderschuit, a Brockville furniture dealer who started the zoo for his children on his 200-acre estate, said in an interview the hippo crossed Highway 2 and hid in Jones Creek near the St. Lawrence River.

He said the animal, which one year ago collided with a car on Highway 2 causing $1,000 damage after it broke out of its pen, is harmless. He further adds he hopes the hippo back have been unsuccessful. Mr. Vanderschuit said it hides in the creek during the day and emerges every night about 7 p.m. and tries to find its own way back.

Fences have been erected along Highway 2 so the hippo won't wander on to the road and cause another accident.

Lisps Can Generally Be Corrected

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Are there any corrective measures for a lisp? There have been such strides in science that I wonder if anything had been done about this. It can be quite a hindrance if it is a noticeable lisp where the tongue protrudes quite a bit. — Mrs. S. G.

Dear Doctor: I cannot pronounce certain letters such as S, CH, etc. can anything be done? I am 13. — L.

Yes, there are methods of correcting a lisp, but they depend on the cause of the lisp and on the age of the patient.

A lisp can be a decided handicap, so seeking the effective corrective treatment is important.

There is no simple method in most cases, however. One common cause is dental, such as when the upper teeth project well in advance of the lower teeth (called an overbite).

Other defects in the mouth — tongue, tonsils, adenoids, cleft palate arch — can be factors.

How these various faults are corrected becomes a pretty technical matter, so I won't try to go into it here.

The important thing to know is that many of them can be corrected, and the person with a lisp should be analyzed by a speech therapist to determine what correction is necessary. This is specialized work. Such speech therapists are usually in most rehabilitation centres as well as in many of the large medical centres.

Some lisping is normal enough in a child, but speech ough in a child, but speech should be reasonably clear by the age of seven years. If the lisp is pronounced at that age, the sooner corrective work begins, the better.

I am not saying that an older person, or an adult, cannot improve but corrective work should be started as soon as the problem is apparent. The older the patient, the more difficult it will be. For one thing, the habit of lisping becomes fixed and it is that much more difficult to learn a new way of speech even after surgical, dental or other correction has been made.

Dear Dr. Molner: Your column mentioned a medication used to aid people with a fatty liver. Please give me the name and more information about it.

My father, in his 70's, enjoys good health but his memory is becoming increasingly short. He often becomes very irritable when he is not able to remember the names of his children or to finish a sentence.

I suppose this is due to arteriosclerosis, but I would be grateful if I could find a way to help him in a small extent. — Mrs. R. E. M.

At present I think it would be a waste of time and effort, and would accomplish nothing, to try to do anything with such a drug. There is one which is being studied but it is my understanding that it is strictly in the research stage.

My suggestion — until or unless such "memory drugs" come on the market — is to have your regular physician do whatever, if anything, can be done to help your father's general circulation. But I don't think it will be wise, now, to expect to find a drug that will directly improve his memory. It's a hope, not a proved reality.

Note to Mrs. R.B.P.: Yes, it is possible to have a cataract in one eye and not the other, usually when the cataract resulted from injury. Ordinarily, however, if a cataract forms in one eye, one will also form in the other eye, although not necessarily at precisely the same time. Usually they do not develop at the same rate.

'Extinct' Costa Rican Volcano Erupts -- 52 Dead, 94 Missing

SAN JOSE (Reuters) — At least 52 persons were reported killed as Costa Ricans continued to flee today from an area around lava-spewing Arenal volcano, about 110 miles north of here.

President Jose Joaquin Trejos Fernandez reported 94 persons, including 62 children, are missing following the volcano's first eruption in recorded history.

The president said the immediate area around the volcano was declared a disaster area.

Government officials said SOS messages were sent to American authorities in Panama asking for more helicopters to help with evacuation and other rescue work which has been hindered by the remoteness of the area.

Two U.S. Air Force helicopters arrived earlier from their base in the Panama Canal Zone to help ferry supplies to the villages of Tarrasea and Liberia, where the majority of refugees are concentrated, official sources said.

The village of Pueblo Nuevo on the slopes of the 1,200-foot volcano was almost buried after the eruptions started Monday.

The people of the village threw themselves into the nearby river of Tarrazon in an effort to escape the lava avalanche burning its way down the slope.

But the river, normally little more than a stream, was turned into a torrent by the eruption. Many persons were cut down by falling rocks and debris and were swept away in the river, together with prize cattle and horses.

Other people were choked or burned by the volcanic ash, as streams of rock crashed down with "the power of artillery shells," one survivor said.

Reports from the scene said the avalanche that practically buried Pueblo Nuevo was the walls of the central cone of the volcano.

Preliminary estimates said more than 1,500 head of cattle worth thousands of dollars were lost and hundreds of acres of fruit, cotton and rice damaged.

Towns and villages over a wide radius were evacuated to the major towns of Quesada and Tilarne. The Red Cross also set up an emergency post near the volcano to aid casualties.

Communications No Cure-all

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The big word this year is "communication." If everyone we are told, would only get together and "communicate" with others, we would feel closer, our disputes would not be so rancorous, and maybe even some amicable solutions could be found for our disagreements.

Well, I am not that hopeful. Having been what is nowadays called a professional "communicator" for a quarter-century, I don't believe there is any magic in communication as an end in itself, it simply lets you know what you are disagree ing about.

Increased contact, on the verbal level at least, does not necessarily bring about agreement or understanding; it only works this way among persons or groups who already have a friendly feeling toward one another and who are not sharply divided on basic interests and values.

Whatever scanty sociological data we have available tends to bear out the impression that closer contact between hostile groups only increases the mistrust, kindles the anger, and escalates the enmity. "Peace talks," for instance, almost never succeed except when the contending parties have already come to them seeking peace as their immediate goal.

The current cant about the need for "communicating" is part of the semantic folklore of our time. While I am certainly appreciative of the value of general semantics in helping us think more clearly and express ourselves more accurately, I do not hold with the facile and unrealistic as the opposite viewpoint of resolving conflicts by power.

Words deal only with the intellectual level of our being But it is the effect on the will — that we are most motivated in basic areas. It is not what we know or don't know that makes us act as we do — it is what we want and do not want. With most of us, the appetite directs the will, and the will informs (or deforms) the intellect. The stomach, as Diogenes said, has no brain.

What must be communicated are good feelings, not statements of position, if the communication is to have any force for change. When bad feelings communicate from group to group, or person to person, they make things worse, not better. The world needs more lovers; then it could do with fewer communicators.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For Aug. 1st.

Your birthday today: At whatever level of society you happen to be, you must expect increasing management of your share of the world. Your judgment becomes important to others. Today's natives, many of whom must travel frequently, generally converse along positive lines. Where there are afflictions in the individual horoscope, today's natives prefer to be alone.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today is good for hard work. Financial experts are apt to be of key; your own intuition is sharper, but stay on the conservative side.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Ask nothing, just go right into whatever needs doing. Your best approach is open expression of affection. The reward comes later.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You need patience and understanding today, as everybody with any authority seems ready to make the worst of things. Gather family and friends this evening.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): This is not the time for pushing schemes but for productive effort. Leave the boss alone today.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Pursue your own course today in finances and personal interests. Nobody is likely to give you anything along any lines. Attend to loved ones.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Everybody is difficult to please today, including yourself. Draw on your reserves of patience. The optimistic approach will work better than anybody would expect.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Find something that takes you away from people and discussion. A good time for research of ancient events or for disposition of old personal property.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): This is a splendid time for testing your theories privately but not for offering suggestions. Sentimental matters encounter complications. Special tact is needed, day and night.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Disregard petty annoyances and personal comments. Pursue business activities diligently. Plan an evening with cross-currents of feelings. Retire early.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The less you say today the better. Financial advice is speculative. Spend time thinking about where you are going and whether you are on the right course.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your interest in marriage or partnership comes out strongly today, perhaps competing with your regular work. There is no easy solution at the moment.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your mate and close friends are your greatest support. High demands from all concerned are apt to be uncomfortable. Romantic interests suffer if pressed.
